PREFACE

THIS is the jubilee volume of the STATESMAN'S YEAR-BOOK, which was founded fifty years ago by the late Frederick Marten. An attempt has been made in the introductory matter and in the maps to indicate the contrast in certain aspects of the states of the world between then and now. Many changes have taken place in the internal constitutions and the external relations of the various states with which the YEAR-BOOK is concerned. The YEAR-BOOK itself has nearly trebled in size during the period. Many more aspects of the different states are dealt with now than was the case in the early form of the work, as may be seen by comparing the volume for the present year with its earliest predecessor.

In the present issue special attention is drawn to the introductory matter and maps and to the "ADDITIONS AND CORRECTIONS." As far as possible the changes which have taken place in the relations of certain states—Tripoli, Morocco, China, the Balkan Peninsula—have been dealt with. Under Canada a separate notice of each province has been added, while in other directions, as in agricultural statistics, considerable additions have been made. Throughout, the statistical and other information has been brought up to the latest available date.

The British Empire has again been under the care of Mr. Augustus D. Webb, B.Sc., the Army, of Colonel C. E. Callwell, C.B., the Navy, of Mr. Fred. T. Jane. I offer my warmest thanks to all those throughout the world who have kindly co-operated in the compilation of the new edition.

The number of outworkers (excluded from col. (5) of the table) was about 100,000, including probably some duplicates.

The table excludes the output of Agriculture and Fisheries, the value of which was about £20 600,000 for Agriculture (employing about 2,520,000 persons, including occupiers), and £2 000,000 for Fisheries (employing about 110 000 persons).

The gross output given in the above table involves a large amount of duplication. It is estimated that the 'factory value, or value at the works, of the output in 1907 free from all duplication, was about 1 440 millions sterling (including Outworks and Excise duties), and the value after adding the estimated cost of transport and distribution was from 1,782 to 1,917 millions sterling, of which 1,218 to 1 443 millions represented goods sold for consumption in the United Kingdom, and the rest represented export goods. If the goods imported not for further manufacture but for consumption be added the total cost to consumers of the goods consumed (including buildings, &c.) in the United Kingdom in 1907 is estimated to lie between 1,663 and 1,833 millions sterling.

The goods represented by this total of somewhat over 1,700 million pounds sterling were not all available for immediate personal consumption, since in order that production might continue on a permanent basis, provision had to be made for the maintenance of plant and other forms of capital. There are also other classes of the community, such as doctors, lawyers, and domestic servants, who do not produce material goods but acquire them in exchange for services. The total income of the country is made up of the value of the goods consumed or saved and of services, not embodied in material goods, rendered by some of its inhabitants to others for payment. This is estimated for 1907 at from 1,900 to 2,150 million pounds sterling of which a sum lying between 320 and 350 millions sterling represents additions by all classes to savings and investments. Comparing the net output ("12,000 000L") of the industries dealt with in returns made to the Census of Production Office, after allowing for renewals of plant &c., with this estimate of the total income of the United Kingdom it would appear that the values created by those industries form about one-third of the available income of the country. It is believed that the census covered all employers except those whose operations were on a very small scale or of extreme irregularity.

INTRODUCTORY TABLES

LIX

Strength at Home and Colonies by branches of the Service.	1862-63	1912-13
Horse Artillery	1 038	8,118
Cavalry	12 183	14,754
Field and Garrison Artillery	19 001	29 974
Engineers	4,566	9,818
Guards	6,906	7 416
Infantry of the line	87,816	84 888

Departmental services were differently organised fifty years ago from what they are now and it is difficult to establish any basis of comparison.

The number of cavalry regiments was the same in 1862-63 as it is still, and there were the same number in India. In 1862-3 there were 141 battalions of the line, of which 58 were in India; now there are 148, of which 52 are in India. In 1862-63 (there being then no Army Reserve) the peace establishment of a cavalry regiment at home was 34 officers and 602 other ranks, and of a line battalion 40 officers and 982 other ranks. Now the establishment of a cavalry regiment is 23 officers and 998 other ranks, and of a line battalion 25 officers and 177 other ranks.

THE TREATY OF OUCHY, October 15 1912.

The principal provisions of this treaty were as follows —

I.—Italy maintains absolutely the law which declared her full and entire sovereignty over Libya, and, in consequence, denies any form of sovereignty there on the part of Turkey whether open or disguised, nominal, effective, or partial.

II.—Turkey on her side, neither impugns nor recognises the sovereignty of Italy. She ignores it and in that manner avoids offending against the letter of the Koran which forbids the cession of lands of the Caliph to the infidel. Italy consents to forgo the formal recognition by Turkey, and will be content with procuring a recognition of her new rights from the Powers.

III.—Italy pledges herself to restore to the Ottoman Empire the islands in the Aegean which were occupied by her troops.

IV.—Italy accepts a clause, identical with that contained in the Austro-Hungarian Treaty regarding Bosnia-Herzegovina, dealing with the exercise of religious authority by the Caliph. Any kind of political interference is, however expressly excluded.

V.—There shall be no question of a payment of an indemnity by one side or the other. The sole engagement of a financial character which Italy is to make is the payment of that part of the Ottoman Public Debt which is guaranteed by revenue from Tripoli and Cyrenaica.

THE TREATY OF MADRID Nov 27, 1912

The Franco-Spanish Treaty regarding Morocco contains 80 articles. A Protocol of 14 articles regarding the Tangier-Fes Railway is attached.

(For a summary of the contents of this Treaty see p. 1056.)

CASES BROUGHT BEFORE THE HAGUE TRIBUNAL.

The following table shows the cases for international arbitration brought before the permanent court of arbitration at The Hague from the time of its establishment in 1902 until November 1 1912. The Dogger Bank affair in which Russian warships fired on the British fishing fleet in 1904, is not included, as it was settled by commission of inquiry not by arbitration. Another commission of inquiry finished its work in 1912, reporting to the French and Italian governments on July 15 on the stoppage of the French liner Tartar during the Turco-Italian war.

COMPULSORY SERVICE IN THE BRITISH EMPIRE

CANADA.

All the male inhabitants of Canada of the age of eighteen years and upwards and under sixty, being British subjects, are liable to service in the Militia, and the Governor General may require all the male inhabitants of Canada capable of bearing arms to serve in the case of a levée en masse.

COMMONWEALTH OF AUSTRALIA.

All male inhabitants of Australia who have resided therein for six months and who are British subjects are liable to be trained from the age of twelve to fourteen in the junior cadets, from fourteen to eighteen in the senior cadets, from eighteen to twenty-five in the citizen forces, from twenty-five to twenty-six in the citizen forces, but except in time of imminent danger of war during the last period the service shall be limited to one registration or one summer parade in each year.

All male inhabitants of Australia who have resided therein for six months and are British subjects and who are between the ages of eighteen and sixty years are in time of war liable to serve in the citizen forces.

NEW ZEALAND

All male inhabitants of New Zealand who have resided therein for six months and are British subjects are liable to be trained from the age of twelve to fourteen or on the date of leaving school, whichever is the later in the junior cadets, from fourteen years, or the date of leaving school, to eighteen years, or in the case of those who on attaining the age of eighteen years are attending a secondary school, to the date of their leaving school, in the senior cadets; and from eighteen years or the date of leaving a secondary school to twenty-five years in the general training section, or the Territorial Force in the case of their transfer to that force, and from twenty-five years to thirty years in the Reserve.

The Militia of New Zealand includes all the male inhabitants of New Zealand between the ages of seventeen and fifty-five who have resided in New Zealand for a period of six months, and all these persons are liable to be called out in time of war.

UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA.

Every citizen is liable between his seventeenth and sixtieth year to render in time of war personal service in defence of the Union and he is liable to undergo a course of peace training for military service and may be required to commence that training in his twenty-first year and to complete it not later than his twenty-fifth year but he may voluntarily commence it in any year between his seventeenth and twenty-first year. Of the total number liable to peace training, only 50 per cent. shall actually undergo the training unless special financial provision is made by Parliament otherwise. But every citizen liable to training who has not been entered in his twenty-first year must serve as member of a rifle association from his twenty-first year for four consecutive years.

BRITISH GUIANA.

In this Colony there are two Militia units and every male person who is a subject of His Majesty and between eighteen and forty-five years of age is liable to serve with the force.

JAMAICA.

There is one company of Garrison Artillery, known as 'The Jamaica Militia Artillery' in this Colony. Subject to certain exceptions, every male inhabitant of the island between eighteen and forty years of age is liable to serve and if there are not sufficient volunteers to make up the quota the required number is chosen by ballot.

ANTIGUA.

The Defence Force is in status and constitution a Volunteer Force, but when the force falls below a certain strength all male inhabitants between eighteen and forty-five years of age are liable to serve and the required number is chosen by ballot.

DOMINICA AND MONTEKRAT.

In these two Colonies similar legislation has been enacted.

ST KITTS NEVIS.

There is legislation on similar lines, but the age of liability to service is from seven to forty years of age.

BAHAMAS BRITISH HONDURAS AND ST HELENA.

Statutory provision for compulsory service exists but there are no Militia Forces in any of these three Colonies and the legislation in question is therefore to be regarded as inoperative.

<sup>5</sup> The Territorial Force Establishments are the revised Establishments in force on 1st October, 1912, not those given in Army Estimates. The figures include the 1st of Man Volunteers. They also include both Permanent Staff and Territorial Officers for Officers Training Corps, the numbers being: Territorial Officers, establishment 948 and strength 10; Permanent Staff, establishment 25 adjutants and 19 adjutants; strength, 10 adjutants and 44 adjutants.

Army, Nationalities, Religion and Education.—Of the 294,901 non-commissioned officers and men on Oct. 1, 1912, 198,891 were born in England, 3,076 in Wales, 16,258 in Scotland, 21,421 in Ireland, 7,285 in India or the Colonies, 802 were British subjects born in foreign countries, 1 was a foreigner, and the nationalities of 114 were not reported.

Of the same men at the same date, 146,068 belonged to the Church of England, 18,916 were Presbyterians, 18,106 were Wesleyans, 3,970 were Baptists or Congregationalists, 1,486 other Protestants, 24,386 Roman Catholics, 721 Jews, and 2,005 Mahomedans, Hindus, &c.

Of 29,619 recruits examined during the year ended Sept. 30, 1912, 5.48 per cent. were men of good education, 23.38 per cent. of fair education, 50.97 of moderate education, 20.70 of inferior education, 11.06 were illiterate, i.e., could not read a Standard II Reader, nor write from dictation from a Standard II Reader, nor work very easy problems with small numbers on the simple rules of Arithmetic.

Horses, &c.—On Oct. 1, 1912, the horses, mules, &c., on the British establishment at Home numbered 29,886, in Egypt, 1,801 (including 161 camels), in S. Africa, 5,888 (Ghaffers and Mulla, 281, Coyles, Singapore, China, and Mauritius, 458 (including 10 bullocks in China); Bermuda, 87, total in the Colonies, &c., 7,704; general total, 39,365, establishments, 52,122.

NAVY.

Expenditure.—The expenditure (net) on the navy for the year 1912-13 is estimated at £44,500,000, as against £5,073,000 for 1912-13. For 1913-14 the number of officers, sailors, &c., provided for is 144,000; for 1912-13 the number was 137,500. The total number of Royal Fleet Reserve is 25,728. For a period of years a certain number of young warrant officers will be liable to be selected for commissions.

The following particulars are taken from the Statement of the First Lord of the Admiralty, explanatory of the Estimates for 1913-14.

Expenditure.—The construction for the year 1913-14 will cost £12,575,000, as against £14,000,000, for 1912-13. Of this amount £1,320,000 will be spent on the construction of work on ships already under construction, and 2,952,400 for beginning work on ships of the new programme, which is composed as follows —

- 5 Battleships,
- 4 Light Armoured Cruisers,
- 18 Destroyers, and a number of submarines and subsidiary craft.

The total estimated cost of the new programme is 15,958,025.

Between the 1st April, 1912, and the 31st March 1915 the following ships will have been completed and become available for service —

- 4 Battleships (King George V., Centurion, Thunderer, Conqueror).
- 2 Battle Cruisers (Lion, Princess Royal, New Zealand).

4 Light Cruisers (Chatham, Dublin, Southampton, Ampton, Melbourne). The last is for Australia).

- 18 Destroyers.
- 8 Submarines and 3 other vessels

On the 1st of April 1912 there were to be under construction —

- 11 Battleships (including Malaya).
- 2 Battle Cruisers (including one for Australia).
- 18 Light Cruisers (including one for Australia).
- 23 Torpedo Boat Destroyers
- 21 Submarines (including two for Australia).

A number of vessels for carrying oil fuel and for various Fleet purposes.

The Malaya is the first-class armoured ship offered by the Malay States to the Imperial Government.

Two large floating docks, capable of taking any war vessel now building or likely to be designed, have been completed and delivered for Portsmouth and the Medway. A small floating dock for destroyers has been completed and placed at Harwich, and one for submarines to be stationed ultimately at Dover has been completed.

The principal development of Imperial naval policy during the year 1912-13 has been in Canada. Mr. Borden and other members of the Canadian Cabinet visited London to confer with the Admiralty. On their invitation the Admiralty prepared a statement of the present and immediate prospective requirements of the naval defence of the Empire for the consideration of the Canadian Government. Mr. Borden has since announced in the Canadian House of Commons the decision of his Government to propose the grant to the Crown of £7,000,000 for the immediate construction of three of the most modern type of armoured ships. It is intended to place these ships at the disposal of the Imperial Government for the common defence of the Empire, to be controlled and maintained as part of the Royal Navy. Mr. Borden added. If at any time in the future it be the will of the Canadian people to establish a Canadian unit of the British Navy these vessels can be called by the Canadian Government to form part of the Navy, in which case, of course, they will be maintained by Canada and not by Great Britain. This measure is still under discussion in the Canadian Parliament (April 1913).

AVIATION

Military wing.—One airship squadron and three aeroplane squadrons have been formed as part of the military wing of the Royal Flying Corps. The total strength of this wing and the Central Flying School, including officers holding certificates but not as yet admitted to the school, and Reserve officers, is now (March, 1913) 126 officers and 660 men, of whom 122 officers and 8 men are qualified aeroplane fliers. Two more aeroplane squadrons are to be raised in 1913-14, and two more subsequently. The airship squadron has three dirigible airships. Each aeroplane squadron has 18 aeroplanes. The War Office has at present (March 1913) 101 aeroplanes, and expects to have 148 by the end of May. A Special Reserve of the Royal Flying Corps will be formed consisting of (a) men who enlist for four years and perform a short annual training, and (b) skilled mechanics already employed in the aeroplane industry who will do no military training in peace but will undertake for an annual bounty to come up on mobilization. The net Army provision for Aviation in 1913-14, excluding land and guns, is £501,000.

Naval wing.—The development of the naval wing of the Royal Flying Corps is progressing rapidly, and an Air Department has been created at the Admiralty to deal with all questions affecting the air services. Good progress has been made with the aeroplane section at Haslemere, and close attention is being given to the establishment of air stations along the coast. The progress with the hydro-aeroplane has been satisfactory. The work of training has been and is proceeding steadily both at the Central Flying School and Haslemere.

The needs of the airship section of the naval wing are also being closely studied, and a naval airship station is being established in the Medway. By arrangement with the War Office, officers and men have been trained at Farnborough with the military airship and its appliances. Two airships of the Astra-Torres and Farnham types have been purchased for instruction and experimental purposes.

Revised estimates, 1912-13.—The revised estimates for 1912-13 (published March 1, 1913) compare as follows with the Budget estimates in March 1912:—

	Budget Estimate	Revised Estimates	Increase
Revenue	71,324,000	84,185,800	7,681,800
Expenditure	78,757,000	83,025,400	5,147,700
Surplus	1,478,300	3,361,400	1,883,600

The following are the most important variations:—

Revenue

State Railways (net receipts)	+ 3,630,500
Opium	+ 1,440,800
Customs	— 686,900
Mint	+ 326,800

Excise	+ 263,800
Interest Receipts	+ 228,600
Stamps	+ 187,800
Post Office and Telegraph	+ 117,500
Forest	+ 115,700
Exchange	+ 109,300
Land Revenue	+ 90,000
Assessed Taxes	+ 76,000
Salt	— 91,100

Expenditure

Provincial Adjustments	+ 577,000
Military Services	+ 551,500
Civil Works	+ 537,800
Political	+ 70,700
Famine Relief	+ 65,200
Education	+ 411,200
Medical	+ 391,200
Opium	+ 32,400
Payments to subsidised Railway Co.	+ 29,600
Scientific and Minor Depts.	+ 65,100
Land Revenue	+ 16,100

Budget estimates for 1913-14.—The Budget estimate shows a surplus of 1,311,200.

The chief variations in the figures as compared with the revised estimate for 1912-13 are as follows:

	Increase	Decrease.
Excise	243,800	—
Land Revenue	178,700	—
Post Office and Telegraph	151,100	—
Stamps	185,700	—
Salt	68,700	—
Opium	—	3,617,800
State Railways (net receipts)	—	2,905,700
Provincial Rates	—	524,000
Mint	—	261,400
Interest Receipts	—	176,800
Customs	—	123,600
Other Heads	—	100,000

Expenditure
Education	1,50,000	—
Medical	558,600	—
Opium	530,100	—
Civil Works	521,600	—
Police	236,200	—
Protective Irrigation Works	178,800	—
Railways	162,100	—
Post Office and Telegraph	150,700	—
Other heads	688,900	—
Provincial Adjustments	—	8,556,500
Interest	—	191,400
Famine Relief	—	142,100

Revenue—The decrease under opium is due to the loss of revenue from certified opium and to a reduction in the number of uncertified chests to be sold. The fall under Provincial Rates is due to the decision to transfer to District Boards the net proceeds of the land cess in certain Provinces which are at present appropriated by the Provincial Governments. These will be compensated from the revenues of the Government of India.

Expenditure—There are special recurring grants of $65,700 for education and sanitation, and 520,900 for compensation in respect of the transfer of the land cess. The great decrease under Provincial Adjustments is due to the following cause: large special grants amounting to 4,617,900 were made to the Provincial Governments in 1912-13 for education (2,61,500) sanitation (1,000,000) and other purposes, these grants being charged against the revenue of the year but added to the Provincial balances with a view to future outlay. It is anticipated that part of these and previous similar grants will be spent in 1913-14, the money being provided from the Provincial balances with the result that the charges against the revenue of the year will be correspondingly reduced.

Capital Expenditure 1913-14

Railways	12,000,000

UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA.

Parliamentary Representation.—On the basis of the 1911 census the representation of the several Provinces in the next Parliament will be as follows: Cape 51 Transvaal 45 Orange Free State 17 Natal 17

Religions.—The results of the 1911 census as regards religions are as follows:—Europeans: Dutch Churches, 806,898 Anglicans 245,640 Presbyterians, 58,633 Congregationalists, 18,535 Wesleyans 80,408 Lutherans 22,948 Roman Catholics 58,793 Baptists 13,068, Jews 46,919 others and unspecified 35,576 total 1,276,242. Non-Europeans: Dutch Churches, 304,702 Anglicans, 276,849 Presbyterians 72,114 Independents (Congregationalists), 173,962 Wesleyans 456,017 African Methodist Episcopal, 59,108 Lutherans 195,808 Roman Catholics 37,212 Hindus, 115,701 Buddhists and Confucians 1,188 Mahomedans 45,542 no religion 3,017,618 others and unspecified 45,861 total 4,047,111.

Occupations.—The census returns for 1911 show the occupations of the people to be as follows:—Professional 59,721 domestic 270,690 commercial 81,637, agricultural 181,434 industrial, 143,325 indefinite 10,745 dependents, 492,930 unspecified 49,114. As to the civil service there are 26,248 white persons of whom 234 are females, who are engaged in the general or local government or the defence of the Union of South Africa. There are some 312,000 persons of all races employed in the mining industry of the Union of these 47,000 are Europeans.

Finance.—The revised estimates for 1912-13 and the budget estimates for 1913-14 are as follows:—

	1912-13	1913-14
Revenue	17,314,000	17,600,000
Expenditure	17,106,000	16,170,000

The reduction of £14,000 in the estimated revenue is mainly due to the discontinuance of the railway contribution of £500,000 to the general revenue.

Trade.—The imports and exports in 1912 were as follows:—

Imports		Exports

SIERRA LEONE PROTECTORATE.

On March 7 1912, an Order in Council was issued constituting the Protectorate of Sierra Leone. The Order applies to the territories, not being portions of the Colony of Sierra Leone, lying between the sixth and tenth degrees of north latitude and the tenth and fourteenth degrees of west longitude, and beginning at the extreme southerly point of the colony on the Anglo-Liberian boundary as delimited under the provisions of the Anglo-Liberian Conventions, November 11, 1885 and January 21 1911.

The Governor and Commander-in-Chief for the time being of the Colony of Sierra Leone is to be also the Governor of the Protectorate. Authority is given to the Legislative Council of Sierra Leone, by ordinance, to exercise and provide for giving effect to the powers and jurisdiction acquired by the Crown.

1 THE UNITED KINGDOM OF GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND

Constitution and Government

I. IMPERIAL AND CENTRAL.

The supreme legislative power of the British Empire is by its Constitution given to Parliament. Parliament is summoned by the writ of the sovereign issued out of Chancery, by advice of the Privy Council, at least thirty-five days previous to its assembling.

The annual session extends from the middle of February to about the end of August, or occasionally later. Every session must end with a prorogation, and by it all Bills which have not been passed during the session then lapse. A dissolution may occur by the will of the sovereign, or, as is most usual, during the recess, by proclamation, or finally by lapse of time, the statutory limit of the duration of the existence of any Parliament being five years.

Important alterations were made in the Constitution by the Parliament Act, 1911 (1 and 2 Geo V, ch 13). Under this Act, all Money Bills (so certified by the Speaker of the House of Commons) if not passed by the House of Lords without amendment, may become law without their concurrence on the royal assent being signified. Public Bills, other than Money Bills or a Bill extending the maximum duration of Parliament, if passed by the House of Commons in three successive sessions, whether of the same Parliament or not, and rejected each time (or not passed) by the House of Lords, may become law without their concurrence on the royal assent being signified provided that two years have elapsed between the second reading in the first session of the House of Commons, and the third reading in the third session. All Bills coming under this Act must reach the House of Lords at least one month before the end of the session. Finally, the Parliament Act limits the maximum duration of Parliament to five years instead of seven.

The present form of Parliament as divided into two Houses of Legislature, the Lords and the Commons, dates from the middle of the fourteenth century.

The House of Lords consists of peers who hold their seats—(1) by hereditary right (2) by creation of the sovereign, (3) by virtue of office—Law Lords and English bishops (4) by election for life—Irish peers, (5) by election for duration of Parliament—Scottish peers. The full house would consist (in 1912) of 636. There are, besides, 15 peeresses of the United Kingdom and 3 Scottish peeresses in their own right and 19 Scottish and 59 Irish peers who are not peers of Parliament.

The House of Commons consists of members representing County, Borough and University constituencies in the three Divisions of the United Kingdom. No one under 21 years of age can be a member of Parliament. All clergymen of the Church of England, ministers of the Church of Scotland and Roman Catholic clergymen are disqualified from sitting as members. All Government contractors, and all sheriffs, and returning officers for the localities for which they act are disqualified both from voting and from sitting as members. No English or Scottish peer can be elected to the House of Commons, but non-representative Irish peers are eligible.

In August, 1911, by resolution of the House of Commons, provision was made for the payment of a salary of 400*l*. per year to members other than those already in receipt of salaries as officers of the House, as Ministers, or as officers of His Majesty's household. This provision does not extend to the House of Lords.

Every elector must be of full age, and must be registered in the electoral lists. Property qualifications are restricted to counties and to such boroughs as have county privileges. In England they are the holding of an estate (1) in freehold of the annual value of 40 shillings (2) of lands in life tenure of the annual value of 5*l*., (3) held on lease of at least 60 years of the annual value of 5*l*., or of at least 20 years of the annual value of 60*l*. Similar, but not identical qualifications exist in Scotland and Ireland. Throughout the United Kingdom, in counties, occupation of a tenement which is rated for the support of the poor, and for which the rates have been paid by the prescribed date, constitutes a qualification, but in English boroughs the occupation franchise is associated with 6 months' residence, and in Scotch boroughs with 12 months' residence. Every inhabitant occupier who has for 12 months, within the United Kingdom, inhabited a rated dwelling house for which the rates have been paid is entitled to registration, and lodgers occupying for 12 months the same lodgings of the value of 10*l*. a year, may have a vote. There are, besides, some ancient franchises, such as that of the liverymen of the City of London companies, and there are 6 university constituencies in which graduates on the electoral roll are electors. Disqualified for registration are aliens and persons who within a year have received parochial poor relief.

About one-sixth of the population are electors. By an annual act voting is by ballot.

The numbers of members and of registered electors for England and Wales, Scotland, and Ireland respectively, in 1918 are given as follows —

II LOCAL GOVERNMENT

England and Wales—In each county the Crown is represented by a Lord Lieutenant, who is generally also custos rotulorum, or keeper of the records. The recommendation of persons for appointment by the Lord Chancellor as justices of the peace rests with the Lords Lieutenant, but local advisory committees are now being set up, as and when required, to advise the Lords Lieutenant and the Lord Chancellor on these appointments. The Lords Lieutenant are the presidents of the County Associations formed under the Territorial and Reserve Forces Act, 1907, and their duties as such relate to the organisation, equipping and maintenance of the Territorial Forces. Otherwise their duties are almost nominal. There is also a sheriff, who represents the executive of the Crown, an under-sheriff, a clerk of the peace, coroners, who are appointed and paid by the County Councils, and other officers. The licensing of persons to sell intoxicating liquors, and the administration of the criminal law—except that which deals with some of the graver offences—are in the hands of the magistrates.

For the purposes of local government England and Wales are divided into sixty-two administrative counties, including the county of London, which differ in area from the geographical counties. For each administrative county there is a popularly-elected Council, called a County Council, who co-opt a prescribed number of aldermen either from their own body or from outside it. Aldermen are elected for six years, half of them retiring every third year. A councillor is elected for three years. Women are eligible. The jurisdiction of the County Councils extends to the making of county and police rates, levying of duties on licenses for carriages, armorial bearings, guns, dogs killing and dealing in game, borrowing of money, supervision of county treasurer, management of county halls and other buildings, licensing of houses for music and dancing, and of racecourses, maintenance and management of pauper lunatic asylums, maintenance of reformatory and industrial schools, management of bridges and main roads, regulation of fees of inspectors, analysts, and other officers, control of officers paid out of the county rate, coroners salary, fees, and district, Parliamentary polling districts and registration, contagious diseases of animals, allotments, weights and measures, sale of food and drugs. Under Acts of 1902 and 1903 the County Councils are local education authorities, and other recent acts have in minor matters extended their jurisdiction. The control of the county police is vested in a standing joint committee composed of an equal number of magistrates and members of the County Council. The London Metropolitan police are, however, under the control of the Home Secretary.

The administrative counties, with the exception of the County of London, are subdivided into County Districts which are either 'Urban' or 'Rural' as the case may be. Generally speaking, an urban district comprises a town or a small area more or less densely populated, and a rural district takes in several country parishes. Women may be elected to these District Councils, but cannot be magistrates. The District Councils administer the Public Health and Highway Acts, and also exercise powers under the Housing Acts. Urban District Councils may also take over main roads from the County Councils, provide burial grounds, allotments, baths and washhouses, libraries, open spaces, museums, isolation hospitals, &c. exercise powers under Provisional Orders or Private Acts for gasworks, tramways, electric light and power works &c. Any urban district with 20,000 inhabitants may also be a local education authority. The Rural District Councils may also provide allotments, cemeteries, &c. make arrangements for an adequate water supply and exercise any Urban powers conferred on them by the Local Government Board.

In every civil parish in a 'rural' district there is a Parish Meeting, at which every parochial elector may attend and vote. In such parishes of over 300 inhabitants there is in addition a Parish Council. Women are eligible for election. Parishes of less than 300 inhabitants may have Parish Councils if authorised by the County Council. To these Parish Councils have been transferred all the civil powers of the old Vestries, including the election of overseers, and in addition very considerable powers over charities, allotments, and other public matters. Where there is no Parish Council some of these powers, including the appointment of the overseers, are exercised by the Parish Meeting. Urban District Councils can, by petitioning the Local Government Board—which is the supreme Local Government authority—obtain part or all of the powers of a Parish Council. Only Parish Meetings may have power to adopt the Public Libraries Acts, the Baths and Washhouses Acts, the Lighting and Watching Acts, the Burial Acts, and the Public Improvements Acts.

The main central authority in London, the metropolis, is the County Council, created by the Local Government Act of 1888. It has considerable powers in regard to public health, housing, bridges and ferries, asylums, street improvements, education, and numerous other matters. The City Corporation have powers respecting sanitation, police, bridges, justice, &c. in the City of London. Apart from the City, London is divided into 28 metropolitan boroughs, under the London Government Act, 1899, each with a mayor, aldermen and councillors (women are eligible). The Councils have powers in regard to public health, highways, rating, housing, education, &c.

In all the great towns, including the county boroughs, local business is administered by a municipal Corporation, which derives its authority from a charter granted by the Crown. The County Boroughs are outside the jurisdiction of the County Councils, but in other Municipal Boroughs these Councils have certain powers and duties. A municipal Corporation consists of the mayor, aldermen and burgesses, and acts through a Council elected by the burgesses—practically by the ratepayers. The councillors serve for three years (women are eligible), one third retiring annually, the aldermen are elected by the Council, and the mayor, who serves for one year, also by the Council. A municipal Corporation has practically all the powers of an urban district council, and in some cases municipal boroughs have a separate commission of the peace and maintain their own police force. As to Poor Law and Education administration, see 'Pauperism' and 'Instruction.'

Scotland—By the Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1894 a Local Government Board for Scotland was constituted. It consists of the Secretary for Scotland as President, the Solicitor General of Scotland, the Under Secretary for Scotland, and three other members nominated by the Crown. The Local Government Act which was passed for Scotland in 1894 followed in its main outlines the English Act of the previous year. The powers of local administration in counties formerly exercised by the Commissioners of Supply and Road Trustees were either wholly or in part transferred to the new Councils, which took over their duties and responsibilities in 1890. The Act of 1894 provided that a Parish Council should be established in every parish to take the place of the Parochial Boards and to exercise powers similar to those of the Parish Councils in England. Municipal bodies exist in the towns of Scotland, as in those of England, with bailies and provosts instead of aldermen and mayors. There are in Scotland five kinds of burghs—(1) Burghs of barony, (2) Burghs of regality (no practical distinction between these two), the councils of these two classes of burghs ceased to exist in 1893 by statutory enactment, (3) Royal Burghs, representatives of which meet together annually in a collective corporate character as the 'Convention of Royal Burghs, for the transaction of business', (4) Parliamentary Burghs, which possess statutory constitutions almost identical with those of the Royal Burghs, (5) Police Burghs, constituted under the Burgh Police (Scotland) Act, 1892, in which the local authority are the Police Commissioners. These two latter burghs, by Acts passed in 1879 and 1895, are enabled to send representatives to the convention.

Ireland—The principal county authority for local government used to be the grand jury, appointed under the Act 6 & 7 Will IV c 116, but, by the Local Government (Ireland) Act, 1898, provision was made for the establishment of popularly elected Councils for counties and rural districts. The councillors are elected for three years, and the Council of each county and rural district, immediately after any triennial election, may choose additional members to hold office till the next triennial election. The administrative business formerly managed by the grand juries and presentment sessions has been transferred to these Councils, and in addition County Councils have now certain powers and functions with regard to the maintenance of asylums and infirmaries. The appointment of coroner is now also vested in the County Council. The business relating to public health and to the assessment and collection of rates formerly vested in the Board of Guardians now devolves on the Rural District and County Council respectively. In urban districts the Councils of these districts administer matters relating to public health and rates, in addition to business transferred to them from the grand jury and presentment sessions. The administration of the poor relief Acts is exercised by Boards of Guardians. Each Board comprises the councillors of each rural district in the union, together with specially elected representatives of each urban district in the union. The cities of Dublin, Belfast, Cork, Limerick, Londonderry, and Waterford, which already possessed representative councils, are made county boroughs, and are exempt from some of the special provisions of the Act. The towns are partly corporate and partly governed by Commissioners (certain boroughs have a mayor, aldermen, and councillors whose powers are regulated by 3 & 4 Vict. c. 108). The ordinary affairs of the borough, such as lighting, watching, and cleansing, are administered by the Council, which has power to levy rates for these purposes. In such towns as have no charter of incorporation, the local affairs are administered by a body of Commissioners (appointed under the Towns Improvement Act, 1854, or by a local Act) who have powers generally to discharge the usual municipal functions and are empowered to levy rates to defray the cost of administration. Towns must have 1,500 inhabitants to enable them to obtain municipal government under the Towns Improvement Act, 1854, and any municipal town may be constituted an urban sanitary district.

By the Local Authorities (Ireland) (Qualification of Women) Act, 1911, women are eligible for election and to act on county and borough councils in Ireland in the same manner and on the same conditions as men.

In 1901 in Wales and Monmouthshire 280,905 persons 3 years of age and upwards, or 13.9 per cent. of the total population, were able to speak Welsh only and 648,919 or 32.2 per cent. able to speak Welsh and English. Thus 929,824 or 46.0 per cent. persons could speak Welsh. In 1881 the number returned was 950,000 or about 70 per cent. In 1901 in Scotland, 25,105 persons 5 years of age and upwards or 8.7 per cent. of the total population could speak Gaelic only and 202,700 or 4.3 per cent. could speak Gaelic and English. Thus 227,805 or 5.16 per cent. could speak Gaelic and of these 111,455 were in the counties of Inverness, Ross and Cromarty. In 1881 the number was 231,524 or 6.20 per cent. In 1911 in Ireland 20,935 or 4.5 per cent. of the population could speak Irish only and 690,189 or 13.91 per cent. could speak Irish and English. Thus 711,124 or 14.30 per cent. could speak Irish. In 1881 the number was 949,937, or 18.20 per cent.

Religion.—I ENGLAND AND WALES

The Established Church of England is Protestant Episcopal. Civil disabilities on account of religion do not attach to any class of British subjects.

The King is by law the supreme governor of the Church, possessing the right, regulated by the statute 25 Hen VIII c 20, to nominate to the vacant archbishoprics and bishoprics the form being to send to the dean and chapter of the vacant see the royal licence, or congé d'élire, to proceed to the election, accompanied by the King's letter naming the person to be elected and afterwards the royal assent and confirmation of the appointment are signified under the Great Seal. But this form applies only to the sees of old foundation: the bishoprics of Manchester, St. Albans, Liverpool, Truro, Newcastle, Southwark, Southwell, and Birmingham are conferred direct by letters patent from the Crown. The King, and the First Lord of the Treasury in his name, also appoint to such deaneries, prebendaries, and canonries as are in the gift of the Crown, while a large number of livings and also some canonries are in the gift of the Lord Chancellor.

There are 2 archbishops and 35 bishops, and 36 suffragan and assistant bishops in England and Wales. The archbishops have also each his own particular diocese wherein they exercise episcopal, as in their provinces they exercise archiepiscopal jurisdiction. Under the bishops are about 32 deans and 100 archdeacons. For the management of ecclesiastical affairs, the provinces have each a council, or Convocation, consisting of the bishops, archdeacons, and deans, in person, and of a certain number of proctors, as the representatives of the inferior clergy. These councils are summoned by the respective archbishops, in pursuance of the King's mandate. When assembled, they must also have the King's licence before they can deliberate, as well as the sanction of the Crown to their resolutions: before they are binding on the clergy.

The number of civil parishes (districts for which a separate poor rate is or can be made) at the census of 1911 was 14,614. These, however, in most cases, do not coincide with ecclesiastical parishes, which, during the present century, have lost their old importance, the ancient parishes having been cut up in many cases into districts, each of which is virtually an independent parish ecclesiastically. Of such parishes there were (1911) 14,387, inclusive of the Isle of Man and the Channel Islands. Each parish has its church, presided over by an incumbent or minister, who must be in priest's orders, and who is known as rector, vicar, or perpetual curate, according to his relation to the temporalities of his parish. Private persons possess the right of presentation to about 8,500 benefices, the patronage of the others belongs mainly to the king, the bishops and cathedrals, the Lord Chancellor and the universities of Oxford and Cambridge. In 1912 there were about 18,900 incumbents. The voluntary contributions of the Church in 1911-12 were 7,764,777<sup>1</sup>.

Of 31,598 churches and chapels registered for the solemnisation of marriage in 1910, 15,811 belonged to the Established Church and 15,787 to other religious denominations. Of the marriages celebrated in 1910 61.6 per cent. were in the Established Church, 4.2 per cent. in the Roman Catholic Church, 19.0 per cent. were Nonconformist marriages, 0.04 per cent. were Quaker marriages, 0.63 per cent. Jewish and 20.5 per cent. civil marriages in Registrar's Office.

The following summary of statistics of Nonconformist churches (England and Wales) in 1911 is taken from the 'Free Church Year Book' for 1912. It only claims to present an approximation to the actual condition. Figures relating to the Anglican Church are appended —

The Unitarians had (1911) 374 places of worship, the Catholic Apostolic Church about 80, the New Jerusalem Church about 75. The Salvation Army, a religious body with a semi-military organisation, carries on both spiritual and social work at home and abroad, and has (1912) about 20,840 officers and employs 9,180 corps and outposts, and 54,000 local officers. Their places of worship in the United Kingdom have about 550,000 sittings. There are about 245,000 Jews in the United Kingdom with nearly 200 synagogues.

In Wales alone, in 1912 there were about 127,000 members of the Baptist churches, 184,000 of the Calvinistic Methodist, 170,000 of the Congregational, and 40,000 of the Wesleyan Methodist Churches.

Roman Catholics in Great Britain are estimated at 2,200,000. There are in England and Wales (1912) three archbishops (of whom one is a cardinal), thirteen bishops, and three bishops auxiliary, about 4,000 priests (not all officiating), and about 1,800 churches, chapels, and stations.

II SCOTLAND

The Church of Scotland (established in 1560 and confirmed in 1688) is presbyterian, the clergy all being equal. There is in each parish a kirk session, consisting of the minister or clergyman, and of several laymen called elders. There are 84 presbyteries (formed by groups of parishes), meeting frequently throughout the year, and these are grouped in 16 synods, which meet half yearly and can be appealed to against the decisions of the presbyteries. The supreme court is the General Assembly which consists of over 1,000 members partly clerical and partly lay chosen by the different presbyteries and royal burghs and by the universities. It meets annually in May (under the presidency of a Moderator appointed by the Assembly, the Sovereign being represented by a nobleman known as Lord High Commissioner) sitting for ten days the matters not decided during this period being left to a Commission.

The number of parishes is 1,448 and the number of churches, chapels and stations 1,643. The parishioners are allowed under certain regulations enacted by the General Assembly to choose their own ministers. The entire endowments of the Church from all sources, including manse and glebes, amount to about 860,000*l.* per annum. The voluntary contributions of the congregations for religious and charitable purposes in 1910-11 amounted to 498,427*l.* The number of communicants in 1911-12 was about 715,000, ministers, 1,825, lay preachers 170, Sunday scholars 230,000.

On October 31, 1900, the Free Church of Scotland and the United Presbyterian Church of Scotland (formed by secessions at various times from the Church of Scotland) constituted themselves into the United Free Church of Scotland. A minority, representing 26 congregations, regarding themselves as the Free Church of Scotland, claimed all the property and endowment funds. A Royal Commission reported that the Free Church was unable adequately to carry out all the trusts of the property. The Churches (Scotland) Act 1905 was passed for the apportionment of the church property between the Free and the United Free churches by an Executive Commission of five, and the result was that funds amounting to 459,489*l.* were allocated to the Free Church (810,000*l.* for general provision and the remainder for College provision and various other purposes). The United Church had, in 1911-12, 1,581 congregations, and 505,000 members, besides adherents. It has 2,286 Sunday schools &c. with 24,900 teachers and 236,000 children in attendance. The church courts are the General Assembly, 12 synods, 64 presbyteries, and 12 continental presbyteries. Annual revenue from free will offerings is above a million sterling. The Church has three theological colleges (at Edinburgh, Glasgow and Aberdeen) with 18 professors and lecturers. The Free Church had in 1912 (according to the Free Church Statistics) 167 congregations and stations, 89 ministers and probationers, and one college. Contributions to schemes amounted to 16,258*l.*, interest to 16,416*l.* and congregational income to 13,245*l.* There are in Scotland some small outstanding Presbyterian bodies and also Baptists, Independents, Methodists, and Unitarians. The Episcopal Church in Scotland has 7 bishoprics, 397 churches and missions, 340 clergy, and 55 000 communicants.

The Roman Catholic Church has in Scotland (1911) two archbishops and four suffragan bishops, 559 priests, 395 churches, chapels and stations, and about 400 000 adherents.

The proportion of marriages in Scotland according to the rites of the various Churches in 1910 was Established, 44.89 per cent., United Free, 26.24, Roman Catholic 10.26, Episcopal, 2.81, others, 8.75, irregular, 7.05.

III IRELAND

The Roman Catholic Church in Ireland is under four archbishops, of Armagh, Cashel, Dublin, and Tuam, and 23 bishops, besides a bishop auxiliary. On a vacancy the clergy of the diocese nominate a successor in whose favour they postulate or petition the Pope. The bishops of the province also present the names of two or three eligible persons to the Pope. The new bishop is generally chosen from this latter number, but the appointment virtually rests with the cardinals. The emoluments of a bishop arise from his parish which is generally the best in the diocese, from licences of marriage, &c., and from the cathedralium, a small contribution paid by incumbents of parishes. The incomes of all classes of the Roman Catholic clergy of Ireland arise partly from fees, but principally from Christmas and Easter dues, and other voluntary offerings. Number of priests in Ireland (1911) 3 689. In 1911 the Roman Catholic population was returned at 3 242 670 being 73.9 per cent. of the total population.

The Church of Ireland (Protestant Episcopal) ceased to be 'established by law' by Act of Parliament (1869) 32 & 33 Vict. cap. 42. It has (1912) two archbishops, 11 bishops, and 1 700 clergymen, 1 400 churches, voluntary contributions, 1910 158 724/. At the census of 1911 the number of Protestant Episcopalians was returned as 576 811 being 18.1 per cent. of the total population. Previous to disestablishment its income was 600,000/, and its entire capital was estimated at 14,000 000/. By the Disestablishment Act 7 500,000/, were allotted to it by way of commutation, and 500,000/ in lieu of private endowments. The Church is governed by a General Synod—bishops, clergy, and laity having the right to vote separately. There are also 23 diocesan synods. The following is a summary of the funds of the Representative Body existing on December 31 1911—

Communion Capital	280 872	Balances of Income Accounts
Parochial Sustentation	5 833 275	etc.	38,666
Episcopal Sustentation	558 286
Glebe Capital	400 271
Miscellaneous Capital	2,183 268	Total	9 901,503

There were in 1911, 440 525 Presbyterians, 62,862 Methodists, 9,139 Independents, 8,123 Baptists, 5,101 Jews. In 1911 the largest Presbyterian body consisted of 26 presbyteries and had 651 ministers and 562 congregations, with 105,962 members, contributions during year 1911-12, 220,428/; total church income, 289,867/. This Church has two colleges, one in Belfast purely theological, the other (Magee College) in Londonderry with theological, literary, and scientific departments. The two together have 16 professors and lecturers.

Instruction

University Education.

In England the highest education is given at the ancient universities of Oxford and Cambridge, the former having 22 colleges and 3 private halls, and the latter 17 colleges and 1 hall, the university of Durham, founded in 1831, with a college of medicine, and since 1871, a college of science at Newcastle, the university of London founded in 1836 and reorganized in 1900 so as to be a teaching as well as an examining body, with 24 colleges or schools giving instruction in 8 faculties, the Victoria University (Manchester) founded in 1880 the Birmingham University founded in 1900 the Liverpool University, founded in 1903, the Leeds University, founded in 1904, the Sheffield University, founded in 1905, and the Bristol University, founded in 1909. There are also University Colleges at Exeter Nottingham (founded 1881) Reading (started with the establishment of art classes in 1860), and Southampton (founded 1850). There are special Agricultural Colleges at Carlisle, Cirencester Glasgow Newport (Shropshire), Kingston on Soar (Derby), Wye (Ken.), Uckfield (Sussex), and Ripley (Surrey). The university of Wales, founded in 1903, has 8 colleges (Cardiff, Aberystwyth, and Bangor). In Scotland there are 4 universities, viz., at St Andrews founded 1411, Glasgow, 1450 Aberdeen, 1494 Edinburgh, 1582. The Carnegie trust, founded in 1901 with a capital of 2,000,000*l.* has an annual income of 100,000*l.*, of which half is devoted to the equipment and expansion of the Scottish Universities and half to assisting students. In Ireland is the university of Dublin, founded 1591. In 1909 was founded in Dublin the National University of Ireland, and in Belfast the Queen's University of Belfast. The former has 8 constituent colleges, viz., the University Colleges of Cork, Galway, and Dublin. The following table gives the approximate number of teachers and students of the Universities in the United Kingdom mainly for 1912 —

At most of the Universities and University Colleges women students are admitted on equal terms with men. There are, however, several colleges exclusively for female students—Bedford, Royal Holloway, and Westfield Colleges in London, Newnham and Girton (500 students) Colleges in Cambridge, Lady Margaret Hall, Somerville College, St. Hugh's College, and St. Hilary's College, in Oxford.

Secondary and Technical Education.

In England and Wales by recent Acts of Parliament the councils of counties, of county boroughs, of non-county boroughs with population over 10,000, and of urban districts with population over 20,000 are constituted local authorities for higher education. The new authorities are required, after consultation with the Board of Education, to supply or aid in supplying education other than elementary and to promote the co-ordination of all forms of education. To these purposes they may apply money raised by rates, besides devoting to them the residue under the Local Taxation (Customs and Excise) Act, 1890, and they may borrow money. They have power to provide scholarships and to pay fees, in schools provided by them they must not pay for religious instruction, in schools not provided by them they can neither impose nor forbid religious instruction.

The secondary schools acknowledged by and receiving grants from the Board of Education are under various forms of management. In the school year 1910-11 there were in England and Wales 971 recognised secondary schools on the grant list with altogether 160,856 pupils (87,035 boys and 73,821 girls) on 31st January, 1911. Besides these schools on the Grant List, there were 97 other secondary schools recognised by the Board of Education as efficient. The number of pupils was about 17,800.

In 1910-11 there were in England and Wales 88 recognised technical institutions with 804 teachers and 3,105 (including 2,751 grant-earning) pupils. There were also 114 institutions in which day technical classes were recognised providing 259 courses for which grants were paid, with 1,008 teachers and 11,640 (including 10,918 grant-earning) students. In the same year there were 223 recognised schools of art with 1,551 teachers and 42,278 students, and 51 art classes with 142 teachers and 3,341 students, including 2,729 grant-earning students. In addition for further education there were 8,164 recognised evening and similar schools and classes with 37,207<sup>1</sup> teachers and 765,276<sup>1</sup> (including 628,181<sup>1</sup> grant-earning) pupils. Examinations in science and art are held by the Board of Education and scholarships, exhibitions, &c., are awarded to successful competitors. In 1911 there were thus awarded in England and Wales Scotland and Ireland 4 Whitworth scholarships, 30 Whitworth exhibitions, 11 Royal College of Art scholarships, 20 Royal scholarships (science), and 10 Royal exhibitions (art). There were awarded also 6 National scholarships in art, 17 special studentships for teachers of science and technology, 15 free art studentships and 7 free science studentships. There are also local science and art exhibitions of which 183 were awarded in 1911, and local scholarships (art) of which 24 were awarded, 2 Princess of Wales scholarships and 415 free studentships.

In Scotland, the burgh schools of various names, grammar schools, high schools, &c., are administered by the school boards. There are also endowed schools and schools under private management which give secondary education. In 1910-11 there were 56 grant-receiving secondary schools of which 33 were under school boards. The 33 secondary schools under school boards had (in 1910-11) 764 teachers and an average attendance of 10,541 pupils. 23 endowed schools under other management had in 1910-11 601 teachers and an average attendance of 8,812. The number of schools receiving Government grants in 1910-11 included (besides the secondary schools) 196 higher grade schools or departments, with 24,444 enrolled pupils, and an average attendance of 24,053.

For Ireland there is an Intermediate Education Board, with an income of 115,091<sup>7</sup> in 1911, including 81,058<sup>7</sup> in respect of 1910. Its functions are to examine all candidates who present themselves. In 1911 12,105 students (7,968 boys and 4,142 girls) presented themselves for examination, as compared with 11,900 in the previous year, and 8,117 in 1901. The number passed in 1911 was 6,576 (4,290 boys and 2,286 girls). In 1911 the school grant in respect of examinations paid to managers of schools amounted to 46,482<sup>7</sup>, besides prizes and bonuses to schools.

Technical instruction in Ireland is controlled by the Department of Agriculture and Technical Instruction which has a Technical Instruction Board and a Consultative Committee of Education. The Department aims at the co-ordination of its work with that of other educational authorities, and in 1910-11 grants of 21,637<sup>7</sup> were paid to 97 technical schools and science and art schools and classes in respect of 9,904 students. 77,584<sup>7</sup> to 283 day secondary schools in respect of 18,028 students in experimental science, 10,880 in drawing, 2,388 in manual instruction and 1,298 in domestic economy, and 1,619<sup>7</sup> to 94 primary schools in respect of 14,808 scholars in drawing (average attendance), and 1,225 scholars under manual instruction. Central institutions under the Department are the Royal College of Science, Dublin, with 121 students (1910-11), the Metropolitan School of Art with 426 pupils (1910-11), the Irish Training School of Domestic Economy, 33 students. The Killarney school of housewifery had 42 students (1910-11). Throughout Ireland technical instruction is organised under the Councils of county boroughs, urban districts, and counties. In urban and county schools (1910-11) there were 43,809 young men and women studying non-agricultural subjects. In local examinations 2,648 candidates entered for Science subjects and 1,746 passed, 2,387 in art, and 1,402 passed (1911). There is an annual grant of 55,000<sup>7</sup> for technical education, of which 26,000<sup>7</sup> is allotted for technical instruction in county boroughs, and 29,000<sup>7</sup> for similar purposes elsewhere. A grant of 7,000<sup>7</sup> called the equivalent grant is made from the Ireland Development Grant for technical instruction, and a grant of 10,500<sup>7</sup> for manual instruction and domestic economy and 3,000<sup>7</sup> for classes in lace and crochet making and other rural industries, was made by the Agricultural Board in 1910-11.

Elementary Education

England and Wales—Elementary education in England and Wales is now under the control of the Board of Education. Sufficient school accommodation must be provided in every district for all the resident children between the ages of 5 and 14. Under Acts of 1899 and 1900 children between 12 and 14 years of age may (if it is so provided in local bye laws) conditionally obtain partial or total exemption from school attendance, but for children employed in agriculture the lower age limit for partial exemption is 11. An Act of 1899 requires the school authorities to make provision for the compulsory education of defective children to the age of 16 years. Under the Education Acts of 1902 and 1903 school boards and school attendance committees are abolished, their place being taken by the Councils of counties, of county boroughs, of non-county boroughs with population over 10,000, and of urban districts with population over 20,000. The last two authorities can transfer their powers to the local county councils. The education authorities must establish educational committees, each in accordance with its own scheme, which must be approved by the Board of Education. The schemes must provide for the appointment by the Council from its own members of a majority of the committee (unless in the case of counties the Council determine otherwise), for the appointment by the Council of other persons with special qualifications, and for the appointment of women on the committees. Schools provided by county councils have managers in the proportion of 4 appointed by the Council and 2 by the borough, district, or parish served by the school. Councils of county boroughs, &c., may appoint any number of managers for their provided schools. Schools aided, but not provided by local authorities, have 4 'foundation' managers and 2 managers appointed by Councils. Women may be managers.

The local education authorities maintain all public elementary schools and control the expenditure necessary for this purpose. The only financial responsibility resting on the managers of "non provided" schools is to supply the buildings. In the case of schools not provided by them, their directions as to secular instruction (including the number and qualification of teachers) must be complied with, they have power to inspect the schools, and they must receive, free of charge, the use of the school house for elementary school purposes. The Acts prescribe the funds from which expenditure is to be met, and give borrowing powers. Income from endowments for such purposes of elementary education as fall within the scope of the local education authorities is paid to these authorities and applied in aid of the rates. Under the Education Act of 1902, there is paid annually to the local authorities, out of money to be provided by Parliament, a sum equal to 4s per scholar in average attendance, and 'an additional sum of three-halfpence per scholar for every complete two-pence per scholar by which the amount which would be produced by a penny rate on the area of the authority falls short of ten shillings a scholar'. Under certain conditions, however, the grant may be reduced. Other grants are also payable.

Throughout the Act there is observed the distinction between schools provided, and schools aided but not provided by the local authorities, this distinction being, so far as elementary schools are concerned, in accordance with that between board schools and voluntary schools.

The number of separate local authorities for educational matters on July 31, 1911, was as follows —

Councils of administrative counties (including London)	62
County boroughs	75
Self governing municipal boroughs	134
Self governing urban districts	50
	<hr/> 322

On July 31, 1911, the number of Council Schools in England and Wales for ordinary elementary education was 8,046 with accommodation for 3,980,946 pupils. The number of voluntary schools was 12,800 with accommodation for 2,826,684 pupils. Of these voluntary schools, those maintained by public authorities numbered 12,734 and were distributed among religious denominations as follows —

	Church of England	Wesleyan	Roman Catholic	Jewish	Undenominationalists
Number	10,941	225	1,075	12	451
Accommodation	2,146,148	69,822	575,685	9,808	106,851

The following table gives statistics of public and other elementary schools in England and Wales. —

Date	Schools	Accommodation	Year	Registered Pupils on last day of school year	Approximate average attendance
July 31, 1909	21,123	7,162,615	1908-09	6,080,227	5,340,000
" 1910	21,199	7,082,800	1909-10	6,071,455	5,350,000
" 1911	21,294	6,852,120	1910-11	6,067,076	5,360,000

In 1911-12 in England and Wales there were in the ordinary public elementary schools 103,509 certificated teachers, 44,461 'uncertificated' (i.e., teachers recognised as uncertificated under the Code of Regulations of the Board of Education), and 20,848 others total 168,818, the average attendance at schools in 1911-12 was 5,357,000 (3,214,000 in Council Schools, 1,706,000 in Church of England Schools, 298,000 in Roman Catholic Schools, and 139,000 in other non provided schools). There were in 1910-11, 47 higher elementary schools with 487 teachers and 8,852 registered pupils on the last day of the school year. 'Special schools in England and Wales comprised, in 1910-11, 38 for the blind with 1,782 registered pupils, 50 for the deaf with 3,771 pupils, 242 for defective children with 18,966 pupils, 6 for epileptic children with 377 pupils and 65 'certified efficient schools with 4,714 registered pupils. There were also 66 poor law schools with 705 teachers and trainers and 14,847 children on the registers on March 31, 1911. In 1910-11 there were 85 training colleges in England and Wales with altogether 12,111 students.

Scotland.—By the Elementary Education Act of 1872, the Scotch Education Department was instituted and each burgh and parish or group of parishes was required to have a school board to administer both elementary and middle-class schools. Elementary education is compulsory between the ages of 5 and 14, with exemption, on conditions, for children over 12. In 1889 by a capitation grant, education was made free for the compulsory standards. In 1897 provision was made for grants in aid of voluntary schools.

The table includes higher grade schools in receipt of grants. In 1911 these numbered 196, accommodation, 40,505, average attendance 24,083, on register at end of year 24,444.

In 1910-11, of the 3,369 schools, 3,020 were public schools with an average attendance of 654,862 pupils. 8 Church of Scotland, average attendance 345, 1 United Free Church, average attendance 62, 57 Episcopal, average attendance 2,968, 223 Roman Catholic, average attendance 84,534, and 60 Undenominational, average attendance 7,202. There were 13,869 certificated and 73 provisionally certificated teachers, 1,096 assistant teachers and 74 pupil teachers. In the same year there were at 4 training centres and 2 training colleges, 2,862 students. In 1910-11 there were 1,119 continuation class centres receiving grants, with 187,180 scholars on account of whom grants were paid.

Ireland.—Elementary education in Ireland, since 1845, is under the superintendence of a body of 'Commissioners of National Education in Ireland.' The following table gives statistics of elementary schools for the last five years —

Year ended Dec. 31	Schools in operation	Accommodation	Pupils on Rolls at end of year	Average Attendance

1911	8,390	766 002	684,634	512,562

Of 8,329 schools in 1910, 2,429 were mixed Roman Catholic and Protestant with 191,768 pupils (135,348 Roman Catholic and 56 422 Protestant), 4,360 were Roman Catholic with 370,728 pupils, and 1,540 were Protestant with 116,883 pupils on December 31, 1910. In 1911 there were 7,851 principal teachers, 5,182 assistants, and 2,452 workmistresses and junior assistant teachers. There are 7 training colleges licensed for 1,190 King's scholars (1911-12).

The sums expended for education in Great Britain from Parliamentary grants, and in Ireland from Parliamentary grants and rates, are given for recent years as follows (years ended March 31) —

In addition to the grant, these schools derive an income from endowments school fees, local rates, voluntary subscriptions, and other sources

Justice and Crime

ENGLAND AND WALES

The principal courts having criminal jurisdiction are the petty sessions courts, the general or quarter sessions, the courts of oyer and terminer and gaol delivery, more popularly known as 'assizes' and the Central Criminal Court. Two or more justices of the peace sitting in a petty sessions court house the Lord Mayor or any alderman of the City of London, or any metropolitan or borough police magistrate or other stipendiary magistrate sitting in a court house, constitute a petty sessions court. The courts of quarter sessions are held four times a year by the justices of the county. Similar courts can be held at other times, and are then called 'general sessions.' Two justices constitute a court, but usually a larger number attend. Certain boroughs have a court of quarter sessions, with similar jurisdiction to the county justices in quarter sessions assembled, in which the recorder of the borough is the judge. The assize courts are held four times a year in various towns throughout the country by 'commissioners nominated by the Crown. These commissioners are generally judges of the King's Bench Division of the High Court of Justice, but sometimes King's Counsel of good standing are appointed. The trial takes place before a single commissioner. The Central Criminal Court is the court of oyer and terminer and goal delivery for the City of London and a large surrounding district. The sessions of this court are held at least twelve times a year, and more often if necessary. The Recorder and the Common Serjeant and, if the number of the prisoners makes it necessary, the judge of the City of London Court sit on the first two days, after which they are joined by the judges of the High Court on the rota, for whom the more serious cases are reserved. A petty sessional court deals summarily with minor offences. Cases of a more serious nature are usually investigated by a petty sessional court before being tried at the sessions or the assizes. To every sessions assize, and to every sitting of the Central Criminal Court the sheriff cites 24 of the chief inhabitants of the district, of whom not less than 12 and not more than 23 are sworn and constitute a grand jury. The grand jury examines the bill of indictment against the accused person, hears the evidence of witnesses for the prosecution, and if they think a prima facie case for trial is made out they endorse the bill 'a true bill'. All criminal trials, except those which come before a court of summary jurisdiction, take place before a judge and a petty jury of twelve men. Appeal is allowed in criminal cases (i.) on a point of law; (ii.) on a question of fact, or other sufficient ground if the judge certifies the case as fit for appeal; or the Court of Criminal Appeal grants leave to appeal, and (iii.) against the sentence (if not fixed by law) with the leave of the Appeal Court. No man can be tried again for the same crime after a petty jury has found him 'not guilty'. On a conviction the judge can, if he think fit, reserve a question of law (but not of fact) for the Court of Criminal Appeal, which can reverse, amend or affirm the judgment. The only other method of securing the revision of a sentence is by the royal prerogative, exercised on the advice of the Home Secretary, by which a sentence can be modified or annulled. Nominally all the judges are appointed by the King, but in practice the Lord Chancellor (who is a Cabinet minister, ex officio president of the House of Lords, and goes out with the ministry) the Lord Chief Justice the Lords of Appeal who sit in the House of Lords and on the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, and the Lords Justices of Appeal who sit in the Court of Appeal are appointed on the recommendation of the Prime Minister, and all the other judges on the recommendation of the Lord Chancellor.

The courts having jurisdiction in civil cases are the County Courts, created in 1846, Assizes, and the High Court. Above the High Court is the Court of Appeal, and above that the House of Lords.

SCOTLAND

The High Court of Justiciary is the supreme criminal court in Scotland. It consists of all the judges of the Court of Session, and sits more or less frequently, as the number of cases before it may require, in Edinburgh or in the circuit towns. One judge can, and usually does, try cases, but two or more preside in cases of difficulty or importance. It is the only competent court in cases of treason, murder, robbery, rape, fire-raising, desertion of messengers, and generally in all cases in which a higher punishment than imprisonment is by statute directed to be inflicted, and it has moreover an inherent jurisdiction to punish all criminal acts, both those already established by common law or statute, and such as have never previously come before the courts and are not within any statute.

The sheriff of each county is the proper criminal judge in all crimes occurring within the county which infer only an arbitrary punishment, and if the case is tried with a jury the High Court has no power of review on the merits. Even in cases indicted to the High Court the accused is, under the Criminal Procedure (Scotland) Act of 1887, regularly asked to plead in the sheriff court, and minor objections to the indictment can be wholly or in part disposed of there. Borough magistrates and justices of the peace have jurisdiction in petty cases occurring within the burgh or county, and in a number of minor offences under various statutes.

The Court of Session exercises the highest civil jurisdiction in Scotland, with the House of Lords as a Court of Appeal.

IRELAND

In Ireland persons charged with crime are as a rule brought before a court of petty sessions. Two magistrates are sufficient to try a case to be decided at petty sessions in some instances only one is requisite. Offences are divided into two classes, those in which justices have a 'summary jurisdiction,' in which cases they hear and determine the complaint, the Petty Sessions Act providing for an appeal in certain cases. The second class is 'indictable offences.' In these cases the justice merely takes the depositions and returns the case for trial to the next court having jurisdiction to try it—quarter sessions or assize court as the case may be. In the event of the prosecution failing to prove its case, the magistrates refuse informations. The Attorney-general may send up a bill at assizes, even without the preliminary magisterial investigation, or in a case in which a magistrate has wrongly refused informations. There is this difference, however, between quarter sessions in Ireland and in England in England they are presided over by an unpaid chairman, who need not be a lawyer and who is elected by his fellow justices of the peace for the county, while in Ireland they are presided over by a paid official, who must be a practising barrister of ten years standing, appointed by the Crown, and who is also judge of the county court (which corresponds to the English county court). The criminal jurisdiction of a county court judge is very extensive, and the Recorder of Dublin has practically the same criminal jurisdiction as a judge of the High Court. The assizes are presided over by one of the common law judges of the High Court of Justice. In the quarter sessions, recorder's court, and assizes the trial is by jury in all cases save appeals from petty sessions. In addition to the ordinary unpaid justices there are paid resident magistrates. The Criminal Law and Procedure Act contains special provisions for dealing with crime in certain cases. Nearly all the clauses of the Criminal Law and Procedure Act, however, require a proclamation of the Lord Lieutenant in Council before they come into force. In the city of Dublin, the divisional magistrates for the police district of Dublin metropolis deal with all summary cases arising within their jurisdiction, and their jurisdiction is somewhat more extensive than that of the ordinary county justices.

National Insurance.

Under the National Insurance Act, 1911, provision is made for compulsory insurance against loss of health for the prevention and cure of sickness and for compulsory insurance against unemployment.

(1) National Health Insurance.—This is administered by Insurance Commissioners, appointed separately for England, Wales, Scotland, and Ireland by other specially constituted authorities, and by approved friendly societies, trade unions, &c. The persons who are compulsorily insured, known as employed contributors, comprise, with certain exceptions, all males and females aged 16 and under 70, whether British subjects or not, employed under contract of service express or implied, whether paid by time or piece. Among persons excluded are those employed otherwise than in manual labour at a rate of remuneration exceeding 160s. per year. Insured persons who are not members of an Approved Society must contribute to a Post Office Fund and are known as deposit contributors; their benefits are limited. Special provisions exist for married women, aliens, the army and navy mercantile marion, and certain other classes. Certain persons not compulsorily insured may become voluntary contributors. The funds are provided by the employer (8d. per week per employed person), the worker (4d. per week by males and 3d. by females), and the State. Special rates are applicable in cases of voluntary insurers, and low wage-earners, and the rates in Ireland are 1d. lower for contributors and ½d. lower for employers than in Great Britain. Contributions cease at the age of 70 when the Old Age Pension Acts (q.v.) come into play. The benefits include medical treatment, sanatorium treatment, payments during sickness and disablement, and (in the case of women) a payment of 80s. on confinement. Other benefits are also possible if funds permit.

(II) Unemployment Insurance—This is administered by the Board of Trade largely through the Labour Exchanges. The trades covered by the insurance are building construction of works (railroads docks &c.), shipbuilding, mechanical engineering, ironfoundry, construction of vehicles and sawmilling. The Board of Trade may extend the scheme to other trades. The funds are provided by the employer, the workman (2½d. per week each), and the State (one-third of the total contribution of workman and employer). The benefit consists of a weekly payment during unemployment in certain defined circumstances for a limited number of weeks per year.

(For further details of the National Insurance Scheme see STATESMAN'S YEAR BOOK for 1912, pages 37 to 40)

The number of insured persons under the Health Insurance Scheme in January, 1913, was about 18½ millions excluding about 450,000 deposit contributors. The number of unemployment contributors was about 2,800,000.

Old Age Pensions

Under the Old Age Pension Acts 1908 and 1911, every person over 70 years of age who is a British subject who for twelve out of the twenty years up to the date of receiving a pension has resided in the United Kingdom (residence abroad is allowed to count in certain circumstances), and whose yearly means do not exceed 31*l.* 10*s.* is entitled to a pension provided he has not through idleness habitually failed to maintain himself and his dependents, is not in receipt of poor relief (except medical and certain other kinds of relief), is not a lunatic in an asylum, has not been a convict in prison during the preceding 10 years for a term of upwards of six weeks, or during the preceding two years for a term not exceeding six weeks, and is not disqualified by order of a court. An existing pensioner may in certain circumstances be disqualified for receiving further pensions. For every borough and urban district with a census population of at least 20,000,<sup>1</sup> and for every county (excluding borough and district areas) a local pension committee is appointed by the borough, district, or county council. The committees may appoint sub-committees and delegate powers or duties to them. Pension officers (to investigate and report to the committees) are appointed by the Treasury. The central pension authority is the Local Government Board. Claims for pensions are made through the local post-offices, every postmaster being required to give information and make the proceedings as easy as possible for the claimant. The claim is transmitted to the pension officer and, on his report to the committee, that body may disallow the claim (in which case an appeal lies to the Local Government Board), or may allow it and fix the rate of pension. The weekly amount of the pension is 5*s.* if the yearly means of the pensioner do not exceed 21*l.* 4*s.* If the yearly means exceed 21*l.* but do not exceed 23*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.*, and so on, the weekly pension decreases by 1*s.* for every 2*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.* by which the limit of the yearly means is increased. On March 29, 1912, there were 842,160 pensions payable in the United Kingdom, namely, 662,441 in England, 46,068 in Wales, 94,219 in <sup>1</sup> In Scotland the population limit does not apply; in Ireland the limit is 10,000 instead of 20,000.

Scotland, and 205,817 in Ireland. Of these pensions, 889,788 were at the 5s rate, 19,805 at 4s, 19,851 at 3s, 8,867 at 2s, and 4,854 at 1s

Pauperism

There is a Poor Law, under a variety of statutes, applicable to the Three Kingdoms, by which paupers, under certain conditions, are to be relieved in their own houses or lodged in workhouses or poor houses built for this purpose. The law is administered by the Local Government Board, through Boards of Guardians elected for the purpose. England and Wales, including the Metropolis and the municipal boroughs are divided into 658 poor law unions, for each of which there is elected a Board of Guardians. In some cases the union consists of only one parish, in others several are included according to population. In urban districts and in the Metropolis guardians are separately elected, but in rural districts the rural district councillors act as guardians for the parishes they represent on the district council. Guardians are elected on the same popular franchise as district councillors. Women are eligible. In every civil parish overseers are appointed whose duty it is to make and collect the poor rate. In urban districts, which include boroughs, the local authority raise and collect rates for local government purposes, but in rural districts and rural parishes the funds for this purpose are, as a general rule, taken from the poor rate.

Amount expended in poor relief for year ended March 25 for England and Ireland, and May 15 for Scotland. For Scotland, the amount includes expenditure on buildings and loans repaid and interest —

The gross amount of income brought under the review of the Inland Revenue Department in the year ended April 5, 1911, in the United Kingdom, was 1,045,883,775<sup>1</sup>, in 1896 it was 677,769,850<sup>1</sup>. Of the amount for 1910-11 the share of England was 909,959,166<sup>1</sup> of Scotland, 95,215,223<sup>1</sup>, of Ireland, 40,659,386<sup>1</sup> (Owing to the delay in passing the 1909 Finance Bill, these figures are not quite normal)

The gross income in 1910-11 was distributed as follows —

Profits from the ownership of Lands	£
" " Houses	52,294,614
" " Other property	222,106,896
Profits from the occupation of lands	1,423,294

Salaries of Government, corporation, and Public Company officials	588,512,069 <sup>1</sup>
	119,687,415
Total	1,045,883,775

The gross income from land and houses in 1910-11 was distributed as follows —

	England	Scotland	Ireland	United Kingdom
	£	£	£	£
Land	36,848,800	5,757,167	9,698,841	52,294,614
Houses	106,190,736	20,761,345	9,276,920	222,106,896

In accordance with various Acts passed between 1888 and 1911 there are paid out of the Consolidated Fund to the Local Taxation Accounts of England, Scotland and Ireland, sums equivalent to the proceeds of certain excise licence duties, part of the beer and spirit duties, and part of the probate and estate duties. Certain other grants are also payable. The payments on account of the beer and spirit duties, the licence duties on the sale of intoxicating liquors, and (in Scotland) on account of the carriage licence duties, are now fixed at the amounts payable out of the Consolidated Fund for 1908-09. The payments in respect of other licence duties, and those in respect of the probate and estate duties, depend on the current yield of these duties.

The payments actually made to the Local Taxation Accounts in 1911-12 are given as follows —

III NATIONAL DEBT

The expenditure on account of National Debt is now nearly six times the amount paid in 1775 at the beginning of the War of Independence of the United States. The total charge for interest and management was then only a little over 4½ millions sterling, but at the end of the war it had risen to 9½ millions. The twenty two years warfare with France, from 1793 to 1815, added 23 millions sterling to the annual charge of the debt, making it over 32½ millions, decreased by slightly more than a million in 1817, in the year of consolidation of the English and Irish exchequers. Since that date, the aggregate gross liabilities of the State have on the whole been steadily decreasing, excepting for the years of the Russian and the South African wars. In 1854 the gross liabilities stood at 802 millions, and in 1857 at over 887 millions. In 1899 they had decreased to 535 millions, but in 1903 amounted to 798 millions; in 1912 they stood at 725 millions.

Defence

Important questions of naval and military policy are considered by the Committee of Imperial Defence, of which the Prime Minister is ex officio president. The usual members are the Secretaries of State for Foreign Affairs, War, the Colonies, and India the Chancellor of the Exchequer, the First Lord of the Admiralty the First Sea Lord of the Admiralty, the Chief of the Imperial General Staff, the Director of Naval Intelligence, the Director of Military Operations. Other Naval and Military officers and high officials are from time to time called in. The Committee has a permanent secretariat.

I ARMY

The land forces of the United Kingdom consist of the Regular Army and of the Territorial Army. Of these, a large part of the Regular Army serves in British Dominions overseas, and it is customary to refer to these troops as the 'British Army,' in contradistinction to the 'Native Army' or 'Indian Army' in India and to the 'Local Forces' in South Africa and in British Colonies. The Regular Army, whether at home or abroad, is paid for by the Imperial exchequer except in India (although certain colonies pay contributions towards its upkeep), India pays a contribution towards the cost of troops at home owing to these serving as a depot for the regular troops in India. The Territorial Army serves only at home in peace time. The rank and file for both Regular Army and Territorial Army are obtained by voluntary enlistment.

The Regular Army in peace time consists of the permanently embodied troops, the Army Reserve, and the Special Reserve.

Service in the permanently embodied portion of the Regular Army and the Army Reserve is for 12 years, with permission to extend to 21 years under certain circumstances. Of the original 12 years, from 3 to 9 are spent 'with the colours', i.e., on permanent service, and the remainder of the time in the Army Reserve, the majority of the men serve for 7 years with the colours and 5 years in the Army Reserve, which is the rule for infantry other than the Foot Guards. Men enlist between 18 and 25 years of age. The peace establishment of the regular troops at home is considerably below war establishment, in South Africa and the Colonies it is higher, in India it is practically the same as the war establishment. On mobilisation for war the ranks, after eliminating recruits and young soldiers, are filled up from the Army Reserve, and also, to a small extent, from the Special Reserve.

The permanently embodied portions of the Regular Army<sup>1</sup> consist of 31 cavalry regiments (17 at home), 28 horse artillery batteries (14 at home), 150 field batteries (99 at home), 9 mountain batteries (all abroad), 99 companies of garrison artillery (49 at home), 84 companies of engineers (63 at home), 9 battalions of Foot Guards (8 at home), 148 battalions of infantry of the line (74 at home) besides departmental services and dépôts. Horse and field batteries are grouped as 'brigades' of 2 and 3 batteries respectively, of 6 guns each. Infantry of the line is organised for recruiting purposes as 69 regiments of 2 or 4 permanent battalions, and 1 or 2 Special Reserve battalions (vide below), half the permanent battalions of each regiment are at home and half abroad. For training and command purposes infantry battalions are for the most part formed into brigades of 4 battalions each. For recruiting purposes and relief, cavalry regiments are linked in pairs, 1 at home and 1 abroad, for training and command they are generally grouped into brigades of 3 regiments each.

The Special Reserve consists in the main of troops not permanently embodied, but its units also act as permanently embodied dépôts. The period of service of special reservists is for 6 years, recruits, with certain exceptions, undergo 5 months preliminary training, the trained men are called up annually for 3 weeks, with 6 days musketry in addition for infantry. The Special Reserve consists of two cavalry regiments, 12 000 (establishment) field artillery men, 2 regiments of garrison artillery, 2 battalions of engineers, 101 battalions of infantry, forming part of the 69 regiments of infantry of the line above-mentioned, and departmental services. Of the 101 battalions, 74 are Reserve battalions, forming dépôts for the permanently embodied battalions of their regiments, the other 27 are 'Extra Reserve battalions, intended to act as reserve units on mobilisation. The officers of the Special Reserve are for the most part non professional. The Special Reserve (which was created out of the Militia in 1907) is available for service abroad in time of war. Special reservists can re-engage for 4 years terms, and can enlist into the permanently embodied forces.

On mobilisation for war, the bulk of the Regular Army at home becomes absorbed into the 'Expeditionary Force' to consist of a cavalry division, 6 divisions, and certain 'army troops,' and 'line of communication troops' with a total establishment of 5,873 officers and 163,279 other ranks (Parliamentary White Book of March, 1911). A cavalry division consists of 4 cavalry brigades (3 regiments each), 2 horse artillery brigades, 4 engineer troops, 1 signal squadron and 4 signal troops, 1 cavalry train, and 4 field ambulances, total establishment, 486 officers, 10,801 other ranks, 10,579 horses, 24 guns. A division consists of 3 infantry brigades of

4 battalions each, 4 field artillery brigades (1 Howitzers), 1 heavy battery, 1 ammunition column, 2 companies of engineers, 1 signal company, 2 mounted infantry companies, 1 divisional train, 3 field ambulances, total establishment, 618 officers, 19 935 other ranks, 6 152 horses, 76 guns 'Army troops' include 2 mounted brigades' each consisting of either 1 cavalry regiment and 2 mounted infantry battalions, or of 2 cavalry regiments and 1 mounted infantry battalion with 1 horse artillery battery, 1 ammunition column 1 signal troop, 1 train and 1 ambulance. All batteries have 6 guns except the heavy batteries which have only 4. The war establishment of a cavalry regiment is 25 officers, 537 other ranks, 552 horses, in three squadrons. The war establishment of a battalion of infantry is 29 officers, 995 other ranks in eight companies.

The Territorial Army is intended for home defence, although nearly 20 000 officers and men have accepted liability for service abroad in war. The terms of service are for four years. The age-limits for enlistment are from 17 to 35 inclusive. The requirements of training are a fortnight in camp and a certain number of drills, the number varying in different branches, also a musketry course for arms in which it is necessary, unless exempted the soldier must attend camp for eight days and make himself efficient, subject to a penalty of £5. All officers in the Territorial Army except certain of the generals and staff are non professional. The Territorial Army is confined to Great Britain—there is none in Ireland.

The Territorial Army consists of 36 regiments of yeomanry, 14 horse artillery batteries, 57 'brigades' of field artillery, 14 heavy batteries, 89 companies of garrison artillery, 108 companies of engineers, a railway battalion, 194 battalions of infantry, 13 cyclist battalions, with departmental troops. The bulk of it is organised so as to form 14 mounted brigades, and 14 divisions. The establishment is practically the same in peace and war and these brigades and divisions are complete war units in so far as establishment is concerned. Batteries in the Territorial Army have only 4 guns, otherwise the divisions correspond very nearly in their composition to the Regular Army on a war footing. The mounted brigades each include a horse artillery battery besides their three yeomanry regiments. On mobilisation of the Regular Army the Territorial Army is embodied, practically automatically.

For purposes of command the United Kingdom is divided up into seven 'commands' and the London district. The commands are (1) Aldershot of very limited area, (2) Eastern including the eastern and southern counties, (3) Irish, (4) Northern including the northern midlands and north-eastern counties, (5) Scottish, (6) Southern including the southern midlands and south western counties, (7) Western including Wales, Lancashire and north western counties. These commands (except the Aldershot command) are divided up into Territorial Recruiting districts for the Regular Army. The Eastern, Northern, Scottish, Southern, and Western commands, and the London District each include from 1 to 4 Territorial mounted brigades, and 2 or 3 Territorial divisions. The Regular Army, being for the most part quartered in the south of England or in Ireland, is somewhat irregularly distributed amongst the commands: there are two nearly complete divisions each in the Aldershot and the Irish command, one complete division in the Eastern and one in the Southern command. At the head of each command is a general officer (styled the 'general-officer commanding in-chief'). He is assisted by a general-officer of lower rank who is responsible for questions of administration apart from training and defence questions.

The land forces are administered by an Army Council which is composed of the Secretary of State for War, and of the heads of the six departments into which the War Office is primarily divided, these officials are —The Chief of the Imperial General Staff, who is responsible for drawing up plans of attack and defence for military training for intelligence work, and for the higher education of officers, the Adjutant General, who is responsible for recruiting, interior economy, discipline, and for the medical service, the Quartermaster General, who is responsible for equipment, supply, transport, and remounts the Master General of the Ordnance who is responsible for armament and works, the Parliamentary Under Secretary of State, who is responsible for the Territorial Army, the Finance Member, who is responsible for finance. The Inspector General of the Forces keeps the Army Council informed as to the state of efficiency of all branches of the forces. The Territorial Army is to a large extent administered by County Associations over which the War Office merely maintains a general control as regards expenditure.

The principal military educational establishments are the Royal Military Academy educating youths to be officers in the artillery and the engineers, the Royal Military College whence officers are obtained for cavalry and infantry and the Staff College which trains officers for the staff. The Officers Training Corps, in two divisions representing respectively the universities and public schools is intended to provide officers for the Special Reserve and the Territorial Army. The military wing of the Royal Flying Corps comprises 7 aeroplane squadrons and 1 airship squadron.

Cavalry and infantry are armed with the Lee-Enfield rifle, calibre .303. The Regular Army has a 15 pounder for horse artillery, an 18 pounder for field artillery, a 40-pounder field Howitzer, and a 60 pounder for heavy batteries.

The establishment of the land forces for the financial year 1912-13 was fixed as follows. The number of effectives of all ranks on January 1st, 1912, are also given.

In the case of the permanently embodied troops the regimental establishment for 1912-13 was fixed at 134 280 at home and (excluding especially enlisted Colonial corps and native Indian troops paid for by the Imperial Exchequer) 36,829 in South Africa and the Colonies, this leaves staff and various establishments out of account. It should be noted that the Special Reserve and the Territorial Army are considerably below establishment.

The British Navy is a permanent establishment, governed by statutes and orders fixed with much precision by the Legislature. Its administration was formerly in the hands of a Lord High Admiral but by the Act 2 Will. and Mary, c. 2, this office was vested in a Commission. With the exception of various periods in which the office has been revived—in the person of the Earl of Pembroke in the reign of William III., of Prince George of Denmark (1702-8), and of the Duke of Clarence (May, 1827—August, 1833)—it has continued to be held in commission by the Board of Admiralty. The Board now consists of the First Lord of the Admiralty, who is always a member of the Cabinet, and eight other commissioners.

Under the 1914 Admiralty reorganisation scheme, the various members are responsible for special business as follows:—First Lord, general direction of all business; First Sea Lord, Organisation for War and distribution of the Fleet; Second Sea Lord, Personnel; Third Sea Lord, material; Fourth Sea Lord, Stores and Transport; Civil Lord, Works, Buildings, and Greenwich Hospital, Additional Civil Lord, Contracts and Dockyard business, Parliamentary Secretary, Finance; Permanent Secretary Admiralty business.

In January, 1912, a ' War Staff was created.

For the details of Naval expenditure see under Finance. The number of officers, seamen and marines provided for in the estimates for 1912-13 and 1911-12 were —

<sup>1</sup> Super Dreadnoughts are those carrying guns of or over 13.5 inch. No distinction is made between so-called Dreadnought battleships and Dreadnought "cruisers"—the latter being simply fast battleships, now known as 'battle cruisers'. For lower craft the 1913 revised official classification is followed.

There are also various shallow draught river gunboats.

Certain fast Gunvessels are subsidised for use in case of war

In the following tables the ships are grouped in classes according to type. The dates of the Naval Estimates under which they were sanctioned are given, these dates correspond to the date of the design of the ships concerned knots respectively. There are also 9 cruisers of the Priorus class, 7 of the Astræa class and some 14 or so of the Apollo class, of which about half are mine layers. Note of Deadend class is in Canadian navy. Encounter of Challenger class in Australian. Eight light cruisers building under estimates 1912-13.

There are a variety of gunboats, store ships, &c. A unique feature of the British Navy is its very full equipment of repair ships and other auxiliaries. Destroyers built may be classified as follows—

Modern	114	Practically obsolete	68
Fairly modern	32	Quite obsolete	14

The submarines are of four general types, A, B or C, D, and E.

During 1912 the naval wing of the Royal Flying Corps was founded. At the end of the year 2 (or 3) dirigibles were on order, and one small one in existence. Also a number of hydro-aeroplanes.

The number of holdings in each of the 4 classes into which they are grouped (from 1 acre upwards) is given as follows for 1911 —

Size of Holdings, 1911	England	Wales	Scotland	Great Britain
1—5 acres	32,524	10,210	17,848	110,582
5—50 "	167,028	62,112	34,890	264,040

Over 200 acres	14,577	870	2,679	17,426
Total	274,239	60,657	77,949	412,845
Average size of holdings	65.3	46.7	62.2	62.6

Of the holdings in England, 48,124 were owned, or mainly owned, and 326,529 rented; of those in Wales, 1,052 and 54,605 respectively, in Scotland, 2,041 and 71,863 respectively. The acreage under crops and grass occupied by owners was 2,970,833 acres in England, 276,339 in Wales, and 549,381 in Scotland: total, 3,816,553 in Great Britain.

The Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908, makes the County Councils and the Councils of County Boroughs responsible for the provision of small holdings and allotments. A small holding is from one to fifty acres, or even more, in extent, but its annual value must not exceed 50*l*. An allotment may be provided up to 5 acres, but the Council is not obliged to provide one of more than an acre, and the applicant must be of the agricultural labouring class and resident in the borough, district, or parish. In England and Wales up to the end of 1911, County Councils had acquired or agreed to acquire for small holdings 124,502 acres, of which 78,871 acres were purchased for 2,492,121*l*. and 45,631 acres leased for 55,637*l* per annum. Of this land, 94,154 acres were let to 6,916 small holders, 186 acres sold to 13 small holders, and 4,597 acres let to 39 Co-operative Small Holdings Associations, who sub-let the land to 782 of their members. The land unallotted was estimated to provide for another 2,000 applicants. In addition, 2,644 applicants had acquired 82,000 acres from private landowners. Up to the end of 1911, County Borough Councils had acquired for small holdings 1,303 acres, let to 161 individual tenants, and 68 members of Co-operative Associations. The total number of allotment authorities under the Act of 1908 is approximately 8,300. The total quantity of land let for allotments by the various local authorities in England and Wales up to the end of 1911 was 29,604 acres, let to 109,191 individual tenants and 22 associations. The Councils owned 6,698 acres and leased 22,911 acres.

In 1890 the total number of holdings was 524,210, in 1905, 523,804, in 1911, 607,960. Of the holdings in 1911 389,751 were owned and 218,209 rented.

The Irish Land Acts are of two classes—The Fair Rent Acts, and the Land Purchase Acts. The Fair Rent Acts commenced with Mr Gladstone's Land Act of 1881, which gave the Irish Tenant the '3 Fs'—Fair Rent, Free Sale and Fixity of Tenure. Under this Act, the great body of agricultural tenants had Fair Rents judicially determined. The rent is fixed by the Land Commission for terms of 16 years, and, on the expiration of each term, a new rent may be fixed for another term. Up to March 31, 1913, 454,435 applications and consents to fix each Fair Rents for a First Statutory Term.

were disposed of, 161,198 for a Second Statutory Term, and 767 for a Third Statutory Term.

The Land Purchase Acts nominally began with the 'Bright Clauses' of the Act of 1870, but really the system was commenced by the 'Ashbourne Act' of 1885, under which 10,000,000*l* was advanced for Land Purchase. A new system was adopted under Mr. Balfour's Act of 1891, which created a special Land Stock for Land Purchase purposes. Under the Irish Land Act of 1903 State advances are made to tenants to purchase their holdings under the supervision of three Estates Commissioners. Money for advances was to be raised by the issue of Land Stock bearing interest at 2½ per cent. The State is secured by a Guarantee Fund which consists of the various Funds voted by Parliament for Irish Local purposes. Deficiencies in repayment of Land Purchase Annuities are made up out of this Guarantee Fund, which it is estimated will secure advances up to 152,000,000*l*. Tenant Purchasers repay the advances by an annuity calculated at 3½ per cent. on the Purchase Money of their holdings. Of this annuity 2½ per cent. is for interest and ½ per cent. for a sinking fund, the accumulation of which will repay the advance in 68½ years. The Land Stock could not be issued except at a large discount, and the Land Act of 1909 provides that for future purchasers the money may be raised by the issue of a 3 per cent. stock and in making advances the Treasury may give such stock instead of paying cash. The advances are repayable by the tenant purchasers by 3½ per cent. annuities. Under this Act the Congested Districts Board is reconstituted, the area of its work extended and its income increased. Compulsory powers of purchase are given to the Estates Commissioners and to the Congested Districts Board.

The following table shows the amounts advanced for land purchase under the Irish Land Purchase Acts up to the 31st March, 1912 —

Act of 1870	518,933
Act of 1881	240,801
Act of 1885	9,992,536

Act of 1903	49,128,508
Act of 1909	1,488,039
Total	74,515,709

Down to March 31, 1912, 3,588,629*l*. had been advanced by the Land Commission to Rural District Councils, for the purposes of the Labourers (Ireland) Act, 1906 (This amount is not included above.)

In England and Wales, the Board of Agriculture made grants to 23 institutions in 1911-12 for agriculture instruction which act in connection with and in some cases are mainly supported by county councils. The grants amounted to 18,840*l*. There are several private agricultural colleges, and important experimental work is carried on privately at Rothamsted, Woburn, and other places. In Ireland the Department of Agriculture and Technical Instruction provides itinerant lecturers who give instruction in agriculture, horticulture, bee-keeping, butter making, poultry keeping, &c. Lecturers are trained at the Royal College of Science, the Albert Agricultural College (Gloucester), and the Munster Institute. There are 3 agricultural stations for apprentices, and numerous centres for agricultural schools. There are also rural schools for domestic economy.

Forestry.—The woodland area of Great Britain in 1908 was 2,781,968 acres (England, 1,720,380; Wales, 188,723 and Scotland, 874,910). Included in these figures are 127,509 acres of plantations, i.e., land planted within the preceding 10 years (England, 72,908; Wales, 11,858; and Scotland, 44,143).

In Ireland in 1911, 290,791 acres were under woods and plantations. In 1911, 908,841 trees were felled, of which 566,889 were used for mining purposes.

There was an increase on 1910 of 2,473 731<sup>1</sup> in the value of the minerals produced, and a decrease of 856,462<sup>1</sup> in the value of the metals produced from the minerals. Of the total mineral produce in 1911, the value of 88,805 238<sup>1</sup> was raised in England, 24,333,425<sup>1</sup> in Wales, 16,187,833<sup>1</sup> in Scotland, 222,006<sup>1</sup> in Ireland, and 31,261<sup>1</sup> in the Isle of Man.

The total number of persons employed at all mines under the Coal and Metalliferous Mines Regulation Acts in 1911 was 1 096 238. The number of mines at work was 3,977. 881,002 persons (males) worked underground, and 208 776 males and 6,460 females above ground. The number employed at quarries under the Quarries Act was 82,863 (excluding persons occasionally employed), of whom 52,053 (including 3 females) worked inside the quarries, and 30 810 (including 36 females) outside.

IV TEXTILE INDUSTRY

In 1907 there were employed in all the textile factories of the United Kingdom 1,087,223 persons (407,360 males and 679,863 females), of whom 815,804 (310,983 males and 504,821 females) were over 18 years of age 238,772 (81,276 males and 157 502 females) between 14 and 18, and 32,647 (15,137 males and 17 510 females) under 14 (half timers). The total number in cotton factories was 576,820 (359,078 females), and in wool, worsted and shoddy factories, 261,192 (152,354 females)

The following information is furnished by Mr Thomas R Ellison of Liverpool —

A century ago the value of cotton, woollen, and linen yarns and piece goods produced in Great Britain and Ireland was about 22,000,000*l* — say woollen 17 000,000*l*, linen 4,000 000*l*, and cotton 1 000,000*l*. Of recent years the value has been about 200 000 000*l* — say, cotton 120,000,000*l*, woollen 55 000 000*l*, and linen 25,000 000*l*. The total amount of capital employed is about 250 000,000*l*, and at least 5 000 000 people—men, women, and children—are dependent upon these industries for their livelihood. Moreover one half of the value of British and Irish products exported consists of textiles. The progress made by each branch is shown in the subjoined statement of the weight of raw material used and the value of yarns and goods exported —

Commerce.

The principal imports on which customs duties are levied are beer, rum, and spruce, chicory, cocoa, coffee, dried fruits, motor spirit, spirits, sugar, tea, tobacco, and wine—spirits, sugar, tobacco, tea, and wine yielding the bulk of the entire levies. In 1911 the imports free of duty (exclusive of bullion and sports and diamonds) amounted to £13,503,3791, 90 per cent., and those subject to duty to £6 654 1481, 10 per cent. of the total imports.

<sup>1</sup> The value of goods imported into the United Kingdom is generally taken to be that at the port and time of entry, including all incidental expenses (cost, insurance, and freight) up to the landing on the quay. For goods consigned to the English market for sale, the market value in England is required and recorded in the returns. This is ascertained from the declaration made by the importers, and is checked by the export knowledge available in the Statistical Office and by the price-list and market reports of the day. For exports, the value at the port of shipment (including the charges of delivering the goods on board) is taken. Imports are now entered as from the country whence the goods were consigned to the United Kingdom. Prior to 1904 only the countries whence the goods were last shipped were recorded. Since then both countries of shipment and countries of consignment have been recorded. Thus countries with no seaboard (e.g. Switzerland and Bolivia) need not to appear in the returns and much of the imported produce of Central Europe was entered as from Holland and Belgium. These and other countries are, however, now credited with all the imports consigned from them, whether coming direct to the United Kingdom or via other countries.

Exports are now credited to the country of ultimate destination as declared by the exporters but prior to 1904, only the countries to which the goods were shipped were recorded.

Of the total imports from foreign countries and colonies in 1911, 90.9 per cent. were direct into England and Wales, 6.9 into Scotland, and 2.2 into Ireland, of the total exports, 91.2 per cent. were direct from England and Wales, 8.5 from Scotland, and 0.3 from Ireland.

The total estimated value of the imports and exports of Ireland (including the trade with Great Britain) is given by the Irish Department of Agriculture and Technical Instruction, as follows —

The total number of telegraph offices at post offices was (March 31 1912) 11,561 at railway stations, 2,426 total, 15,987. In 1909-10 the Post Office acquired from the Marconi Company and Lloyd's their wireless telegraphy stations on the coast of the United Kingdom. The Marconi Company however retains its licence for its long distance stations at Poldhu and Clifden. The licences existing on March 31 1911, granted under the Wireless Telegraphy Act, numbered 8 for private business (excluding lightships), and 358 experimental. The Post Office clients and Jellivers telegrams to and from ships at sea, and in 1911-12 so dealt with 6,660 outward and 3,822 inward telegrams.

It is intended to erect a chain of wireless telegraph stations to connect distant parts of the Empire with the United Kingdom. The stations at present suggested will be in England, Egypt, British East Africa, South Africa, India, and the Malay Peninsula. It is hoped that Australia and New Zealand will also erect stations to form part of the chain.

On March 31, 1912, there were 714 trunk wire centres open for telephone business, there were 2,998 trunk circuits containing 227,730 miles of wire, the number of conversations during the year was 28,499,495. The London exchange system had 547,086 miles of working wire, and 232,009 telephones. The provincial telephone service had 842,569 miles of working wire, and 471,972 telephones. These figures include the system of the National Telephone Company which was taken over by the Post Office at midnight on December 31 1911. For private wires the rentals amounted to 231,423.

Money, Weights, and Measures

The sovereign weighs 123 2/4 grains, or 7 9881 grammes, 916 (or eleven twelfths) fine, and consequently it contains 113 001 grains or 7 3224 grammes of fine gold. The shilling weighs 87 2/7 grains or 5 6552 grammes, 925 (or thirty-seven fortieths) fine, and thus contains 80 7/27 grains or 5 231 grammes of fine silver. Bronze coins consist of a mixture of copper tin, and zinc. The penny weighs 145 8/3 grains, or 9 4/5 grammes. The standard of value is gold. Silver is legal tender up to 40 shillings, bronze up to 12d, but farthings only up to 6d. Bank of England notes are not legal tender. The amount of gold coin in the United Kingdom at the end of 1910, including that in banks, is estimated by the Mint to have been 113,000,000l.

Standard units are: of length the standard yard, of weight the standard pound of 7,000 grains (the pound troy having 5,760 grains), of capacity the standard gallon containing 10 pounds avoirdupois of distilled water at 62° F, the barometer at 30 inches. On these units all other legal weights and measures are based.

The Channel Islands are administered according to their own laws and customs. Jersey has a separate legal existence, it is administered by a Lieutenant Governor appointed by the Crown, and a Bailiff also appointed by the Crown. The Bailiff presides in the States, which consist of 12 Jurats elected by the ratepayers for life, 12 rectors of parishes, 12 constables or mayors of parishes, and 14 deputies the constables and deputies being elected for 3 years. The Lieutenant Governor has a veto on legislation. He may address the States but not vote. The 2 Crown officers may speak and vote. The qualification for a vote is the possession of a minimum value of 80*l* real or 120*l* personal property. The Royal Court consists of a tribunal of first instance and an appeal court. Guernsey, Alderney, and Sark are under one Lieutenant-Governor but Guernsey and Alderney have government of their own and Sark is a dependency of Guernsey and under its jurisdiction. The States for deliberation and legislation consist of a Bailiff, 12 Jurats, 10 rectors, 2 Crown officers, 15 delegates of jurats, and 9 deputies elected by the ratepayers of the whole island. The sheriff and jurats are chosen by indirect election. On May 10, 1905 a law was passed for the Island of Guernsey requiring the approval of the Lieut Governor and of the Royal Court of the Island previously to the acquisition or leasing or occupation of immovable property by aliens or alien companies registration and liability to local rates &c. being also provided for. The Channel Islands are not bound by Acts of the Imperial Parliament unless specially named in them.

Lieutenant Governor of Jersey — Major General Sir A. N. Rochfort, K. C. B. C. M. G.

II INDIA, THE DOMINIONS, COLONIES, PROTECTORATES, AND DEPENDENCIES OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

In the following pages the various sections of the British Empire outside the United Kingdom are arranged in alphabetical order under the divisions of the world to which they belong—1 Europe, 2 Asia, 3 Africa, 4 America, 5 Australasia and Oceania.

The Colonies proper form three classes—(1) The Crown Colonies, which are entirely controlled by the home government (2) those possessing Representative Institutions, in which the Crown has no more than a veto on legislation, but the home government retains the control of public officers, and (3) those possessing Responsible Government, in which the home government has no control over any public officer, though the Crown appoints the Governor and still retains a veto on legislation.

The Colonial Office is divided into three branches, the first of which, called the Dominions Department, deals with business connected with the self governing colonies, and is linked with the secretariate of the Imperial Conference. The Second Department, called the Crown Colonies Department, deals with the administrative and political work of the Crown Colonies and Protectorates. The third or General Department, which is also a Legal Department, deals with matters common to all Crown Colonies such as currency, banking, posts and telegraphs, education, &c. Connected with this department are standing committees to deal with promotion, railways and finance, concessions and pensions.

The expenditure of the Mother Country in connection with the Colonies and Protectorates (exclusive of India) amounts to over one million sterling annually for grants in aid and administrative expenditure.

According to the Army Estimates for the year 1912-13, the total effective strength of the British forces in the colonies, exclusive of India, and in Egypt, was 45,592 of all ranks. The distribution of these troops (including colonial corps and corps lent by India), the colonial contributions, and the total expenditure for military purposes in the colonies were estimated for 1912-13 as follows—

Colonies, &c.	Number all ranks	Colonial Corps (included in pre- vious column)	Colonial Contribution	Total military expenditure
Gibraltar	4 027	—	—	838 000
Malta	7 469	447	5 000	606 000

Miscellaneous	1	—	—	—
Total	45 700	9 571	610 500	8 861 500

The Indian contribution for home charges is estimated (1912-13) at 1,731,591L. The Indian establishment is estimated at 75,886 all ranks.

Government savings-bank, with 4 403 depositors had 470,386 pesetas and 185 980*l* deposits at the end of 1911.

Gibraltar is a naval base and position of great strategic importance, which is now largely increased in strength and stability. A deep harbour of 260 acres has been formed, and for the new dockyard some 50 acres of fore shore and water area have been reclaimed. The length of the three new docks is as follows: 850 feet (double), 560 feet, and 450 feet. As reconstructed, the harbour suffices for all the wants of the Mediterranean fleet (Fourth Battle Squadron), of which it is the principal base. The vessels registered at the port were (1911) 7 steamers of 1,110 tons net and 6 sailing vessels of 63 tons, total, 18 vessels of 1 173 tons. Vessels entered, 1911, 8,876 tonnage, 5,903,529 (British, 1,784, tonnage, 2,581,165), cleared, 3,732 tonnage, 4,890,634 (British, 1,855, tonnage, 3,561,918). Three miles of internal telegraph under military, and about one mile under the Eastern Telegraph Company. Postal communication daily with England. Letters and post-cards in 1911, 2,683,095, newspapers and book packets 627,029. There is cable communication with the Continent, Tangier, the Mediterranean Eastern ports, and England, via Eastern Telegraph Company's lines.

The legal currency is that of Great Britain, but Spanish money continues to be freely current.

MALTA.

Governor—Lieut. General Sir H. M. L. Rundle, G.C.B., G.C.V.O., K.C.M.G., D.S.O.

Lieut. Governor and Chief Secretary to Government—Major Sir J. E. Clouston C.V.O., K.C.M.G., I.E.

Assistant Secretary and Clerk of the Council—Edgar L. Bonavia

Malta was blockaded by the British Fleet, aided by the Maltese, from 1798 to 1800, and was finally annexed to the British Crown by the Treaty of Paris in 1814. Malta is 17 miles long, area, 91½ miles and the neighbouring island, Gozo 26 miles, total area (with Comino), 118 square miles. Population, according to Census taken on 2nd April, 1911, 228,584. Birth rate, 1911-12, 38.49 per 1,000, death rate of civil population, 24.42, number of marriages, 1,016. Chief town and port, Valetta. Education—172 public schools, with 21,983 pupils on the rolls at the beginning of the scholastic year, 1911-12, a university with 4 faculties and 149 students, a lyceum with 484 students, 2 secondary schools, one for boys with 66 pupils, and one for girls with 210 pupils and 3 technical manual schools with 88 pupils. The cost of university and secondary schools in 1911-12, 11,845/. There are about 70 unaided private schools with 4,100 pupils. In 1911-12, 15,863 persons were committed to prison, 72 persons were convicted of serious crime and 25,037 summarily.

Malta is one of the most important ports of call in the world, and is the base and resort for repair and refitment of the British fleet in the Mediterranean. Its harbour, as a naval station, is too small for the fleet. A new breakwater was constructed in 1909.

The Governor is assisted by an executive council and a council of government consisting according to the Letters Patent of June 3, 1903, of the Governor as President, a Vice President, the Lieut. Governor and Chief Secretary, nine official members, and eight elected members. The right to legislate by Order in Council in case of necessity is provided for. The constitution was amended on December 20, 1909, two elected members of the Legislative Council having been given seats (with salaries) on the Executive Council. Italian continues to be the official language of the law courts, but parents have the right to decide whether their children shall learn English or Italian at school, and 97.5 per cent. decided in favour of the former in 1911-12.

The revenue and the expenditure in 5 years have been—

ASIA

ADEN, PERIM, SOKOTRA, AND KURIA MURIA ISLANDS

ADEN is a volcanic peninsula on the Arabian coast, about 100 miles east of Bab el Mandeh. It forms an important coaling station on the highway to the East, and is strongly fortified. The settlement includes Little Aden, a peninsula very similar to Aden itself, and the settlement and town of Shaikh Othman on the mainland with the villages of Imad Hiswa, and Bir Jabir.

In April 1906 after demarcation of the frontier, Ottoman and British Commissioners signed an agreement which determines the boundary of the hinterland from Sheikh Murad on the Red Sea to Bana river, and thence north east to the great Desert. The settlement also includes the island of Perim at the entrance to the Red Sea, and is subject to the Bombay Government. The Government is administered by a Political Resident, who is also General Officer commanding the troops.

Political Resident—Major-General Sir James A. Bell, K. C. V. O.

The only Government revenue is from duty on liquor, opium, and salt, and from income tax, court fees and judicial fines, local taxes go to the Aden Settlement Fund. There is a Port Trust the harbour is being dredged.

Area 75 square miles, including the Protectorate, about 9,000 square miles, of Perim, 5 square miles. Population, in 1911, 46,185 (31,290 males and 14,875 females), against 48,974 in 1901. Imports (1911-12), by sea, 2,472,494<sup>1</sup>; by land 170,782<sup>1</sup>; treasure, 618,967<sup>1</sup>. Exports, by sea, 2,203,745<sup>1</sup>; by land, 114,850<sup>1</sup>; treasure, 618,772<sup>1</sup>. These statistics are exclusive of government stores and treasure. In 1911-12, 1,510 merchant steamers of 3,594,888 tons (net) entered the port of Aden of these, 804 were British, local craft, 982, of 80,307 tons. At Perim 517 merchant vessels entered, of which 372 called for coal.

Chief exports Coffee, gums, hides and skins, piece goods, tobacco. Chief imports Cotton twist, piece goods, grain, hides and skins, tobacco. Aden itself is non productive, and the trade is a purely transshipment one, except that from the interior of Arabia.

The island of Sokotra off the coast of Africa is under British protection, and the Kuria Muria islands, off the coast of Arabia, are attached to Aden. Area of former, 1,382 square miles. Population about 12,000, mostly pastoral and migratory inland, fishing on the coast. Religion, at one time Christian, Moham- medan since the end of the 17th century. The island came under British protection in 1876, by treaty with the Sultan. Chief products, dates and various gums, sheep, cattle, and goats are plentiful, butter is exported. The Kuria Muria Islands, five in number, were ceded by the Sultan of Muskat for the purpose of landing the Red Sea cable.

BAHREIN ISLANDS

Group of islands in the Persian Gulf, 20 miles off the coast of El Fars, in Arabia. Bahrain, the largest, is 27 miles long by 10 wide. Moharek, to the north east of Bahrain, 4 miles long,  $\frac{1}{2}$  mile wide. Other islands are, to the east, Sitra, 3 miles long and 1 mile broad, half its area being fertile. Nubi Saleh, about 2 miles in circumference, very fertile. Jazayra, a small islet with a date plantation, to the west are three rocky and uninhabited islets, Um Nahsan, Jidi, and Raka. The population of the two islands is put at about 90,000. Manameh, the capital and commercial centre, extends 8 miles along the shore, 25,000 inhabitants. Moharek on the island of that name has about 25,000 inhabitants. Other towns are Budeya on Bahrain Island, and Had on Moharek Island. There are about 100 villages in the islands. There are thousands of tombs in the shape of conical mounds situated in the interior of the islands. They vary considerably in size, some of them being as much as 100 yards in diameter, and 40 feet in height, entailing vast labour of construction. Inside are regular masonry burial chambers. No certainty as to origin yet exists owing to want of inscriptions, but they would offer great interest to any archaeologist, as they are undoubtedly extremely ancient.

The ruling family, Al Khalifa, and most of the townsmen are Mohammedans of the Sunni (Maliki) sect. The town population consists of Arabs who have come from Nejd within the last 200 years and negroes. The agricultural population and the Bahrain pearl divers are mostly of the Shi'ah sect. The present chief of Bahrain is Sheikh Esa. His uncle, Mahomed, was deposed by the British in 1867, and Sheikh Ali, his father, installed in his place. In 1869 Ali was killed, and Sheikh Esa succeeded to power.

The great industry is the pearl fishery, in which 900 boats, of from 8 to 60 men each, are engaged. The Bahrain Islands also produce dates, and a remarkably fine breed of donkeys. Sail cloth is manufactured extensively and also reed mats. In 1910-11, imports amounted to 1,777,184*l.*, exports 1,305,553*l.* There are 5 per cent ad valorem import duties. The importation of arms and ammunition is prohibited.

The chief imports in 1910-11 were specie, 505,197*l.*, pearls, 398,338*l.*, rice, grain and pulses, 295,472*l.*, coffee, 41,515*l.*, cattle, 25,653*l.*, dates, 32,749*l.*, cottons 70,670*l.* Of the exports, the only natural exports were pearls, 628,538*l.* and oyster shells, 28,542*l.* but owing to its situation harbour and good service of steamers, the port is largely used as a place of trans-shipment for mainland goods, and there were re-exportations of rice, grain and pulses, 56,627*l.*, dates, 24,316*l.*, cottons, 31,253*l.*, coffee, 10,449*l.* Of the imports in 1910-11, 58.7 per cent were from British Empire, 12.0 per cent from Turkish Arabia, and 5.7 per cent from Persia. Of the exports in 1910-11, 72.6 per cent went to British Empire, 7.3 per cent to Turkish Arabia, and 2.0 per cent to Germany.

In 1910-11, the following shipping entered the port of Bahrain —

	Steam		Sailing
	Number	Tonnage	Number	Tonnage
British	104	164,167	32	8,440
German	11	25,287	—	—
Turkish Arabia	17	8,810	31	529
Persia	—	—	530	15,566
Mosket	—	—	10	1,000
Trucial Oman	—	—	76	1,730
Koweit	—	—	100	5,800
Qatar	—	—	49	1,000
Totals	122	200,264	517	28,579

There is a British Post office which is worked as an Indian Inland office with the exception of insurance. Letter rates between England and Bahrain the same as between England and India. An up mail steamer and a down mail steamer call fortnightly.

Coins in use are British sovereigns, Indian rupees worth 16d., Austrian (Maria Theresa) dollars worth from 19d to 24d., and Turkish lire worth from 18s. to 18s. 6d according to the rate of exchange. The rupee is the coin in general use. There is also an imaginary coin, the kraw, commonly quoted by small shop keepers and peasants, it has the fixed value of 6 annas and 6 pies (6½d.) The measure employed is the dhiraa of 18½ inches. The weights are the muscal shiraz of 72 grains, the muscal bar of 720 grains, the rubaa of 4 1¼ lbs avoirdupois, the man of 57 ½ lbs avoirdupois, and the rafaa of 576 lbs avoirdupois.

BORNEO (BRITISH)

British North Borneo —Governor —A. C. PEARSON

British North Borneo occupies the northern part of the island of Borneo. The interior is mountainous. Mount Kina Balu being 13 700 feet high, but most of the surface is jungle.

Area, about 51,106 square miles, with a coast line of over 900 miles. Population (1911) 208 183 consisting mainly of Muhammadan settlers on the coast and aboriginal tribes inland, with a large number of Chinese traders, artisans and coolies. Chief towns, Sandakan (population 6 000) on the east coast, and Jesselton, on the west coast.

The territory is under the jurisdiction of the British North Borneo Company, being held under grants from the Sultans of Brunei and Sulu (Royal Charter in 1881). The territory is administered by a Governor (appointed with the approval of the Secretary of State) in Borneo and a Court of Directors in London, appointed under the Charter. On May 12, 1888, the British Government proclaimed a formal protectorate over the State of North Borneo. In 1898 certain border lands were acquired from the Sultan of Brunei, and more recently certain inland territories have been occupied. For administrative purposes the whole district is divided into nine provinces. In December, 1904, an area of about 200 square miles was transferred to Sarawak in exchange for rights over coal mines on Brunai Bay.

A large area has been alienated on leases for tobacco planting, tapioca, sago, rubber, coconuts, and coffee. The total labour force employed in the country at the end of 1919 was about 12,000 coolies.

There are Protestant and Catholic missions. The laws are based on the Indian penal, criminal, and civil procedure codes, and local proclamations and ordinances. There is an Imam's Court for Muhammadan law. Native and Indian constabulary, 800 men under European officers.

Imports	841 70	371 892	340 469	448 488	587 025

The revenue includes sums realised by land sales, and the expenditure includes sums spent on capital account for railways and telegraphs.

Sources of revenue. Opium, spirit farms, birds nests, court fees, stamp duty, licences, import and export duties, royalties, land sales, &c. No public debt.

Most of the trade is carried on through Singapore and Hong Kong with Great Britain and the colonies. The chief products are timber, sago, rice, gums, coffee, many fruits, nutmegs, cinnamon, pepper, gambier, gutta percha, rubber, camphor rattans, turpentine, sweet potatoes, and tobacco, which is being planted on a large scale. Coal, iron, gold, and mineral oil have been found. The exports comprise the products mentioned, with birds nests, seed pearls, bêche de mer, &c. Exports of leaf tobacco in 1908, valued 277,217, 1909, 294,221, 1910, 273,302, 1911, 252,268. Exports of rubber in 1911, 260,000 lbs., value 50,844. Shipping. 1908 entered 151,218 tons, cleared 151,607 tons. 1909, entered 190,711 tons, cleared 199,372 tons, 1910, entered 157,605 tons, cleared 158,894 tons.

A railway, 130 miles, runs from Brunel Bay into the interior and from there to Jesselton on Gaya Bay. Borneo is now connected by cable with the outer world. There is a telegraph line from Manumbok, where the cable reaches land to Sandakan where there is also a telephone exchange, also a line along the railway to Jesselton and Kudat, and from Darvel Bay to Sandakan.

At Sandakan there are agencies of the Chartered Bank of India, Australia and China and of the National Bank of China, and the North Borneo Company transacts banking business.

The Government issues its own copper coinage (cents and half cents), nickel coinage of 1, 2½ and 5 cents, also notes of one, five, ten and twenty five dollars, and of 25 and 50 cents to the extent of 400,000 dollars. Accounts are kept in dollar currency.

Brunei—In 1888 the neighbouring territories on the north west coast of Borneo, Brunei and Sarawak, were placed under British protection. On January 2, 1906, by treaty, the Sultan of Brunei handed over the general administration of his State to a British Resident. The Sultan, Mohamed Jamal-ul alam, born in 1839, succeeded his father in May, 1906. He receives an allowance of 1,400l a year from State funds, and has two principal ministers 700l a year each. Area about 4,000 square miles, and population estimated at 30,000. The chief town, Brunei (pop. 10,000), is built over the water on the Brunei river.

Distance from Labuan about 43 miles. Communication by steam launches regularly maintained.

Sarawak Area about 42,000 square miles coastline 400 miles, many rivers navigable. The government of part of the present territory was obtained in 1842 by Sir James Brooke from the Sultan of Brunei. Various accessions were made between 1841, 1885, and 1890. The Rajah, H. H. Sir Charles Johnson Brooke, G. C. M. G., nephew of the late Rajah, born June 2, 1829, succeeded in 1868. Population estimated at 500,000. Malays, Dyaks, kayans, Kenyahs, and Muruts, with Chinese and other settlers. The chief towns are the capital Kuching, about 23 miles inland, on the Sarawak River, and Sibn, 60 miles up the Rajang River, which is navigable by large steamers. At Kuching are Church of England and Catholic missions with schools. The revenue is derived chiefly from Customs and the opium, gambling, arrack and pawu farms, exemption tax payable by Malaya, and from Dyak and Kayan revenue. There are import duties on tobacco salt kerosine oil, wines and spirits, export duties on sago gambier pepper, all jungle produce, dried fish, &c. The revenue in 1910 was 184,220l, expenditure, 147,880l, 1911, revenue, 165,716l, expenditure, 156,539l. public debt, nil. Coal exists in large quantities, as well as gold, silver diamonds, antimony, and quicksilver. In 1910, imports, 787,926l exports, 951,259l, 1911, imports, 661,085l, exports, 838,125l. The exports (1911) included sago flour, 137,753l, pepper, 151,888l, gutta jelutong, 53,415l gutta manufactures, 192,740l and gold, 115,840l. The trade is mostly with Singapore. There are military and police forces, the former consisting of 500 Dyaks under an English army officer. Round Kuching are about 45 miles of roads besides bridle paths. There are 25 post offices (1911). The Government offices have a telephone system extending over Kuching and Upper Sarawak, but no telegraph. Distance from London, 6,700 miles, transit, 25 to 30 days. Telegrams sent by post from Singapore.

CEYLON

Constitution and Government

The authentic history of Ceylon begins in the fifth century A.C., when an invasion of Hindus from Northern India established the Sinhalese dynasty. The country was developed by Tamil colonists from South India. Buddhism was introduced from India in the third century A.C. and in comparative purity is still the religion of the majority of the inhabitants.

In 1505 the Portuguese formed settlements on the west and south, which were taken from them about the middle of the next century by the Dutch. In 1795-98 the British Government annexed the foreign settlements to the Presidency of Madras. In 1798 Ceylon was erected into a separate colony. In 1815 the whole island fell under British rule.

According to the terms of the Constitution established in 1831, 1838 and 1910, the administration is in the hands of a Governor, aided by an Executive Council of seven members—viz., the Officer commanding the Troops, the Colonial Secretary, the Attorney General, the Controller of Revenue, the Colonial Treasurer and two members nominated by the Governor, and a Legislative Council of 21 members, including the Executive Council, four other office holders and ten unofficial members, six nominated by the Governor and four elected as representing the different races and classes in the community.

Governor —

Colonial Secretary — Hon R. E. Stubbs (Salary 2,000/)

For purposes of general administration, the island is divided into nine provinces, presided over by Government Agents, with assistants and subordinate headmen. There are three municipalities and twenty-one local boards mainly for sanitary purposes.

Area and Population

The population for 1911 shows an increase of 14.48 per cent on the population of 1901. The enumerated population was 4,105,535 at the census of March 1911, exclusive of the military and shipping. The following are the statistics of the census of 1911 (excluding the immigrant population on the tea estates, the military, and the shipping) —

Provinces	Area English sq. miles	Population, 1911		Provinces	Area English sq. miles	Population 1911

Veddahs (aborigines)	5,342	{ 17,540
All races	3 592,397	4 105,535

Of the 3,565,954 persons (exclusive of the Military, the Shipping and the Prisoners of War) at the census of 1901, the occupation of 2,348,164 or 65.8 per cent (of whom 1,057,357 were earners and 1,290,807 dependents) was returned as agriculture 613,689 or 17.2 per cent (275,739 earners and 337,950 dependents) manufactures, 126,747 or 3.5 per cent (57,712 earners and 69,035 dependents) commerce

The population on estates, mainly consisting of immigrant Tamils from Southern India, numbered, at the census of 1901, 441,601, and formed 12.4 per cent of the total population. Since 1891 this population has increased 68.4 per cent.

The birth rate in 1910-11 (18 months) was 39.6 per 1,000 of population, and the death rate, 23.0.

The urban population is 11.8 per cent of the total population. The principal towns and their population according to the census of 1911 are — Colombo, 213,396; Galle, 40,187; Jaffna, 40,539; Kandy, 30,148.

Religion and Instruction

The principal religious creeds were in 1911 — Buddhists, 2,144,605; Hindus, 500,375; Mohammedans, 276,361; Christians, 369,947.

Buddhism in Ceylon (unlike that in Tibet, China, and Japan) is, in its philosophy, materialistic and atheistic, and in popular usage has a large admixture of the doctrines and practices of popular Hinduism and of the aboriginal wild tribes.

Education is under a separate Government department with a Director of Public Instruction and a staff of Inspectors.

The numbers of vernacular schools in 1910 were: Government schools, 734 (attendance, 71,148 boys and 19,761 girls); Aided schools, 1,699 (attendance, 111,191 boys and 59,354 girls); Unaided schools, 1,546 (86,754 children). There were also 286 English and Anglo vernacular schools, attended by 31,131 boys and 7,033 girls.

The total sum spent by Government on vernacular education during 1910-11 (18 months) was 65,000*l*.

English education has obtained such a hold upon the people that it is becoming gradually self-supporting. The Royal College (284 pupils in 1910) and other high English schools receive grants in aid. The total grants to English schools in 1910-11 (18 months) amounted to 15,700*l*. The Government also gives two scholarships of 200*l*. a year, each tenable for three years, with outfit allowances of 50*l*. each and free passages, to enable the two best students of each year to complete their course of education in England, and other scholarships are given locally. The Cambridge local examinations and certain examinations of the London University are held annually in Ceylon by arrangement. Technical education is given in the "Technical Schools" (137 students in 1910), and by means of Government scholarships tenable at Madras Engineering College. There is a Government Training College and thirty six industrial schools.

Justice, Crime, and Pauperism

The law is Roman Dutch, modified by colonial ordinances. The criminal law has been codified on the principle of the Indian Penal Code. There are a Supreme Court, police courts and courts of requests, and district courts, intermediate between the latter and the Supreme Court. Village councils deal with petty offences. In 1910-11 (18 months) the number of cases instituted in the police courts and municipal magistrates courts was 119,431. The number of "true cases of cognisable crime in the same period was 20,693, and the convictions and committals, 15,408. 8,149 convicted persons were sent to prison. Police force 30 June, 1911, 2,300 of all ranks.

There is no poor law, though a few old persons receive a charitable allowance from the Government varying from Rs. 1 to Rs. 12 50 each per mensem.

Defence

The harbour of Colombo, on the west, is protected, the colony having erected batteries of the newest form, the Imperial Government supplying the armament. Considerable additions are being made to the defences of Colombo by the Imperial and Colonial Governments.

The establishment of British forces in Ceylon in 1912-13 was 1,222; including 938 Colonial troops. The Colonial contribution in 1912-13 was 94,500*l*.

Production and Industry

The estimated area of the colony is 16,307,940 acres, 2,800,000 acres being under cultivation, and 660,000 acres pasture land. Of this, 644,763 acres were (1911) under rice, 96,984 under other grains, 1,512 under coffee, 84,535 under cacao, 457,277 under tea, 253 under cinchona, 1,032,282 under cocoa nuts, 44,584 under cinnamon, 14,374 under tobacco, and 184,651 under rubber. <sup>1</sup> Including bullion and specie

The values of imports and exports are declared, and represent the wholesale values at the place of import or export. Declarations are subject to scrutiny and penalty. The Chamber of Commerce, as representing the trade of the island assists by supplying the value on which a rated duty is levied. Quantities of imports are ascertained from invoices or by actual examination of exports from declarations and by examination of the shipping documents, shippers being liable to penalties for misstatement. The origin and destination of goods are also obtained from the shipping documents. In some cases however, goods intended for transshipment abroad are so entered, e.g. to New York or London. The transit trade includes all goods transhipped direct in port, as well as goods landed into transshipment warehouses. The transit trade of Colombo has largely increased of late years, but, as no bills of entry are required in respect of transshipment goods, the returns as to quantity are only approximately correct, and no returns as to value can be prepared.

According to Ceylon returns the total imports from the United Kingdom in 1911 amounted to 2,896,322*l*, and exports to 5,236,872*l*.

In 1911 (Board of Trade Returns) the value of tea imported into the United Kingdom from Ceylon was 4,096,099*l*, in 1900, 4,096,241*l*. Other imports in 1911 were rubber, 1,309,888*l*; cocoa nut oil, 499,139*l*; nuts and kernels, 278,234*l*; plumbago, 123,030*l*; coconuts, 123,357*l*. The exports of United Kingdom produce to Ceylon in 1911 were cottons, 512,363*l*; coal, 212,047*l*; iron and steel and manufactures thereof, 327,983*l*; machinery, 195,266*l*.

Shipping and Communications

Shipping entered and cleared, 1911, 14,926,764 tons (British 9,385,882 tons). On January 1, 1911, 120 sailing vessels of 9,460 tons, and 7 steamers of 1,889 tons, total 127 vessels of 11,349 tons, were registered as belonging to Ceylon.

804 miles of railway were open at the end of 1911.

In 1911 there were post offices, 454; money order offices (1911), 168; telegraph offices, 118; postal packets or postcards passed through the post office (1911), 39 715 358. 4,868 miles of telegraph wire and 1,200 miles of telephone wire (1911); telegrams despatched (1911), 1,212,465.

Money and Credit

The estimated amount of paper money in circulation on December 31, 1908, was 15,283,575 Rs. In circulation are also English sovereigns silver, Indian rupees, and subsidiary Ceylon 50, 25, and 10 cent pieces Copper, Ceylon 5 1, and 4, cent pieces. Five banks have establishments in Ceylon: the Mercantile Bank, the Bank of Madras, the National Bank, the Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank, and the Chartered Bank of India, Australia and China. The Ceylon Savings Bank on December 31, 1911 had 37,099 depositors, and deposits amounting to 5,152,980 Rs.; and the Post Office Savings Bank 89,074 depositors, and deposits (1911), 3 048,570 Rs.

The weights and measures of Ceylon are the same as those of the United Kingdom. The money of the country is the rupee of British India with cents in place of annas and pice; thus Ceylon has a decimal coinage. By Ordinance No. 6 of 1903, gold was made a legal tender (at 15 rupees = 1*l*).

Dependency

The Maldivé Islands, 400 miles west of Ceylon, are governed by an elected Sultan, who resides in the island of Male, and pays a yearly tribute to the Ceylon Government. Next to the Sultan is the Wazir, or Prime Minister, then the Pandiars, the head priest or judge, and besides them 6 Wazirs or Ministers of State. The Maldives are a group of 12 coral islets (atolls), richly clothed with cocoa nut palms, and yielding millet, fruit, and edible nuts. Population about 30,000 Mohammedans. The people are civilised, and are great navigators and traders.

CYPRUS

High Commissioner —Major Sir H. I. Gould Adams, G.C.M.G., C.B., appointed 1911, salary, 3,000*l* Chief Secretary —Captain C. W. J. Orr, late R.A. (800*l*)

The island is the third largest in the Mediterranean 60 miles from the coast of Asia Minor and 41 from the coast of Syria. It is administered by Great Britain, under a convention concluded with the Sultan of Turkey at Constantinople June 4 1878. The British High Commissioner is assisted by an Executive Council consisting of the Chief Secretary, the King's Advocate, the Treasurer. The Legislature consists of eighteen members, six being office holders—the Chief Secretary, the King's Advocate, the Treasurer, the Chief Medical Officer, the Commissioner of Nicotia and the Principal Forest Officer—and twelve elected (for five years), three by Mohammedan and nine by non Mohammedan voters. The voters are all male Ottomans, or British subjects, or foreigners twenty-one years of age, who have resided five years, and are payers of any of the taxes known as 'Verghia.' Municipal councils exist in the principal towns, elected practically by all resident householders and ratepayers. Those eligible to the council must be voters rated upon property of the annual value of from 10*l* to 20*l*, according to population.

Area 3,584 square miles Population, Census 1911 —189,383 males, 184,723 females; total, 274,106 (including 144 military population) Mohammedans 56,438, Christians (Greek Church), 214,480, others, 3,200 Inhabitants per square mile, 76.48.

The principal towns are Nicosia (the capital), 16,052, Larnaca, 9 282; Limasol, 10,802, Famagusta and Varoshia, 5,827, Paphos and Ktima, 8,435, Kyrenia, 1,726. There are six administrative districts named after these towns.

Besides elementary schools there are (1911-12) a gymnasium, 5 'Greek high schools' for boys and a 'high school' for girls, one for Greek Christians, and one for Moslems. The Government contributes 7,800*l* per annum to education. Total number of elementary schools in 1911-12, 595 (191 Moslem and 404 Christian), teachers 717. Total enrolment 81,780 comprising 5 926 Moslems, 25,656 Greek Christians, 100 Armenians and 98 Maronites. There are 8 weekly newspapers in Greek and 1 in Turkish.

The law courts consist of (1) a supreme court of civil and criminal appeal, (2) six assize courts, having unlimited criminal jurisdiction, (3) six district courts, having limited criminal jurisdiction and unlimited civil jurisdiction, (4) six magisterial courts with summary jurisdiction, (5) ten village judges courts. In all, except supreme court, native (Christian and Mohammedan) judges take part. In the year 1911-12 the number of offences was 10 096, there were 25 murders and 11 cases of attempts to murder. The number of persons committed to prison in 1910-11 8,917 in 1911-12 4 341. Strength of police force, March 31 1912 24 officers and 753 men, total, 777.

The revenue and expenditure for five years, ended March 31 were —

HONG KONG

Constitution and Government

THE Crown Colony of Hong Kong was ceded by China to Great Britain in January, 1841, the cession was confirmed by the treaty of Nanking, in August, 1842, and the charter bears date April 5, 1843. Hong Kong is the great centre for British commerce with China and Japan, and a military and naval station of first-class importance.

The administration is in the hands of a Governor, aided by an Executive Council, composed of the General Officer Commanding the Troops, the Colonial Secretary, the Attorney General, the Treasurer, the Registrar General and the Director of Public Works (special appointment), and two unofficial members. There is also a Legislative Council, presided over by the Governor, and composed of the General Officer Commanding the Troops, the Colonial Secretary, the Attorney General, the Treasurer, the Director of Public Works, the Captain Superintendent of Police, the Registrar General (the last two being special appointments), and six unofficial members—viz., four nominated by the Crown (two of whom are Chinese), one nominated by the Chamber of Commerce, and one by the Justices of the Peace.

Governor—Sir Francis Henry May, K C M G. Appointed 1912. Salary 6,000*l*.

Area and Population

Hong Kong is situated at the mouth of the Canton River, about 90 miles south of Canton. The island is an irregular and broken ridge, stretching nearly east and west about 11 miles, its breadth from 2 to 5 miles, and its area rather more than 29 square miles, separated from the mainland by a narrow strait, the Lyceemoo Pass, about half a mile in width. The opposite peninsula of Kowloon, on the mainland, was ceded to Great Britain by treaty in 1861, and now forms part of Hong Kong. The city of Victoria extends for upwards of five miles along the southern shore of the beautiful harbour. By a convention signed at Peking on June 9, 1898, there was leased to Great Britain for 99 years a portion of Chinese territory mainly agricultural, together with the waters of Mirs Bay and Deep Bay and the island of Lan tao. Its area is 376 square miles, with about 91,000 inhabitants, exclusively Chinese.

The population of Hong Kong, excluding the Military and Naval establishments (4,468 and 2,513 respectively), and that portion of the new territory outside New Kowloon, was, according to the 1911 census, as follows—

	Male	Female	Total
Chinese	242,455	111,782	354,187
European and American	4,446	8,628	8,074
Other nationalities	4,774	1,110	3,884
Total.	248,675	118,470	366,145

The population of the New Territories (exclusive of New Kowloon) was 90,594 at the 1911 census, making a total population of 456,739.

Of the coloured civil population at the census of 1911, 2,012 were Indians, 958 were Japanese, and 444,864 were Chinese. These figures include the whole of the New Territories. Of the resident white population nearly one half is British and one third is Portuguese. A considerable proportion of the military strength consists of Indian troops.

The registered births and deaths for five years were as follows —

1907	1 420	7,286	4 81	22 12
1908	1,412	9,271	4 17	27 55
1909	1,412	7 267	4 4	21 18
1910	1 583	7,639	4 3	21 76
1911	1,768	7,748	4 7	20 74

<sup>1</sup> Birth and death rates are calculated only on the population of Hong Kong and Kowloon there being no jurisdiction by the sanitary authorities over the New Territories (except New Kowloon)

In 1907 the number of Chinese emigrants was 105,967, and the number of immigrants 145 822, in 1908 71 081 and 157 809, in 1909, 77,490 and 144,821, in 1910, 111 058 and 149,564 and in 1911, 135 565 and 142,894 respectively

Instruction

The Government schools of the Colony (mostly with English teachers) include Queen's College average attendance 667 boys mostly Chinese the Kowloon and Victoria schools, for children of both sexes of British parentage average attendance 46 and 30 respectively, the Belknap Girls School English side (mixed) average attendance 228 three Anglo-Chinese District Schools, average attendance 728 There is also a Vernacular Girls School, with an average attendance of 204 There are 53 schools (mainly denominational) which receive grants from Government and are subject to Government inspection, average attendance 4 183 in 1911 The total expenditure on the above schools in 1911 was 209,170 dollars

There is a police school with about 470 pupils and about 307 unaided schools with about 9,813 pupils

There is a College of Medicine for Chinese which does good work without Government support A Technical Institute maintained by the local Government, was started in 1906 number of pupils in 1911, 310

The Hong Kong University was formally opened in March 1912 and the first session commenced in the following September On December 31 1911, the endowment fund amounted to 40 098½

Justice and Crime

There are Courts of Justice consisting of a Supreme Court, the second court or Court of Summary Jurisdiction, and a third court or Appeal Court, a police magistrate's court, and a marine magistrate's court In 1911 1,256 were committed to Victoria gaol for criminal offences in 1910, 1,213 The daily average of prisoners in gaol was 595 in 1911, and 547 in 1910 There is a police force in the colony numbering 1,060 men, of whom 134 are European, 899 Indians, and 547 Chinese

Finance

The public revenue and expenditure of the colony were as follows in five years. The dollar of Hong Kong is of variable value, for 1908 and 1909 it is here taken at 1s. 8½d., for 1910, at 1s. 9½d., and for 1911 at 1s. 9½d. —

Year	Revenue	Expenditure
1907	708 3 <sup>7</sup> / <sub>10</sub>	617 700
1908	727 750	665 500
1909	678 819	749 750
1910	609 076	804 5 <sup>7</sup> / <sub>2</sub>
1911	672 486	641 850

The revenue is derived chiefly from land, taxes, licences, quarry rent, liquor duties, and an opium monopoly which together more than cover the expenses of administration. A large portion of the expenditure has to be devoted to the maintenance of a strong police force. Expenditure on establishments in 1911, 3,662 531 dols. (331 916<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>).

Public debt, 341 800<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>, raised in 1887 and 1893 for public works. Another loan, 1,143,933<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> in Inscribed Stock at 3<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> per cent was raised in 1906 for purposes of railway construction. On December 31 1911 the assets of the colony exceeded its liabilities by 1,826,978 dols. (165 570<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>).

Defence

The military contribution payable to the Imperial Government was 1,342 554 dols. (121 668<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>) for 1911. The volunteer corps cost 48 014 dols. (4,351<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>) for 1911. Hong Kong is the headquarters of the China Squadron.

Industry, Commerce and Shipping

The chief industries of Hong Kong are cotton spinning, sugar refining, ship-building and repairing, rope making, the manufacture of cement, and now brewing and the manufacture of knit goods. Deep-sea fishing is important especially for the New Territories.

The commerce of Hong Kong is chiefly with Great Britain (about one half of the total imports and exports), India, Australia, the United States, and Germany. Hong Kong is a free port (except as regards the importation of intoxicating liquor), and there are no official returns of trade but only mercantile estimates, according to which the imports average four, and the exports two millions sterling. Hong Kong is the centre of trade in many kinds of goods. Among the principal are opium, sugar and flour, salt, earthenware, oil, amber, cotton and cotton goods, sandal wood, rice, coal, timber, hemp, bulk and case oil (kerosene), ivory, betel, vegetables, live stock, granite, &c. The Chinese tea and silk trade is largely in the hands of Hong Kong firms.

The trade between Hong Kong and the United Kingdom (Board of Trade returns) for five years is given as follows:—

—	1908	1909	1910	1911	1912
Imports (consignments) into Gt. Britain from Hong Kong	510 495	455 074	596 402	784 628	843 325

INDIA AND DEPENDENCIES

INDIA, as defined by Parliament (52 and 53 Vict. c. 63, s. 18), comprises all that part of the great Indian Peninsula which is directly or indirectly under British rule or protection. In a popular sense it includes also certain countries such as Nepal, which are beyond that area, but whose relations with India are a concern of the Foreign Department of the Government whose agent resides in the country concerned. These countries will be found included in the third part of the YEAR BOOK among Foreign Countries. The term British India includes only the districts subject to British law, and does not include native States. The term is so used unless otherwise stated, in the tables, &c., that follow. The symbol Rx. stands for ten rupees. Rx 1 = Rs. 10

Government and Constitution

The present form of government of the Indian empire is established by the Government of India Act, 1858 (21 & 22 Vict. cap. 106), which received the Royal assent on August 2, 1858. By this Act, all the territories theretofore under the government of the East India Company are vested in His Majesty, and all its powers are exercised in his name, all territorial and other revenues, and all tributes and other payments, are likewise received in his name, and disposed of for the purposes of the government of India alone. Under the Royal Titles Act, 1876 (39 & 40 Vict. cap. 10), the King of Great Britain and Ireland has the additional title of Emperor of India.

The administration of the Indian Empire in England is entrusted to a Secretary of State for India, assisted by a Council of not less than ten and not more than fourteen members, appointed for seven years by the Secretary of State. At least nine members of the Council must be persons who have served or resided ten years in India, and have not left India more than five years previous to their appointment. A member may be removed upon an address from both Houses of Parliament, and the Secretary of State for India may for special reasons reappoint a member of the Council for a further term of five years. No member can sit in Parliament.

The duties of the Council which has no initiative authority, are to conduct the business transacted in the United Kingdom in relation to the government of India. The expenditure of the revenues of India, both in India and elsewhere, is subject to the control of the Secretary of State in Council and no appropriation can be made without the concurrence of a majority of votes of the Council, which meets at least once a week, five being a quorum. In dealing however, with questions affecting the relations of the Government with foreign Powers, in making peace and war, in prescribing the policy of the Government towards native States and in matters of internal policy where the Government of India have addressed the India Office in a 'secret' despatch the Secretary of State may act on his own authority. The Secretary of State regulates the transaction of business.

The supreme executive authority in India is vested in the Governor General in Council, often styled the Government of India. The Governor General, or Viceroy is appointed by the Crown, and usually holds office for five years. The Capital of the Empire and the seat of government was moved from Calcutta to Delhi in 1912, the latter being formed into a separate territory under a Chief Commissioner.

Viceroy and Governor General of India —The Right Hon. Baron Hardinge of Penshurst, GCB GCMG GCV O, LSO, born 1858. Raised to peerage 1910. After filling other posts in the diplomatic service, was Ambassador at St. Petersburg 1904-06, permanent head of Foreign Office, 1906-10; present appointment, November, 1910.

The salary of the Governor General is Rs. 2,50,800 (16,720½) a year.

The following is a list of the Governors General of India, with the dates of their assumption of office —

Warren Hastings	1774	Earl (Marquis) of Dalhousie	1848

Lord Ellenborough	1842	Earl of Minto	1906
Sir H. (Lord) Hardinge	1844	Lord Hardinge of Penshurst	1910

Until 1834 these were Governors General of Fort William in Bengal not of India.

The Council of the Governor General consists at present of six ordinary members, and the Commander-in-Chief, who is an extraordinary member. The ordinary members are appointed by the Crown, and usually hold office for five years. There are ten departments—Home, Foreign, Finance, Army, Public Works, Revenue and Agriculture, Commerce and Industry, Legislative,

Education and Railways. At the head of each, except the Railway Department, is one of the secretaries to the Government of India. The President of the Railway Board is the head of the Railway Department and he is authorised to act as if he were a Secretary to the Government of India. Each department, except the Foreign Department, which is under the immediate superintendence of the Governor General, is assigned to the special care of one of the members of the Council.

The Council is expanded into a legislative council by the addition of other members nominated by the Viceroy or elected under the Act of 1909. The Legislative Council now consists of 68 members, 26 being official and 32 non-official, special provision being made for the representation of Mahomedans. A Governor or a Lieutenant Governor is also an additional member when the Council sits within his province. This Council has power subject to certain restrictions to make laws for all persons within British India, for all British subjects within the Native States, and for all native Indian subjects of the King in any part of the world. The proceedings in the Legislative Council are public.

As the result of administrative changes in 1912 India is now divided into ten great and five smaller provinces as follows —

Madras Governor, Rt Hon Baron Pentland, P C G C I E (1912), salary, Rs. 120,000 a year
 Bombay Governor Baron Willingdon (April, 1913) Rs. 120,000
 Bengal Governor Rt Hon Baron Carmichael of Skirling G C I E., K C M G (1912), Rs. 120,000
 United Provinces of Agra and Oudh Lieut Governor Sir J S Meeson K C S I (1912), salary Rs. 100,000
 The Punjab Lieut Governor, M F O'Dwyer, C S I (May, 1913) Rs. 100,000
 Burma Lieut Governor, Sir Harvey Adamson, K T K C S I (1910), Rs. 100,000
 Bihar and Orissa Lieut Governor Sir Charles Stuart Bayley K C S I (1912), Rs. 100,000
 Central Provinces and Berar Chief Commissioner, Sir B Robertson, K C S I, C I E (1912) Rs. 62,000
 Assam Chief Commissioner Sir Archdale Earle, K C I E. Rs. 62,000
 N W Frontier Province Agent to the Governor General and Chief Commissioner Lt Colonel Sir G O Roos Keppel, K C I E. (1912), Rs. 54,000
 Ajmer Merwara Chief Commissioner, Sir L G Colvin, K C S I, Rs. 4,000
 Coorg Chief Commissioner, Lt Col Sir H Daly, K C I F, C S I, Rs. 4,000
 British Baluchistan Chief Commissioner Lt Col J Ramsay C S I C I E. Rs. 4,000
 Delhi Chief Commissioner, W M Halley, C I E.
 Andaman and Nicobars Chief Commissioner, Lt Col H A Browning, Rs. 3,000

The Governors of Madras, Bombay, and Bengal are appointed by the Crown and each of them has an executive council, consisting of two members of the Indian Civil Service, appointed by the Crown, and, under a recent Act 9 Edw VII, Ch. 4, the Secretary of State may increase the number to four, of whom two at least must have been in the service of the Crown in India for at least twelve years. The Lieutenant-Governors are appointed by the Governor General, with the approval of the Crown, the Chief Commissioners by the Governor General in Council.

The Governors of Madras, Bombay, and Bengal and the four Lieutenant-Governors each have legislative councils of their own. The Legislative Councils of the provinces are constituted as follows: Madras, 48 members (20 official, 28 unofficial, 2 experts), Bombay, 48 (18 official, 28 unofficial, 2 experts), Bengal, 50 (17 official, 31 unofficial, 2 experts), United Provinces, 48 (20 official, 26 unofficial, 2 experts), Bihar and Orissa, 42 (17 official, 23 unofficial, 2 experts), Punjab, 28 (10 official, 14 unofficial, 2 experts), Burma, 17 (6 official, 9 unofficial, 2 experts).

Although all the provinces are under the control of the Government of India, they enjoy much administrative independence varying with their importance. Each province is usually broken into divisions under Commissioners, and then divided into districts, which form the units of administration. At the head of each district is an executive officer (collector, magistrate, or deputy commissioner), who has entire control of the district, and is responsible to the governor of the province. Subordinate to the magistrate (in most districts) there are a joint magistrate, an assistant magistrate, and one or more deputy collectors and other officials. There are 267 of such districts in British India.

The control which the Supreme Government exercises over the Native States varies in degree, but they are all governed by the native princes, ministers or councils under the political supervision of a resident, or agent, in political charge either of a single State or a group of States. The chiefs have no right to make war or peace, or to send ambassadors to each other or to external States, they are not permitted to maintain a military force above a certain specified limit, no European is allowed to reside at any of their courts without special sanction, and the Supreme Government can exercise any degree of control in case of misgovernment. Within these limits the more important chiefs are autonomous in their own territories. Some, but not all of them, are required to pay an annual fixed tribute.

A new Native State was constituted in 1911 comprising the greater part of what are known as the "Family Domains" of the Benares zamindars. The parts affected are Bhadohi or Korb, a compact and homogeneous tract lying between the Ganges and the Rama, in the Mirzapur district, and Kera Mangraur or Chakia, a large tract in the same district. The native state thus formed has an area of 837 square miles and a population (1901) of 362,000. The Maharaja is Sir Prabhu Narayan Singh.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT

There were at the end of 1910-11, 715 municipalities, with a population of about 17 millions. The municipal bodies have the care of the roads, water supply, drains, markets, and sanitation, they impose taxes, enact bye-laws, make improvements, and spend money, with the sanction of the Provincial Government. Their aggregate income in 1910-11 was about 4,600,000/ exclusive of loans, sales of securities, and other extraordinary receipts. By the Local Self-Government Acts of 1882-84, the elective principle has been extended, in a large or small measure, all over India. In all larger towns, and in many of the smaller towns, the majority of members of committees are elected by the ratepayers, everywhere the majority of town committees consists of natives, and in many committees all the members are natives. For rural tracts, except in Burma, there are district (197 in 1910-11) and local (521 in 1910-11) boards, which are in charge of roads, district schools, and hospitals. Their aggregate income, including debt issues, was about 2,250,000/.

There are the five Universities of Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, Allahabad and the Punjab, which though merely examining bodies, have numerous affiliated colleges. There are normal schools in every province and inspectors visit all departmental schools. Medical colleges furnish a limited number of graduates and a larger number of certificated practitioners. There are eight art schools.

The following table shows the number of students in each of the provinces in British India who matriculated at the five Universities in the years named —

Of the total number of educational institutions in India (viz. 172 292), 33,189 are public, 81,146 are aided, and 57 957 are private and unaided.

Notwithstanding the recent great progress of education, the proportion able to read and write is still very small. In British India only 28.1 per cent. of the boys of a school going age attend school and of girls 4.6.

During 1910 the following vernacular newspapers were published in Eastern Bengal and Assam, 53, Baluchistan, 1, Baroda 30, Bengal, 200, Bombay, 334, Burma, 31, Central India, 9, Central Provinces and Berar, 31, Madras Mysore, and Haidarabad, 299, United Provinces 220 Punjab, 209, Rajputana 8 total 1,416. They were published in the following languages or dialects — Assamese Bengali, Hindi, Uriya, Kanarese, Sindhi, Sanskrit, Burmese, Chinese, Urdu Persian, Gujarathi, Marathi, Keren, Pwo Karen, Sagau Karen, Tamil, Tulegn, Malayalam, Arabic, Hindustani, Khasi, Ajmer Merwara, and Gurmukhi. In 1909-10 there were in India 2,736 printing presses at work 726 newspapers were published, 2,829 periodicals, and 12,046 books, of which 9,934 were in Indian languages.

Justice and Crime

The Presidencies of Madras, Bombay, and Bengal, and also the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh have each a supreme high court, with an appeal to the Privy Council in England. The Punjab has a chief court, with six judges, the Central Provinces and Berar, Oudh, North West Frontier Province, Coorg and Sind have judicial commissioners. Burma has a judicial commissioner and a chief court. For Assam, and Bihar and Orissa the high court of Calcutta is the highest judicial authority.

The number of officers exercising civil and criminal jurisdiction on December 31, 1910, was as follows —

Courts	Civil	Criminal	Total
Provincial	121	170	297
District	659	911	1 563
Subordinate	1 510	5,513	7 023

In addition to the above, there was a capital expenditure on State railways and irrigation works in 1911-1912 of Rs 12,84,44,000. The estimated amount in 1912-13 is Rs 13,37,84,000.

The following table shows the receipts from the most important sources of revenue, land, opium, customs, excise and salt in 1900-1 and 1906-7 to 1911-12. The falling off in the land revenue in 1908 was due to unfavourable agricultural conditions. The decrease in the opium revenue in 1908 was due partly to a curtailment of exports as a result of the measures adopted by the Government of India to co-operate with China towards the eventual extinction of the opium habit among the Chinese, and partly to a lower average price obtained at the monthly auctions, which also accounts for the fluctuations in previous years. The increase in 1911 was due to the exceedingly high prices realized at the monthly auctions. The large falling off in the salt revenue in 1908 is attributable to the reduction of the duty to 1 rupee a maund with effect from March 20, 1907. It had previously been reduced from 2½ rupees a maund to 2 rupees with effect from March 18, 1902, and to 1½ rupees with effect from March 22, 1905. The rates of duty on im-

The most important source of public income is the land. The land revenue is levied according to an assessment on estates or holdings. In the greater part of Bengal, about one fourth of Madras and some districts of the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh, the assessment was fixed permanently over one hundred years ago while it is fixed periodically at intervals of from twelve to thirty years over the rest of India. In the permanently settled tracts the land revenue falls at a rate of about two thirds of a rupee per acre of cultivated land, and represents on an average about one fifth of the rental, or about one twenty fourth of the gross value of the produce. In the temporarily settled tracts the land revenue averages about  $\frac{1}{3}$  rupee per acre of cultivated land represents something less than one half of the actual or estimated rental and is probably about one tenth or one twelfth of the gross value of the produce. For details as to the nature of the different tenures of land that prevail in India see the YEAR BOOK for 1886, p 799. See also under AGRICULTURE.

The land revenue was contributed in 1910-11 as follows —

In British territory the cultivation of the poppy for the production of opium is only permitted in parts of the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh. A limited amount is grown in the Punjab for local consumption and to produce poppy seeds. In the monopoly districts, the cultivator receives advances from Government to enable him to prepare the land for the crop, and he is bound to sell the whole of the produce at a fixed price to Government agents, by whom it is despatched to the Government factory at Ghásipur to be prepared for the market. The chests of manufactured opium are sold by auction in Calcutta at monthly sales for export to China. A reserve is kept in hand to supply the deficiencies of bad seasons, and a considerable quantity is used by the Indian excise departments. Opium is also grown in many of the Native States of Rájputána and Central India. These Native States have agreed to conform to the British system. They levy varying rates of duty on opium exported from their territories for the China market, and such opium pays the Indian Treasury a duty which is at present fixed at Rs 1,225 per chest when the pass is granted at Ajmere, and at Rs 1,200 when it is granted elsewhere.

The expenditure for the army for six years is given as follows —

Defence

The military forces in India consist in the first place of the British troops and of the Native army, there are also the volunteers and the Imperial service troops. The army, as a whole is divided into a Northern army and a Southern army. The Northern army comprises the Peshawar, Rawal Pindi, Lahore, Meerut, and Lucknow divisions, besides the three independent Kohat, Bannu and Derajat brigades. The Southern army comprises the Quetta, Mhow, Poona Secunderabad, and Burma divisions, and the Aden brigade.

The British troops are made up of 9 cavalry regiments, 11 horse artillery batteries, 45 field batteries, 8 mountain batteries, 6 heavy batteries, 21 companies of garrison artillery, 52 infantry battalions, and a small proportion of engineers and departmental services. Units are supposed to be relieved after 14 years in India by units from home or the Colonies: they are maintained practically at war establishment. The total establishment is (1912-13), 75,886 of all ranks.

The Native army comprises 40 cavalry regiments, 12 mountain batteries, 8 regiments (19 companies) of sappers and miners, 140 battalions of infantry, besides departmental services. The superior officers are British. Service in the ranks is voluntary and lasts for 8 years, with the option of extending to 32 years, 35 per cent. of the men are Mahomedans, 63 per cent. Hindoos, the rest are Christians, Jews, etc. The infantry are for the most part formed into single battalion regiments, but there are 10 regiments of Gurkha rifles each of two battalions. 5 battalions are stationed in China, the Straits Settlements and Ceylon, paid for by the home government. About a third of the cavalry and infantry units are "class regiments" i.e., regiments consisting of a particular race and religion—Maharatta, Sikh, etc. Units are kept practically at war establishment. The establishment is 159,144 of all ranks. There are 36,000 reservists.

The volunteers consist practically entirely of Europeans and Eurasians, the latter predominating. The establishment is 1,461 officers, 29,597 other ranks, and 5,982 cadets. They are organised as 7 regiments of cavalry, 8 regiments of mounted rifles, 7 batteries of artillery, 7 companies of engineers, and 45 battalions of infantry.

The Imperial service troops are raised and maintained by Native states, and are trained under the supervision of British officers. They number all told about 80,000 and consist of all arms of the service, but they provide a specially strong force of cavalry, about 8,600 all told. The two largest contingents of Imperial service troops are provided by the States of Gwalior and Kashmir.

On mobilisation a proportion of the military forces are to remain in cantonments, it is proposed to place 9 divisions and a proportion of cavalry brigades in the field. The mobilised divisions do not exactly correspond to the divisional commands existing in peace time which vary in strength and composition.

tion, the Secunderabad division, for instance, comprising two cavalry and five infantry brigades, while the Quetta division only comprises two infantry brigades.

A division in the field consists of 8 infantry brigades (1 brigade British infantry, 2 brigades Native infantry) and divisional troops, viz., 1 regiment Native cavalry, 1 battalion pioneers, 8 field batteries, 2 mountain batteries, 1 ammunition column, 2 companies sappers and miners, 1 signal company, 2 British field ambulances, 8 Native field ambulances, 1 printing section, 1 photolitho section, 1 field post office, divisional troops supply column, 1 divisional supply column. Its establishment consists of 8 708 British and 2 168 native troops, total, 12,876, with 80 guns.

A cavalry brigade consists of 1 horse battery, 1 British cavalry regiment, 2 Native cavalry regiments,  $\frac{1}{2}$  British field ambulance,  $\frac{1}{2}$  Native field ambulance, field post office, 1 supply column, 1 ammunition column.

A British infantry brigade consists of 4 battalions, 2 British field hospitals, 1 field post office, 1 supply column.

A Native infantry brigade consists of 4 battalions, 2 Native field hospitals, 1 field post office, 1 supply column.

The total strength of the field army would be about 150,000.

The military forces in India are administered by the headquarters staff and the army department, both under the supreme control of the commander in chief. The headquarters staff comprises the division of the chief of the general staff, the adjutant general's division, the quarter master general's division, the medical division, the ordnance division, and the military works division. The army department deals with supply and finance. The separation of the forces into the Northern and Southern army is chiefly for inspection and training purposes; the commanders of divisions and independent brigades deal direct with headquarters on most questions.

The estimated net charge for the military service for the year 1912-13 is 17,930,000.

Production and Industry

The chief industry of India has always been agriculture. In every province of India there is a Department of Land Records and a Department of Agriculture, with one exception under separate heads. Both collect agricultural statistics, the former primarily for assessment purposes and the latter with a view to survey and improvement of agriculture. The latter also is concerned with the management of experimental and seed farms, the introduction of new appliances and new staples and the management and control of Colleges for teaching the science of agriculture. There are staffs of experts in the provinces and there is an Imperial staff of experts with a fully equipped central station, Research Institute and College for post graduate training of those who have proceeded to Land Agriculture in provincial colleges. There is also a Civil Veterinary Department for the prevention and cure of cattle diseases and for the improvement of the breeds of cattle, horses, &c. There is an Imperial Laboratory for research and the preparation of sera and anti toxins.

In provinces where the zamindari tenure prevails (i.e., where single proprietors or proprietary brotherhoods possess large estates of several hundreds or thousands of acres), the State revenue is assessed at an aliquot part (usually about one half) of the ascertained or assumed rental. The revenue is payable on each estate as a whole, the assessment remaining unchanged for the period of settlement. In provinces where the raiyatwari tenure prevails (i.e., where each petty proprietor holds directly from the State, as a rule cultivates his own land, and has no landlord between himself and the Government), the revenue is separately assessed on each petty holding, and land revenue becomes payable at once (or after a short term of grace in the case of uncleared lands) on all extensions of cultivation. The rasyadwari proprietor may throw up his holding, or any portion of it, at the beginning of any year after reasonable notice, whereas the rassaddar or large proprietor engages to pay the revenue assessed upon him throughout the term of the settlement.

Of the exports of merchandise in 1911-12 Rs 221 73 10 933 represented the product of the country Rs 5 02 82,613 were re-exports of foreign imports.

The returns of quantities and values of imports and of exports are based on the bills of entry and shipping bills respectively but the declarations contained in these documents are subject to scrutiny in all cases and penalties may be inflicted where they are found to be false. The value is the wholesale value at the place of import or export less trade discount, duty not being included in the value of dutiable goods. Up to the year ended March, 1911 the published returns showed not the prime origin of imports and ultimate destination of exports but only the countries whence the goods were shipped to India and to which they are shipped from India, as disclosed by the shipping documents. But beginning with the official year 1911-12 imports have been classified with reference to the countries whence they are consigned to India and exports credited to the country of final destination as declared by the exporters in the shipping bills whether that country possesses a seaboard or not. A retrospective record from the year 1907-08 was also specially constituted under the stated system of registration and the figures given in this article for the year 1907-08 and succeeding years relate to countries of consignment and countries of final destination. No distinction is maintained between general, special and transit trade but goods of foreign origin when re-exported, are shown in detail separately from those of Indian origin. Apart from the comparatively insignificant imports and exports by parcel post, of which only the total values are known there are no special circumstances which affect the value of the statistical results.

The gross amount of import duty collected in 1911-12 was Rs 9 14 53 2 1 and export duty Rs 1,86,25,202. The largest import duty is derived from cotton goods Rs 1,50,10,401 and from salt, Rs 1 41 87 555 in 1911-12 the export duty is entirely on rice.

The imports and exports, excluding Government stores and Government treasure were distributed as follows in five years—

An Act providing for the closing of the Indian Mints to the unrestricted coinage of silver for the public was passed in 1898. Notifications were issued simultaneously providing (1) for the receipt of gold coin and gold bullion at the Mints in exchange for rupees at a ratio of 1s 4d. per rupee, (2) for the receipt of sovereigns and half sovereigns of current weight at treasuries, in payment of Government dues, at the rate of fifteen rupees for a sovereign and seven and a half rupees for a half-sovereign, and (3) for the issue of currency notes in Calcutta and Bombay in exchange for gold coin or gold bullion at the rate of one Government rupee for 1s 4d. By a Notification of the 11th September, 1897, sovereigns and half sovereigns of current weight are also received at the Reserve Treasuries, at the rate of Rs. 15 for the sovereign.

An Act (XXII of 1899) declared the sovereign legal tender, 15 rupees to the sovereign. It was, however, decided not to coin gold in India, a proposal to coin gold is now under consideration.

The Coinage Act of 1906 provided for the introduction of a subsidiary nickel one-anna piece and the substitution of a bronze currency for the existing copper coins. The coinage of copper was accordingly discontinued with effect from August 1, 1908. The issue of the nickel one-anna piece was commenced with effect from August 1, 1907.

Since 1900 rupees have been coined as required to meet public demands, the Government purchasing the silver and paying for it mainly with the gold accumulated in the Paper Currency Reserve. The entire profit accruing to Government on the coinage up to March 31, 1907, and half such profit for the years 1907-08 and 1908-09 have been placed to the credit of a separate fund termed the Gold Standard Reserve, with the object of ensuring the stability of the currency policy of Government. Any profit arising from this source in future will be credited entire to the Gold Standard Reserve until such time as the gold and gold securities in the Gold Standard Reserve shall attain to a total of 25 millions sterling.

On July 16, 1861, an Act was passed by the Government of India providing for the issue of a paper currency through a Government department of Public Issue, by means of promissory notes. Circles of issue were established from time to time, as found necessary, and the notes were made legal tender within the circle for which they were issued, and rendered payable at the place of issue, and also at the capital city of the Presidency. Subsequent legislation has relaxed the rigidity of the circle system. Notes of the values of five, ten, fifty, and hundred rupees are now legal tender throughout British India, and the limitation of currency to the circle of issue is confined to notes of higher denominations.

There are now seven circles of issue: Calcutta, Bombay, Madras, Rangoon, Cawnpore, Lahore, and Karachi.

Total values of notes in circulation on March 31 in six years —

	Rs.		Rs.
1906-7	46,95,19,260	1909-10	54,40,84,250
1907-8	46,88,50,345	1910-11	54,99,05,815
1908-9	45,48,79,505	1911-12	61,86,25,095

Nearly two-thirds of the total note circulation is in the currency circles of Calcutta and Bombay.

Statistics of the Post Office Savings banks for five years —

Currency, Weights, and Measures

The money, weights, and measures of India, and the British equivalents, are as follows —

The Pie		= $\frac{1}{4}$ Farthing
3 "	= 1 Pice	= 1 Farthing
4 Pie, or 12 Pice	= 1 Anna	= 1 Penny
16 Annas	= 1 Rupee	= 1s 4d
16 Rupees		= 1l

The rupee weighs one tola (a tola = 180 grains) 916 fine.

The sum of 1,00,000 rupees is called a 'lac' and of 1,00,00,000 a 'crore' of rupees.

The Maund of Bengal of 40 seers	= 82½ lbs. avoirdupois
" " Bombay	= 23 lbs. nearly
" " Madras	= 25 lbs. nearly
" Tola	= 180 gr
" Guz of Bengal	= 86 inches.

An Act to provide for the ultimate adoption of a uniform system of weights and measures of capacity throughout British India was passed by the Governor-General of India in Council in 1871. The Act orders: Art. 2. 'The primary standard of weight shall be called a seer, and shall be a weight of metal in the possession of the Government of India, equal, when weighed in a vacuum, to the weight known in France as the kilogramme, = 2.205 lbs. avoirdupois.' Art. 3. 'The units of weight and measures of capacity shall be, for weights, the said seer; for measures of capacity, a measure containing one such seer of water at its maximum density, weighed in a vacuum. 'Unless it be otherwise ordered, the subdivisions of all such weights and measures of capacity shall be expressed in decimal parts.' This Act, however, has never been brought into operation.

BALUCHISTÁN

A country occupying the extreme western corner of the Indian Empire, approximately between lat. 24° 54' and 32° 4' N, and between long 60° 56' and 70° 15' E. extreme length from E to W about 550 miles, breadth about 450, area, 184,638 square miles. population (1911 census), 834,703. Bounded on the N by Afghanistan and the North West Frontier Province, on the E. by Sindh the Panjab and a part of the Frontier Province, on the S by the Arabian Sea, on the W by Persia, the boundary disputes with which were settled in 1905. The main divisions are (1) British and administered territory in the north of the Province, (2) the native States of Kalát and Las Bela, the former consisting of a confederation of tribes under the Khán of Kalát, and stretching westwards to Persia, while the latter occupies the alluvial valley between the Pab and Hálá ranges from the sea to Bela, (3) tribal areas occupied by the Marri and Bugti tribes semi independent, but subject to the control of the Political Agent in Sibi.

1 British and Administered Territory—British Residents were appointed to the courts of the Kháns of Kalát from the middle of the nineteenth century, and British expeditions passed through the Bolán on their way to Kandahár and Afghanistan, but up to 1876 the country was considered independent. In 1875 Sir Robert Sandeman, the founder of the Baluchistán Province, first entered the country, in 1877 the cantonment of Quetta, which is now the head quarters of the Administration was occupied by British troops, and in 1878 the administration of the district was taken over on behalf of the Khán of Kalát. After the Afghan war 1878-81 the districts of Pishin, Shorarád, Dukri, Sibi, and Sháhriq were assigned to the British and in November, 1887, were formally constituted as British Baluchistán. In 1889 the districts of Quetta and Bolán were made over by the Khán to the British on an annual quit-rent of 25,000 rupees and 30,000 rupees respectively. In 1886, the Bori valley, in which is now the cantonment of Loralai, was occupied. In 1887 the Khetrán country, now known as the Bárkhán tahsil, was brought under British control, in 1889 British authority was established in the Zhob valley and Kákar Kharidán, in 1898 Chágas and Western Sinjáran were included in administered territory, in 1899, the Nuskhí Niabat was made over by the Khán of Kalát on an annual quit-rent of 8,000 rupees, and in 1903 the Nasirábád tahlil was acquired from the Khán on an annual quit rent of 117,500 rupees. The area of British and administered territory is 46,960 sq. miles, and the population (1911) 579,646. The head of the civil administration is the Chief Commissioner and Agent to the Governor General. Next in authority is the Revenue Commissioner, who is also the Judicial Commissioner, and as such exercises the powers of a High Court, except in cases of Europeans for whom the Chief Court of the Punjab is a High Court. The area under the direct administration of the Chief Commissioner and Agent to the Governor General, is divided into 6 districts, each in charge of a Political Agent as follows: Quetta-Pishin, Sibi, Zhob, Loralai, Bolán Pass, Chágas. The Political Agents are also the Collectors, District Magistrates, and Sessions Judges, and are assisted by European Assistant Political Agents and either native or European Extra-Assistant Commissioners and a staff of subordinate revenue and judicial officials. The Political Agent in charge of the Bolán Pass is also Political Agent for Kalát and Las Bela.

In the directly administered territory the chief items of revenue are Land revenue, excise, court fees and stamps, and judicial fines &c. In some places the land revenue is levied in money in accordance with a fixed assessment, but generally it is levied in kind. This is usually one-sixth of the crop, but in the Sibi tahlil it is two ninths, and on the lands of the Shebo and Khushdíl irrigation canals, constructed by the Government, the proportion is one-third. In Nasirábád the assessment per acre of the cultivated area varies from 8 annas to Rs 4 according to the crops raised and means of water supply. For revenue purposes each district is divided into tahsils, each of which is in charge of a native official known as a Tahsildar, who has a Naib-Tahsildar, Kanungos and Patwáris subordinate to him. The revenue from all sources averages approximately Rupees 18,74,000.

Regular troops are cantoned at Quetta, Chaman, Fort Sandeman and Loralai, and detachments are stationed at different places, principally in the Zhob and Loralai Districts, for the preservation of law and order. There is also a police force, supplemented by levies and the Zhob militia, Makrán and Chágas Levy Corps. The latter are recruited from the local tribes, and have their own leading men as officers.

The medical work of the Province is under the Chief Medical Officer, and there are Civil Surgeons at Quetta, Loralai, Fort Sandeman and Chaman, and Civil Assistant-Surgeons at Sibi, Shahrig, Mach, Kalat and Panjgur.

2. The Native States of Kalát and Las Bela.—The leading chief of Kalát is Sir Mir Máhmúd Khán, G C I E, Beglar Bégi Khán of Kalát, who succeeded on the abdication of his father the late Mir Khudásád Khán in November, 1898.

KHÁNS OF KALÁT

Mir Ahmad I, C	1667	Mir Muhammad Nasir Khán
Mir Mehráb I, C	1696	I, C	1751
Mir Samandar, C.	1698	Mir Máhmúd Khán I, C	1794
Mir Ahmad II, C.	1714	Mir Mehráb Khán II	1817
Mir Abdullá, C	1716	Mir Sháh Nawáz Khán*	1839
Mir Mubabat, C	1731	Mir Nasir Khán II	1840
		Mir Khudásád Khán	1857

From March, 1883, to May, 1864, the Máhmád (Throne) was usurped by Khudásád Khán's cousin, Shedad Khán.

The power of the Khána of Kalát was founded by the Mirwáris about the fifteenth century. Authentic history begins with Mir Ahmad I, whose successors gradually made themselves supreme from Kalát to the Arabian Sea, and rose to the height of their power in the time of Mir Nasir Khán I, who was the first to take the title of Khán. The districts of Quetta and Mastung were granted to him by Ahmad Sháh, the Durrani king of Afghanistan. Nasir Khán's grandson, Mehráb Khan, was killed in the storming of Kalát by a British force in 1839. His son, Nasir Khán II, was acknowledged by the British Government in 1840, and in 1854 a treaty was executed with him, under the terms of which he received a yearly subsidy of 50,000 rupees. In 1857 Nasir Khán was succeeded by his brother, Khudádád Khán with whom a fresh treaty was concluded in December 1876, by which the subsidy was raised to 100,000 rupees a year. Owing to the state of anarchy which prevailed in the State, and which reacted on British interests in India, it became essential that a settlement should be effected and Major (afterwards Sir Robert) Sandeman was deputed to Kalát for this purpose, in 1876, with most successful results. Mir Khudádád Khan died in May, 1909.

The Khan of Kalát is the head of a confederacy of chiefs, but the extent of his control has now been considerably reduced. In all important matters he is amenable to the advice of the Agent to the Governor-General in Baluchistán, who also arbitrates in disputes between the Khán and minor chiefs. The area of Kalát State is 73 278 square miles, and the population 359,036 (1911 census).

The Khan's revenue, including the subsidies and rents for the leased areas paid by the British Government, amounts to 8,00,000 rupees annually. The Khán has an irregular force of 461 cavalry and artillery. The chief towns in the State are Kalát, Mastung, Bhág, Gandawa and Dadhar.

The ruling chief of Las Bela has the title of Jam. Jám Mir Khán, the grandfather of the present chief, succeeded in 1840, Jám Ali Khán his father, succeeded in 1889, and Jám Mir Kamal Khán, the present chief, succeeded in 1896. The area of the State is 7 132 square miles, population, 61,205 (1911 census), revenue varies from 2 to 3 lakhs, military force, 330 infantry, 35 cavalry, and 4 guns, military police force, 100 men. Before the British occupation the ruler of Las Bela was a feudatory of the Khan of Kalát, but in recent times the connection has almost entirely ceased. The State is under the control of the Political Agent in Kalát.

3 The Tribal Areas.—These territories comprise 7,268 square miles, with a population of 84,766 (1911 census), chiefly Marri and Bugtis, under the Sibi agency.

General.—The most numerous races in Baluchistán are the Brahú, Pathan and Baloch, 554,800. The Brahús occupy the centre of the country stretching through Chagai to meet the Baloch of Western Sanjrám, and southwards to the Lásis and the Baloch of Makrán. The Pathans are chiefly contained within British and administered territory. The Baloch are distributed through the southern regions in the Marri and Bugti country, the Kachhi plain, the Nasirabad tahsil, the Dombki, Umráni, and Kesheri country, and Makrán. The Lásis (27,779), are almost wholly confined to Las Bela, the term Lási being of modern invention. The other inhabitants are either scattered, as the Chuttlis and Saiads, or are subject races and occupational groups such as the Jat cultivators of the Kachhi plain, the Dehwar cultivators of the uplands, the Dardahs and Naqibs of Makrán, and the Gbúdmás who are of servile origin. There are also indigenous Hindus (14,923) living under the protection of the tribes and carrying on the trade of the country.

The religion of the native population is either Musulmán, in general of the Sunni sect, or Hindu. The Musulmán number (1911) 782,648, Hindus, 87,602, Christians, 5,085, Sikhs, 8,390, others, 978. In 1904 a joint Inspector General of Education (now designated Director General of Public Instruction) was appointed for Baluchistán and the Frontier Province, and an Assistant was posted to Quetta. At the close of 1911-12 there were 59 Government and aided schools in the province. 9 of these were for girls and 2 for Europeans. Of the 2,896 pupils 449 were girls. Nearly half the pupils were Hindus, children of men from Sind and the Panjab in trade or in Government service. Besides these there were 130 private schools with 1,224 pupils on the rolls.

The country consists largely of barren mountains, deserts and stony plains, its climate is subject to the extremes of heat and cold, and the rain fall is uncertain and scanty. Here and there the mountains are tree-clad, and cultivation is carried on wherever water is found. The agricultural products are wheat, barley, millet, lucerne, rice, maize, and potatoes, while grapes, apricots, peaches, apples, and melons are grown in abundance. Panjgur in Makian is famous for its dates. Among wild animals are the markhor, urial (wild sheep), Sind ibex, ravine-deer, bear, and panther, and the chief domestic animals are the camel, horses, oxen and cows, and donkeys.

Little is yet known of the mineralogy of the country. Iron and lead are found near Khuzdár, coal is worked at Khost on the Sindh Pishin railway, and in the Sor hills near Quetta. Asbestos and chromite have been found in Zhob, and chromite also in the Quetta Pishin district. There are oil springs at Khatian in the Marri country, but these are not now worked. Sulphate of iron has been found in Kalat and sulphate of aluminium in Chagái. Salt is manufactured in Pishin, in the Zhob district, and in the Kalat State. Local manufactures are unimportant. A few matchlocks and other weapons are made, and various kinds of ironwork for agricultural purposes. The nomad tribes make felts, rough blankets, and rugs. Brahmí women are famous for their needle work. Leather work and pottery are manufactured in Kachhi. There is a brewery as well as a government distillery for the manufacture of country spirit at Quetta, and also mills for grinding flour, pressing chaff, and manufacturing patent coal fuel. A museum at Quetta was opened in 1906. The Indian Staff College was opened at Quetta in 1907.

The land traffic with India passes either by railway or by the routes from Kalát and Las Bela to Sind, and through the Loralai district to the Punjab. The value of the trans frontier imports (exclusive of treasure) from Kalat and Las Bela into India in 1911-12 was Rs 11,80,291, and of the exports from India to Kalát and Las Bela, Rs 10,01,070. The chief exports from the Province are mustard and rape, raw wool and food grains. Imports consist of piece goods, chiefly of Indian manufacture, ghee, fruits, hay and grass and other articles carried mostly by rail.

Over sea trade is carried on through ports on the Makrán coast with India, the exports consisting of dates, mutton and dried fish, and the imports chiefly of piece-goods and food grains. The greater part of this trade is with the Bombay Presidency.

The principal imports into Baluchistán from foreign countries, viz., Afghanistan and Persia, are fruit, ghee, wool, sheep, horses and ponies. Piece-goods in large quantities, indigo, sugar and metals are sent to these countries through Baluchistán.

Good roads connect the more important centres in the directly administered places. There are 810 miles of metalled and partly metalled roads and 1,921 of unmetalled roads and paths. The road via Nushki to Persia was opened during 1896.

The North Western railway, which has the standard gauge of 5ft 6in., enters Baluchistan near Jhatpat and crosses the Kachhi plain to Sibi, where it bifurcates, one branch going by Harnai and the other by Quetta, and re-unites at Boistan, whence the line runs to Chaman. A line of railway to Nushki 82½ miles long, which cost about 7,000,000 rupees, was opened for traffic in 1905. A survey for a short line from Khanai to Hindubagh, a distance of about 45 miles was carried out during 1908-09.

There is a complete and frequent postal service in British and administered territory extending to Kalat and through Nushki to Seistan in Persia.

A network of telegraph wires covers the north eastern portion of the Province and extends to Kalat, and westwards via Nushki to Killa Robat, where it connects with the Indo European system, while a further line laid down in 1907 connects India with Persia and Europe, via Las Bela, Panjgur, and Nok Kundi.

SIKHHIM

An Indian feudatory State in the Himalayas, bounded on the N. by Tibet proper, on the E. by the Tibetan district of Chumbi, and by Bhutan, on the S. by the British district of Darjiling, and on the W. by Nepal. Extreme length from N. to S. 70 miles, extreme breadth, 50 miles, area 2,818 square miles.

In March 1890 a treaty was signed by the Viceroy of India and the Chinese representative, by which the British protectorate over Sikkim is recognised by China. The British Government has direct and exclusive control over the internal administration and foreign relations of Sikkim. The Maharaja, after having declined to comply with the conditions, lived for some time under surveillance in British India, and in 1895 was allowed to return to Sikkim. The members of the council carry on the administration, with the assistance of the British Political officer.

Population in 1911, 87,920. The people are known to their Gurkha neighbours as Lepchas, but call themselves Bongpa. Principal towns are Gangtok, the capital, Rhenok, Pakyong, Lachen, and Lachung. The religion is Lamaism.

The gross revenue now averages 14,500L. The Kama exercises a limited jurisdiction within their districts, important cases being referred to the council

Sikkim produces rice, Indian corn, millet, oranges, apples, and two or three kinds of cloth. Fruit gardens are maintained by the State. There are extensive forests in the State and wide tracts of unoccupied waste. A few copper mines are worked. The principal trade route from Bengal to Tibet passes through Sikkim. Imports into Bengal from, and exports from Bengal to Sikkim :—

	1907-08	1908-09	1909-10	1910-11	1911-12
Imports	£ 56,508	£ 68 8 2	£ 64 078	£ 72,906	£ 88 084
Exports	£ 35,122	£ 31 085	£ 62 830	£ 55 800	£ 73 894

The chief imports into Sikkim were cotton piece goods, oils, provisions, salt, manufactured silk, sugar, tea, tobacco, and rice. The chief exports from Sikkim food grains and vegetables, hides and skins, raw wool, and timber.

Political Officer —C. A. Bell

ANDAMAN AND NICOBAR ISLANDS.

The Andaman Islands lie in the Bay of Bengal, 590 miles from the mouth of the Hughli, 120 miles from Cape Negrais in Burma, the nearest point on the mainland. Five large islands closely grouped together are called the Great Andaman, and to the south is the island of Little Andaman. There are some 200 islets, the two principal groups being the Andaman Archipelago and the Labyrinth Islands. The Great Andaman group is about 219 miles long and, at the widest, 32 miles broad, the total area being 2,508 square miles. The group, densely wooded, contains many valuable trees, the best known of which is the padouk or Andaman redwood (Pterocarpus dalbergioides). The islands are hilly, the highest point, Saddle Peak, being 2,402 feet, and Mount Harriet, 1,198 feet in height. The islands possess a number of harbours and safe anchorages, notably, Port Blair, Port Cornwallis, and Stewart Sound, the last being most favourably situated for forest trade. The aborigines, 1,882 (1,036 males and 846 females) in 1901, live in small groups over the islands; they are savages of a low Negrito type. The total population of the Andaman and Nicobar Islands in 1911 was 35,459 (19,570 males and 6,889 females). The climate is tropical, the rainfall irregular and often excessive. In 1911 the forest sales, the result of convict labour, amounted to 4,16,773 rupees. Tea, the coconut, Manila hemp (Musa textilis), and Bahamas aloes (Agave rumicoides) are successfully cultivated. In 1911 there were 11,374 head of cattle. Wireless telegraphy with Burma was established in 1904. A mail steamer connects Port Blair with Calcutta, Rangoon, and Madras. The islands are used by the Government of India as a penal settlement for life and long-term convicts. The settlement possesses about 36,800 acres of cleared land and 156 square miles of reserved forest. There were in 1912, 11,828 convicts (including 600 women) in the place, of whom some 2,100 were on ticket-of leave in the settlement supporting themselves. Of the women, about half are on ticket-of leave, and married to convicts. The Andaman Islands are under the Government of India, and the Officer in Charge is the Superintendent of Port Blair. The Civil, Military and convict population of Port Blair in 1912 was 15,619.

The Nicobar Islands are situated to the South of the Andamans, 75 miles from Little Andaman. There are nineteen islands, seven uninhabited, gross area, 685 square miles. The islands are usually divided into three groups, Southern, Central and Northern, the chief islands in each being respectively, Great Nicobar, Camorta with Nancowry, and Car Nicobar. There is a fine land locked harbour between the islands of Camorta and Nancowry, known as Nancowry Harbour. The Nicobarese inhabitants, numbering 8,310 (3,836 males and 2,974 females) in 1901, are a variety of the Malay race. This people are known to have eagerly pursued the cocoanut trade for at least 1,600 years. English and Hindustani are understood in most villages. The cocoanut production is estimated at 15 million nuts per annum, of which some 5 million are sold by barter and exported in small native craft and Chinese junks in the form of copra. The climate is tropical and unhealthy for Europeans. A permanent agent, a native of India, is maintained as sole representative of Government in the Nicobar Islands. The islands are attached to the Chief Commissionership of the Andamans and Nicobars.

LACCADIVE ISLANDS

A group of 14 islands (9 inhabited), about 200 miles off the west of Malabar coast of the Madras Presidency. The northern portion is attached to the collectorate of South Kanara, the remainder to the administrative district of Malabar. Population (1901) 10,274 (4,971 male and 5,303 female), all Muhammadans, except 9 Hindus and 2 Buddhists. The language is either Malayalam or Mahl. The staple product is the fibre known as coir.

THE STRAITS SETTLEMENTS

Constitution and Government.

THE Straits Settlements, a Crown colony, which comprises Singapore (with which is incorporated Labuan) Penang (including Province Wellesley and the Dindings), and Malacca, were transferred from the control of the Indian Government to that of the Secretary of State for the Colonies on April 1, 1867. The Cocos Islands were placed under the Straits Settlements in 1886, and Christmas Island in 1889. Christmas Island was annexed to the Settlement of Singapore in 1900, and the Cocos Islands in 1903.

By a proclamation dated October 30, 1906, the boundaries of the Colony were extended so as to include the Colony of Labuan with effect from January 1, 1907. Labuan has been incorporated for administrative purposes in the Settlement of Singapore.

The administration of the colony is in the hands of a Governor, aided by an Executive Council, composed of the general officer commanding the troops, the Colonial Secretary, the Resident Councillor of Penang, the Attorney-General, the Treasurer, and the Colonial Engineer. There is a Legislative Council, presided over by the Governor, of ten official and eight unofficial members, six nominated by the Crown and two by the Chambers of Commerce of Singapore and Penang, but confirmed by the Crown.

Governor—Sir Arthur Henderson Young K.C.M.G.

The governor is also High Commissioner for the Federated Malay States of Perak, Selangor, Negri Sembilan, and Pahang, High Commissioner of Brunel, and British Agent for British North Borneo and Sarawak.

There are municipal bodies in each settlement, the members of which are partly elected by the ratepayers, and partly appointed by the Governor.

Area and Population.

Singapore is an island about twenty-seven miles long by fourteen wide, with an area of 217 square miles, separated from the southern extremity of the Malay Peninsula by a strait three-quarters of a mile in width. A number of small islands adjacent form part of the settlement. The seat of government is the town of Singapore, at the south-eastern point of the island. Penang is an island of 198 square miles, off the west coast of the Malayan Peninsula, and at the northern entrance of the Straits of Malacca. On the opposite shore of the mainland, distant from two to ten miles, is Province Wellesley, a strip of territory forming part of the Settlement of Penang, averaging eight miles in width, and extending forty-five miles along the coast, including ten miles of territory to the south of the Krian, total area 280 square miles. The chief town of Penang is George Town. Off the coast of Perak is the small island of Pangkor, which, together with a strip of the mainland, is British territory, the whole being known as the Dindings. Malacca is on the western coast of the peninsula between Singapore and Penang—about 110 miles from the former and 240 from the latter, it is a strip of territory 42 miles in length, and from eight to 24 miles in breadth.

The population, inclusive of the military, according to the census of 1911, is as follows—

	Singapore <sup>1</sup>		Penang <sup>2</sup>		Malacca		Totals

In 1911 there were in the Settlements 240,206 Malays, 369,843 Chinese, and 83,665 natives of India.

The births and deaths in 1911 were as follows —

—	Singapore	Penang	Dindings	Province Wellesley	Malacca	Labuan	Total
Births	6 580	3,871	193	3,760	3 942	165	16,009
Deaths	11 499	1,863	860	3,379	7 122	183	26,075

In 1911, there were 269,854 Chinese immigrants, 216,321 in 1910, Indian immigrants, 108 471 in 1911, and 83 723 in 1910. The number returned to India in 1911 was 46,464 adults, and 1,639 minors.

The Cocos or Keeling Islands, a group of about twenty small coral islands, lie about 790 miles S W of Sumatra and 1,200 miles S W of Singapore. Population in 1911, 749, of whom 39 were Europeans.

Christmas Island is 200 miles S W of Java and 700 miles E of the Cocos Islands. It is 9 miles long and about 9 miles wide. In December, 1911, the resident population numbered about 1369, all the inhabitants, except the District Officer and his staff, being employed directly or indirectly by the company which works the enormous phosphate deposits which the island contains.

The island of Labuan lies about 6 miles from the north west coast of Borneo and since January 1, 1907, it has been incorporated with Singapore. Area 28½ sq miles, population in 1911, 6,546, mostly Malays from Borneo, with some Chinese traders and about 30 Europeans. Capital, Victoria, which has about 1,500 inhabitants.

Instruction

Instruction, not yet compulsory throughout the colony, is partly supported by the Government in the case of grant in aid schools, and wholly in the case of Government English and Government Vernacular Schools. In Malacca, Penang, Island of Andaman Islands, and Province Wellesley, there is compulsory attendance of boys within a certain radius of a school where free instruction is given in their own language.

The numbers of schools and pupils were as follows in 1911 —

	Schools	Enrolment	Attendance
Government English schools	8	2 618	2,457
Grant in aid English schools	29	9,780	8,990
Government vernacular boys and girls schools	106	11,933	10,361
Grant-in-aid vernacular boys schools	3	62	58
Total	216	24,393	21,766

There is a training college for Malay teachers in Malacca.

Justice and Crime

The law in force is contained in local ordinances and in such English and Indian Acts and Orders in Council as are applicable to the colony. The Indian Penal Code, with slight alterations, has been adopted, and there is a Civil Procedure Code based on the English Judicature Acts. There is a Supreme Court which holds sittings at Singapore and Penang every two months, and quarterly at Malacca, civil sittings monthly at Singapore and Penang, and once a quarter at Malacca.

There are, besides, district courts, police courts and marine magistrates' courts. Convictions before the Superior Courts in 1911 were 619, before the other courts 34,128. Police force 2,544 in 1911, of whom 120 were Europeans. Criminal prisoners admitted to the gaols in 1911, 4,353.

Finance

Public revenue and expenditure for six years (1 dollar = 2s. 4d.) —

Years	Revenue	Expenditure	Years	Revenue	Expenditure
	£	£		£	£
1906	1,128,724	1,027,105	1907	1,028,088	966,037

1908	1,046,385	1,147,723	1911	1,881,076	1,050,761

The estimated revenue for 1912 was 1,128,620*l*. The leading items of revenue for 1911 were—licences, excise and internal revenue not otherwise classified, 1,006,941*l*; posts and telegraphs, 78,364*l*; fees of court or office, payments for specific services, and reimbursements in aid, 64,124*l*; rents of government property, 57,951*l*; government railway, 35,567*l*; and of expenditure—salaries and other charges, 555,046*l*; military expenditure, 221,861*l*; charge on account of the public debt, 94,147*l*; public works, extraordinary, 63,191*l*; public works, recurrent, 44,890*l*; pensions, 42,463*l*.

The total assets of the colony, January 1, 1912, amounted to 1,166,017*l*, and liabilities 308,650*l*. The debt amounts to 7,943,452*l* borrowed for public works.

Defence, Production, and Industry

The harbour and roadstead of Singapore are defended seawards by forts armed with heavy and medium guns.

The garrison in Singapore is composed of the following regular troops—2 companies of Royal Garrison Artillery, 1 company of Asiatic artillery, 1 company of Royal Engineers, 1 battalion of British infantry, 1 battalion of native infantry, and a few details of R.A.M.C. and A.S.C., etc. The Singapore Volunteer Corps consists of 1 company Coast Defence Artillery, 1 Maxim company, 1 company Engineers (all Europeans), 1 company Chinese infantry, 1 company Malay infantry, 1 bearer company.

In Penang there is a Volunteer corps consisting of 2 companies of infantry (one company composed of Europeans and one company of mixed races).

There are Cadet corps and rifle associations in Singapore, Malacca, and Penang.

Twenty per cent of the revenue of the Colony (exclusive of land sales) is contributed to defence.

Commerce.

The Straits ports are free from duties, and their trade, centred at Singapore, is a transit trade. Import duties are levied only on wine (1 dollar and 1½ dollars per gallon), malt liquors (24 cents per gallon), spirits (2 40 dollars per gallon) and petroleum (5 cents per gallon). The chief exports comprise tin, sugar, pepper, nutmegs, mace, sago, tapioca, rice, buffalo hides and horns, rattans, gutta percha, india rubber, gambier, gum, copra, coffee, dyestuffs, tobacco, Para rubber, &c.

Imports and exports for five years (inclusive of treasure and inclusive of trade with the Federated Malay States) Since 1908 the trade of Labuan and Christmas Island is included —

The most important imports and exports in 1911, exclusive of inter-settlement trade, were —

1911	Imports	1911	Exports
Machinery Hardware and Ironware, &c.	833,050	Tin	10,787,716
Rice	5,372,472	Spices	1,600,089

Coal	851,717	Preserved Pineapples	228,802
Petroleum	202,318	Hides	442,304

Most of the imports are re-exported.

There may be said to be three classes of trade—passive, transit, actual; passive trade being goods in vessels merely passing through Singapore for China, &c., transit trade, goods changing bottom at Singapore, or landed and stored awaiting re-shipment. These two classes of trade are not included in the import and export statistics, except as regards Para rubber from the Malay Peninsula which is treated as imports and included in the export figures when sent out. Actual trade may be defined as goods brought for sale into Singapore and purchased there, either for consumption or for sale to other places whither they are said to be exported. The trade is a transit trade in the sense only that what is imported is exported without undergoing any process of manufacture. Exchange fluctuations affect the value of past statistical results, in times of low exchange the dollar value of goods having their origin in gold countries being enhanced, the same probably holding good to a less extent in the case of produce exported, but the dollar value having been fixed early in 1906 at 2s. 4d. this is the rate adopted since.

The Board of Trade Returns give the trade with Great Britain for five years, the imports including produce from Borneo, Sarawak, and other eastern places, transhipped at Singapore, which is thus entered as the place of export—

	1905	1909	1910	1911	1912

The principal imports into the United Kingdom in 1911 were tin, 7,565,630*l.* (in 1909, 8,864,718*l.*), rubber, 8,354,761*l.*, sago and sago meal and flour, 251,245*l.*, Cassava powder and tapioca, 185,577*l.*, gutta percha, 191,290*l.*, spices, 190,670*l.* The principal exports from the United Kingdom were—cottons and cotton yarn, 1,571,757*l.*, iron and iron and steel manufactures, 556,452*l.*, machinery, 245,049*l.*

Shipping and Navigation.

The total number of merchant vessels entered at the ports of the Colony during 1911, exclusive of native craft, was 9,849, with a tonnage of 12,047,991 tons. The number of native craft was 20,026, with a tonnage of 812,352 tons. The number of merchant vessels cleared at the ports of the colony and dependencies was 9,849, with a tonnage of 12,038,913 tons, and the total number of native craft was 20,072, with a tonnage of 825,321 tons.

Communications

There is a railway from Singapore to Woodlands on the Johore Straits, communication between Woodlands and Johore being maintained by steam ferries. The Perak State Railway extends from Port Buntar in Krai to Kuala Prai in Province Wellesley, whence are steam ferries to Penang. There is a railway from Malacca to Tampin in the Negeri Sembilan. All the railways have a gauge of one metre, and connect with the Federated Malay States Railway system, a continuation of which through Johore was opened in 1909. There are electric tramway systems in Singapore and Penang. There are cables connecting Singapore, Malacca and Penang, and land lines from Singapore to Kuala Lumpur and Penang, and from Malacca to Tampin.

In 1911, 3,157,949 letters and articles of all kinds were posted, and 6,951,721 delivered.

In Labuan there is a railway 14 miles long, used chiefly for the transport of coal from the mines to Victoria Harbour. From Labuan there are telegraph lines connecting with Hong Kong, Singapore, Sandakan, and the Continent.

Money, Weights, and Measures

There are eleven banks with establishments in the Colony. The amount of deposits in the Government Savings Bank on December 31, 1911, was 744,533 dollars, equivalent to 88,263*l*.

The dollar, value 2*s* 4*d*., is the standard coin of the Colony, and with the half-dollar and the British sovereign is legal tender for the payment of any amount. Subsidiary silver coins are 20, 10, and 5 cent pieces, copper coins are cents, half-cents, and quarter-cents. On December 31, 1911, Government currency notes to the value of 4,300,252*l* ($38,860,310) were in circulation in the Colony and Federated Malay States.

The measure of length in use in the Settlements is the English yard, with its divisions and multiples, and land is measured by the English acre. The native terms are, however, still in use. Commercial weights are —

1 Kati	= 16 Tahl	= 14 lb avoirdupois
1 Pikul	= 100 Kati	= 133½ lbs     "
1 Koyan	= 40 Pikul	= 5,334     "     "

The kati of 14 lb is known as the Chinese kati. Another weight, known as the Malay kati, and still in partial use in Penang, is equal to the weight of 24 Spanish dollars, or 9,984 grains. This gives 142 628 lbs as the weight of the pikul, and 5,765 143 lbs as the weight of the koyan. The measures of capacity throughout the Colony are the gantang or gallon, and chupak or quart.

THE FEDERATED MALAY STATES

The Federated Malay States of Perak, Selangor, Negri Sembilan, and Pahang, which occupy a large portion of the Malay Peninsula, are under British protection. The officer administering the Government of the Straits Settlements is ex officio H. M. s High Commissioner for these States and the other Malay States in the British sphere.

High Commissioner — Sir A. H. Young, K. O. M. G.

Chief Secretary for the Federated Malay States — Sir E. L. Brockman, K. O. M. G.

Resident of Perak — W. P. Hume (acting).

" Selangor — R. G. Watson, C. M. G.

" Negri Sembilan — A. H. Lemon (acting).

" Pahang — E. J. Brewster.

In Perak, Selangor, and Sungai Ujong, which State was subsequently amalgamated with other States to form the Confederation of Negri Sembilan, Residents were appointed in 1874, with a staff of European officers whose duty was to aid the native rulers by advice, and to exercise executive functions. The supreme authority in each State is vested in the State Council, consisting of the Sultan, the Resident, the Secretary to the Resident (if there is one), and some of the principal Malay chiefs and Chinese merchants. The Residents are under the control of the Chief Secretary and the High Commissioner.

In 1888 the relations of the Straits Settlements with the small Native States on the frontier of Malacca were consolidated. These States were confederated in 1899, under the name of Negri Sembilan (signifying Nine States). In January, 1906, Sungai Ujong (including Jelebu, which had been administered by a Collector and Magistrate under the Resident of Sungai Ujong since 1888) and Negri Sembilan were placed under one Resident, and in July, 1896, a treaty was signed by which the administrations were amalgamated. The new federation, which retains the ancient name of Negri Sembilan, comprises the states of Sungai Ujong, Sri Mananti, Johol, Jelebu, Rembau and Tampin. In 1887, by agreement with the Raja of Pahang, the control of his foreign relations, &c., was surrendered to the British Government. This was followed by a further agreement in 1888 with the Raja (now styled Sultan), under which Pahang was taken under British protection, on the same terms as the Protected Native States on the west coast of the peninsula. Pahang is situated on the east coast, within 200 miles by sea from Singapore. In July, 1896 the treaty between the four Protected Native States, Perak, Selangor, Pahang, and Negri Sembilan and the British Government came into force by which the administrative federation of these States under a Chief Secretary is provided for, and the States agree to furnish a contingent of troops for service in the Colony should His Majesty's Government be at war with any foreign nation.

The areas of these States, in square miles, are approximately—Perak, 7,800 sq. miles, Selangor, 3,156 sq. miles, Negri Sembilan, 2,560 sq. miles, Pahang 14,000 square miles, total, 27,506 sq. miles. Perak, by recent agreement with Siam, has been extended by about 1,000 square miles (included in the figures given above).

Population census 1911. Perak, 494,057 (344,288 males and 149,819 females), Selangor, 294,035 (220,939 males and 73,096 females), Negri Sembilan, 180,199 (87,651 males and 42,548 females), Pahang, 118,708 (72,284 males and 46,474 females), total 1,086,999, (725,062 males, and 311,937 females). The population contained 420,640 Malays, 433,244 Chinese, 172,465 natives of India, 3,284 Europeans and Americans and 2,649 Eurasians. The preponderance of males over females is due to the number of Chinese immigrants. The largest town in the States is Kuala Lumpur (in Selangor) with about 47,000 inhabitants.

The military force of the States consists of a battalion of Sikhs and Pathans known as the Malay States Guides, to which is attached an artillery corps armed with field guns. The strength on Jan. 1, 1912 was 853, commanded by 11 European officers. The police force comprised 2,882 men, including 70 European officers and inspectors, besides 141 detectives. The Malay portion of the force included 1 assistant commissioner, 286 non-commissioned officers, and 955 constables, while the Indian establishment comprised 2 native officers, 182 non-commissioned officers and 1,241 constables.

In Perak, Selangor, Negri Sembilan, and Pahang, in 1911, there were 27 English schools maintained or assisted by Government, and 322 Malay Vernacular schools with 17,007 scholars. The total number of schools was 369, with 22,568 enrolled pupils and an average attendance of 18,384.

The laws in force in each State of the Federation are contained in enactments passed by the State Councils up to December, 1909, and from that date, where more than one State is affected, by the Federal Council. This Council consists of the High Commissioner as President, the Chief Secretary, the Sultans of Perak, Selangor, and Pahang, the Yam Tuan of Negri Sembilan, the four British Residents and four unofficial members, and in addition to legislation deals with the annual estimates of revenue and expenditure. All legislative enactments are submitted to the High Commissioner and the Secretary of State for the Colonies. The courts in the States are—(1) The Supreme Court, comprising the Court of a Judicial Commissioner and the Court of Appeal. (2) The Court of a Magistrate of the first class. (3) The Court of a Magistrate of the second class. (4) The Court of a Kadhi and the Court of Assistant Kadhi. (5) The Court of a Panghulu. The Court of Appeal consists of two or more Judicial Commissioners, the chief Judicial Commissioner being President. There is a final appeal in civil matters to the Privy Council.

The number of cases of murder, homicide, robbery &c., reported in 1909 was 943, with 808 discoveries, in 1910, 799 with 208 discoveries, in 1911, 898, with 280 discoveries. The number of prisoners in gaol on December 31, 1911, was 1,259.

Efficient Government hospitals are established in all districts with separate hospitals for Europeans. A very complete Institute of Medical Research has been established at Kuala Lumpur.

The revenue and expenditure of the States were as follows for 1910 and 1911

	Revenue 1910	Expenditure 1910	Revenue 1911	Expenditure 1911
	£	£	£	£
Perak	1,080,143	1,407,066	2,228,509	1,525,287
Selangor	1,077,865	918,710	1,525,227	1,017,000
Negeri Sembilan	241,100	227,689	293,116	205,838
Pahang	118,743	204,765	182,341	182,194

Leading items of revenue in 1911 were—customs, 1,819,870<sup>1</sup>; land revenue (excluding land sales), 206,653<sup>1</sup>; railway receipts, 821,308<sup>1</sup>; licences, 1,117,017<sup>1</sup>; forests, 70,485<sup>1</sup>; and of expenditure—railways, 880,893<sup>1</sup>; public works, 684,724<sup>1</sup>. Public debt nil. Estimated revenue in 1912 was 4,678,606<sup>1</sup>. Estimates 1913—revenue 4,280,000<sup>1</sup>; expenditure, 5,720,000<sup>1</sup>.

The staple cultivations of the Federated Malay States may be said to be coconuts, rice, rubber, sugar, tapioca, coffee, pepper, gambier, and nipah palms. The Krian irrigation works in Perak irrigate 70,000 acres of rice (padi) land and supply drinking water to the district. The canal is 21 miles long with 16½ miles of branches and 188½ miles of distributory channels. The total area planted with rubber at the end of 1911 was 352,974 acres, and with coconuts, 142,774 acres. The forests produce excellent timber, besides gutta percha, oils, resins, and caoutchouc. In 1911 the total quantity of timber and firewood taken from the forests, on which royalty was paid, was 412,568 tons of firewood free of royalty, for use of mining, 295,048 tons. The gross revenue of the Forest Department for 1911 amounted to 70,485<sup>1</sup>. The duty on the export of tin forms the largest item of the revenue of the States on the West Coast. In 1911 the tin export amounted to 45,363 tons, to the value of 8,182,872<sup>1</sup> sterling. In 1911, 9,228 ounces of gold were produced in the Federated Malay States. Besides gold and tin, many minerals are found, including lead, iron, copper, bismuth, mercury, arsenic, manganese, plumbago, silver, zinc, and coal.

The trade (excluding bullion and specie) was as follows in 1911 —

	Perak	Selangor	Negeri Sembilan	Pahang	Total
	£	£	£	£	£
Imports	8,424,645	8,523,651	549,880	263,783	7,768,368

Chief exports, 1911, cultivated rubber, 4,858,831<sup>2</sup>, copra, 151,062<sup>1</sup>, sugar, 37,456<sup>1</sup>, rice, 67,847<sup>1</sup>, and tin and tin ore, 8,132,372<sup>1</sup>. Bullion and specie imported, 1911, 392,010<sup>1</sup>, exported, 86,449<sup>1</sup>. Imports (excluding bullion and specie), 1911, from U.K., 788,036<sup>1</sup>, other British possessions,<sup>1</sup> 184,338<sup>1</sup>, foreign countries, 292,434<sup>1</sup>. Exports to U.K., 2,870,934<sup>1</sup> (largely rubber); other British possessions, 282,582<sup>1</sup>, foreign countries, 311,842<sup>1</sup>.

Shipping, 1911 (excluding native craft) entered, 4,838 vessels, 1,924,763 tons, cleared, 4,831 vessels, 1,923,566 tons. Native craft, entered, 6,590 vessels, 125,251 tons, cleared 6,896 vessels, 126,040 tons.

There were in the 4 States in 1911, 1,998 miles of metalled cart roads and 1,540 miles of bridle roads and paths. Length of railways open in 1911 559 miles 2 chains, including the line (21 miles) to Malacca. Branch lines connect the principal mining centres with the sea and river ports. The Johore State Railway (Gemas-Johore Bahru) 120 miles and 72 chains, which connects the Federated Malay States trunk line with the Singapore Government Railway, was opened on July 1, 1909, thereby making through communication from Penang to Singapore. The whole cost of railway construction has been met from revenue. All the lines have a gauge of 1 metre. There are 63 post offices and 38 other places for postal business. In 1911, 12,715,876 postal packets (excluding parcels and registered letters) were received and delivered. In 1911 there were 1,711 miles of telegraph and telephone line (4,162 miles of wire) under the Post Office department. The post and telegraph receipts (including stamp sales) amounted to 82,213<sup>1</sup>, and expenditure to 83,968<sup>1</sup>. The current money consists of Straits Settlements dollars with subsidiary silver and copper coins. In February, 1906, the value of the dollar was fixed at 2s 4d or 60 dollars = 71. Currency notes and bank notes also circulate, and the sovereign is legal tender for any amount at the above rate. Weights and measures (as well as currency) are as in the Straits Settlements.

OTHER BRITISH PROTECTED MALAY STATES

By the treaty between Great Britain and Siam signed at Bangkok on March 10, 1909, Siam transferred to Great Britain the rights of suzerainty and such rights of protection, administration and control, as she had possessed over the tract of territory lying to the north of the Federated Malay States and embracing the whole of Trengganu, all but the north east corner of Kelantan, the greater part of Kedah, together with Palit or Perlis, parts of Rahman and Legoh and adjacent islands. Great Britain agreed to an extension of the jurisdiction of the Siamese International Courts till the new Siamese codes come into force, when the system shall cease. Great Britain undertook to facilitate railway construction so that Siamese Railways may be connected with lines in the Federated Malay States. A mixed Siamese and British Commission is delimiting the new frontier. These new territories comprise an area of about 15,600 square miles, and contain a population of about 720,000.

Kelantan, on the eastern side of the Malay Peninsula, has an area estimated at 3,500 square miles and a population of 282,769 including 15,000 Siamese and 10,000 Chinese. Kota Bharu, the capital, has a population of about 16,000. The State has a headquarter Rajah. Most villages have its own head man who is responsible to a circle head man, the circles being in turn grouped into districts, each in charge of a district officer. The prevailing religion is Islam. Mohammedanism, the State being divided into 250 Mukim or parishes. A Government elementary school exists at Kota Bharu with an average daily attendance in 1911 of 117 pupils; also a Government-aided school and a Chinese school where English is taught. Five new schools were opened during 1911. The Court of the Rajah, and a central Court are at Kota Bharu and other Courts in different parts of the State. There is a police force of 377 men (1911), commanded by a Malay Raja assisted by a British officer. Offences discovered during 1911, 3,786, convictions, 2,381 admitted to prisons during year 487. The revenues of the State in 1911 amounted to 497,574 dollars, and the expenditure to 574,350 dollars. Public debt, 148,986 dollars.

The chief industry is agriculture. About 137,000 acres are under cultivation. Chief products rice, coconuts (and copra), betel nuts, rubber, resin and gharu, rattan, bamboo, pepper, tapioca, sugar-cane and maize. A large part of the State is covered with jungle comprising numerous kinds of serviceable timber. The State supports cattle (estimated at 120,000 head), buffaloes (25,000), sheep, goats, and poultry. The mineral resources comprise gold, galena, pyrites and tin. Extensive planting and mining concessions are held by British companies. The principal manufacturing industries are silk weaving, boat-building and brick-making. In 1911 total exports, 1,565,705 dollars, total imports 2,432,871 dollars. Chief exports 1911. Cattle, sheep and goats, 300,516 dollars, betel nuts 175,581 dollars, fish, 128,162 dollars, gold, 117,390 dollars, copra, 553,967 dollars. Para rubber 106,513 dollars. Chief imports, 1911. Opium, 87,173 dollars, silk, 65,115 dollars, gambler 30,195 dollars, kerosene 51,160 dollars, cotton goods, 278,574 dollars, silk goods, 147,216 dollars, silver specie 410,537 dollars, Machinery 55,746 dollars.

Tonnage of steamships inwards and outwards, 1911 122,467 tons.

Over 6,000 craft are registered. There is regular steamship communication with Bangkok and Singapore. Roads extend only a few miles from the capital communication inland is by the rivers. Kota Bharu is in direct telegraphic communication with Bangkok and Penang and possesses a telephone service. There are (1911) 4 post offices in the state, 115,958 letters, postcards, parcels, &c. and 5,068 telegrams were received and despatched in the year. The unit of currency is the Straits Settlements dollar.

British Adviser—J. S. Mason

Trengganu, with an area of about 6,000 square miles has a population as recorded at the census 1911 of 164,078. Capital Kuala Trengganu, population, 14,000. There are no main roads, railways, or telegraphs. Communication with the interior is by rivers; and good native paths. The prevailing religion is Mohammedanism. The industries are similar to those of Kelantan and the country is of the same general character. Chief exports, 1911. Fish, 577,956 dollars, tin ore, 457,836 dollars, padi 265,406 dollars, copra, 225,798 dollars, black pepper 169,851 dollars. Chief imports, rice 380,194 dollars, cotton piece goods 76,164 dollars and opium 84,120 dollars.

British Agent—W. D. Scott.

Kedah, on the western side of the Malay Peninsula, and north of Province Wellesley and Perak, has an area of 3,800 square miles. The population (census 1911) is 245,286 of whom 194,411 were Malays, 33,740 Chinese, 8,130 Siamese and 5,074 Indians. The capital is Alor Star on the Kedah River about six miles from Penang by sea. The Sultan Abdul Hamid Halim Shah, who succeeded in 1887, is assisted in administering the country by a State Council of five members, of whom the Adviser appointed by the British Government, is one. There are 17 Europeans in the Government service. The police force is distributed in 39 stations, has a strength of 452 men (principally Malays) including 50 Sikhs. There are 29 Government Vernacular schools (2,481 pupils), 7 telegraph offices, and 11 post offices. An excellent telephone system extends throughout the State. A metalled road connects Alor Star with Perlis, a road, partly metalled only, connects it with Singora (Siem), and a metalled road is being made to connect it with Province Wellesley. Another metalled road is being made connecting Baling with Upper Perak in one direction and with Province Wellesley in the opposite direction. Earth and metalled roads are also being made in South Kedah. Arrangements have been made for the extension of the Federated Malay States railway system from Province Wellesley to Alor Star, with possibly a later extension to Perlis. The construction of the line, which should be completed within three years, has already begun. The revenue of the State for the Mohammedan year 1929 (since 1911) was 1,888,152 dollars, and the expenditure, 1,704,944 dollars. The revenue is mainly derived from opium (42%), land rents (21%), and customs (15%). The principal produce of North Kedah is rice and over 500,000 bushels of rice and 2,800,000 bushels of padi were exported in 1911 to Penang for consumption in the Malay Peninsula. There are large rubber, coconut and tin mines in South Kedah. From the mines in North Kedah 756 tons of tin and 16 tons of wolfram were exported in 1911. About four or five steamers ply daily between Penang and the various parts of Kedah.

British Adviser—W. George Macdonald

Perlis, on the western side of the Peninsula and north of Kedah has an area of about 800 square miles and a population (1911 census) of 53,744. Malays numbered 52,097 of the population, Chinese 1,567, and Siamese 1,358. Police force, 36 a.s.o's and men. The principal agricultural produce is rice. There are valuable tin and muscovado deposits. The Raja, Raja Alwi, is assisted by a State Council and an adviser appointed by the British Government. Revenue year 1,225 (1911), 181,301 dollars; expenditure, 189,242 dollars.

British Adviser—W. Macdonald Fraser.

The State of Johore (area 9,000 square miles, population 180,412), at the southern extremity of the Malay Peninsula is, in the foreign relations, controlled by Great Britain, in virtue of a treaty in 1884. The Sultan is H.H. Ibrahim, M.C.M.G. In 1918, at the request of the Sultan a British officer was appointed adviser to the Johore Government. The revenue is chiefly from import and export duties. Imports are opium, spirits, tobacco, rice, hardware, Manchester goods, &c. Exports are rubber, gambier, pepper, sugar, tea, coffee, galls-percha, &c. Chief town Johor Bahru, 15 miles N. of Singapore.

British Adviser—D G Campbell C.M.G.

WEIHAIWEI

Weihaiwei, in the Chinese province of Shantung, with the adjacent waters was by a Convention with the Chinese Government, dated July 1, 1898, leased to Great Britain. The territory leased comprised, besides the port and bay, the island of Lin Kung, all the islands in the bay, and a belt of land 10 English miles wide along the entire coast-line of the bay. The boundary has been demarcated and regulations settled for the management of frontier affairs. The area of about 385 square miles contains (1911 census) 147,177 inhabitants, including 3,000 on the island of Lin Kung. The native city of Weihaiwei is a walled town with about 2,000 inhabitants. Within the limits of the territory Great Britain has sole jurisdiction, except that within the walled city Chinese officials may exercise such jurisdiction as is not inconsistent with the defence of the territory. In addition, within a zone extending east from the meridian 121° 40' east of Greenwich, and comprising an area of 1,500 square miles, Great Britain has the right to erect fortifications or take any measures necessary for the defence of the territory, and to acquire sites necessary for water supply, communications and hospitals. There Chinese administration is not to be interfered with, but only Chinese or British troops shall be allowed. Chinese war vessels retain the right to use the waters, and within the territory such lands as may be required by Great Britain for public purposes shall be bought at a fair price.

Under an Order in Council of July 24, 1901, the territory is administered by a Commissioner. Legislation is by Ordinances. The seat of government is at Port Edward on the mainland. There is a High Court for both civil and criminal cases, subject to appeal to the Supreme Court at Hong Kong, and provision is made for courts of district magistrates. There are 3 European inspectors of police: one on the Island of Lau King and two on the mainland. There are 3 Chinese sergeants and 52 constables (1911). In the numerous villages the headmen system is maintained. At the Government Free School there were in 1911 about 70 pupils, and about half a dozen Mission schools have 180 pupils. There is also a private school in which the sons of Europeans are educated. There are many Chinese schools within the territory. About 6 per cent. of the inhabitants can read and write.

Revenue is derived from (1) a land tax and a road tax, (2) junk registration, shipping dues, wine monopoly (3) fines and miscellaneous sources. For 1911-12 the actual revenue was $74,671 (8,845L),<sup>1</sup> and the actual expenditure was $153,690 (14,088L). The grant in aid for 1910-11 amounted to 5,000L, for 1911-12 to 6,000L for 1912-13, 6,000L.

The station has not been fortified, but is used as a flying naval base and as a dépôt, exercising ground, and sanatorium for the China squadron, which assembles at Weihaiwei during the summer. No troops are stationed in its territory, the Chinese regiment having been disbanded.

The leased territory, consisting of rocky hill ranges with fertile valleys, is most picturesque, it is well populated, and the inhabitants are in general well-to-do. Cereals, vegetables and fruits (apples, grapes and apricots) are grown, and oak fed silk is produced. Seedlings of fir trees, acacias, willows, and plane trees have done well. Those of the inhabitants who are not farmers are mostly fishermen. Some rope and line making, boat building, and stone-cutting are carried on. The territory contains gold, and a mining company worked for more than three years, but operations are not now carried on. The trade is carried on by junks and steamers. In 1911, 615 steamers of 519,399 tons entered the port exclusive of Admiralty colliers and government transports. 422 were British, and 193 small Japanese and Chinese coasting boats. The imports are kerosene, flour, cottons, sugar, timber, beverages, provisions, coal. The chief exports are ground nuts and ground nut seeds (in 1911, 181,132 cwts. exported) and salt fish. Weihaiwei is a duty free port.

Good roads have been made round the coasts and into the interior of the Territory. The value of land is rising, which is a sign of the increasing prosperity of the place. There is a regular weekly mail service to and from Shanghai. Many Europeans visit the place in summer on account of the excellence of the climate, which is unsurpassed in the Far East.

AFRICA.

ASCENSION ISLAND

Ascension is a small island of volcanic origin, of 34 square miles, in the South Atlantic, 700 miles N W of St Helena. It is entirely under the control and jurisdiction of the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty and is fortified. There is an excellent sanatorium up Green Mountain (2,979 ft.) for crews of ships visiting the island, whose health is impaired from service on the coast. There are 10 acres under cultivation, producing vegetables and fruit for the garrison. The population was estimated (1 September, 1912) at about 186, consisting of officers, their wives and families, seamen and marines, kroonmen, members of the staff of the Eastern Telegraph Co., and servants. Garrison station, Georgetown, on north west coast.

The island is the resort of the sea turtle, which come in thousands to lay their eggs in the sand annually between January and May. In 1912, 116 were taken from 500 to 800 lbs. in weight, they are stored in ponds, and eventually killed and distributed among the people, a few being sent to the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty. Rabbits, wild geese, and partridges are more or less numerous on the island, which is, besides, the breeding ground of the sooty tern or "widowwake," these birds coming in vast numbers to lay their eggs about every eighth month. The island is included in the Postal Union, and is connected by the Eastern Telegraph Company with St. Helena, St. Vincent, Sierra Leone, and Buenos Aires, with England and with the Cape of Good Hope by telegraph.

Commandant—Captain G. Carpenter, R.M.L.I.

BRITISH EAST AFRICA.

British East Africa consists of a large area on the mainland (including the East Africa Protectorate and the Uganda Protectorate), under the immediate control of the Colonial Office, together with the Islands of Zanzibar and Pemba, still governed through their Arab Sultan by the Foreign Office. For details as to international agreements, &c., with regard to the British sphere in East Africa, see the Statesman's Year Book for 1907, pp. 216 and 217.

The East Africa Protectorate

Government.—The East Africa Protectorate extends from the Umbo to the Juba River, and inland as far as the borders of Uganda. It includes certain mainland dominions of the Sultan of Zanzibar, viz.—a strip extending 10 miles inland along the coast from the German frontier to Kipini, the islands of the Lamu Archipelago, and an area of 10 miles round the fort of Kismayu, these territories having been leased to Great Britain for an annual rent of 17,000*l.* On April 1, 1906, it was transferred from the authority of the Foreign Office to that of the Colonial Office. By an Order in Council dated November 2, 1904, the Protectorate was placed under the control of a Governor and Commander-in-Chief. An Order in Council of October 22, 1906, constituted an Executive and a Legislative Council, the former consisting of 4 members, in addition to the Governor, the latter of 8 official and 4 unofficial members. In 1908 foreign consular jurisdiction in the Zanzibar strip of coast was transferred to the British Court, and the whole Protectorate is now virtually a British Crown Colony. It consists of 7 provinces and a tract of territory partially organised lying to the north. The provinces are each under a provincial commissioner, and are divided into districts and sub-districts, as follows: Seyidie (capital Mombasa), comprising the districts of Vanga, Mombasa, Malindi and Mwatate, and the sub-districts of Rabai and Taveta; Ukamba (capital Nairobi), including the districts of Kitui, Kiambu, and Machakos; Tanaaland (capital Lamu), with districts of Lamu and Tana River; Jubaland (capital Kiismayu), consisting of the districts of Kiismayu and Gorba; Kenya (capital Fort Hall) with districts of Fort Hall, Nyeri, Embu, and Meru; Naivasha (capital Naivasha), including the districts of Naivasha, Eldama Ravine, Rumuruti, Baringo, Turkhana, Uasin Gishu, and Southern Masai Reserve; the Nyanza Province (capital Kisumu), including the districts of Kisumu, Lambwa, Nandi, and North and South Kavirondo and the Northern Frontier District with headquarters at Marsabit and posts at Kulal and Movale.

Area and Population.—The Protectorate has an area of about 250,000 square miles, population estimated at 4,085,000, including 25,000 Asiatics and 2,000 Europeans and Eurasians. On the coast the Arabs and Swahilis predominate, further inland are races speaking Bantu languages, and non-Bantu tribes such as the Massi, the Somalis, and the Gallas. Mombasa is the largest town, population about 30,000, of whom 180 are Europeans. The harbour is situated on the eastern side of an island of the same name, and is the terminus of the Uganda Railway. Kilindini harbour on the south western side of the island is the finest land locked and sheltered harbour on the east coast of Africa and is accessible to vessels of deep draught. There is good warehouse accommodation and a pier connected with the Uganda Railway. The two principal rivers in the North are the Tana and Juba which flow into the Indian Ocean. They are both navigable for about 400 miles by shallow draught steamers. Nairobi, the capital of the Protectorate and the headquarters of the Protectorate administration, has 14,000 inhabitants, of whom about 800 are European and 3,000 Indian. There are also 400 European farmers and 50,000 natives in the immediate neighbourhood of Nairobi.

Religion, Instruction, Justice.—The prevailing religious beliefs are Pagan, but on the coast Mohammedanism has made great progress. There are many Christian mission societies, British, French, German, Italian, Swedish, and American, two being Roman Catholic. There are Government schools at Nairobi, Mombasa, Nakuru, and Uasin Gishu. Legislation is by Ordinances made by the Governor with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council. The High Court is at Mombasa and sessions are held at Nairobi, Naivasha, Kisumu, and other places. District Courts presided over by magistrates are held in each district. In native cases local ideas and customs are considered. The legal status of slavery has been abolished throughout East Africa. In the rest of the Protectorate slavery is non-existent.

Defence.—The military force consists of 20 officers and 1,000 men forming the 8th battalion of the King's African Rifles, also two companies of the 2nd battalion. There are 1,500 police under 25 European officers and non-commissioned officers.

Finance.—Revenue, 1911-12, 729,078*l.*, expenditure, 772,354*l.*, which included 27,720*l.* for Special Expenditure for Mogadi, grant-in-aid, 190,000*l.*, which included 15,000*l.* special grant for Mogadi. Of the revenue for 1911-12, customs inland accounted for 161,088*l.*, licences and internal revenue 173,617*l.*, Government railways, 346 359*l.*, rents, 23,209*l.*, posts and telegraphs, 26,594*l.* fees of court and other fees, 21,142*l.*

Agriculture and Mining—The agricultural products of the lowlands are essentially tropical, and include rice, maize, various native grains, cassava, coconuts, etc. The cultivation of sisal hemp and Ceara rubber is now being undertaken on an extended scale. Cotton growing is receiving attention on the banks of the Juba River. Other plants of economic value are being experimented with. In the highlands almost all crops of the temperate zone are grown, viz. oats barley, wheat, potatoes, all European vegetables, beans, peas, linseed, etc. There is now a large acreage under wheat. Maize culture is rapidly extending, and a large export in this commodity is likely to be developed. Many coffee plantations are established. The growing of black wattle is becoming one of the principal industries of the country and suitable land commands a high price in the market. Ostrich farming has practically become an established industry. Sheep farming is proving very profitable, and many pure bred merinos have been imported. Dairying is also proving a profitable branch of farming.

The forest area of the Protectorate extends over 3 200 square miles, of which the tropical forest covers about 183 square miles, the remainder being upland or highland containing valuable timber trees. Near the coast are mangroves, and various rubber trees, besides ebony, copal, and other trees. The Taveta forest, on the German boundary, is supposed to contain useful timber. The Scrub forest which covers a large lowland area is capable of being turned to useful purposes. The Tana and Juba rivers are bordered by trees of tropical growth, and the Witu forest timber trees and furniture woods. But the valuable forests are within the highland area to the west and north of Nairobi. The Kenia forests of about 625 square miles contain cedar, yellow woods, camphor jarrah, cork iron wood, pillar wood, olive, and many other useful species. The Aberdare forests (about 750 square miles) contain abundance of similar trees. The Mau forest (about 1,200 square miles) is incompletely surveyed, but is known to contain many excellent timber trees. The forest on Mount Elgon (about 50 square miles) is little known.

The mineral resources are not yet fully explored but do not appear to be very extensive. There are large deposits of natron in the Rift Valley, particularly at Lake Magadi, near the border of German East Africa. Diatomite also occurs in large quantities in the same region. Gold has been discovered in S. Kavirondo but not in sufficient quantities to warrant mining. Graphite and marble are found in the metamorphic rocks in various localities, and limestone is worked at various places for building purposes. Manganese is found in the sandstones near the coast, opals have been found in some of the streams on the west side of the Rift Valley but up to now have not been considered of commercial importance.

In five years land was disposed of as follows:—

1911-12	1,330,487	1,016,893	122,940	2,886,381

Of imports 649,274*l* came from the United Kingdom, 278,090*l* from British Possessions, 132,618*l* from the United States of America, 123,768*l* from Germany, and 85,035*l* from Holland. Of exports, 408,944*l* went to the United Kingdom, 104,966*l* to British Possessions, 148,304*l* to Germany, and 146,132*l* to France.

The vessels of the British India Steam Navigation Company under a four weekly mail contract, tranship passengers and mails to the P and O at Aden via Marseilles and the Suez Canal, the Clan Ellerman and Harrison joint service steamers have a four weekly service of cargo steamers from Liverpool, the Società Anonima Nazionale have a four weekly service between Genoa and Mombasa calling at the ports of Italian Somaliland. The vessels of the British India Steam Navigation Company and of the Messageries Maritimes, call monthly at Mombasa, of the German East Africa line every three weeks, and the Union Castle line have a four weekly service from Southampton via the Suez Canal. Vessels from Bombay call once a fortnight. Communication between the ports of the Protectorate is kept up by small steamers, owned by Messrs Cowasjee Dinshaw Bros. at Aden.

The Mombasa Victoria (Uganda) railway is a State railway of the Protectorate, length 588 miles, gauge 39.33 inches. The construction cost to March 31, 1912, was 5,734,335*l*. There is a telegraph along the line, and four steamers on the Lake in connection with the railway. In 1911-12, 116,787 tons of goods, exclusive of railway material, and 442,479 passengers were carried, revenue, 860,224*l*, expenditure, 228,852*l*.

The Post Office of the Protectorate (exclusive of the Uganda Post Office, which is worked by the Protectorate Post Office) received and despatched 2,710,593 letters, packets, &c., and 116,781 telegrams during the year 1911-12. The telegraph system has 2,284 miles of wire (exclusive of Uganda). The lines connect Mombasa with Lamu (200 miles), with Kisumu (584), and Kilindini (2 miles) (double line), Kisumu with Entebbe (226) (76 miles double line in East Africa and rest in Uganda), Landiani with Eldama Ravine (22), Lumbwa with Kericho (18½), Nairobi with Fort Hall and Nyeri (81); Kibigori with Nandi and Eldoret (48), and Ruero with Juja (11½), Mazoe and Rabai (2 miles). A cable connects Mombasa with Zanzibar.

The Uganda Protectorate.

The territories now comprised within this Protectorate came under British influence in 1890, and a portion of them was for a time administered by the Imperial British East African Company. In 1894 a British Protectorate was declared over the kingdom of Uganda and some of the adjoining territories. The present limits are as follows — On the north, the 6th degree of north lat., on the east, a line drawn down the middle of Lake Rudolf, and along the north boundary of the East Africa Protectorate and the N E shores of Lake Victoria, on the south, by the German frontier and by the 1st degree of south lat., and on the west, by the eastern boundary of the Belgian Congo. Within these boundaries lie part of the Victoria Nyanza, part of Lake Albert Edward, nearly all Lake Albert, the whole of Lake Kioga, half of Lake Rudolf, and the course of the Nile from its exit from Lake Victoria to Lado or Gondokoro, where the Egyptian Sudan commences. Total area 117,681 square miles. For administrative purposes it is divided into 5 provinces: (1) the Eastern Province, comprising the districts of Karamoja, Busoga, Bukedi, Lobar Toso and Lango, (2) the Rudolf Province, comprising the districts of Turkwel, Turkana, and Dabossa (this province is at present unadministered), (3) the Northern Province, comprising the districts of Nimule, Bunyoro, Gulu, Chua, and Gondokoro, (4) the Western Province, comprising the districts Toro and Ankole, and (5) the Kingdom of Buganda with islands. Owing to sleeping sickness the islands of Lake Victoria have been entirely depopulated, and the inhabitants, numbering about 20,000 settled on the mainland in 15 free districts. Most of the districts and the whole of the Kingdom of Buganda are more or less directly under British administration, but the native kings or chiefs, whose rights are in most cases regulated by treaties, are encouraged to conduct the government of their own subjects. The province of Buganda is recognised as a native kingdom under a "Kabaka," with the title of "His Highness." The present Kabaka, H H Daudi Chua, grandson of the celebrated Mutesa, is a minor, and under a regency of three native chiefs. He is assisted in the government by a Lukiko, or native assembly. In the Kingdom of Buganda, and in Ankole and Toro, purely native matters are dealt with by the Lukiko, but in serious cases there is an appeal to higher courts, an abridgment of the Indian Penal Code is being prepared. For Europeans and non natives justice is administered by his Majesty's courts. The principal British representative is the Governor, who makes Ordinances for the administration of justice, the raising of revenue, and other purposes. There are local and special courts of justice, and a High Court with civil and criminal jurisdiction. The appeal court consists of the judges of the courts for Zanzibar, Uganda, and the East Africa Protectorate. In 1911, there were 331 criminal cases tried, 87 of which were cases of serious crime. There is a battalion of the King's African Rifles, 350 rank and file, and 1,024 armed constabulary, under a British Commissioner of Police and British officers. There is also a volunteer reserve of 101 efficient Europeans.

The total population of Uganda (year ending March 31, 1911) is given as 2,448,235, distributed as follows: Natives, 2,840,400, Asiatics, 2,216; Europeans, 440 (including 155 females). Of the Europeans, the majority (343 males and 122 females) are British, the French come second in order. Of the white population 208 are Government servants. Among the natives 650,000 (rapidly diminishing in number) belong to the intelligent, civilised Baganda, a race converted to Christianity by British and French missionaries, the Church Missionary Society having 1,124 church buildings, 46,000 baptized Christians, and about 200,000 adherents. Two Catholic missionary societies have 36 churches, about 114,400 baptized Christians and 290,000 adherents, besides 806 places of worship with native teachers. There are Protestant schools with about 57,000 children, and Catholic with about 26,000 (1911-12). The various Missionary Societies receive grants amounting to 1,250*l.* towards scholarships, &c., for students and teachers. About 1,700,000 natives speak Bantu languages, there are a few Congo pygmies living near the Semliki river, the rest of the natives belong to the Massai, Nilotic, and Sudanese groups. The soil is very fertile except in the Rudolf region. Commercial products are cotton, the output of which is rapidly increasing, sugar, chillies, ghee, ground nuts, coffee, ivory, hides and skins, and rubber while arrowroot and cocoa are being experimentally cultivated. Iron is found abundantly in Bunyoro, and Buganda, copper in the Central province gold in unworkable quantities in a few places. Alum, graphite, coalshale, mica are found. Concessions have been granted for prospecting and for collecting rubber in specified districts. In 1910-11, imports 655,358*l.*, exports, 340,326*l.*, in 1911-12, imports, 624,537*l.*, exports, 392,591*l.* (inclusive of specie). The imports are chiefly provisions, yarns and textiles (204,500*l.* in 1911-12), ironwork and hardware, and apparel. The exports are chiefly goat skins, hides, rubber, chillies, ivory, and about 230,850*l.* worth of cotton (5,247 tons). The trade is chiefly with Great Britain, the United States, Germany, Belgian Congo, and India. The revenue and expenditure for 2 years (ending March 31) were 1910-11, revenue, 191,094*l.*, expenditure, 252,374*l.*, 1911-12, revenue, 203,492*l.*, expenditure, 288,689*l.* Grant-in-aid, 1910-11, 98,000*l.*, 1911-12, 65,000*l.* (not included in the preceding revenue figures).

The Fleet of the Marine Department consists of three steamers and a number of subsidiary craft. One steamer on Lake Victoria (the rest of the traffic there being under the Uganda Railway Administration), another, with a steam launch, lighters and dug out canoes constitutes the Lake Kioga service, while the third sails between Butiaba on Lake Albert and Nimule.

The British headquarters are at Entebbe (population, 9,569), the administrative capital of Uganda, the native capital of Uganda is at Mengo Kampala (population, 32,441). Nile steamers from Khartum ply to Gondokoro, on the northern boundary of the Protectorate. The railway steamers visit Entebbe, Port Bell, and Jinja weekly, and make fortnightly voyages round the Lake. Vessels also ply on Lake Albert and the Nile to Nimule. A short railway, of the same gauge as the Uganda Railway, of 52 miles in length, has been constructed from Jinja to Namasagali, a point on the Nile below the rapids. It was formally opened for business on January 1, 1912. This railway is known as the Busoga Railway and was built to deal with the cotton output in the regions round Lake Kioga.

In June, 1912, East Africa received a loan of 500,000*l.* from the Imperial Government. Uganda's share amounts to 125,000*l.* and will be devoted to a railway connecting Kampala with Port Bell, its port on Lake Victoria (a distance of some 7½ miles), and to the improvement of communication in the Eastern Province, with a view to bettering the conditions of cotton transport.

A mail service by relays of runners radiates from Entebbe, and is being extended. Money and postal orders and parcel post exchange systems are working in several districts. The Sudan Egyptian telegraph and telephone system is established to Gondokoro. The telegraph line is extended to Wadelai and to Nimule, 110 miles from Gondokoro. The length of telegraph line in the Protectorate is 691 miles, with 14 telegraph offices and 7 telephone stations.

The currency is based on the Indian rupee, and consists of silver rupees with nickel cent. and half cent. pieces. There are also in circulation nickel 10-cent pieces, and silver 50 and 25-cent pieces. British sovereigns and E. Africa Government currency notes of 500, 100, 50, 20, 10, and 5 rupee circulate. New cental coins were issued during 1907-08. The 4 and 2 anna silver, and quarter anna copper coins have been called in. The Savings Bank had 8,597 deposits and 396 depositors on March 31, 1912. The National Bank of India (Limited) has branches at Entebbe, Kampala, Jinja, and the Standard Bank of South Africa has opened a branch at Kampala.

Zanzibar Protectorate

Sultan and Government.—The Sultan, or, more correctly, the Seyyid, Seyyid Khalifa bin Harub (born 1879) succeeded on the abdication of his brother-in-law, Ali bin Hamoud bin Mahomed, December 2, 1911. Six of his predecessors in the Sultanate were—Burghash, Khalifa bin Said, Ali bin Said (1890) Hamed bin Thwain (1898), Hamoud bin Mahomed (1896), and Ali bin Hamoud bin Mahomed (1911).

Zanzibar dominions were gradually acquired by the Imams of Muskat at various dates between 1698 and 1807, partly by conquest from the Portuguese and partly from native chiefs. They were held as an appanage of Muskat until the death of Seyyid Said, when, on a dispute as to the succession arising between his sons Seyyid Thwain, of Muskat, and Seyyid Majid of Zanzibar the dominions in Africa were made independent and confirmed under Majid by an arbitration of Lord Canning (dated 1861), then Governor General of India. Besides the islands of Zanzibar, Pemba, and smaller islands, the Sultan authority nominally extended along the coasts and indefinitely inland, from Warshekh, in 3° N lat., to Tungi Bay, in 10° 42' S lat. The Sultan's dominions were, however, gradually restricted until (1890) they included only the islands of Zanzibar and Pemba, the coast of the British East Africa Protectorate up to ten miles inland, of which his Highness is still the titular sovereign. The more important ports on the Somali (Benadir) Coast, which were leased to Italy, have been purchased outright by that Government.

In October, 1891, a regular Government was formed for Zanzibar with a British representative as First Minister. In 1908 Captain Barton was appointed First Minister. A 7½ per cent. ad valorem duty is imposed on all imports.

Area, Population, Religion.—Area of Zanzibar 640 square miles, Pemba 380 square miles. Population of Zanzibar 1911, 115,477, Pemba 82,457. The Arabs, about 10,000, are the principal landlords and employers of labour. The black population is mostly Swahili, but there are representatives of nearly every African tribe. There is a considerable foreign population, mostly engaged in trading. There are about 230 Europeans, comprising 121 Englishmen, 35 Germans, a few Americans, Frenchmen, Italians, Greeks, and Rumanians, about 10,000 British Indian subjects, through whose hands almost the whole trade of East Africa passes. Zanzibar town has a population of 32,000.

Most of the natives are Mohammedans (Sunnis of the Shafi school), the Sultan and relatives are of the Ibadhi sect. There are 3 Christian Missions: The Universities Mission to Central Africa (Church of England), the Catholic Mission (Roman Catholic), and the Friends' Industrial Mission.

There is a hospital at the Universities Mission.

Justice—For the administration of justice in Zanzibar, one Court, His Britannic Majesty's, consisting of a Judge and one or more Assistant Judges, deals with all actions to which a British, or British protected, person or the subject of a foreign Power is a party, and others, the Sultan's Local Courts, deal with cases in which the subjects of the Sultan are alone concerned.

Appeal lies to the High Court of Bombay, many of the cases tried being cases affecting British Indians in whose hands is a large proportion of the trade of Zanzibar. The British Court has also certain Admiralty jurisdiction by virtue of the Zanzibar Order in Council 1906. Since 1902 the three British Judges sitting at Zanzibar have acted as the Appeal Court for all appeals from the High Courts of East Africa, Uganda and Nyassaland. The Judges of these Courts are also members of this Appeal Court, and sit when required.

The Sultan's Courts under the general superintendence of the Legal Member of Council administer justice in the town of Zanzibar by two European Magistrates assisted by Arab Kathus. In Pemba, and the country districts criminal or civil cases are tried by a Magistrate or a Collector or Assistant Collector. The final appeal, in all cases lies to the British Judge sitting as Sultan's Judge.

Defence—The regular army was disbanded in October 1906 and a police force 400-500 strong was established in its place under the command of a British officer. A detachment of two companies of the King's African Rifles was at the same time drafted to Zanzibar from British East Africa.

Finance and Commerce—The revenue is mainly derived from customs dues and taxes on produce, chiefly cloves, copra and ivory. The Sultan's privy purse is kept separate from the general revenue, and the remainder of the revenue is devoted to the administration and improvement of the country. All the public expenditure must receive the sanction of the British Agent and Consul General.

MAURITIUS.

Constitution and Government

Mauritius, acquired by conquest in 1810, was formally ceded to Great Britain by the Treaty of Paris of 1814. Under Letters Patent of 1885, 1901, 1904, and 1912, partially representative institutions have been established. The government of the Colony, with its dependencies, Rodrigues, Diégo Garcia, &c., is vested in a Governor, aided by an Executive Council, consisting of the officer in command of His Majesty's troops, the Colonial Secretary, the Procureur-General, the Receiver General, and of such other persons holding office in the service of the Government of the Colony as the Governor through instructions from the Secretary of State, may from time to time appoint. There is also a Council of Government, consisting of the Governor and twenty seven members ten being elected under a moderate franchise, eight ex officio, and nine nominated by the Governor. The official councillors comprise the four Executive members, the Collector of Customs, the Protector of Immigrants, the Director of Public Works and Surveys, and the Director of the Medical and Health Department.

A railway, of 3 ft. 6 in. gauge, from Port Herald, near the Portuguese boundary on the western bank of the Shire, to Blantyre has been constructed (113 miles) and negotiations are in progress for its extension to the Coast and Lake Nyasa. There is a telegraph line through the Protectorate to Tanganyika and Ujiji connecting with Cape Town, with a branch to Fort Jameson. At Zomba there is a water power electric light installation which provides for the whole settlement.

At Blantyre there is a branch of the Standard Bank of South Africa.

ST HELENA

Governor—Captain Harry Edward Spiller Cordeaux, C B, C M G

St Helena, of volcanic origin, is about 800 miles from Ascension Island, the nearest land, and 1,200 from the west coast of Africa. Area, 47 square miles. Population, 1911 Census, 3,520 Births, 1911, 95, deaths, 89, marriages, 20 Emigrants, 186, immigrants, 122 Four Episcopal, 8 Baptist, 1 Roman Catholic chapels. Education, 8 schools, with 770 pupils in 1911, the schools receiving a Government grant of 570*l*, excluding 35*l* to non Government schools. Police force, 5, convictions, 1911, 142. A detachment of the Royal Marine Artillery is stationed on the island. The port of the island is called Jamestown

The following tables give statistics for St. Helena —

	1907	1908	1909	1910	1911
Revenue	7,907	7,434	8,778	9,306	11,122
Expenditure	8,057	8,104	9,046	9,590	9,129
Exports <sup>1</sup>	4,704	6,685	7,892	9,234	9,069

Public debt nil.

Savings-bank deposits on December 31, 1911, 12,570*l* belonging to 126 depositors. Fruit trees, Norfolk pines, eucalyptus, and cedars flourish in St. Helena, potatoes were formerly exported to the Cape, but a prohibitive duty has been imposed on their importation by the Cape Colony. Cattle do well, but there is no outside market for the meat. The flux

(~~phormazin~~) industry is now established, and a Government mill commenced operations in December, 1907. Large areas of land are now under flax. A lace making industry has been started and is making very satisfactory progress. The total and British tonnage entered (the same tonnage also cleared) —

Tonnage	1907	1908	1909	1910	1911
Total	160 655	156 482	159 760	172 358	187 441 1
British	160 655	156 482	158 682	171 718	184 725

The Post Office traffic from St. Helena in 1911, 48,375 letters and post cards, besides books, papers and parcels. The Eastern Telegraph Company's cable connects St. Helena with Cape Town and with St. Vincent. There are telephone lines, with 40 miles of wire.

St. Helena is an Admiralty coaling station. About two of the three cruisers of which the Cape of Good Hope Squadron consists visit St. Helena every year.

Tristan da Cunha, a small group of islands in the Atlantic, half way between the Cape and S. America, in 37° 6' S lat 12° 1' W lon. Until the death of Napoleon I they were occupied by a garrison. Besides Tristan da Cunha and Gough's Island, there are Inaccessible and Nightingale Islands, the former two and the latter one mile long, and a number of rocks. The population consists mainly of the families of shipwrecked sailors and wives from St. Helena, and numbered 75 (36 males and 39 females) in February, 1903. There is no form of government among them. All can read and about half can write. On the island potatoes grow well, but grain crops are destroyed by rats. Apple and peach trees are productive. There are over 600 head of cattle, 700 sheep a few pigs, and 100 donkeys. Fish are plentiful in the waters. An annual visit has long been paid to the island by one of His Majesty's ships, but this seems likely to be discontinued.

SEYCHELLES

Seychelles and its Dependencies consist of 90 islands and islets with a total estimated area of 160 square miles. The principal island is Mahé (56½ square miles) smaller islands of the group being Praslin, Silhouette, La Digue, Curieuse, and Félicité. Among dependent islands are the Amirantes, Alphonse Island, Bijoutier Island, St. François, St. Pierre, the Commoledo Group, Astove Island, Assumption Island, the Aldabra Islands, Providence Island, Coëtivy, and Flat Island. The Seychelles were formerly administered from Mauritius, but in 1888 the office of Administrator was created, an Executive Council of 8 ex-officio members was appointed and a Legislative Council of 3 official and 8 unofficial members the Administrator being president of both.

Owenoids and having an original and casting vote in the Legislative Council. In 1897 the Administrator was given full powers as Governor, and in November, 1903, he was raised to the rank of Governor.

Governor and Commander-in-Chief—Lt. Col. C. R. M. O'Brien, C.M.G.

Population, census of May 31, 1901, 19,237 (9,805 males, and 9,432 females), census of April 2, 1911, 26,090 (13,146 males and 12,944 females). The death rate for 1911 was 15.79 per 1,000, the birth rate 31.94, marriages, 140. The capital is Victoria, which has a good harbour and a coaling station. There are 24 schools, with 2,374 pupils; grants in aid 5671. In addition, 1,500l. is expended in the upkeep of a secondary school for boys with a preparatory branch and a free branch with an annual scholarship of 100l. a year tenable for 5 years. There is a Catholic secondary school for boys (176) and one for girls (175). In 1911, 244 persons were convicted in the Supreme Court. The police force numbers 72 of all ranks.

Revenue 1911, 36,357l., expenditure 1911, 34,151l. Debt (1911), 14,465l., surplus funds invested, December 31, 1911, 12,311l.

Chief products, coconuts and vanilla, about 150,000 plants of Para rubber are growing, on some islands mangrove-bark is collected and phosphate deposits are worked. Fishing is actively pursued, chiefly for local supply, but will probably be extended.

Imports, excluding specie, 1911, 80,121l., specie, 1,000l. Exports, excluding specie, 123,261l., specie, nil. The chief exports are coprah, vanilla, coconut oil, soap guano, salt fish, tortoise-shell, coffee, drugs, and cacao. Coconuts and coconut products exported 1911, 52,078l., vanilla, 8,212l. Total imports from United Kingdom, 1911, 31,160l., exports to United Kingdom, 20,483l.

Shipping entered and cleared, 1911, 413,240 tons, of which 188,856 tons was British, 140,316 German, and 112,192 French. The tonnage includes that of 4 men-of-war (1 British). The Messageries Maritimes Steamers between Marseilles and Mauritius call monthly, subsidy 2,800l. a year, paid by the Colony. The steamers of the German East Africa Company (D.O.A.L.) call regularly on the voyages from Bombay to and from Zanzibar and South African ports. There is regular communication between the islands.

There is a good road system in Mahé, and further road making is in progress in Mahé and in Praslin and La Digue. In 1911 the post office despatched and received 212,500 letters and postcards, 108,500 news papers, &c., and 2,709 parcels. There is telegraphic communication with Mauritius and Europe, but no internal telegraph service.

On December 31, 1911, the Savings Bank deposits amounted to 5,121l. to the credit of 857 depositors.

A branch of the Bank of Mauritius was opened in 1911.

Current money in the islands consists of rupees.

SOMALILAND PROTECTORATE.

The Somali Coast from Lahadu, west of Zeila, to Bandar Ziyada 49° E long., is administered by a Commissioner. After 1884, when Egyptian control ceased, the territory was administered by the Government of India, but was taken over by the Foreign Office on October 1, 1898 and was transferred to the Colonial Office on April 1, 1905. The area is about 88,000 square miles, population about 800,000 Mohammedan, and entirely nomadic, except on the coast, where considerable towns have sprung up during the British occupation. By an arrangement with Italy in 1894 the limits of the British Protectorate were defined, but in 1897, by an arrangement with Abyssinia, a fresh boundary as required by that country was determined, and about 15 000 square miles were ceded to Abyssinia. An agreement for the regulation of Anglo Italian relations in Somaliland was concluded on March 19, 1907. The chief town, Berbera had, at the 1911 census, 30,000 inhabitants in the trading season, Zeila, 7,000, and Bulhar, 7,300. At these three ports there are British officers. There are 3 Government schools average attendance 1911-12, 153. Police, 191 officers and men on March 31, 1912. Convictions in 1911-12, 848. The revenue in 1911-12 was 32,572½, the expenditure, 74,845½, the deficiency being met by unexpended balance of previous year. The grant in aid for 1911-12, nil. Imports (1911-12), Zeila, Berbera, Bulhar, Karam, and Heis, 266,511½, exports (1911-12), 340 636½. Bulhon and specie are included. The imports are chiefly rice, piece goods, shirtings, and dates, the exports, skins and hides, ostrich feathers, gum, cattle and sheep. Tonnage entered and cleared in 1911-12, 141,851 tons, of which 111,717 tons were British. The rupee is of the same value as in India. Transport is by camels, there are no porters. In 1908 the length of telegraph line was 200 miles, but since the withdrawal to the coast the Protectorate maintains only 40 miles length of telegraph line from Berbera to Bulhar, and has established one radio telegraph station at Berbera and one at Aden.

The protection of the coast towns of Berbera, Bulhar, and Zeila is entrusted to small garrisons of Indian troops supplemented by a native police force. In March, 1910, British posts were withdrawn from the interior, and administration is now confined to the coastal region.

SOUTH AFRICA.

Basutoland.

Basutoland, an elevated but rugged plateau, forms an irregular parallelogram on the north-east of the Cape of Good Hope Province, The provinces of the Orange Free State, Natal, and the Cape of Good Hope form its boundaries. Area, 11,716 square miles. The territory, which is well watered and has a fine climate, is stated to be the best grain-producing country in South Africa, and the abundant grass enables the Basutos to rear large herds of cattle.

Basutoland has been directly under the authority of the Crown since 1884. The territory is governed by a Resident Commissioner under the direction of the High Commissioner for South Africa, the latter possessing the legislative authority, which is exercised by proclamation. The country is divided into seven districts, namely Maseru, Leribe, Moshale's Hoek, Berek, Mafeteng, Quthing, and Qutha's Nek. Each of the districts is subdivided into wards, mostly presided over by hereditary chiefs allied to the Moshesh family.

In 1891 the population consisted of 578 Europeans and 218,324 natives. The census of 1911 gave a total of 404,507 natives and 1,396 Europeans. European settlement is in general prohibited, and is more or less limited to the few engaged in trade, government, and missionary work. Maseru, the capital and largest town, has a population of (approximately) 1,200 natives and 300 Europeans.

The productions are wool, wheat, mealies, and Kaffir corn. There are indications of iron and copper, and coal has been found and is used in some parts. Stock, &c. (1911) 433,000 cattle, 86,600 horses, 22,800 ploughs, 1,722 waggons.

There are 259 schools with about 17,410 pupils, expenditure in connection with education amounted during the nine months ended March 31, 1912, to 9,864*l*. There are some Normal and Industrial schools (aided). There is also a large and well fitted Government native industrial school at Maseru.

The police force numbers 15 white officers and 287 men (natives), also 231 special native police for Border work. Total convictions (1911-12), 567. Prisoners in gaol, on 31 March, 1912, 188.

The imports consist chiefly of blankets, ploughs, clothing, iron and tin ware, and groceries, and the exports of stock, grain, wool, &c. Basutoland is in the South African Customs Union, and separate statistics are not available.

The currency is exclusively British. The revenue arises from the Post Office, native tax, the sale of licences, and customs rebate from neighbouring territories. Under the new Native Tax Law every adult male native pays 1*l*. per annum, and if he has more than one wife by native custom he pays 1*l*. per annua for his wives up to a maximum of 3*l*.

Chief items of revenue, 1911-12 (nine months) native tax, 92,069l., customs, 32,169l. Chief items of expenditure: public works, 88,458l., police, 14,521l.; establishments, 11,166l.; agriculture, 10,699l.; education, 8,894l.

There is no public debt.

There are no navigable waterways, the rivers being low in winter and generally flooded in summer. Bridges have been built over the Caledon river at Masera and Ficksburg, over the Hlotse river in Lamber district, over the Little Caledon river near Masera, over the Makhbalang river near Mohale's Hoek, over the Phitlatlana River near Teyateyaneng, over the Khomokhoana River near Hlotse Heights, and over the Tlamethu and Tsoaing rivers. The roads in the country are now in fair condition for any kind of transport. There are telegraph offices at the various magistracies in connection with the systems of the Cape Province and Orange Free State.

A railway built by the C S A R., 18 miles, connects Masera with the Bloemfontein Modderpoort line at Marseilles Station.

Bechuanaland Protectorate

The Bechuanaland Protectorate comprises the territory lying between the Molopo River on the south and the Zambezi on the north, and extending from the Transvaal Province and Matabeleland on the east to German South West Africa. Area is about 275,000 square miles, population, according to the census taken on the 7th May, 1911, 125,950 of whom 1,682 were Europeans. The most important tribes are the Bamangwato (85,000), under the chief Khama, whose capital is Serowe (population 17,000) 40 miles west of the railway line at Palapye Road, the Bakhatla (11,000) under Lenchwe the Bakwena (18,000) under Sechele, the Bangwaketse (18,000) under Gasatlwe, the Batwana under Mathib, and the Bamaliti (4,500) under Bantlotle, who is acting during the minority of Seboko a boy about seventeen years of age, the eldest son of the late chief Mokgosi. In 1835 the territory was declared to be within the British sphere, in 1889 it was included in the sphere of the British South Africa Company, but was never administered by the company, in 1891 a Resident Commissioner was appointed, and in 1896, on the annexation of the Crown Colony of British Bechuanaland to the Cape of Good Hope, new arrangements were made for the administration of the Protectorate, and special agreements were made in view of the extension of the railway northwards from Mafeking. Each of the chief tribes has its own people as formerly under the protection of the King, who is represented by a Resident Commissioner acting under the High Commissioner. The headquarters of the Administration are in Mafeking, in the Cape Province, where there is a reserve for Imperial purposes, with ample buildings. There are assistant commissioners at Gaborone in the southern, and Francistown in the northern portion of the Protectorate.

There is a tax, of 14, on each hut, yielding about 30,000*l*. Licences for the sale of spirits are granted only at certain railway stations.

Cattle-rearing and agriculture (production of mealies and Kafir corn) are the chief industries. Cattle numbered on the 7th of May, 1911, 323,900 head, sheep and goats, 358,000. During the year 1911-12 nearly 15,000 head of cattle were exported for slaughter, the majority going to the Johannesburg market. The police force consists of 68 Europeans and 133 Basutos. Education is provided, with Government assistance, in the London Missionary Society and the Dutch Reformed Church schools. There are schools for Europeans subsidised by the Government at Francistown, Serowe and Uagabapye. Government grant for education 1911-12, 1,169*l*. Revenue 1911-12, 59,805*l*. (mainly hut tax, 34,865*l*, and customs, 13,287*l*), expenditure 65,936*l* (mainly police, 34,748*l*), grant-in-aid, 1911-12, 10,000*l*. There is no public debt. The Protectorate was within the South African Customs Union and when the Union of South Africa was completed, an agreement was made with the Union Government under which duty on all dutiable articles imported into the Protectorate is collected by the Union Customs Department and paid into the Union Treasury, a lump sum representing a certain portion of the Annual Customs Revenue of the Union being paid over to the Protectorate. Under this arrangement figures relating to imports and exports are no longer available.

The telegraph from the Cape of Good Hope to Rhodesia passes through the Protectorate and is owned by the British South Africa Company. Similarly the railway extending northwards from the Cape of Good Hope traverses the Protectorate. It is the property of the Rhodesia Railways, Limited. In the Protectorate are 16 post offices, receipts, in 1911-12, 5,073*l*, expenditure, 2,631*l*.

The currency is British money. There is no bank in the Protectorate.

Rhodesia.

UNDER the title of Rhodesia is included the whole of the region extending from the Transvaal Province northwards to the borders of the Congo State and German East Africa, bounded on the east by Portuguese East Africa, Nyasaland, and German East Africa and on the west by the Congo State, Portuguese West Africa, and Bechuanaland. The whole territory is under the administration of the British South Africa Company, which holds a Royal Charter dated October 29, 1889. The region south of the Zambezi is called Southern Rhodesia, that north of the Zambezi, formerly divided into two parts, called, respectively Barotseland or North-Western Rhodesia, and North-Eastern Rhodesia, is now one territory known as Northern Rhodesia.

The administrative system of the Company is Southern Rhodesia, is prescribed by the Orders in Council of 1898 1902, 1909, and 1911. To assist the Company's Administrator there is an Executive Council consisting of not less than three members appointed, for three years, by the Company with the approval of the Secretary of State.

The Legislative Council consists of the Administrator (president), five nominees of the Company approved by the Secretary of State, and seven members elected by the registered voters.<sup>1</sup> The duration of each Legislative Council is three years, unless it be sooner dissolved. Ordinances passed by the Legislative Council when assented to by the High Commissioner take effect immediately but within a year may be disallowed by the Secretary of State. There is a Resident Commissioner (who is also Commandant General) appointed by the Secretary of State, he has a seat on both the Executive and Legislative Councils, but without a vote. For the administration of justice there is a High Court with civil and criminal jurisdiction. In the districts there are Magistrates Courts. There is a secretary for Native Affairs, two chief Native Commissioners, with subordinate Native Commissioners and Assistant Native Commissioners, and, except with respect to arms, ammunition, and liquor, natives and Europeans are under the same conditions. Land has been set apart for tribal settlements, the mineral rights being reserved to the Company but, if the native occupation is disturbed, new land must be assigned, disputes being ultimately referable to the High Commissioner. There is in Rhodesia about 100 million acres of unalienated land (excluding native reserves), about half being in Southern Rhodesia.

Southern Rhodesia has an area of 148 675 square miles, and is divided into two provinces, Matabeleland and Mashonaland. According to the census taken on May 7 1911 the European population of the former was 11,039, and of the latter 12,548. The native population of Southern Rhodesia on the same date was 743,640 (Mashonaland 497,165, and Matabeleland 246,475). There were also 2 249 Asiatics and other coloured persons. Both tracts of country are rich in gold reefs and other minerals, and are well adapted for agriculture and European settlement. Unimproved land in Southern Rhodesia can at present be obtained from the British South Africa Company from about 4s an acre, and, subject to the fulfilment of a simple occupation condition, it can be purchased outright or leased with option of purchase.

A Land Bank has been established which makes loans to settlers on easy terms of repayment for the purpose of improving and developing their agricultural holdings.

The chief towns are Salisbury (the capital of Southern Rhodesia), Bulawayo, Victoria, Umtali, Gwelo, Enkeldoorn, Melssetter, Rusapi, Hartley, Selukwe, Tuli, Gwanda, and Gutuoma.

Southern Rhodesia is widely mineralised, and gold bearing deposits have been discovered in many districts. Numerous companies have been formed with the purpose of developing land and minerals in the country, while the principal feature of the gold mining industry of recent years has been the large increase in the number of properties worked on tribute on a small scale. The number of separate properties actually producing gold during October, 1911, was 162. The total output of gold from 1890 to 31st October, 1911, was 4,963,299 ounces, valued at 19,240 263<sup>1</sup>. The output of minerals in 1912 was gold, value, 2,707,869<sup>1</sup>; silver, 176,582 oz.; chrome ore, 69,260 tons; lead (1911), 689 tons, value, 7,821<sup>1</sup>; coal (1911), 212,529 tons, asbestos (1911), 460 tons, value, £,296*l*. Small amounts of wolframite, scheelite, and antimony have also been produced.

The total value of imports into Southern Rhodesia in 1911 was 2 975 112*l*. The value of merchandise was 2,599,976*l*, of which 1,525,604*l* came by the Cape route and 1 422,887*l* by Beira. The gross duties collected in 1911 amounted to 816,139*l*. The value of the exports of South African produce during the year 1911 was 8,098,400*l*, the chief being gold, 2,544,677*l*; gold concentrates, 52,980*l*; chrome ore, 118,064*l*; tobacco, 84,749*l*.

The Rhodesian Railway system begins at Vryburg in the Bechuanaland Protectorate, and extends northwards to the Congo State border, a through communication from Cape Town to the Congo border (2,149 miles). At the Victoria Falls the river is crossed by a bridge 650 feet long and 30 feet wide, the structure, which is about 420 feet above the water, was commenced in October, 1904, from both sides of the river linked up on April 1, 1905, and formally opened on September 12, 1905. Salisbury is connected by rail with Bulawayo (via Hartley and Gwelo), a distance of 301 miles. There is a railway from Salisbury to the Ayrshire Mine, a distance of 84 miles, and a branch, 11½ miles long, from the 67th mile-post on this line to the Eldorado mine. The total mileage of the Rhodesia Railway Systems (including the Beira Railway) at the end of 1912, was 2,406 miles.

On December 31, 1911 there were in Southern Rhodesia 86 post offices, 25 of which are money order offices. In Southern Rhodesia during the year ended December 31, 1911 4 952 272 letters and post cards were despatched. The total number of newspapers, books and parcels despatched was 1,908,296, and registered articles 54,618. The postal revenue for the year ended December 31, 1911, was 47,521*l*., and the expenditure 31,547*l*. Telegraphic revenue 56,197*l*., expenditure 42,722*l*.

On January 1, 1906, a Post Office Savings Bank was established, and on December 31, 1911, the deposits amounted to 110,751*l* to the credit of 4,214 depositors.

On December 31, 1911, the mileage of the Rhodesia telegraph system was 1,289 miles. There were 104 telegraph offices open. In Southern Rhodesia during the year 1911, 404,068 telegrams were received and 326,488 were despatched. There is, besides, an extensive telephone system in operation.

Administrative revenue of Southern Rhodesia, 1911-12, 817,854*l*., administrative expenditure 737,948*l*.

Northern Rhodesia—By an Order in Council, dated May 4, 1911, the two provinces of North Eastern and North Western Rhodesia were amalgamated under the title of Northern Rhodesia. The amalgamation took effect as from August 17, 1911. The limits of the territory, as defined by the Order in Council, are 'the parts of Africa bounded by Southern Rhodesia, German South West Africa, Portuguese West Africa, the Congo Free State, German East Africa, Nyasaland, and Portuguese East Africa.'

Northern Rhodesia has an area of about 290,000 square miles, and consists for the most part of high plateau country, covered with thin forest. Much of the country is suitable for farming and contains large areas carrying good arable and grazing land. In May, 1911, the European population numbered 1,484. The native population is approximately 1,600,000. The territory is divided into ten magisterial districts. The administrative headquarters are at Livingstone, on the Zambezi. The most important centres are Fort Jameson, Fife, Abercorn, Fort Rosebery, Broken Hill, Ndola, and Lealui, the chief residence of Lewanika, Paramount Chief of the Barotsa. The police force, called the Northern Rhodesia Police, is composed of natives with European officers and non-commissioned officers.

In most parts of the country cattle thrive. Pure-bred animals have been introduced into the country by several of the farmers in the East Lusanga and Batoka districts.

Rubber, cotton, and tobacco are grown. Altogether over 1,000 acres have been planted with cotton by white farmers. The indigenous rubber of Northern Rhodesia has been strictly protected since 1903, with the result that the number of young vines shows a great increase. It is estimated that five rubber forests alone cover upwards of 21,000 acres, and contain about 800,000 vines. There is plenty of timber of various kinds in Northern Rhodesia. Wheat and European fruits are grown and fibre plants provide material for a new industry which promises satisfactory results. There are gold, copper, zinc, and lead mines in the territory, and coal has been discovered.

The trunk line of the Rhodesian railway system traverses Northern Rhodesia from Livingstone to the Congo border. The Zambezi, Kafue, Chambesi, and other rivers of Northern Rhodesia are navigable for a considerable portion of their extent.

In Northern Rhodesia there are 35 post offices, 6 being money order offices. There is a telegraph line alongside the railway from Livingstone to the Congo border.

The Northern Rhodesia Order in Council (May 4, 1911), provides for the appointment of an Imperial officer, styled the Resident Commissioner, who may be the officer holding the same position in Southern Rhodesia, and of an Administrator appointed by the British South Africa Company with the approval of the Secretary of State. The capital of the Company was originally 1,000,000*l.*, in 1908 it amounted, by successive additions, to 9,000,000*l.*, amount issued and paid up at September 30, 1911, 8,056,865*l.*, debentures (5 per cent.) 1,250,000*l.*, (5½ per cent.) 2nd mortgage debenture stock authorised March, 1908, amount issued September, 1911, 20,154*l.*

For the year ending March 31, 1911, the revenue from the three territories (including the head office receipts) was 1,183,874*l.*, and the expenditure, 993,264*l.*

Administrator of Southern Rhodesia—Sir W. H. Milton, K.C.M.G., K.C.V.O.

Administrator of Northern Rhodesia—L. A. Wallace, C.M.G.

Resident Commissioner and Commandant-General—Colonel R. Burns Begg (Salisbury).

Swaziland.

Swaziland, at the South-eastern corner of the Transvaal, was, by the Convention of 1894, placed under the administration of (but not incorporated with) the South African Republic, the British Government has now the control of the territory. The paramount chief, Sobhuza, son of the late paramount chief Bunu, is a minor about fourteen years of age, and the regency is in the hands of his grandmother, Nabotsibeni, widow of Mbandini. On June 26, 1908, an Order in Council was issued conferring on the Governor of the Transvaal authority over Swaziland, and by Order in Council of December 1, 1908, this authority was transferred to the High Commissioner for South Africa. The numerous mineral and land concessions and mining police granted by Mbandini, many of which carried exemption from customs dues or invested private individuals with powers properly exercisable by the Crown, rendered any satisfactory form of Government difficult. A Proclamation, therefore, provided for the constitution of a Commission to inquire into the question of these concessions. Under this Proclamation the High Commissioner has exercised the power to appropriate monopolies conferring exclusive rights, compensation for which has been made out of loans raised for the purpose. Gold is subject to a tax of 10 per cent. on profits, base metals to a royalty of 2½ per cent. on output in addition to any rentals now payable.

The agricultural and grazing rights of natives have been safeguarded, and delimited, a general survey of the territory in connection with concession claims has also been carried out. A Special Court having the full jurisdiction of a Superior Court, and Assistant Commissioners' Courts have been established. A local Swaziland police force was created in 1907. Authorized strength (1911-2), 24 Europeans and 171 natives. During the year ended March 31st, 1912, 1,789 persons were summarily convicted, while 8 persons were convicted before the Superior Court.

Native chiefs are allowed to continue to exercise jurisdiction according to native law and customs in all civil matters between natives, subject to a final appeal to the Resident Commissioner. The present seat of the administration is at Mbabane altitude 4 300 feet.

Area, 6,536 square miles population (1911), 99,959, of whom 98,733 are natives (of Zulu type), 143 other coloured persons, and 1,083 whites. The Government maintains 6 European Schools at different centres, and 1 native school at Zombode the kraal of the Regent, at which the young paramount chief attends. Average European attendance, 1911-12, 120, at Zombode, 42. The Government also subsidises other native schools to the extent of 300*l* per annum. Total expenditure on education, 1911-12, 1,704*l*.

	1908-9	1909-10	1910-11	1911-12
	£	£	£	£
Revenue	46 484	44 669	55,728	57,507
Expenditure	91 127	54 317	62,258	62,191

Since 1904 a sum of 175 735*l* has been spent on the expropriation of monopolies and in connection with the Swaziland Concessions Commission and the Partitions of Concessions. 6,197*l* was spent during 1911-12 on eradication of cattle disease. The excess of expenditure over revenue is accounted for by the costs of the Swaziland Concessions Commission, the Partition Concessions, and of the expropriation of monopolies. The public debt of Swaziland amounts (1912) to 100,000*l*, on which interest at 8½ per cent. per annum is payable.

The agricultural products are tobacco, maize (the staple product), millet, pumpkins, ground nuts, beans, and sweet potatoes, grown only in sufficient quantities for local supply. Attempts are being made to introduce cotton growing. Stock in 1912 numbered approximately horses, 550 cattle, 59,000, native sheep and goats, 170,000 pigs, 9,000. The territory is reported to be rich in minerals, but it has not yet been systematically prospected. Alluvial tin is being mined and shipped. In 1911-12 the output of tin was 313 tons, valued at 32,397*l*. Several gold mines are worked on a small scale, and during the year 1911-12 the output was 14,781 ozs. of fine gold, valued at 62,783*l*. By arrangement with the Union of South Africa, Swaziland is treated for customs purposes as part of the Union and receives a pro rata share of the Customs dues collected. During the year 1911-12 Swaziland's share of the Union Customs dues amounted to 7,175*l*. Separate returns of Swaziland imports and exports are not shown.

There is bi weekly communication by coach between Mbabane and Brayton on the Springs Ermelo Extension. Elsewhere communication is by runners. There are telegraph offices at Mbabane, Pigg's Peak, Bramersdorp, and Eulweni. Post Office Savings Banks deposits, 2,323*l*. on March 31, 1912, belonging to 113 depositors.

THE UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA

Constitution and Government.

The Union of South Africa is constituted under the South Africa Act, 1902 (2 Edw. 7, Ch. 9) passed by the Parliament of the United Kingdom, on September 20, 1902. In terms of that Act the self governing Colonies of the Cape of Good Hope, Natal, the Transvaal, and the Orange River Colony became united on May 31, 1910, in a legislative Union under one Government under the name of the Union of South Africa, these Colonies becoming original provinces of the Union under the names of the Cape of Good Hope, Natal, the Transvaal and the Orange Free State province, respectively. Under the Act constituting the Union, the Sovereign appoints a Governor-General, who, with an Executive Council (of which the members are chosen and summoned by him), administers the executive government of the Union as the Governor General in Council. Departments of State have been established, the Governor-General appointing not more than ten officers to administer them. Such officers are King's Ministers of State for the Union and members of the executive Council.

Legislative power is vested in a Parliament consisting of the King, a Senate, and a House of Assembly. The Governor General has power to summon, prorogue, and dissolve Parliament, either both Houses simultaneously or the House of Assembly alone, but the Senate may not be dissolved within 10 years of the establishment of the Union. There must be a session of Parliament every year.

The Senate consists of forty members. For ten years after the establishment of Union eight (four being selected mainly for their acquaintance with the reasonable wants and wishes of the coloured races) are nominated by the Governor-General in Council and thirty two are elected, eight for each Province. The first election was made prior to the establishment of the Union by the two Houses of each of the Colonial Legislatures sitting as one body, and a vacancy will be filled by the choice of the Provincial Council in respect of whose Province a vacancy occurs. The Constitution of the Senate after ten years may be provided for by Parliament, but if no such provision is made the arrangements made in the South Africa Act are to hold good. Each senator must be a British subject of European descent, at least 30 years of age, qualified as a voter in one of the provinces, and resident for five years within the Union, an elected senator must be registered owner of property of the value of 500*l.* over any mortgage.

The House of Assembly consists of 121 members chosen in Electoral Divisions in numbers as follows — The Cape of Good Hope, 61, Natal, 17, Transvaal, 36, Orange Free State, 17, provision being made for increases of representation proportional to increase of European population. Parliamentary voters must have the qualifications as existing in the several colonies at the time of the Union. Each electoral district in each province returns one member. A member of the House of Assembly must be a British subject of European descent, qualified as a registered voter, and resident five years within the Union.

A House of Assembly is to continue five years from the date of its first meeting unless sooner dissolved. Each member of each House must make Oath or Affirmation of Allegiance. A member of one House cannot be elected to the other; but a Minister of State may sit and speak, but not vote in the House of which he is not a member. To hold an office of profit under the Crown (with certain exceptions) is a disqualification for membership of either House, as are also insolvency, crime, or insanity.

The House of Assembly, not the Senate, must originate money bills, but may not pass a bill for taxation or appropriation unless it has been recommended by message from the Governor-General during the Session. Restrictions are placed on the amendment of money bills by the Senate. Provision is made for adjusting disagreements between the Houses, and for the Royal Assent to bills to be given, reserved, and for laws assented to by the Governor-General being disallowed.

The first Parliamentary election under the South Africa Act was held on the 15th September, 1910, since when there have been several by-elections. The position of the various parties towards the end of 1912, was:—South African Party, 78, Unionist Party, 84, Labour Party 5, Independents, 4.

Pretoria is the seat of government of the Union, and Cape Town is the seat of Legislature.

The Right Honourable Viscount Gladstone of Lanark, P.C., G.O.M.G. (salary £10,000 per annum), was sworn in as the first Governor-General of the Union on 31st May, 1910. The executive council is constituted as follows—

Prime Minister and Minister of Agriculture—General the Right Honourable Louis Botha, P.C.

Minister of Railways and Harbours—Honourable Henry Burton, K.C.

Minister of Finance and Minister of Defence—Honourable J. C. Smuts.

Minister of Justice and Minister of Native Affairs—Honourable J. W. Sauer.

Minister of Education and of Mines—Honourable F. S. Malan.

Minister of Interior and Minister of Lands—The Right Honourable A. Fischer, P.C.

Minister of Posts and Telegraphs, and Minister of Public Works—Honourable Sir T. Hall.

Minister without Portfolio—Hon. Sir D. P. de Villiers Broeff, Bart.

In each province there is an Administrator appointed by the Governor-General for five years, and a provincial council elected for three years, each council having an executive committee of four (either members or not of the council), the administrator to preside at its meetings. Members of the Provincial Council are elected on the same system as members of Parliament, but the restriction as to European descent does not apply. The number of members in each Provincial Council is as follows—Cape of Good Hope, 51, Natal, 25, Transvaal, 36, Orange Free State 25. The provincial committees and councils have authority to deal with local matters such as provincial finance, education (elementary), agriculture, charity, municipal institutions, local works roads and bridges, markets, fish and game, and penalties for breaches of laws respecting such subjects. Other matters may be delegated to these Councils. All ordinances passed by a Provincial Council are subject to the veto of the Governor-General-in-Council.

The first Provincial elections for the Cape of Good Hope and the Transvaal were held on the 15th September, 1910, those for Natal and the Orange Free State on the 12th October, 1910.

There is a provincial Revenue Fund in each province. The old colonial capitals are the capitals of the provinces.

Justice is administered by a Supreme Court of South Africa and other courts within the Union and in the provinces.

There is a Railway and Harbour Fund for the Union and into it are paid revenues from the administration of railways, ports, and harbours, and such Fund will be appropriated by Parliament. Into a Consolidated Revenue Fund is paid all other money received for the purposes of the Union. On this fund the interest on debts of the colonies forms a first charge.

To the Union is transferred the public property, real and personal, of the colonies. A Harbour and Railway Board of not more than three commissioners appointed for five years, with a Minister of State as chairman have the management of the railways, ports, and harbours.

Compensation is to be given to colonial capitals which are injuriously affected by the Union. The English and Dutch languages are both official. The administration of native affairs and affairs specially or differentially affecting Asiatics vests in the Governor General in Council. It is provided that the British South Africa Co's territories may be received into the Union, and the government of native territories may be transferred to the Union Government.

Governor General. — H. E. The Rt. Hon. Viscount Gladstone, P. C., G. C. M. G.

Chief Justice of South Africa — The Rt. Hon. Baron de Villiers, P. C., K. C. M. G.

High Commissioner in London. — Sir Richard Solomon, G. C. M. G., K. C. B., K. C. V. O., K. C., 82, Victoria Street, S. W.

Secretary — T. S. Nightingale

Area and Population

Statistics of the Provinces of the Union are given as follows. For other and more detailed statistics reference should be made to the sections dealing with the Provinces separately.

	Area square miles	Population Census, May, 1911
Cape of Good Hope	270,995	2,584,965
Natal	35,290	1,194,048
Transvaal	110,426	1,686,212
Orange Free State	50,389	528,174
Total	478,100	5,978,394

Of the total 5,978,394 persons (1911), 3,069,892 were males and 2,904,002 females.

The increase for the Union (1904-1911) was 15.41 per cent. For the Provinces it was as follows:—Cape, 6.44 per cent., Natal, 7.69 per cent., Transvaal, 32.78 per cent., Orange Free State, 36.37 per cent.

The population comprised (1911) 1,276,242 Europeans or whites (591,078 females), 4,019,906 natives (1,896,067 females), and 678,148 other coloured races (316,367 females). In 1904 the figures were —Europeans, 1,118,806 (increase 1904-11 of 14.28 per cent.), natives, 3,491,056 (increase 1904-11 of 15.12 per cent.); and other coloured races 567,962 (increase 1904-11 of 19.40 per cent.) The total non-European increase (1904-11) was 15.72 per cent. The proportion of Europeans in the total population in 1904 was 21.58 per cent., in 1911, 21.37 per cent.

Some of the principal urban centres in the Union, with over 10,000 inhabitants in 1911, had a white population as follows —

Cities	Census 1904	Census 1911	Cities	Census 1904	Census 1911
Johannesburg	88 868	119 959	Germiston	9 128	16 879
Durban	81 802	91 738	Maritzburg	16 086	14 787
Cape Town	44 209	59 961	Bloemfontein	15 501	14,720
Pretoria	21 114	29 618	Kimberley	18,565	18 598
Port Elizabeth	21 987	16 190	Krugersdorp	6 948	18 182
Woodstock	21 630	17,901	East London	14 886	12,379

Instruction

In the South Africa Act, section 85 (iii.), it is provided that "Education other than higher education for a period of five years and thereafter until Parliament otherwise provides shall be and remain under the jurisdiction of the respective Provincial Councils. For practical purposes it has been provisionally determined that all post matriculation instruction shall be deemed to constitute higher education.

The Department of Education, under the Minister, is therefore concerned with —

(1) The University of the Cape of Good Hope, Capetown, established in 1873. It is empowered to grant degrees but it has no attached teaching institutions. (2) The South African College, Capetown, founded in 1829. (3) Victoria College, Stellenbosch, incorporated in 1881. (4) Rhodes University College, Grahamstown, incorporated in 1904. (5) Huguenot College, Wellington, incorporated in 1907. (6) Grey University College, Bloemfontein, incorporated in 1910. (7) Transvaal University College, Pretoria, incorporated in 1910. (8) South African School of Mines and Technology, Johannesburg, incorporated in 1910. (9) Natal University College, Pietermaritzburg, incorporated in 1909.

The total number of students at the above Colleges in 1912 was 1,238, and the State expenditure on Higher Education during 1911-12 was 107,888*l*.

Finance.

	£	£	£
Revenue	14 014 000	17,284,847	18 283,000
Expenditure	19,587 000	16,608,698	17 129,851

The Public Debt of the Union (1912) is 1,7,260,584*l* composed as follows — 54,112,446*l* at 3 per cent., 2,000,000*l* at 3½ per cent., 35 788,648*l* at 3¾ per cent., 22 906,639*l* at 4 per cent., 1,871,888*l* at 4½ per cent., and 581,118*l* at 5 per cent.

PROVINCIAL FINANCES

Under Section 118 of the South African Act a Commission was appointed to enquire into the financial arrangements between the Union Government and the Provincial Councils. The Commission made certain recommendations which were embodied in a Bill and presented to Parliament but the Bill was dropped. Consequently the only Provincial Revenue is the amount voted by Parliament by way of subsidies for the performance of

The provinces have no debts at present

Defence.

The defence forces at present consist partly of the garrison of regular troops maintained in the country and paid for out of the Imperial Exchequer, and partly of local forces.

The garrison consists of 4 cavalry regiments (2,368 of all ranks), 2 horse artillery batteries, 6 field batteries, 2 companies of garrison artillery (1,572 of all ranks), 5 engineer companies (599 of all ranks) 6 battalions of infantry, 8 companies of mounted infantry, and a due proportion of departmental services, total establishment 11,485 of all ranks. These troops are distributed in various stations in the Transvaal, the Orange Free State, and Cape Colony. Headquarters is at Pretoria.

The local forces are at present in a transition state. Under the new defence act (which became law 14th June, 1912), service is made compulsory on all citizens but as this would provide an unnecessarily large force, only a proportion, of young men will annually be enrolled, and it is hoped to get these to volunteer, men who do not undergo training will be liable to pay 1*l* a year for twenty four years, if sufficient volunteers do not come forward the ballot will be resorted to. The period of training is for four years between the ages of 17 and 25, there is to be a preliminary recruits training, followed by annual trainings of from 8 to 15 days. This forms the Active Citizen Army. It is to be from 20,000 to 25,000 strong. After completing the four years period, the men join the Citizen Reserve Force till they are 45.

In addition to the Active Citizen Army there will be a Coast Garrison Force which will be partially paid, the men being voluntarily enlisted. It will consist of the South African Garrison Artillery, organised from existing corps of the same class, and the South African Defence Corps—an engineer and electric light corps. There will also be a Permanent Force formed by converting existing mounted police forces into 5 regiments called the South African Riflemen, which will include batteries of artillery as well as mounted rifles; the establishment of this force will be about 2,500. The Coast Defence Force and the Permanent Force will both have their own reserves, formed from the men who have passed through their ranks.

Finally there will be the National Reserve comprising all citizens between 17 and 80 who do not belong to any of the above. The annual cost of the scheme is expected to be 1,172,000*l*.

Boys between 13 and 17 will be compulsorily enrolled in cadet corps where this is practicable, but the law admits that such enrolment end training cannot be enforced in rural districts. Trained cadets will enjoy certain advantages when they are enrolled in the Active Citizen Army

Production and Industry

Until recent years, South Africa was almost entirely dependant on overseas markets for the supply of foodstuffs and other necessities, but great progress is now being made towards the supply of its own domestic wants

Slight increases have taken place in imports of sugar, butter, cheese, milk, meat, and several other agricultural products. Nevertheless, in actual fact, local production in these articles has increased very much. Creameries are extending in all provinces. Farms are being fenced and improved by the making of dams and by the erection of farm buildings, etc., moreover, live stock is increasing in numbers and improving in quality, and far greater care is now taken of stock than formerly. Perhaps the truest indication of progress lies in the greatly enhanced prices of agricultural land, which in some parts has doubled in value during the past year or two.

Maize was exported to the value of 419,581*l* in 1911. The production of wheat and oats last season was probably the greatest ever known in South Africa, and the area of land under cultivation is rapidly extending, while the improved methods of farming are very noticeable. Drills and steam threshing machines are being more largely employed and much more interest is being displayed in other labour saving appliances. As regards wool, the quantities and values exported were 121,671,354 lbs valued at 3,830,903*l* in 1910, and 132,222,285 lbs valued at 3,900,142*l* in 1911. Ostrich farming is carried on on a large scale.

The chief source of the country's wealth lies in the Gold Mining and Diamond Mining Industries the former of which in 1911, was responsible for no less than 65.28 per cent. of the total exports of the country, and the latter for 14.35 per cent., while the total export of all minerals accounted for over 84 per cent. of the total exports of South Africa.

The total value of the mineral output of the Union in 1911 was 47,679,294*l*, the main items being gold 35,049,041*l*, diamonds, 8,746,724*l*, coal, 1,935,153*l*, copper, 552,145*l*, tin 411,871*l*, lime, 135,193*l*, silver, 98,507*l*, salt, 61,160*l*, asbestos 20,839*l*.

In the Transvaal 23,388,258 tons of gold ore were milled during 1911, an increase of nearly two and-a-half million tons on the previous year.

Commerce

Shipping and Communications

In 1911 4,371 vessels of 20 515,599 tons gross entered, and 4,370 vessels of 20,548,224 tons gross cleared

Before the Union, which took effect in May, 1910, the railways of the several colonies now comprising the Union were owned and operated by the separate Governments. Now, however, they are all merged into one system, the South African Railways, under the Union Government control. The total open mileage of this system was (1912)—(Government Lines, 7 645 miles (comprising Cape 3,397 miles, Orange Free State 1,076 miles, Transvaal 2,020 miles, and Natal, 1,052), of which 7,104 miles are 3 ft 6 in gauge, and 441 miles 2 ft 0 in gauge, privately owned lines, 545 miles total, 8,090 miles. Capital expended on Government Railways up to 31st December, 1911 79,371 654*l*. Total revenue (1911) 12,104,769*l*, as against 12,157,738*l* in 1910. Working expenditure (including renewals) 7,217 070*l*, or 59·6 per cent of the gross revenue, as compared with 6,862,890*l* or 54·8 per cent in 1910.

At the end of 1911 there were in the Union 2,587 post and telegraph offices. Correspondence received and dispatched (1911) letters and cards, 124,482 030, newspapers, books, and circulars, 65,006,942, parcels 1,853,298 telegrams, 5,118,676. The number of money orders issued during the year was 484 424, and the value 2,844,675*l*, while 370,255 orders of the value of 2,105 593*l* were paid. 2,919 002 postal orders amounting to 1,862,551*l* were issued, and 2,194,950, valued at 1,345,772*l* paid.

The revenue of the Post office in 1911 was 951,035*l*, and the expenditure 924,840*l*. The revenue of the telegraph and telephone service (excluded from the previous figures), was 512,881*l*, and expenditure, 528,981*l*.

14,920 miles of telegraph line carrying 55,934 miles of wire and 47,852 miles of telephone were open. 9,081 miles of telegraph wire are maintained by the Post Office on behalf of the Railway Department. Telephonic communication is established between certain of the principal centres. Pretoria has been selected as one of the Imperial wireless stations for purposes of defence. The cost of installation (80 000*l*) will be defrayed by the Union Government.

The number of depositors in the Government Savings Bank in the Union at the end of March, 1911 was 225,238, and the amount to their credit, 6,128,458*l*.

Province of the Cape of Good Hope

Constitution and Government.—The Colony of the Cape of Good Hope was originally founded by the Dutch in the year 1652. Britain took possession of it in 1795 but evacuated it in 1803. A British force again took possession in 1806 and the Colony has remained a British Possession since that date. It was formally ceded to Great Britain by the Convention of London, August 18 1814. The original Colony has been extended from time to time. East and West Pondoland were annexed in 1894 and Bechuanaland in 1895. For many years the form of government in the Colony depended on the terms of the Royal Letters Patent and Instructions to governors. Letters Patent issued in 1850 to Governor Sir Henry Smith declared that in the Colony there should be a Parliament which should consist of the Governor, a Legislative Council, and a House of Assembly. A Constitution Ordinance was enacted by Order in Council of March 11 1858, and took effect on May 1 ensuing. This Order in Council provided that nothing it contained should prevent the Parliament of the Colony from making Acts (subject to the power of Her Majesty in Council either to disallow or assent to such Acts) in amendment of the said Ordinance. This power of amending the Constitution was exercised from time to time as the bounds of the Colony were extended. In 1872 an Act was passed at the Cape and assented to by Order in Council providing for the system of executive administration known as Responsible Government. The Constitution formed under these various Acts vested the executive in the Governor and an Executive Council, composed of certain office holders appointed by the Crown. On the 31st May, 1910, the Colony was merged in the Union of South Africa, thereafter forming an original province of the Union.

Cape Town is the seat of the Provincial Administration.

Administrator—The Hon. Sir Frederic de Wael, K.C.M.G. (Salary 2,500*l.*).

The Colony is divided into 110 magisterial districts, and the Colony proper, including Bechuanaland, but exclusive of the Transkeian territories, into 82 fiscal divisions. In each division there is a Civil Commissioner, who is, in all cases where the fiscal and magisterial areas coincide, also the Resident Magistrate. Each division has a Council of at least 8 members (18 in the Cape Division) elected triennially by the owners or occupiers of immovable property. These Councils look after roads, boundaries, and beacons, return 8 members to the Licensing Court, and perform other local duties. There are 128 Municipalities, each governed by a Mayor or Chairman and Councillors, a certain number of whom are elected annually by the rate payers. There are also 86 Village Management Boards.

Area and Population.—The following table gives the area and population of the Province and native Territories according to the preliminary census returns of 1911 —

210 THE BRITISH EMPIRE — UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA

Religion and Instruction.—In 1904, there were 1,805,453 Protestants—399,487 Dutch Reformed Church, 281,483 Church of England, 88,653 Presbyterians, 112,202 Independents, 277,265 Wesleyans, 12,947 other Methodists, 87,041 Lutherans, 28,079 Moravians, 20,782 Rhemish Mission, 14,105 Baptists. Roman Catholics 37,069. Mohammedans 22,623, Jews 19,537. Of no religion 1,015,760, of whom 822,459 were Natives.

The Colony is divided into 118 School Districts, each under the control of a School Board, two thirds of the members being locally elected, and one third nominated partly by Government and partly by Municipal or Divisional Councils. Education is compulsory for children of European extraction in 112 School Board Districts, and will probably be enforced in the remaining 6 districts at an early date. The necessary grants are provided from the general revenue to supplement local contributions of at least equal amount. Aided schools, June 30, 1912, 4,312, enrolment 211,616, attendance 181,478. There are 91,342 European pupils and 120,274 non European. Total number of teachers, 8,153.

Provincial expenditure on education (excluding Higher Education, which is under control of the Central Government), 1910-11, 558,788; 1911-12, 635,423.

Justice and Crime.—In 1909, convictions before the special J P Courts, 729. Magistrates Courts, 54,510, Superior Courts, 622, prisoners in gaol, December 31, 1909, 1,872 males, 388 females. On December 31, 1909 the Cape Mounted Police numbered 768, the Ordinary and Urban Police Forces, 1,460, and the Gaol Establishment, 633.

Charitable Institutions, Hospitals, Pauperism.—In the various charitable institutions on December 31 1911, there were over 6,000 inmates, in the hospitals 10,380 patients were treated in the year 1911. There is no recognised system of poor law relief, but 785 persons received indoor relief during the year, and 4,864 received outdoor relief.

Finance.—Since the coming into effect of the Union there is only one financial statement for the four provinces together. Particulars are given above under the Union. The only Provincial revenue at present is the amount voted by Parliament by way of subsidies for the performance of the services and duties assigned to the Provinces. The following figures show the estimates of expenditure to be defrayed by the Cape Province during the year ending March 31 1913, in comparison with the approximate expenditure in the preceding year—

Production and Industry—In 1911, 1,712,250 acres of Crown lands were alienated the amount realised being 62,015*l*. Up to December 31, 1911, the total area disposed of was about 140,000,000 acres, the quantity undisposed of being 35 964 664 acres.

Regarding the area under cultivation there are no recent statistics.

In the year ending February 15, 1910, the chief agricultural produce of the Province excluding the native territories, was—wheat, 2,845,223 bushels (285,294 acres) barley, 660,388 bushels (63,165 acres), oats, 2,995,401 bushels (331,766 acres), maize 1,428,987 bushels (221 631 acres), potatoes, 587,247 bushels (73,727 acres). There were in 1909, 21,552 acres of vines, and 3,494,656 gallons of wine and 675 072 gallons of brandy, &c., were produced. In 1911, there were 2,715,330 cattle, 333 962 horses, 17,134 518 sheep, and 505,780 pigs. Some irrigation works have been or are being executed chiefly in the Breede and Fish river valleys and surveys are in progress for new works. The alluvial lands are of no great area, and the difficulties in the way of irrigation are considerable.

The sheep farms (mostly owned by the occupiers) are from 3,000 to 15,000 acres and upwards those in tillage are comparatively small.

Commerce.—Since the coming into effect of the Union there are no special records of trade for each of the Provinces. The Board of Trade statistics, however, continue to give details of trade between the United Kingdom and each Province separately. The following figures show the value of the trade between the Cape of Good Hope Province and the United Kingdom for five years:—

	1906	1909	1910	1911	1912
Imports from Cape	£ 6 094,557	£ 7,695,042	£ 7,786,042	£ 7 814 230	£ 8,060,044
Exports of U.K. products and manufactures to Cape	5,908,894	6,188,018	8,044,198	8 462,856	9,591,901

The more important imports and exports in 1911 were—Imports feathers, 1,918,848*l*; sheep's wool (72,842,862 lbs.) 2,764,247*l*; mohair, 787,452*l*; copper ore regulus, &c., 414,702*l*; raw hides, 161,365*l*; skins and furs, 874 465*l*; maize, 189,963*l*. The Government Savings Bank Returns are now compiled for the Union as a whole. In private Savings Banks in the Cape Province there were 9,881 depositors with £391,373 deposits at the end of 1911.

Money, Weights, and Measures—The coins and the standard weights and measures are British, but the following old Dutch measures are still used—Liquid Measure Leaguer = about 128 imperial gallons, half anm = 15½ imperial gallons, anker = 7½ imperial gallons. Capacity Mund = 8 bushels. The general surface measure is Morgen, equal to 2 1166402 acres, 1,000 Cape linear feet are equal to 1,038 British imperial feet. Recently a Bill was introduced to provide for the standardization of the metric system for weights and measures, with the optional use of imperial standards, except in the case of chemists, who are compelled to use the metric system.

Province of Natal.

Constitution and Government.—Natal which had been annexed to Cape Colony in 1844 was placed under separate government in 1845, and under charter of July 15, 1856, was erected into a separate Colony. By this charter partially representative institutions were established, and, under a Natal Act of 1893 assented to by Order in Council, June 28, 1893 the Colony obtained responsible government. The province of Zululand was annexed to Natal on December 30, 1897. The districts of Vryheid, Utrecht and part of Wakkerstroom, formerly belonging to the Transvaal, were in January, 1908, annexed to the colony. On May 31 1910, the Colony was merged in the Union of South Africa, becoming an original province of the Union.

The seat of provincial government in Natal is Pietermaritzburg

Administrator—The Hon. C. J. Smythe

Area and Population.—The Province (including Zululand, 10,461 square miles, and the Northern districts, 6,981 square miles) has an area of 35,290 square miles, with a seaboard of about 360 miles. The climate is sub-tropical on the coast and somewhat colder inland. It is well suited to Europeans. The Province is divided into 42 Magisterial Divisions.

The European population has more than trebled since 1879. The returns of the total population in 1891, 1901 and at the censuses of April 17, 1904, and May 7, 1911, were —

	1891	1901	1904	1911
Europeans	46,788	63,821	97,109	98,582
Indians and Asiatics	41,142	74,385	100,918	141,568
Natives	455,983	786,912	910,727 <sup>1</sup>	951,808

The figures for 1891 exclude Zululand, those for 1904 and 1911 include the districts of Vryheid, Utrecht, Paulpietersburg, Ngotshe, and Babanango. The number of males in 1911 was 567,574, and of females, 624,384.

Population of the borough of Durban according to the census of May 7, 1911: 72,512, consisting of Europeans, 33,271, natives (including half-castes), 18,662, Indians and Asiatics, 20,579, and of Pietermaritzburg, 30,539, consisting of 14,848 Europeans, 7,691 Indians and Asiatics, 8,000 natives, including half-castes.

So far as registered the births in 1911 numbered 6,924, deaths 1,955 and marriages, 2,092. Immigrants (1911) 17,583 (including 6,233 from the United Kingdom), emigrants 13,325 (including 5,576 to the United Kingdom). These figures exclude inter-provincial migration.

Instruction—With the exception of Higher Education, which has been placed under the control of the Union Government, Education comes under the Provincial Administration. There are 2 Government high schools, 57 Government primary schools, 2 Government art schools, 5 Government Indian schools, 2 Government schools for coloured children, besides 119 Government-aided schools, and 124 Government aided farmhouse schools for European children. Also there are 2 Technical Institutes, 81 Indian schools, 198 native schools, and 25 coloured schools, all of which receive Government aid, and a considerable number of private schools in the province. Four of the aided schools are secondary schools for girls. The aggregate number of European pupils in regular attendance at the Government and inspected schools was 15,968 for 1911, the average daily attendance 85 per cent of the number on the registers. At the Government high schools there is an average daily attendance of 659 pupils. About 3,800 children attend private unaided schools, and it is estimated that only a small percentage of white children are receiving no education. The number of European children receiving gratuitous education in 1911 was 2,707. The direct Government expenditure on Government schools for 1911 was 92,576*l* (excluding expenditure for furniture, buildings, but including maintenance). Fees paid by pupils in Government schools for 1911, 19,367*l*.

The 198 Government aided schools for natives had a total enrolment of 15 286, and received in 1911 grants in aid to the amount of 11,778*l.*, and the 81 Government-aided schools for the children of Indians had a total enrolment of 8,089 in 1911, for which a grant of 8,866*l.* was expended.

Finance—Since the coming into effect of the Union there is only one financial statement for the four provinces together. Particulars are given above under the Union. The only provincial revenue at present is the amount voted by Parliament by way of subsidies for the performance of the services and duties assigned to the Provinces. The following figures show the estimate of expenditure to be defrayed by the Natal Province during the year ending March 31, 1918, and a comparison with the approximate expenditure in the preceding year —

Industry—Up to the end of 1911, 8,311,000 acres of land had been alienated, 2,208,000 acres conditionally alienated, and 8,999,000 acres remained unalienated. These figures exclude 4,495,000 acres granted and leased up to the end of 1911 in Zululand and the Northern Territories. On the Coast and in Zululand there are vast plantations of sugar and tea, while cereals of all kinds (especially maize), fruits, vegetables, the acacia molarum, the bark of which is so much used for tanning purposes, and other crops grow prolifically. The production of maize in 1909 was 5,693,460 bushels, and of tea, in 1910, 2,092,000 lbs. In 1908, 2,537,000 lbs. of tobacco were produced. The leading crops for export are sugar, tea, maize, and wattle bark.

Cotton cultivation has been recently introduced, but is, as yet, only in the experimental stage, though decidedly promising.

The live stock in 1911 numbered 75,567 horses, 456,087 cattle, 1,512,258 sheep, 110,882 pigs.

The Colony is rich in mineral wealth, and while the coal industry is advancing, several gold mines on a small scale are successfully worked. During the year 1911, the output of coal and gold was as follows — Coal, 2,392,456 tons, valued at 725,448*l*, gold (fine), 1,706 ozs. valued at 7,848*l*. The average number of persons employed at coal mines in 1911 was 11,591.

Among the valuable minerals known to exist in the Colony are asbestos, copper ore, fireclay, gold, graphite, gypsum, iron ore, lead and silver ore, limestone and marble, manganese ore, mica, molybdenum ore, nickel ore, nitre, oil shale, and tin ore. Attention is being increasingly devoted to prospecting for gold, that metal being found very widely distributed both in quartz and bankot' reefs.

A Whaling Industry has been established at Durban, and is carried on by six companies. In 1911 the number of whales killed and landed was 992 humpbacks, 2 blue 7 shad, 3 herring, 2 right, and 12 rorqual. To July 1912 the captures numbered 188.

Commerce — Since the coming into effect of the Union there are no special records made for each of the Provinces: the Board of Trade statistics, however, continue to give details of trade between the United Kingdom and each Province separately. The following figures show the value of the trade between Natal Province and the United Kingdom for five years —

	1906.	1909	1910	1911.	1912
	£	£	£	£	£

Exports of U.K. produce and manufactures to Natal	2,938 894	3 537 000	5 009 432	4 540 343	4,877,642

The more important imports and exports in 1911 were — Imports maize, 181,490*l*, raw hides, 250,051*l*, sheep's wool (29 509,761 lbs.), 1,047,029*l*. Exports cotton, 364,767*l*, machinery, 472 004*l*, iron and steel goods, 714,055*l*, apparel, 497,582*l*.

Province of the Transvaal.

Constitution and Government.—The territory comprised within the limits of The Transvaal was colonised by Boers who left Cape Colony in 1836-37. In 1852 the independence of the Transvaal Government was recognised by Great Britain, but, in 1877, in consequence of financial difficulties and troubles with the natives, and in accordance with representations and petitions from the Boers the territory was annexed by the British Government. In 1880 the Boers took up arms for the restoration of their independence, and, in 1881, a Convention was signed restoring to the inhabitants of the territory their self-government, but with conditions, reservations, and limitations, and subject to the suzerainty of the Queen. This arrangement was modified by a Convention made in 1884, in which the name of the South African Republic was given to the Transvaal State, but the control over external affairs, other than engagements with the Orange Free State, was reserved to Her Majesty. These Conventions however, did not preserve harmony within the Transvaal territory, or with the British Government. The discovery of gold and the conditions which followed this discovery occasioned difficulties from which the two Boer States sought release by military action. The result of this was the military occupation of the two countries, and their annexation to the British Crown the one on September 1, 1900 under the name of The Transvaal, and the other (May 24) as the Orange River Colony. Hostilities continued till May 31, 1902, when an agreement as to terms of surrender was signed by the representatives of the burgher forces in the field. [See Statesman's Year Book for 1906 under The Transvaal.]

The administration was thereafter carried on under a Governor and Lieutenant-Governor, assisted by an Executive and a Legislative Council. On December 6, 1906, letters patent were issued providing for a Constitution of responsible Government in the Colony. The Colony was merged in the Union of South Africa on May 31, 1910 as an original Province of the Union.

The seat of provincial government for the Transvaal is at Pretoria.

Administrator—The Hon J F B Rissik (salary 2 500*l*.)

Area and Population.—The area of the Province is 110,426 square miles, divided into 23 districts. The census of May 7, 1911, showed for the Transvaal a population amounting to 1,686,212, of whom 868,793 were males, and 719,419 females. The population comprised 420,881 Europeans or whites, 1,224,155 natives, and 81,625 other coloured races.

The white population of Pretoria in 1911 was 29,618. The largest town is Johannesburg, the mining centre of Witwatersrand goldfields, with a population (1911) of 237,220, consisting of 119,953 whites and 117,267 coloured.

Births, 1911, 19,495; deaths, 16,886; marriages, 6,626.

218 THE BRITISH EMPIRE — UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA

The system of education was embodied in the Education Act which was passed during the first session of the first Parliament elected under responsible government, and which provides that all education except that of a university type shall be under the provincial authority. The Colony has been divided for the purposes of local control and management into twenty-seven school districts, each under a School Board chosen by the Parliamentary electors. All the schools within the school district, with the exception of schools for natives and certain secondary schools, are under the supervision of the Board. Each school may have a Committee elected by the parents and guardians of the children enrolled. Recommendations of Committees come under the review of the Boards and may be modified or rejected by them.

The following table gives statistics of education for Dec. 31, 1911 —

	Schools	Final Enrolment	Average Enrolment	Average Attendance
High Schools	8	1 410	1 417	1,807
Secondary Departments of Primary Schools	—	980	1 006	917

Coloured Schools	11	1 030	1 607	1 400
Total	708	54 078	54 167	48 210

The 3 Normal Colleges had 209 enrolled students. There are 227 native schools, which have 13 367 pupils. The number of pupils in secondary schools on December 31, 1911, was 2,396.

In respect of the question of language, the medium of instruction up to and including the fourth standard is the home language (English or Dutch) of the pupil but parents may request that the second language be gradually introduced as a second medium. Above the fourth standard provision is made for the instruction of pupils through the medium of English and Dutch, and the parent of each pupil may choose one of the two languages as the sole medium of instruction, or both of the languages as the media of instruction. If the parent of any pupil fails to exercise his right of choice, that pupil is instructed through the medium of the language which is the better known and understood by him, the other language being also used as far as possible as a medium of instruction. Bible History is taught in every school, but no doctrine or dogma peculiar to any religious denomination or sect may be taught.

Finance.—Since the coming into effect of the Union there is only one financial statement for the four provinces together. Particulars are given above under the Union. The only Provincial Revenue at present is the amount voted by Parliament by way of subsidies for the performance of the services and duties assigned to the Provinces. While the three other Provinces publish particulars of the estimate of this grant, Transvaal does not. The only available figures are the following —

Estimated expenditure for year ending April, 1912,	£1,367,075
" " " " 1913,	£1,392,900

Production and Industry—The Transvaal Province is in the main a stock raising country, though there are portions of it well adapted for agriculture. The production of wheat in 1910 was 774,800 bushels, barley, 28,800 bushels, oats, 55,000 bushels, maize, 10,065,000 bushels, potatoes, 773,000 bushels, tobacco, 5,346,000 lbs.

Live stock, 1911 Horses, 89 160, cattle, 1,339,298, sheep, 3,415,250, pigs, 302,882

The mineral output of the Transvaal in 1910 and 1911 is given as follows —

The value of the output of gold in 1912 was about 38,750,000/, and the total value of gold production from 1884 to the end of 1912, about 364,000,000/. The number of natives employed at gold mines at the end of 1912 was about 191,000. At diamond mines the number of natives was 15,000, and at coal mines 8,800.

In 1904 Chinese labour was introduced for mining purposes under an Ordinance with restrictive conditions. In December, 1905, the granting of permits for the importation of Chinese was stopped. The month of January, 1907, shows the highest number in the country, viz., 53 856. The last Chinese to be repatriated, left in March, 1910. The Transvaal has iron and brass foundries and engineering works, grain mills, breweries, brick, tile, and pottery works, tobacco, soap, and candle factories, coach and wagon works &c.

Commerce—Since the coming into effect of the Union there are no special records of trade for each of the Provinces. The Board of Trade statistics, however, continue to give details of trade between the United Kingdom and each Province. The following figures show the value of the trade between the Transvaal Province and the United Kingdom for five years —

—	1908	1909	1910	1911	1912
Imports from Transvaal	7 197	805,843	455 180	302,585	156 738
Exports of U K produce and manufactures to Transvaal	3,100,083	4 405 340	5 762 587	6 681 868	6 064,853

The more important imports and exports in 1911 were —Imports Tin ore, 212,989/, gold ore, 86 692/, copper ore 49,721/. Exports Cottons, 520,960/, apparel, 1 077,521/, machinery, 310 011/, iron and steel, 742,997/, leather and leather manufactures, 467,854/.

Province of the Orange Free State

The Orange River was first crossed by Europeans about the middle of the 18th century. Between 1810 and 1820, several Europeans settled in the southern parts of the Orange Free State. The Great Trek greatly augmented the number of settlers during and after 1836. At first no settled government was established. In 1848, Sir Harry Smith proclaimed the whole territory between the Orange and Vaal Rivers as a British Possession and established what was called the Orange River Sovereignty. A British Resident was appointed at Bloemfontein, with Assistant Commissioners at Winburg and Caledon River. Great dissatisfaction was caused by this step, as well as by the native policy of the British Government. In 1854 the Convention of Bloemfontein, by which British Sovereignty was withdrawn and the independence of the country was recognised, was signed by Sir George Russell Clerk.

During the first five years of its existence the Orange Free State was much harassed by incessant raids by, and fighting with, the Basutos. Mosheesh was at length conquered. The British Government then stepped in and arranged matters much to the dissatisfaction of the conquering party. By the treaty of Aliwal North, only a part of the territory of Mosheesh was incorporated in the Orange Free State. This part is still known as the Conquered Territory.

A great deal of unpleasantness was caused by the dispute over the Kimberley Diamond Fields, which belonged to the Orange Free State, but were annexed to the Cape Colony by the British Government.

On account of the Treaty between the Orange Free State and South African Republic, the former State took a prominent part in the South African War (1899-1902), and was annexed to the British Dominions by proclamation of Lord Roberts, on May 28, 1900 as the Orange River Colony. After peace was declared Crown Colony Government was established and continued until 1907, when responsible government was introduced. On May 31, 1910, the Orange River Colony was merged in the Union of South Africa as the Province of the Orange Free State.

The seat of provincial government is at Bloemfontein.

Administrator—The Hon A. E. W. Ramsbottom (salary, 2,000*l.*)

There are municipalities at Bloemfontein and other centres, 40 in all; local authorities have, so far as possible, the usual local administrative powers.

Area and Population.—The area of the Province is estimated at 50,392 square miles, it is divided into 24 districts. The population at the last 3 censuses was as follows—

Year	White			Coloured			Total
	Males	Females	Total	Males	Females	Total	Males	Females	In all
1890	40,571	37,145	77,716	67,791	61,996	129,787	108,862	93,141	207,503
1904	47,571	43,106	90,677	123,624	116,112	244,636	210,096	177,220	387,316
1911	54,617	50,572	105,189	184,165	168,820	353,985	278,780	249,292	528,072

The capital, Bloemfontein, had in 1911, 14,720 white inhabitants (8,005 males and 6,715 females), and 12,169 natives (6,804 males and 5,365 females); total, 26,889.

Births, 1911, 5,093 (among Europeans), deaths, 1,850 (among Europeans), marriages, 2,452.

Religion.—The principal body, according to the census of 1904, is the Dutch Reformed Church with 101,079 adherents, of Wesleyans there were 5,121, English Episcopalians, 17,879, Lutherans, 700, Roman Catholics, 3,286, Jews, 113. The State Government used to contribute 10,050*l* for religious purposes. It was divided into 36 parochial districts for ecclesiastical purposes, and it contained about 80 churches.

Education.—Higher education is under the control of the Minister of Education for the Union, while primary and secondary education is controlled by the Administrator of the Province. Under the School Act of 1908 the Province is divided into a number of School Districts. Each Government School is under the supervision of a School Committee elected by the parents. For each District there is also a School Board, appointed partly by the School Committees and partly by the Government, which exercises general supervision over all schools within its district. The School Committees have the right of nominating teachers, subject to the approval of the Department. Grants are given conditionally to private schools. At present there are 595 Government or Government aided schools in the Province with a total enrolment of 21,800. Fees are charged at all schools, and attendance is in general compulsory. Both English and Dutch are taught to all children. A Government Boarding and Day School for Girls, in Bloemfontein, has about 200 pupils. There are also the Convent School, St. Michael's Home, and the "Orange" Mesages School, all Boarding Schools for Girls, the last-named receiving a grant from Government.

A Normal School was established soon after the war. From 30 to 40 teachers are trained annually. Since January, 1910, there is also a chair in Education at the Grey University College. In connection with the Normal School technical classes have been instituted, and teachers of cookery, dress making, etc. are maintained throughout the Colony. There is a Home Industries Board, which controls the Spinning and Weaving Industry. A Government Industrial School was opened at Bloemfontein in the beginning of 1907. The boys (about 50) are apprenticed to various trades in the railway workshops or in the town, and reside in the institution. At the Preparatory Technical School, also in Bloemfontein, instruction is given in basket-making and other similar industries, in addition to the ordinary school course. All the leading Town Schools of the Colony have advanced departments which prepare pupils up to the standard of matriculation. The gross expenditure on education for the financial year 1911-12 was approximately 200,000*l*.

Justice.—The Roman Dutch law prevails. The superior courts of the province are the Provincial Division of the Supreme Court of South Africa and the circuit courts. The inferior courts are the courts of the Resident Magistrates and the courts of the special Justices of the Peace. The circuit courts, at which the judges of the Supreme Court preside in turn, are held twice a year in the chief town of certain districts. Criminal sessions of the Supreme Court are held at Bloemfontein four times a year. In these courts criminal cases are tried before a jury. The Resident Magistrate's court has both civil and criminal jurisdiction. There are also special justices of the peace who try minor offences and settle minor disputes.

Finance.—Since the coming into effect of the Union there is only one financial statement for the four Provinces together. Particulars are given above under the Union. The only Provincial revenue at present is the amount voted by Parliament by way of subsidies for the performance of the services and duties assigned to the Province. The following figures show the estimates of expenditure to be defrayed by the Orange Free State Province during the year ending March 31, 1913 and a comparison with the approximate expenditure in the preceding year

Production and Industry—The Province consists of undulating plains, affording excellent grazing and wide tracks for agricultural purposes. The rainfall is moderate. The country is still mainly devoted to stock farming, although a rapidly increasing quantity of grain is being raised, especially in the Eastern Districts. The Department of Agriculture encourages practical and scientific farming of all kinds and is divided into branches dealing with experimental farm work, forestry, horticulture, dairying, sheep and wool, stock diseases, &c. Experimental farms, forest stations, horticultural plots, &c., have been established, and lectures are given in the various districts by specialists of the Department with a view to enabling the farmers to benefit by the latest improvements in agricultural methods. The Land Board, created in 1901, has been engaged in facilitating the settlement of British farmers. This Board was replaced on October 1, 1907, by the new Land Board provided for in the Letters Patent, who held office and administered the affairs of Land Settlement for 5 years from above date. Since October 1, 1901, up to 1906, when the Board made no further purchases, 1,109,081 acres had been purchased at a cost of 846,184*l*. In addition to this, 519,632 acres were inherited from the late Orange Free State Government, valued at 820,000*l*, so that Government had at its disposal 1,628,713 acres, valued at 1,166,184*l*. The whole of this was distributed among 647 settlers, or an average of a little under 2,270 acres each. The Board created in 1907 ceased to exist, in terms of the Constitution providing for the establishment of Responsible Government in the late Orange River Colony, on September 30, 1912, on which date there were 550 settlers, heads of families, under its control and well established upon the land, exclusive of 97 men who had completed purchase, thus becoming freehold owners. During the existence of the two Boards, over 1,300 settlers were placed upon the land, the majority of whom are still farming in the Province. In order to meet the wishes of the settlers who were sufficiently established to dispense with further assistance, the Union Government brought forward a new Act which, after receiving the approval of Parliament during the last Session came into force on July 1, 1912. Under this Act (No. 15 of 1912) facilities are given settlers in the Orange Free State to obtain Crown Grants of land on perpetual quit rent tenure, and practically every settler applied to the Board to come under this Act, thereby making it unnecessary for the Government to arrange for the continuation of any Administrative Body in respect of these settlers, after the demise of the Board on September 30, 1912, in accordance with the provisions of the Letters Patent. The capital sum of 1,250,000*l* received from Inter Colonial funds has been expended on the experiment and the Board handed over to the Union Government, in addition to some 70,000*l* in cash, assets in land and other securities amounting in value to a sum equal to, if not greater than, the capital sum above mentioned, which will be recoverable during the next 20 years or so, with meanwhile an assured income, in interest at 4 per cent., of 50,000*l* per annum.

In 1910-11 there were 223,328 acres under wheat. The live stock within the Province in 1911 was as follows:—Horses, 220,725, cattle, 1,286,234, sheep, 8,587,638, pigs, 162,686.

The principal mineral products in the last 4 years were as follows:—

Year	Coal		Diamonds		Salt
	Tons	Value	Carats	Value	Tons	Value
		£		£		£
1907-8	468,892	14,872	505,452	1,069,942	19,000	82,000
1908-9	420,170	125,627	584,819	1,045,807	13,996	17,100
1910	419,489	131,728	780,195	1,306,074	21,000	21,000
1911	420,973	137,616	798,152	1,611,486	—	—

Commerce.—Since the coming into effect of the Union there are no special records of trade for each of the Provinces. The Board of Trade statistics, however, continue to give details of trade between the United Kingdom and each Province separately. The following figures show the value of the trade between the Orange Free State Province and the United Kingdom for four years:—

	1909	1910	1911	1912

The more important exports in 1911, were —Cottons 83,022 $\frac{1}{2}$  leather and leather manufactures 52 823 $\frac{1}{2}$ , machinery, 11,127 $\frac{1}{2}$  woollens, 85,484 $\frac{1}{2}$ , apparel, 138,354 $\frac{1}{2}$

WEST AFRICA

These Possessions are the Northern Nigeria Protectorate, Southern Nigeria, comprising the S Nigeria Protectorate and the Colony of Southern Nigeria (Lagos), the Gold Coast Colony with Ashanti and Northern Territories, Sierra Leone Colony and Protectorate and the Gambia Colony and Protectorate

Northern Nigeria<sup>1</sup>

Area, Population, &c —Area 255 700 square miles, divided into 13 Provinces, viz., Sokoto, Kano, Bornu Yola, Muri Nassarawa, Kabba, Bassa, Illorin, Niger, Bauchi, Zaria, Kontagora, population estimated (1911) 9,269,000 (4,084,000 males and 5,235,000 females) [For Protectorate boundaries see STATESMAN'S YEAR BOOK for 1907 p 262] In each Province there is a Resident with several assistants. In cases where the old Emirs would not acknowledge the new régime, new Emirs of the same dynasty and recognised by the people, have been appointed. In 1900 a proclamation was issued which, without abolishing domestic slavery, declares all children born after January 1, 1900, free, forbids the removal of domestic slaves for sale or transfer, and extends to all inhabitants of the Protectorate the penalties for dealing in slaves. Slave markets have been suppressed by native rulers.

and slave dealing is now practically non-existent in the Protectorate. In 1910, 1,842 slaves were liberated. The headquarters are at Zungeru, about eighty miles up the Kaduna River.

Justice.—There is a supreme Court of Justice, and in each province a Provincial Court consisting of the Resident and his assistants, and such justices of the peace as may be appointed by the Governor. Native courts exist in Mohammedan localities where there are chiefs and counsellors, and amongst pagan tribes Judicial Councils with limited judicial powers have been established in localities where the intelligence of the natives renders such a policy possible. The orders of the native courts are enforced by police constables, known as 'Dogarai.' There are cantonments at Zungeru on the Kaduna and Lokoja on the Niger, and there magistrates have been appointed. The number of persons apprehended or summoned before all the Courts (except native courts) in 1911 was 2,896. The offences were —Offences against the person, 402. Offences against the Slavery Law, 66. Offences against property, 682. Miscellaneous offences, 1,896, total, 2,996. 2,608 persons were convicted.

Religion and Education.—Mohammedanism is widely diffused, the Fulani and Hausas and other ruling tribes being of that religion, but in some parts of the territory paganism is predominant. Protestant and Catholic missions are at work, and have industrial and other schools at several stations. An Education Department has been established. The principles governing the education of natives in the Egyptian Sudan are being closely followed in the Protectorate. Secular subjects only are compulsory, the acceptance of religious teaching is optional, but at present as the schools are situated at Kano, a great Mohammedan centre, all the pupils are Mohammedan and instruction on the Koran given by Mallams (Moslem scholars) is generally adopted.

Defence.—The military force consists of 3 companies of mounted infantry, 2 battalions of infantry and 1 battery of artillery with 101 European officers, 61 European non-commissioned officers, and 2,969 native ranks. The police force consists of 18 European officers and about 700 native police.

Finance —Revenue and expenditure for 5 years —

	Revenue	Expenditure
1907-08	508,005	498,802
1908-09	538,445	540,844
1909-10	530,468	566,848
1910-11	619,888	565,700

<sup>1</sup> The increase in 1911-12 are due to the inclusion in that year, for the first time, of the revenue and expenditure on account of the native administration.

The main items of revenue in 1911-12 were —Land Revenue, 418,832, Customs dues, 28,038; Railway earnings, 44,059; Imperial grant-in-aid, 247,000, and 10,000 paid by S. Nigeria in consideration of Customs duties collected on the coast. The chief items of expenditure in 1911-12 were —Provincial Administration, 40,027; West African Frontier Force, 158,947; Native Affairs, 196,925; Post and Telegraphs, 27,87.

Medical, 32,556L, Police, 26,425L, Transport, 38,906L, Marine, 86,196L, Baro-Kano Railway, open lines, 61 0672

In 1911 there was established in each native State a Treasury, locally known as a "Beit-el Mal" which regulates the expenditure of that portion of the local revenue which is annually assigned to the native administration of each Emirate for its support and maintenance. The establishment of a Beit-el-Mal consolidates the rank and authority of the Emirs and Chiefs in each province. It strengthens the position of the native judiciary and diminishes extortion and corruption.

Production and Industry—The products of the low country are palm oil and kernels, of the inland regions, rubber, ground nuts shea-butter, ivory, hides, live stock, ostrich feathers capsicums, kola nuts and various drugs. Cotton growing is now carried on and several ginneries are at work. Tobacco is also grown. Sheep and goat skins are tanned and dyed. A geological survey under the direction of the Imperial Institute has been completed and the final reports have been published. The natives have worked iron, lead and tin for centuries. Rich alluvial deposits of tin ore have been discovered in the Bauchi, Kano, Zaria, Nassarawa and Kabba Provinces. Lodes have also been found and mining operations have commenced. At present the ore is being won almost entirely by panning or calabashing, but the ground is suitable for sluicing operations and some of the companies have imported and are erecting extensive sluicing plant. The ore is exported in the form of washed and dressed concentrates which average 70 per cent of metallic tin. It is anticipated that the tin mining industry will ultimately develop into one of the greatest sources of wealth of the Protectorate. The tin bearing area so far as it is now known extends over 9 000 square miles of territory, its general direction in point of length being from north east to south west. The output of tin in 1911 was 1 471 tons.

Rich reefs of galena carrying a considerable silver return are known to exist in the province of Muri; these reefs, which are to some extent worked by the natives for Tozali are now being closely prospected and assayed. Pockets of native silver have from time to time been discovered in the vicinity of Orufe and Wukari.

The whole of the mining rights are vested in the Government, but under an agreement made with the Royal Niger Company at the date of the revocation of the charter, the Niger Company will receive half the gross profits derived from royalties on minerals won between the main stream of the Niger on the west and a line running direct from Yola to Zinder on the east for a period of 99 years with effect from January 1, 1900.

Commerce and Communication—Considerable trade is carried on in Northern Nigeria, and several new trading stations have been recently opened. There is besides, a large trade by caravans which, coming from Salaga in the west, Tripoli, Morocco, and the Sahara in the north, and Lake Chad and Wadai in the east make use of Kano as an emporium. It is anticipated that on the railway reaching Kano this trade will be diverted and come in from the south. The imports are chiefly cottons, hardware, building material, machinery, and tinned provisions, which are bartered for the produce of the country. (For statistics of trade, see pages 234-5.) Spirits are prohibited throughout the Protectorate.

The construction of a railway of 400 miles from Baro (at the head of the permanently navigable portion of the Niger) to Bida, Zungeru, Zaria, and Kano, was completed in March, 1911. The railway has a 3ft 6in gauge. The Lagos railway was opened to Jebba in August, 1909 and was joined up with the Minna-Zungeru link in June, 1911. A weekly boat train with sleeping accommodation and a restaurant-car runs between Lagos and Zaria. A Government land transport system by pack and draft animals is in operation. The Government has for transport on the Niger and its tributaries 1 twin screw steamer, 8 stern wheelers, 5 steam canoes, 1 motor canoe, 2 steam pinnaces, 1 steam tug, 17 steel polling canoes, 3 steam stern wheel tugs, and a number of 11-90 ton barges. Telegraph lines are laid from the Lagos frontier to Jebba, thence to Lokoja, Zungeru, Kano, Yola, Sokoto and Maidugeri. The N. Nigeria telegraph system is now connected with the French Dahomey system. The total mileage telegraph line is 4,200.

British coinage is beginning to displace the barter system. There are branches of the Bank of British West Africa at Lokoja, Jebba, Zungeru and Zaria.

Governor and Commander in Chief—Sir Frederick D. Lugard, G. O. M. G., D. S. O., C. B.

Southern Nigeria

By Royal Letters Patent dated the 28th of February, 1906 the Colony and Protectorate of Southern Nigeria is made to comprise the old Colony and Protectorate of Lagos, together with the old Protectorate of Southern Nigeria.

The Colony and Protectorate is divided into three Provinces, namely the Western Province, consisting of the old Colony and Protectorate of Lagos, the Central Province and the Eastern Province. The two latter comprise the old Protectorate of Southern Nigeria. Each Province is presided over by a Provincial Commissioner, and divided into Districts under the charge of District Commissioners and Assistant District Commissioners.

Governor and Commander in Chief—Sir Frederick D. Lugard, G. O. M. G., D. S. O., C. B.

Colonial Secretary—A. G. Boyle, C. M. G.

Provincial Commissioners—F. S. James, C. M. G., H. Bedwell, Major H. C. Moorhouse, D. S. O.

The seat of Government is at Lagos, where is also the Supreme Court. There are Executive and Legislative Councils, the latter consisting of 15 members—9 official and 6 unofficial.

The total area is about 79,880 square miles, and the native population (census 1911), 7,655,749, consisting of the Yoruba and Ibo people and a congeries of tribes of varying degrees of size and civilisation. European population is about 1,650, consisting of Government officials, traders, missionaries and others. The climate is not healthy for Europeans. The strength of the police force at the end of 1911 was 1,388, namely Western Province, 617, Central Province 332, and Eastern Province, 437. Persons apprehended 1911, 13,893, summarily convicted, 10,074, committed for trial, 652.

Government has instituted a system of primary and secondary schools, with a staff (1911) of 189 teachers, including 19 technical instructors. There is a residential school at Bonny, supported by Government grants, and by Chiefs' subscriptions. There is a Government secondary school and mission grammar school at Lagos, and a high school at Calabar. In 1911 there were 60 Government schools, 4 being girls' schools, and a large number of mission schools, 113 of which received assistance from the Government. There were 5,837 pupils (238 girls) in the Government schools, average attendance of

3,588 (145 girls), in the assisted schools 14 216 pupils (2,478 girls), average attendance of 10,414 (1,700 girls) The number of children attending non-assisted schools is estimated at not less than 18,000 Government grant (1911), 8,048*l* Total expenditure, 27,159*l*

Four British Protestant Societies and two French Roman Catholic Societies are established, each with several stations

Revenue, 1911, 1,838,176*l* (mainly from Customs dues, 1,488,886*l*, railways and tramways, 307,912*l* and Court fees, &c., 93 940*l*) Expenditure 1,717 259*l* (the chief items being railways, 175,229*l*, marine, 120 141*l*, debt charge, 228,042*l* West African Frontier Force 91 803*l* works and buildings, 106 412*l*) Total debt March 31, 1912 6,471,288*l* (For further statistics of finance, and also statistics of trade and shipping, see pages 233-6)

The principal ports are Lagos, Warri, Burutu, Forcados Sapele, Brass, Degema, Bonny, Opobo, and Calabar Numerous rivers and creeks form the chief routes for transport, and there are many well made roads driven through the country At Lagos Calabar, and Forcados there are engineering and repairing workshops and slip ways for the repair of hulls

At Lagos a mole is being constructed and a deep channel is being made over the Bar to admit ocean steamers entering the harbour

The chief products are palm oil and kernels, rubber, cotton, cocoa, coffee gum, copal ivory, hides maize, yams cassava, plantains earth nuts and fruits There are nurseries for rubber seedlings, and botanical stations at Calabar, Onitsha, Oloke Meji near Lagos, and Agege Mahogany is exported in large quantities Arab caravan traders are being attracted from the northern territories, who deal largely in leather and skins

There are deposits in Southern Nigeria of manganese ore, argentiferous lead ore (galena), tin ore (cassiterite), lignite and monazite (which contains thorium) Laterite is abundantly used for making roads The only manufactures are the weaving of native cloths and mats, boat and canoe building and brickmaking The cotton industry is rapidly growing both in extent and value

There is a railway from Lagos to Jebba (306½ miles), in Northern Nigeria, and is extended to Zungeru and Kano Routes for other railways have been surveyed There is a steam tramway from Lagos to Iddo, the southern terminus.

There were at the end of 1911, 1,829 miles of telegraph lines, and 4,169 miles of wire, connecting important towns and Northern Nigeria There were 374 miles (wire mileage) of telephone

In 1911, 3 732 325 letters, postcards, newspapers and book packets, and 114,973 parcels passed through the post office The savings bank, on December 31st, 1911, had 4,368 depositors with 38,487*l* to their credit.

A nickel coinage (penny and tenth of a penny) has been introduced

The Bank of British West Africa, Ltd., has branches at Lagos, Calabar, Burutu, and Onitsha.

Western Province—This province includes that part of Southern Nigeria known as the "Colony" Its area is approximately 28,600 square miles, while that of the Colony alone is 4,006 square miles The population (1911) is 2,152,848 The coastline is about 128 miles. Northwards the territory extends over Yorubaland to the confines of Northern Nigeria The population of Lagos Town including Ebute Metta, the headquarters of the railway, is 78,000, and includes roughly 500 Europeans. The largest town is Ibadan, population 175,000, where there is a British Resident District Commissioners are stationed at Abeokuta, Badagry, Epe, Ikoredu Ikasha Ijebu-Ode, Ikeke, Ondo Oshogbo, and Oyo.

Eastern and Central Provinces.—The approximate area of these two provinces together is 51,280 square miles and population (1911) 5,708,841 (Eastern Province 3,297,247 Central, 2,408,694). The prominent tribes are the Bani, the Ibos, the Jekris, the Sobos, the Igaras, the Ijaws, and the Efiks. The Aros are a large trading tribe of the Ibo family and are to be found all over the Eastern Province. Cannibalism and human sacrifices exist to some extent, but these practices are rapidly being stamped out. Agriculture is extensively carried on.

The headquarters of the Central Province are at Warri. The other most important towns in the Central Province are Abo, Agbor, Asaba Awka, Benin, Forcados, Idah Ifon, Ubiaja, Kwale, Onitsha Okwoga Sapela, and Udi. Calabar is the headquarters of the Eastern Province. The other most important towns are Aba, Abak Abakaliki, Afikpo, Ahoada Aro Chuku, Bende, Bonny Brass, Degema, Eket, Ikem Ikot-Ekpene, Ohan, Obubra, Obudu, Ogoja, Okigwi Opobo, Owerri, and Uyo.

There is a weekly mail service between Liverpool, Forcados, and Calabar via Lagos.

Gold Coast.

The Gold Coast stretches for 334 miles along the Gulf of Guinea, between the French Ivory Coast and German Togoland. The Colony is administered by a Governor with an Executive and a Legislative Council, both nominated, with four unofficial members in latter. The area of the Colony, Ashanti and Protectorate is about 80,000 square miles, population, census 1911 1,502,899, Europeans 1,700. Chief towns Accra, 19,585, Sekondi, 7,725, Cape Coast Castle, 11,864, Quetta, Saltpond, Winneba, Axim, and Akuse. There are 9 Government primary schools and 153 assisted schools which are under the control of the various religious bodies, the Basel, Wesleyan, Roman Catholic, Bremen Missions, Church of England (S.P.G.) and African Methodist Episcopal Zionist, average attendance of primary and secondary schools, 18,619 (1911) enrolled 18,680, Government grant 1911, 7,502½. Revenue, 1911, 1,111,632½ (customs 668,071½, rail ways 294,650½). Expenditure 914,500½ (railways, 127,909½, public works 130,709½, public debt charges, 80,677½, Gold Coast Regiment, 65,098½, medical, 61,469½, education, 19,537½). Public debt, December 31, 1911 2,489,118½. (For further statistics and for statistics of trade and shipping, see pages 233-6). In 1911 the savings bank had 8,187 depositors with 34,781½ to their credit. The strength of the police (1911), 10 European officers and 770 of other ranks. This includes 1 European officer and 105 other ranks in Ashanti. The constabulary (Northern Territories) consists of 2 officers and 819 of other ranks. Staple products and exports, palm oil, palm kernels, cocoa, and indiarubber, the export of valuable native woods is increasing. Many of the coast inhabitants are fishermen, and there is considerable traffic in dried fish by rail into the interior. The botanical station at Aburi aids in the plantation of coconut trees, rubber, cocoa, coffee, cotton, pepper, nutmeg, pimento, and croton.

Gold is found in quartz, in banket, and in alluvium. The output of gold in recent years was 1907, 278,898 oz. (1,168,516½), 1908, 281,257 oz. (1,184,748½), 1909, 230,494 oz. (879,074½), 1910, 204,617 oz. (780,282½), 1911, 253,976 oz. (1,079,024½), 1912, 1,350,000½. There is a Government railway, from Sekondi on the coast to Ceomade, a total length of 168 miles, capital expenditure to end of 1911, 2,644,840½. A line between Accra and Mangoase (40 miles) is under construction. Road construction is proceeding.

rapidly, about 200 miles are kept up for vehicular traffic and 1,988 miles are maintained as tracks and bridle paths. There are in the Colony 1,492 miles of telegraph line and 48 offices, and telephone exchanges at Accra, Cape Coast, Sekondi, Takorah and Dodowa, telegrams in 1911, 273,422. The number of letters, packets, &c., handled in the postal service in 1911 was 5,506,636.

Ashanti was placed under British protection on August 27, 1896, and a British Resident was appointed to Coomassie. Under orders in Council of September 26, 1901, the country was definitely annexed by Great Britain, the Governor of the Gold Coast being appointed Governor of Ashanti, though the laws and ordinances of the Gold Coast do not apply to the annexed territory. The population (census 1911) was 287,814. Coomassie, the chief town, has 8,850 inhabitants. In Ashanti 5 religious missions are at work with a total (1911) of 89 schools, and 1,296 pupils, and a Government school with 844 pupils. Police force, 100, convictions (1911) 1,961 but there is little serious crime. Revenue (1911), 50,819*l* (from post office, liquor licences, rents, fees, &c.). Expenditure, 146,317*l*. Agriculture is extending, cocoa plantations are being formed. Gold output (1911), 124,878 oz. (530,853*l*). In the western parts of the Gold Coast Colony and especially of Ashanti are rich forests with excellent timber trees (mahogany, cedar, &c.), trees yielding fruits, rich in oil, rubber bearing plants, and species yielding gum copal. The country is well watered and with proper restraints on wasteful native farming and on over-exploitation would contain inexhaustible supplies of valuable forest products. On the eastern side the forests are sparser, though timber and oil trees are common and game plentiful, the products there are chiefly maize, koko, yams, bananas, ground nuts, and coconuts, the plantations of which are rapidly extending. In 1901 the Northern Territories lying to the north of the parallel of 8° N lat., bounded on the west and north by the French possessions and on the east by the German possessions, were placed under British protection. They are administered under the Governor by a Chief Commissioner with his headquarters at Tamale. By the census taken in 1911 the population of the region to the north of Kintampo (variously estimated at from 38,000 to 50,000 square miles) is put at 357,569. The Mohammedans have substantial mosques there are Catholic and other missions, and one Government school at Tamale. The revenue (1911) amounted to 2,426*l*, expenditure, 65,085*l*. Good permanent roads are being made. A silver currency has been introduced with good results, but for small purchases cowries are still used. The Northern Territories are capable of producing various agricultural crops (cereals, indigo, tobacco), and are said to contain wide auriferous areas.

There is one bank (with 3 branches), the Bank of British West Africa, Ltd. The legal currency of the Gold Coast is British sterling silver coins are legal tender to any amount, and bronze up to one shilling. French, Spanish, and American gold coins are legal at fixed values.

Governor of the Gold Coast — J. J. Thorburn, C.M.G. (£3,000*l* and 1,000*l* duty allowance).

Chief Commissioner of Ashanti — F. C. Fuller, C.M.G.

Chief Commissioner of the Northern Territories of the Gold Coast — Captain C. H. Armitage, D.S.O., C.M.G.

Sierra Leone.

Sierra Leone lies between French Guinea on the north and the Republic of Liberia on the east and south-east. Governor, Sir E. M. Morewether, K.O.V.O., C.M.G. (2,500*l*), Colonial Secretary, A. O. Hollis, C.M.G. There are Executive and Legislative Councils, nominated. Sierra Leone proper consists in the peninsula about 26 miles long, and 12 miles broad, with an area of about 300 square miles, terminating in Cape Sierra Leone. The Colony of Sierra Leone extends from the Scarcies River on the north, to the border of Liberia in the south, 180 miles. It extends inland to a distance varying from 8 to 20 miles and includes the Yellaboi and other islands towards the north, as well as Sherbro and several smaller islands to the south, but the Isles de Los were ceded to France under the Convention of 1904. Area of the Colony 515 square miles, population (census, 1911), 75,572, of whom 702 were whites. The birth rate for Freetown (1911) was 14 per thousand and the death rate 21, infant mortality is very high. The assisted schools are all denominational belonging to 8 missionary societies. In 1910 there were 96 primary schools with 8,549 enrolled pupils and an average attendance of 5,460. In aid 2 1907. There are (1911) 14 secondary schools in the Colony 8 of which are missionary institutions, while the remainder are owned privately. Pupils exceed 1,000. A technical school has (1911) 31 pupils. Fourah Bay College is affiliated to the University of Durham, at the close of 1911 it had 25 students. Under the Government department of Mohammedan Education there are 5 schools, with an average attendance (1911) of 456, in the Colony. Mohammedan youths are being trained as teachers. Chief town, Freetown 84,090 inhabitants (1911), headquarters of H.M. forces in West Africa. The battalion of the West African Frontier Force has its headquarters at Daru on the Moa River. Freetown, the greatest seaport in West Africa, is a second class Imperial coaling station, with an excellent harbour fortified with several batteries of heavy guns. There is a Supreme Court, and police and petty debt courts in each district, in 1911, 86 persons were convicted of indictable offences in the Supreme Court. Revenue 1911, 457,759 (Customs, 242,324, railway, 107,925). Expenditure 482,448 (public debt charges, 61,336, Government railway, 79,765, public works, 60,135, education 8,521). (For further statistics and for statistics of trade and shipping, see pages 233-6.) Chief products and exports palm oil and kernels, ginger, ground nuts, kola nuts, india rubber. There are many native skilled workers in gold and silver. A Government light railway, a single line of 2 ft. 6 in. gauge, is open from Freetown to Baiima, near the Liberian frontier, a length of 227 miles. The receipts from traffic in 1911 amounted to 107,925 and the working expenses to 79,784. Further railway and port works are projected, for which a loan of 1,338,000 has been obtained. In 1911, 1,490,618 postal packets were dealt with in the Colony, money order transactions amounted to 183,637. There are 298 miles of telegraph line, viz., Freetown Baiima Freetown Hill Station, and Mano Station Bendu. There is a telephone system in Freetown. There are 9 savings bank offices. At the end of 1911 there were 6,002 depositors with 99,812 (exclusive of interest) to their credit.

The Protectorate extends inland about 180 miles, being bounded by the line demarcated by the Anglo-French and Anglo-Liberian Boundary Commissions. It has an area of 24,400 square miles, and a population according to the census of 1911 of 1,327,560. The Protectorate was proclaimed August 21, 1896, and the whole territory has been divided into 5 districts each of which is placed under a European commissioner. Circuit courts are held at the chief centres of population. There are also district commissioners courts for non native cases, chiefs courts for purely native cases (not serious crime), and combined courts (a chief and a non native) for small debts and trivial misdemeanours (assault, abusive language) arising between native and non native. There are native courts for disputes between natives. Cotton goods, tobacco and spirits are imported, rice, palm kernels, and kola nuts are exported. There were in 1911, 70 schools, with 2 198 pupils on the rolls. A Government school for the sons and nominees of native chiefs was established at Bo in the Railway district of the Protectorate on March 1 1908. The school, which is under European supervision, opened with 18 pupils, at the end of 1911 there were 110 pupils

Gambia.

Gambia, at the mouth of the river Gambia formerly formed part of the West African Settlements, but in December 1888 was erected into a separate Colony. The Colony is administered under a Governor with an Executive and a Legislative Council nominated. Area of Colony proper, 4 square miles, population 7,700. In the Protectorate (area, 4 500 square miles) the population is estimated at 138,400 (census 1911). With exception of the Island of St. Mary, on which Bathurst the capital stands the whole Colony is administered on the Protectorate system. In June 1901, an agreement was made with the local chief for the administration of the Fula-dugu district by the British, both banks of the Gambia being now under direct British control up to the Anglo French boundary.

There are 8 elementary Government aided schools, with 1,432 pupils enrolled (1911), and an average attendance of about 472 standard pupils, Government grant, proportionate to results (1911), 886*l*. Of the elementary schools two are Roman Catholic four Wesleyan one Anglican, and one Mohammedan. The Wesleyans have also a secondary school with 29 boys, and a technical school with 19 pupils, which receives a grant of 300*l*. Total Government expenditure on education (1911), 2 040*l*. There is a company of the West African Frontier Force of 126 men and the Gambia Volunteer Artillery of 25 men. The civil police has a strength of 82 men. In 1911 there were 139 convictions (mostly of minor offences) in the colony and 867 in native courts in the Protectorate. Chief products and exports ground nuts, bees wax hides, and millet. The trade is mostly with France. (For statistics of finance, trade, and shipping see the tables below.) Postal packets and parcels dealt with in 1911 143 041. Bathurst is connected with St. Vincent (Cape de Verde) and with Sierra Leone by cable, but there are no local telegraphs or railways. The Gambia savings bank had 475 depositors in 1911, and deposits amounting to 5 169*l*. Though the legal currency is British, French 5 franc pieces pass freely.

Governor — Sir H. L. Galway, K. C. M. G., D. S. O. (2,500*l*)

Secretary —

CANADA

(DOMINION OF CANADA.)

Constitution and Government.

The territories which now constitute the Dominion of Canada came under British power at various times, some by settlement and others by conquest or seizure. Nova Scotia was occupied in 1627 the Hudson's Bay Company's Charter, conferring rights over the territories to the east and west of the Bay, was granted in 1670. Canada was conquered in 1759 and, along with New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, was formally ceded to Great Britain by France in 1763. Vancouver Island was acknowledged to be British by the Oregon Boundary Treaty of 1846, and British Columbia was occupied in 1858. As originally constituted the Dominion was composed of the provinces of Canada—Upper and Lower—Nova Scotia, and New Brunswick. They were united under the provisions of an Act of the Imperial Parliament passed in March, 1867, known as 'The British North America Act, 1867.'

which came into operation on July 1, 1867, by royal proclamation. The Act provides that the Constitution of the Dominion shall be 'similar in principle to that of the United Kingdom', that the executive authority shall be vested in the Sovereign of Great Britain and Ireland, and carried on in his name by a Governor General and Privy Council and that the legislative power shall be exercised by a Parliament of two Houses, called the 'Senate' and the 'House of Commons'. Provision was made in the Act for the admission of British Columbia, Prince Edward Island, the North West Territories, and Newfoundland into the Dominion, Newfoundland alone has not availed itself of such provision. In 1869, the extensive region known as the North West Territories was added to the Dominion by purchase from the Hudson's Bay Company, the province of Manitoba was set apart out of a portion of it, and admitted into the confederation on July 15, 1870. On July 20, 1871 the provinces of British Columbia, and by an Imperial Order in Council of May 16, in the same year, Prince Edward Island, were admitted into the confederation. The provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan were formed from the provisional districts of Alberta, Athabaska, Assiniboia, and Saskatchewan and were admitted to the Union as provinces on September 1 1905.

The members of the Senate are nominated for life, by summons of the Governor General under the Great Seal of Canada. There are now 37 senators—namely, 24 from the province of Ontario, 24 from Quebec, 10 from Nova Scotia, 10 from New Brunswick, 4 from Manitoba, 3 from British Columbia, 4 each from Prince Edward Island, Alberta and Saskatchewan. Each senator must be 30 years of age, a born or naturalised subject, and must reside in and be possessed of property real or personal, of the value of 4,000 dollars, within the province for which he is appointed. The House of Commons is elected by the people, for five years, unless sooner dissolved at the rate at present of one representative for every 25,367 persons, the province of Quebec always having 65 members, and the others provinces proportionally, according to their populations at each decennial census. The House of Commons consists of 221 members—86 for Ontario, 65 for Quebec, 18 for Nova Scotia, 13 for New Brunswick, 10 for Manitoba, 7 for British Columbia, 4 for Prince Edward Island, 10 for Saskatchewan, 7 for Alberta, and 1 for the Yukon Territory. For the next parliament the unit of representation will be on the basis of the population of Quebec at the census of 1911, 30,811.

The members of the House of Commons are elected by constituencies, the electors of which are supplied by franchises under the control of the several provincial assemblies. The qualifications for voting at provincial elections vary in the several provinces. Voting is by ballot.

Last Election, September, 1911. State of parties—Conservatives, 134, Liberals, 87.

The Speaker in the House of Commons has a salary of 4,000 dollars per annum, and each member an allowance of 2,500 dollars for the session with a deduction of 15 dollars a day for absences. The Leader of the Opposition receives 7,000 dollars in addition to his ordinary sessional allowance.

The Speaker and members of the Senate have the same allowances as in the House of Commons with no extra allowances.

Governor General—Field Marshal His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught and Strathearn P.C., K.G., K.T., K.P., G.C.B., G.C.S.I., G.C.M.G., G.C.I.E., G.C.V.O., (See p. 3). Present appointment January 30, 1911. Salary, 10,000 per annum.

PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENT

The nine provinces have each a separate parliament and administration, with a Lieutenant Governor appointed by the Governor General at the head of the executive. They have full powers to regulate their own local affairs and dispose of their revenues, provided only they do not interfere with the action and policy of the central administration. Quebec and Nova Scotia have each two Chambers (a Legislative Council and a Legislative Assembly) and a responsible Ministry. In New Brunswick, Ontario, Manitoba, British Columbia, Prince Edward Island, Alberta and Saskatchewan there is only one Chamber (the Legislative Assembly) and a responsible Ministry. The members of the Legislative Council of Nova Scotia number 18, and Quebec
24. The membership of the Legislative Assemblies is—Prince Edward Island 30, Nova Scotia 38, New Brunswick 48, Quebec 74, Ontario 106, Manitoba 41, British Columbia 43, Alberta and Saskatchewan 41 each. The North West Territories, comprising all the territories formerly known as Rupert's Land, and the North Western Territory except the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, the district of Keewatin and the Yukon Territory, are governed by a Commissioner and a Council of four, appointed by the Governor in Council at Ottawa. The territory of Yukon is governed by a Commissioner and an Executive Council of ten members elected by the people.

The Provincial Governments have control of education, the systems are all based on the principle of free education, the funds being supplied in nearly all the provinces by Government grants and local taxation. Education is more or less compulsory, but the law is not very strictly enforced. In Ontario, Quebec, Alberta, and Saskatchewan there are separate schools for Roman Catholics, in the other provinces the schools are unsectarian.

Justice and Crime.

There is a Supreme Court in Ottawa, having appellate, civil and criminal jurisdiction in and throughout Canada. There is an exchequer court, which is also a colonial court of admiralty, with powers as provided in the Imperial 'Colonial Courts of Admiralty Act, 1890' There is a Superior Court in each province, county courts, with limited jurisdiction, in most of the provinces, all the judges in these courts being appointed by the Governor General. Police magistrates and justices of the peace are appointed by the Provincial Governments.

In 1910 15,805 persons were charged with indictable offences, of these 11 700 were convicted, 91,208 were summarily convicted.

Finance

Financial accounts are under three headings—first, 'Consolidated Fund,' comprising the general sources of revenue and branches of expenditure, secondly, 'Loans in revenue, and 'Redemption with 'Premiums and Discounts in expenditure, and thirdly 'Open accounts. The headings 'Loans and 'Redemption' include the deposits in and withdrawals from the Post Office and Government Savings Banks, the amount on deposit forming part of the floating or unfunded debt of the country. Under the head of 'Open Accounts' are included investments, trust funds, Province accounts, and expenditure on capital account on public works.

The following relates to the Consolidated Fund (the fiscal year 1905-6 ended June 30 the succeeding years ended March 31. The fiscal year 1906-7 contained only 9 months) —

Defence

The Militia Act of 1904 placed the Canadian land forces under a Militia Council, with the Minister of Militia and Defence as president, it further includes a civil member, four military members, and a finance member. There is also an Inspector General whose duty it is to inspect the forces and to report to the Minister of Militia and Defence in Council on their readiness for war.

The Canadian land forces are divided into the 'Active Militia' and the 'Reserve Militia.' The country is divided into 6 divisional areas and 8 military districts.

The active militia is raised by voluntarily three year enlistments, but it can also be compulsorily recruited, should the necessity arise, by ballot. It consists of a 'permanent force' and of a non permanent force composed of various corps which are classified either as 'city' or as 'rural.'

The permanent force consists of a small number of permanently embodied units, viz., 4 squadrons, 2 batteries, 1 regiment of garrison artillery, 5 companies of engineers, and a battalion of infantry. It provides personnel for the various schools of military instruction, and it furnishes the garrisons of fortresses with that permanent element which is necessary for defence, for the maintenance of works, and for the preservation of armaments.

The non permanent part of the active militia comprises 27 regiments of mounted troops, 28 field batteries, 6 regiments of garrison artillery (including 13 heavy batteries), a corps of guides, 5 field companies of engineers and 106 regiments (battalions) of infantry. The period for annual training for city and rural corps varies, according to arms and branches of the service from 12 to 16 days. Rural corps perform the whole of their training in camp, city corps can be trained partly in camp and partly at their own headquarters, and a proportion of the officers are trained at the Royal Military College at Kingston.

In 1912, the establishment of the active militia was as follows —

Arms and branches of the service	Permanent Force		Remainder of the Active Militia
	Personnel	Horses	Personnel	Horses
Cavalry and Mounted Rifles	369	264	19,010	9,776
Field Artillery	284	267	4,128	2,742
Garrison Artillery	795	62	2,596	700
Engineers	314	6	2,109	1,191
Infantry	1,044	12	40,601	590
Non-combatant Corps	699	80	7,020	2,788
Total	3,498	586	68,314	17,794

In addition to the active militia, numerous cadet corps and rifle associations are in existence.

The reserve militia remains unorganised. It comprises all male inhabitants who are British subjects, between 18 and 60 years of age, and not exempt or disqualified by law. It is divided into four classes which (except in the case of a levée en masse) would be called out for service in succession—first, unmarried men and widowers (without children) between 18 and 30 years of age, secondly, unmarried men and widowers (without children) between 30 and 45, thirdly, married men and widowers (with children) between 18 and 45, fourthly, all men between 45 and 60.

Schemes for a Canadian Navy have been mooted but are at present some what in abeyance. The old cruisers Nicks and Rainbow are used as training ships. The local force consists otherwise of a number of miscellaneous gun vessels and icebreakers, some of which are on the Great Lakes. In 1911-12 the expenditure of the naval service department was 2,492,812 dollars.

Production and Industry

Agriculture—In 1901, there were 30 166,033 acres of improved land out of 63,422,338 acres of occupied land, 19,763,747 acres were under crop. The crops most widely cultivated are wheat, oats, barley and flax. The following statistics are for 1911—

Other products (1911) were rye 153 272 acres, 2,694 400 bushels, peas, 288,310 acres, 4,536 100 bushels, mixed grain 563,846 acres, 16 679,000 bushels, buckwheat, 859 367 acres, 8 155,500 bushels, beans 60 630 acres, 1,155 600 bushels, sugar beets, 177,000 tons, turnips and other roots, 84,928,000 bushels and corn for husking 18 773,700 bushels. The total estimated area and production of certain crops in Canada in 1912 were: wheat, 9,758,400 acres, 199 200,000 bushels, barley, 1,415,200 acres, 42,200,000 bushels, oats, 9,216,900 acres, 332,600,000 bushels, rye, 148,700 acres, 2,400,000 bushels, maize, 292,850 acres, 15,600 000 bushels. In Ontario, apples, the vine, and tobacco are grown. The live stock in Canada in 1912 comprised 2,336,800 horses, 2,890,100 milk cows, 4,093,600 other cattle, 2,380,600 sheep, and 2,656,400 swine. In 1912, there were divided among ranches in Manitoba, 945 acres, British Columbia, 406,152 acres, Alberta, 2,001,234 acres, and Saskatchewan, 1 145,966 acres; total, 3,554,297 acres (7,424 ranches). In year ended March 31, 1912, 81,725 tons of cheese, and 4,872 tons of butter were exported from Canada.

Forestry—The forest area is officially estimated at about 568,500,000 acres—

	Acres		Acres
British Columbia	182 000 000	Quebec	20 000 000
Manitoba, Sask. Alberta, and territories	180 000 000	New Brunswick	11 000 000
Ontario	70 000 000	Nova Scotia	5 500 000

The forest products exported to the United Kingdom in 1911 amounted in value to $11,965 181 out of a total of $45 489,057. The exportable surplus of the wood pulp industry was $5,715 582 in 1911, chiefly to Great Britain and the United States. The Crown forests belong to the Provincial Governments, except in Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan, and the Rail way Belt (forty miles wide) in British Columbia, where they belong to the Dominion.

Fisheries—The total value of the produce of the fisheries of Canada in 1910-11 was $29,965 433, and in 1911-12, $34 667 872. The values of the principal catches in 1910-11 were cod $5,921 245 salmon, $7 205 871, herring, $1,551,814, lobsters $3 784,099, mackerel $400 182. In 1910-11, according to provinces, the values were Nova Scotia, $10,119 243, British Columbia, $9,163,235 New Brunswick, $4,134 144 Quebec, $1,692 475 Ontario, $2 026,121 Prince Edward Island, $1,133,708 Manitoba, Alberta Saskatchewan, and Yukon $1 676 507.

Mining—Nova Scotia, British Columbia, Quebec, N and W Ontario, Alberta and Yukon Territory are the chief mining districts. The total value of the mineral produce was in 1911, $102 291 686 in 1910 $106 823 623. The principal metals and minerals produced in 1910 and 1911 were as follows—

<sup>3</sup> The total production of pig-iron in Canada in 1910 was 800,797 tons, valued at 11 455 630 doles of which it is estimated that 695,891 tons valued at 9 694 773 doles, should be credited to imported ores. The total production in 1911 was 917 533 tons valued at 12 806,999 doles, of which it is estimated that 875 340 tons valued at 11 692 456 doles, should be credited to imported ores.

Commerce

The customs tariff of Canada is protective, but there is a preferential tariff in favour of the United Kingdom and most of the colonies, the duties on direct imports from the United Kingdom and the colonies, &c., being reduced, but alcoholic liquors, liquid medicines tobacco and refined sugar from raw sugar produced elsewhere than in British colonies, are excluded from the reduction.

The returns of values of imports and exports are those supplied in entries at the Customs where imports must be entered for duty at their fair market value as for home consumption in the country of purchase. Quantities are ascertained from invoices and by examination, wines are gaged and spirits tested. The country of origin of imports is the country of purchase or whence shipment was made to Canada. the country of destination is that to which shipment is made. Thus, Canadian wheat, purchased by New York dealers shipped to and entered in bond at New York, and thence exported to Great Britain would appear only as exported from Canada to the United States. The only Canadian port where transit trade is recorded is Montreal, such trade comprising chiefly goods received from the United States and transhipped to other countries by the St. Lawrence route. Transit trade is not included in the general trade which comprises all other imports into and exports from Canada. The term special trade, in Canada, is applied to imports from Newfoundland which are exempt from duties leviable on similar goods from other countries.

The accuracy of the statistical results may at times be affected by fraudulent misdescription or undervaluation by importers and by the adoption of 'light entries' which, under the Customs Act, may be passed when importers declare on oath that, for want of full information, they cannot make a perfect entry. In such circumstances the goods may be landed, examined and (a sum being deposited sufficient, in the collector's opinion, to pay the duty) delivered to the importer. A time is fixed within which a perfect entry should be made, but when this time has elapsed the deposit is held as payment of the duty, and the provisional valuation which may be only approximate is not corrected. All export entries are delivered at the 'frontier port of exit' and the totals thereof are credited to the respective ports where the goods pass onward from Canada.

On April 9, 1912, a trade agreement providing for preference treatment between the two parties, was signed between Canada and the West Indies to last over a term of years and to come into operation on January 1 1913.

Shipping and Navigation

The registered shipping on December 31, 1911, including vessels for inland navigation, consisted of 4,644 sailing vessels and 3,444 steamers, total tonnage, 770,446 tons. The sea going and coasting vessels that entered and cleared during the year 1911 were as follows —

In 1911 the vessels entered and cleared at Canadian ports on inland waters between Canada and the United States were Canadian, 19 063 of 13,038,148 tons, United States 28 425 of 14,094,211 tons

Internal Communications

Canada has a system of canal, river, and lake navigation over 2,700 miles in length, and vessels from the lake ports reach the Atlantic without breaking bulk. Up to 1911, 99,311,890 dollars had been spent on canals for construction and enlargement alone. In 1911 85,955 vessels, of 27,403 814 tons, passed through the Canadian canals, carrying 304,904 passengers and 38,030,853 tons of freight, chiefly grain, timber, iron ore, and coal. On January 11, 1909, was signed at Washington a treaty between the United Kingdom and the United States relating to the use of the boundary waters between Canada and the United States. The treaty provides for the establishment and maintenance of an international joint commission, consisting of three representatives appointed by H. M. the King on the recommendation of the Governor in Council of the Dominion of Canada, and three appointed by the President of the United States. This commission, subject to the conditions of the treaty, will have jurisdiction in all cases involving the use or obstruction or diversion of the boundary waters. Precedence is given by the treaty to uses of the waters in the following order, viz., (1) for domestic and sanitary purposes, (2) for navigation (3) for power and irrigation.

Total length of railways, June 1911, 25,400 miles, increase of 859 miles over 1910, all of the 4 ft 8½ inch gauge. The Canadian Pacific Railway main line from Montreal to Vancouver is 2,906 miles in length. By means of this railway and a line of Pacific steamers subsidised by the Imperial and Dominion Governments, Montreal and Yokohama are brought within 18 days of one another. There is a monthly steam service between Australia and British Columbia, for which the Dominion Government gives $7,091 a year, the Australian 26,294 a year, and Fiji 2,232.

The traffic on Canadian steam railways in two years was —

Yrs ended June 30	Miles	Passengers No	Freight Tons of 2000 lbs	Receipts	Working Expenses	Net profits	Capital paid up
1910	24 781	85 894 575	74 482 966	85 101 700	24,750,000	11 067 700	355 419 842

In 1911, of the capital, $148,217,072 represented Federal Government aid (exclusive of the cost of Government Railways, $101,595,694) and $59,962,184 from Provincial Governments and Municipalities. The latter amount does not include cost of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway ($16,181,835). The expenditure by Dominion Government on National Transcontinental Railway up to March 31, 1911, was $95,423,086.

Electric railways in 1911 49 mileage 1 224 passengers during the year, 426 296,792, paid up capital $111 532,347.

On March 31, 1911, there were 13 324 post offices. Letters sent during the year, 504 233,000 postcards 50,000 000 registered letters, 11,584,000, free letters, 16 382,000 closed parcels, 180 000 and second, third and fourth class matter 10 425,000. Gross revenue, $12,212 952 net revenue, $9 146 989, expenditure, $7,954,270. There is now a uniform rate of postage of two cents to the Dominion, also between Canada and the United States, the United Kingdom and all other parts of the British Empire. Money order offices on March 31, 1911 3,501 orders issued (1910-11) 4,840,896 value $70 614,862. The Ocean Mail subsidies paid by the Government amounted to $1,918 941 in 1911.

There were 42,055 miles (8,150 being Government) of telegraph lines in Canada in 1911 and 172 897 miles of wire (exclusive of Government lines) with 3,852 offices. There were in 1911 687,728 miles of telephone wire, of which 576,718 miles were urban and 111,015 rural, and 802,759 telephones. The earnings of telephone companies in Canada in 1911 amounted to $10,068,220, and the operating expenses to $6,978,045.

Money and Credit

The Bank Acts of Canada impose stringent conditions as to capital, notes in circulation, limit of dividend, returns to the Dominion Government, and other points in all chartered and incorporated banks. The Dominion Government by statute must always hold as security for the redemption of Dominion notes issued and outstanding up to and including thirty million dollars an amount in gold or in gold and guaranteed securities of Canada equal to not less than 25 per cent of the amount of such notes, the gold held to be not less than 15 per cent of the amount. To secure the issue of notes in excess of thirty millions it must hold a dollar in gold for each dollar of notes. On January 1, 1912, there were 29 incorporated banks making returns to the Government with 2,639 branches. The following are some particulars of the banks —

Calendar Year	Average Capital Paid up	Average Notes in Circulation	Average Total on Deposit	Average Liabilities	Average Assets	Percentage of Liabili- ties to Assets.

In addition to the capital there was in 1911 the sum of 88,892,256 dollars of reserve funds belonging to the banks.

The clearing house transactions for 1911 amounted to 7,194,598,459 dollars, against 6,105,037,813 dollars in 1910. Of the transactions of 1911, Montreal had 82·92 per cent, Toronto 25·75 per cent, Winnipeg, 16·80 per cent., and Vancouver 7·55 per cent.

Government post office savings-banks have been in operation in Canada since 1868, there are also Government savings banks under the Finance Department, in the Maritime Provinces, Manitoba, and British Columbia. In 1912 the post office savings banks had 147,919 depositors and 43,563,764 dollars on deposit. The Government savings banks had 35,609 depositors and 14,655,664 dollars on deposit. The deposits in special savings banks amounted in 1911 to 84,770,386 dollars, and in 1910 to 82,289,620 dollars.

Money, Weights, and Measures

The Dollar of 100 cents. The value of the money of the United Kingdom is fixed by law as follows — The sovereign 4 86½ dollars, the crown piece, 1·2 dollars, and other silver coins at proportionate values. Notes are issued by the Government for 5, 4, 2, and 1 dollar and 25 cents; no bank is allowed to issue notes for a less sum than 5 dollars.

The Ottawa Branch of the Royal Mint was established in pursuance of The Ottawa Mint Act 1901 under which an annual sum not exceeding 75,000 dollars is payable to the Imperial Treasury for the purpose of defraying the salaries of officials and other expenses of the Mint the fees and all sums received being retained by Canada. The Mint issues gold, silver and copper coins for circulation in Canada and sovereigns and half sovereigns coined will be legal tender in every country under the British flag.

CANADIAN PROVINCES

Alberta.

Constitution and Government.—The Constitution of Alberta is contained in the British North America Act of 1867 and its several amending Acts, also in the Alberta Act of 1905 passed by the Parliament of the Dominion of Canada, creating the province. In the British North America Act, provision was made for the admission of the new provinces from time to time, including the then North West Territories, of which the present province of Alberta formed a large portion. Upon the granting of autonomy to the North West Territories, Alberta and Saskatchewan were erected into provinces, and all the provisions of the British North America Act, except those with respect to school lands and the public domain, were made to apply to Alberta as they apply to the older provinces of Canada.

The executive is vested nominally in the Lieutenant Governor, who is appointed by the federal government, but actually in the Executive Council, or the Cabinet of the Legislature. Legislative power is vested in the Assembly in the name of the king. All bills passed by the Legislative Assembly are usually transmitted to Ottawa to receive the approval of the federal government.

Members of the Legislative Assembly are elected by the direct vote of the people. The qualifications are as follows: Every male person who is a British subject of the full age of twenty-one years and has resided in Alberta for at least twelve months and in the electoral division three months immediately preceding the date of the election.

There are 41 members in the Legislature—34 Liberals, 6 Conservatives, and 1 Labour Socialist.

Lieutenant Governor—Hon G H V Bulver

The members of the Ministry are as follows—

Premier, President of the Council, and Minister of Railways and Telephones—Hon A L Sifton

Attorney General—Hon C W Cross

Provincial Treasurer—Hon Malcolm McKenzie

Minister of Public Works—Hon C R Mitchell

Minister of Agriculture—Hon Duncan Marshall

Minister of Education—Hon J R Boyle

Minister of Municipalities—Hon Chas Stewart

Provincial Secretary—Hon A J McLean

The province has no agent in London.

Local Government.—In 1912 the law respecting towns and rural municipalities was revised and brought up to date, in harmony with the conditions and development and growth prevailing in the province at the present time. Rural municipalities comprise an area of 18 miles square, and are laid out on a uniform plan conformable as far as possible to the Dominion Land Survey system. Each municipality is a body corporate and governed by a council of five elected by a general vote of the resident electors. The chief executive officer is called a Reeve. All towns are incorporated under the Towns Act of 1912 except those incorporated by special acts. The town council consists of a Mayor and six councillors elected by those whose names appear on the last revised assessment roll. Persons qualified to vote are, persons male or female of the full age of 21 years who are assessed for $200.00 or upwards. The cities of Alberta carry on their municipal government by the authority of special charters granted by the Legislature.

Area and Population.—The area of the province is 255,285 square miles. The population in 1911 was 374,833; in 1906, 184,412, and in 1901, 78,022. In 1911 the rural population numbered 232,726 (52,899 in 1901) and the urban 141,937 (26,623 in 1901). Population of the principal cities, (1911)—Calgary, 42,655; Edmonton, 30,434; Lethbridge, 8,050; Medicine Hat, 5,573; Wetaskiwin, 2,411.

The total statistics for 8 years have been as follows—

—	Births	Marriages	Deaths	Excess of births
1900	6,897	2,584	2,062	4,335
1910	8,321	3,080	2,590	4,705
1911	8,818	3,630	2,618	4,796

Instruction.—In the school system all grades, both primary and secondary, are included under the term of public school. The same board of trustees control the schools from the kindergarten to entrance to the university. All schools are supported by taxes levied by the local board, supplemented by Government grants. The grants are distributed so as to encourage the highest grade of teachers, regularity of attendance of pupils and general proficiency based on the report of Government inspectors. All schools are provided with a small library. Two Normal schools, at Calgary and Camrose, are established for the training of teachers. The University of Alberta, organised in 1907, has 50 students. In 1911 there were 1184 schools, with 81,660 pupils, and 1,524,707 dollars were spent on school buildings.

Justice and Crime.—Judicial power of the province is vested in the Court of Superior Civil and Criminal Jurisdiction, the Supreme Court of Alberta consisting of a Chief Justice and four puisne judges appointed by the Dominion Government holding office for life unless impeached by Parliament and Minor Courts of Civil and Criminal Jurisdiction such as a Police Magistrate Court and a District Court. The district courts have full jurisdiction over all matters up to $600 00.

District courts have power to grant probate of wills and are courts of record for a trial without a jury of any person charged with a criminal offence provided such person consents. The system of procedure in civil and criminal cases conforms as nearly as possible to the English system.

Finance.—The revenue of the province is derived from the following sources—(1) Dominion subsidies, (2) Sale of school lands, and (3) Provincial sources, which consist of taxes on the assessed mileage of rail ways, corporation taxes on fire, life, accident, loan and land companies, and the fees regularly charged for departmental services.

	1909	1910	1911
	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars
Revenues	2 602 801	2,119 148 <sup>1</sup>	2,802,325
Expenditure	3 723 460	4 350 748	4 881,506

The public debt of the province (1911) amounted to £1,911 000

Production and Industry.—Alberta is pre eminently an agricultural province. Though there are unquestionably valuable assets in her mines of coal and asphalt, the future depends upon the growth of agriculture in the important branches of grain, livestock and dairying. The area of arable land is placed at 100,000,000 acres. Less than 3 per cent of this is under cultivation at the present time.

The acreage and yield of leading grains in Alberta for 1912 is as follows—Spring Wheat 355,000 acres, and 18,000,000 bushels, Fall Wheat 137,000 acres and 3 667,000 bushels; Oats 1,196,000 acres and 25,780,000 bushels; Barley 252,000 acres and 6,536,000 bushels, Flax 96,650 acres and 576,600 bushels, Rye and Spelts 17,726 acres and 354,500 bushels.

Alberta was the greatest ranching country in America from 1880-1900, but the farmer has driven out the rancher and the days of the big herds are past. Horse raising is very profitable owing to the great numbers required by new settlers for farm work and city drays. Good horses will sell from $100 to $400, for such purposes. In 1912 there were in Alberta, 254,167 horses, 44,071 milk cows, 658,160 other horned cattle, 171,857 pigs and 165,201 sheep.

The establishment of packing houses at Edmonton and Calgary has given a great stimulus to the hog industry. Mixed farming combining dairying and hog raising is becoming general. The butter output was about 3,000,000 lbs. in 1911. The output of cheese is about 250,000 lbs.

A coal survey of Alberta by the Geological Survey of Canada places the coal area at 16,588 square miles containing 80,000 million tons. The output in 1910 was 8,086,658 tons (in 1909, 2,374,829 tons). Natural gas is found at Medicine Hat and Bow Island in inexhaustible quantities.

Alberta has 9,932 square miles of forest reserves. The northern portion of the province contains belts of forests along the rivers and lakes, consisting of spruce, pine, cottonwood, and poplar serviceable for merchantable timber.

The lakes of the province abound in several species of fish, but the industry is not developed to any great extent. The number of men engaged in 1911 was 494; the number of boats 803.

Manufacturing has just begun in the province. Flour mills, oat meal mills, pork and beef packing houses have been established within the last few years. Brewing and malting are carried on at Edmonton, Calgary and Lethbridge. Coke and briquettes form a considerable industry in the Crowneast Pass district, producing (1911) 121,578 tons of coke and 108,996 tons of briquettes.

Commerce and Communication.—As the province has no control of customs or excise, the government collects no statistics of the exports or imports. The principal exports of the province consist of grain, fat cattle, butter and coal. Hams and bacon to the value of 500,000 dollars are imported annually and 20,000 carcasses of Australian mutton.

Length of railway lines 2,300 miles. New lines to the length of 1,800 miles are being constructed.

British Columbia.

Constitution and Government.—Previous to 1858 British Columbia, then known as New Caledonia, formed a portion of the Hudson's Bay Company's concession, but in that year it was constituted a Crown Colony owing to the large immigration consequent on the discovery of gold. Vancouver Island was leased to the Hudson's Bay Company in 1848 and was made a Crown Colony in 1849. In 1866 the Colonies of British Columbia and Vancouver Island were united and on July 20th 1871, British Columbia entered the Canadian Confederation, and is represented by three members in the Senate, and seven in the House of Commons of Canada.

The Provincial Government is administered by a Lieutenant Governor and Legislative Assembly of 42 members on the system of executive administration known as a "responsible government." The Assembly is elected for four years, every male adult (British subjects) having resided six months in the Province, duly registered, being entitled to vote.

Area and Population.—British Columbia, Canada's Maritime Province on the Pacific Ocean, is the largest in the Dominion its area, according to the census of 1911 being 356,855 square miles. It is a great irregular quadrangle about 700 miles from north to south with an average width of about 400 miles lying between latitudes 49 degrees and 60 degrees north. It is bounded on the south by the Straits of Juan de Fuca and the States of Washington, Idaho and Montana, on the west by the Pacific Ocean and Southern Alaska, on the north by Yukon and Mackenzie Territories and on the east by the Province of Alberta. From the 49th degree north to the 54th degree the eastern boundary follows the axis of the Rocky Mountains, and thence north the 120th meridian.

The last census (1911) places the population at 392,460, in 1901 the population was 176,657.

Some of the principal cities and towns are Victoria (the capital), population, (1911) 31,660, Vancouver 123,902, New Westminster 13,199, Nanaimo, 8,168, Nelson 4,476, Prince Rupert, 4,164.

The movement of the population for three years was as follows —

	Births	Marriages	Deaths	Excess of Births
1909	4,284	3,449	2,784	1,480
1910	5,006	3,280	3,221	1,784
1911	6,841	4,709	3,660	2,181

Instruction.—A complete system of free and non-sectarian education was established by Act in 1872. The central control is vested in the Council of Public Instruction, composed of the members of the Executive Council. The Minister of Education directs the general management of the schools through the Superintendent of Education.

There are at present 23 high schools in the Province. The number of schools in 1911-12 was 638, under 1,179 teachers with an enrolment of 45,125 pupils. The Legislature has set aside two million acres of land as an endowment for a Provincial university, a site for which has been chosen in Vancouver.

Finance—Revenue and expenditure and debt for three years were as follows —

	Revenue Dollars	Expenditure Dollars	Debt (Net) Dollars
1910	8,374,741	6,640,994	801,644
1911	10,492,892	8,414,825	1,497,694

Production and Industry—British Columbia produced in 1911 minerals to the value of 23 211 816 dollars, lumber to the value of 28 000 000 dollars, fish to the value of 11 000,000 dollars, agriculture valued at 20 837 893 dollars and manufactures of the value of 45,000,000 dollars, making a total of 128,049,709 dollars. The acreage and production of certain crops in 1911 were: wheat, 14 470 acres, 425,000 bushels, oats, 38,561 acres, 1,950,000 bushels, barley 2 180 acres 81 000 bushels, potatoes, 11 609 acres 72 021 tons. Number of live stock in 1911: cattle, 52 840, sheep 17 940, pigs 14,400, horses, 35 840.

British Columbia's coal measures are estimated to contain 40 billion tons of bituminous coal and 61 billion tons of anthracite coal. It possesses the greatest compact area of merchantable timber in North America; the importance of the fisheries, apart from salmon fishing, is only beginning to be realised; there are immense deposits of magnetite and hematite iron of the finest quality which still remain undeveloped; the area of agricultural and fruit lands is estimated at 60 000 000 acres, and less than one tenth of the available land is settled upon, much less cultivated. The Province has millions of acres of pulpwood as yet unexploited, petroleum deposits, but recently discovered are among the most extensive in the world, and most of the territory is unexplored and its potential value unknown.

British Columbia is the second Province of the Dominion in the value of its mineral production, producing all of the Dominion's lead and zinc, an increasing proportion of the copper, most of the gold, a third of the coal and coke, and over a fifth of the total mineral production.

Recent investigators place the area of British Columbia's merchantable forests at 50 000,000 to 100 000 000 acres, but according to the report of the British Columbia forestry commission the Province exclusive of the Dominion Railway belt has only about 15 000 000 acres representing 192,050 000,000 feet board measure. It is estimated that there are about 50,000 000,000 feet board measure under the control of the Dominion in the railway belt.

Commerce—The trade of the Province is developing rapidly. In 1911-12 imports amounted to 49,345 161 dollars, and the exports 23,016 655 dollars. Exports consist of minerals (chiefly gold, silver, copper and coal), sea products, (chiefly salmon, halibut, herrings, whale products and oil), lumber, furs, skins, etc. A large inter provincial trade is rapidly developing; the fruit grown in British Columbia being largely shipped to the Prairie Provinces, where it finds a good market.

Communications and Shipping—The Canadian Pacific is at present the principal railway in the Province. It has two main lines, the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Crows Nest Pass Railway, and several branches connecting with United States railway systems, also steamboat connections on the inland lakes, besides its large fleet of ocean going and coasting steamers. The railway mileage of the Province is about 2,000 miles, with an additional 1,000 miles in course of construction.

The Grand Trunk Pacific Railway is building its main line eastward from Prince Rupert, near the mouth of the Skeena River, and the Canadian Northern Pacific is under contract to build six hundred miles of railway from Isle Jeanne Charles to Barkley Sound on the west coast of Vancouver Island within four years from June 1910.

The number and tonnage of vessels entered and cleared at British Columbia ports in 1911 was as follows:—Entered, 31,004 vessels, of 12,348,897 tons, and cleared 31,041 vessels, of 12,861,470 tons.

Nova Scotia.

Constitution and Government—The first settlement was made by the French at the end of the sixteenth century, and the province was called Acadia until finally ceded to the British by the Treaty of Utrecht in 1713. The Constitution of the Dominion of Canada and of each separate Province thereof is contained in the "British North America Act," commonly called the "Act of Confederation." This Act passed the Imperial Parliament in 1867 and came into force on July 1st of that year. Under this Act the Legislature of Nova Scotia along with that of each of the other Provinces may exclusively make laws in relation to local matters and more especially in regard to direct taxation within the Province in order to raise a revenue for provincial purposes, and the administration of justice in the Province, including the constitution, maintenance and organisation of provincial courts both of civil and of criminal jurisdiction, and including procedure of civil matters in those courts.

The Legislature of Nova Scotia consists of a Lieutenant Governor, appointed and paid by the Federal Government and holding office for five years, a Legislative Council appointed by the Crown and holding office for life, and a House of Assembly chosen by popular vote every five years. The Legislative Council consists of 21 members, the House of Assembly of 38. The members of both Houses receive a seasonal indemnity of $700.

The franchise is granted to persons assessed on real property valued at $150 or on personal or personal and real property together valued at $300 tenants yearly of similar property, sons of foregoing persons or of widows in possession of enough property to qualify as stated above and actually residing on such property; persons having an annual income of $250.

House of Assembly (1910), state of parties—Liberals, 15; Conservatives, 13. The Liberal party has held office continuously for 30 years.

Lieutenant-Governor—Hon. James Drummond McGregor.

The Members of the Ministry are as follows—

Premier and Provincial Secretary—Hon. G. H. Murray.

Attorney-General—Hon. O. T. Daniels.

Commissioner of Works and Mines—Hon. E. H. Armstrong.

Ministers without Portfolio—Hons James Macdonald, Jason M. Mack, George E. Faulkner, R. M. McGregor, and J. W. Corns.

Agent-General in London.—Hon John Howard, 57a Pall Mall, S W

Local Government.—In Nova Scotia there are two municipal divisions, viz., county and city or town. The large counties are divided into two municipalities.

The county or municipal councils consist of councillors elected triennially by the ratepayers, one for each polling division of a county electing a member to the House of Assembly. Town or City Councils are composed of a mayor and not less than six councillors elected by the ratepayers.

Area and Population.—The area of the Province is 21,423 square miles. Area of lake surface, 280 100 acres. The population in 1911 was 492,388, in 1901 459,574 and in 1891 450,396.

Population of the principal cities (1911).—Halifax 46,819, Sidney, 17 729, Clace Bay, 16 562, Amherst 8 978, Yarmouth 6,600, New Glasgow, 6,383, Truro, 6 107.

The vital statistics for three years were as follows:—

	Births	Marriages	Deaths	Excess of Births
1908-09	12 391	2 000	11 978	413
1909-10	12 688	2 106	11 120	1568
1910-11	12 830	1 874	10 277	2 553

Of the births in 1910-11, 317 were illegitimate, as against 361 in 1909-10 and 362 in 1908-9.

Immigration statistics of the Maritime Provinces for the last three years:—1908, 10 644; 1910, 13 204; and 1911 15,265.

Religion.—The denominations according to the Census of 1901 were:—Roman Catholics 129 578, Presbyterians 106 381, Baptists, 83,230, Anglicans, 66,107, Methodists, 57 490, and Congregationalists 2,938.

There are also various other sects with small numbers of adherents.

Instruction.—Education in Nova Scotia is free, compulsory and unconditional. Besides the elementary schools, high schools and academies there are in Halifax a school for the blind and one for the deaf and dumb. A large Provincial Agricultural College is established at Truro, also a Normal School for the training of teachers. The Provincial Technical College grants degrees in civil, mining, chemical and electrical engineering. Besides this central institution there are working under it coal mining schools near all the collieries, and engineering and technical schools of various kinds in the industrial centres.

The Government grant for educational purposes in 1911 was $400,000. The Province has 4 universities, 2,657 schools, with 2,855 teachers and 104,994 pupils.

Pensions.—A pension scheme is an operation whereby teachers under certain conditions receive an annuity. Miners receive pay in case of an accident in pursuit of their calling and in the event of death a grant is made to the widow and children. A fund is provided to meet the demands, the Government and the employers paying each half as much as the men.

Justice and Crime.—Justice in Nova Scotia is administered by the following courts: Courts for the collection of small debts, county courts inferior courts in criminal cases, courts of superior jurisdiction; divorce court, probate courts. The supreme court of appeal is composed of a chief justice and six judges. There are also Courts for the revision of assessment rolls and voters lists, and a Court for juvenile delinquents.

In 1911, 1,396 persons were arrested for various crimes and misdemeanors. Of these 53 were sent to the penitentiary. The rest served a term in jail or were fined. 84 children were brought before the court for juvenile delinquents, 80 were convicted. Of these 19 were sent to institutions, 61 were paroled.

Finances.—In Nova Scotia there is no direct Government taxation. The revenue is raised from the Dominion subsidy, royalty on coal and other minerals raised, succession duty, tax on banks and incorporated companies, marriage licenses and statutory fees. In 1911 the revenue was $1,611,068 in 1910, $1,725,914, in 1909 $1,658,608. The public debt of the Province (1911) amounted to $10,693,689. To counterbalance this the Province had realizable assets to the value of $78,173,703 and real estate to the value of $3,678,288.

Production and Industry.—Nova Scotia is largely an agricultural Province. Fruit growing is specially profitable and apples are the most important fruit grown (2,000,000 barrels were raised in 1911). The potatoes produced are higher in quality than any others raised in Canada. Nova Scotia is admirably adapted for dairying. There was an increase during 1911 of 30 per cent in the amount of butter manufactured in 1910, the record year for the Province. There are (1911) 932,600 cattle in the Province. Owing to the cool, moist climate fodder may be raised easily, and the pastures are excellent. There are about 351,000 sheep. The annual clip is 1,800,000 lbs. Pigs numbered 70,000 and horses 69,000 in 1911.

The principal crops are hay, with an acreage of 478,849, and a yield of 670,300 tons of the value of $8,045,000, oats, 93,148 acres, producing 3,794,416 bushels of the value of $1,678,644, wheat, barley, beans and peas. The total Government aid to agriculture in 1911 was $125,000.

The principal minerals found in Nova Scotia are coal, iron, gold, copper, gypsum, fire clays, brick clays, building stone, limestone, antimony, lead, silver, manganese, tungsten, distomaceous earths. The coal fields embrace 725 square miles. The gold fields cover about 3,000 square miles. Nova Scotia gold is the highest priced in the world, running close to $20 an ounce.

The value of the principal mineral productions in 1911 was—Coal $19,200,000, steel, $8,900,000, pig iron, $4,800,000, and iron ore $2,475,000. The total value of all the mineral products was $38,887,000.

The estimated forest area of Nova Scotia is nearly 8,000 square miles. The principal trees are spruce, fir, hemlock, pine, birch, oak and maple. The value of the forest products reached the sum of $5,500,000.

The fisheries of the Province are the most extensive in Canada. Nearly $6,000,000 are invested in this industry, 26,568 men are employed, and the number of vessels engaged is 14,771. Cod, lobsters, mackerel, herring and haddock are the principal fish. Total market value of fish caught in 1911 was $7,275,885.

The total number of industrial establishments was in 1910, 1,480, with a capital of $72,585,441, employing 22,795 wage-earners, and producing commodities to the value of $22,705,194.

Commerce and Communications.—The imports for 1911 were $18,748,899, the exports, $20,001,324.

Transportation facilities in Nova Scotia are excellent. The country is covered with a network of railways 1860 miles in extent. Besides this subsidised boats ply around the shores making regular calls at all the important ports. The principal railways are the Intercolonial (Government owned), the Halifax and South Western and Inverness (owned by Canadian Northern), and the Dominion Atlantic (owned by the Canadian Pacific).

There are 8 great banks operating in the Province, with total liabilities amounting to $681,360,761, assets, $794,720,528.

There are 12 Government Savings Banks in Nova Scotia. Total deposits, $4,533,080. There are also 68 Post Office Savings Banks.

NEWFOUNDLAND AND LABRADOR.

Newfoundland was acquired by Great Britain in 1583, exclusive sovereignty over the island was ceded by France in 1713 by the Treaty of Utrecht, confirmed by treaties of 1763 and 1783.

The coast is rugged, especially on the south-west, where the coast range reaches an elevation of nearly 2,000 feet. The hills attain their summit within a few miles of the salt water, and then spread out into an undulating country, consisting largely of barmes and marshes, and intersected by numerous rivers and lakes. On the borders of the lakes and water-courses good land is generally found and in some cases, as about the Exploits, the Gander and the Humber, it is heavily timbered. Area, 42,784 square miles. Population in 1911 238,670 (192,259 males and 116,411 females). Dependent on Newfoundland is Labrador, the most easterly part of the American continent with an area of 120,000 square miles, and population (1911) of 8,949. Of the total Newfoundland population (1901) 82,674 were engaged in the fisheries, 2,475 were farmers, 3,111 mechanics, 1,576 miners. Capital, St. John's, 32,292 inhabitants (1911), other towns being Harbour Grace 4,279, Carbonear, 3,540, Twillingate, 3,348, Bonaville, 3,911. The birth rate in 1911 was 28.44 and the death rate 16.02 per 1,000. Immigrants (1910-11), 12,034, emigrants, 12,890.

The government is administered by a Governor, assisted by an Executive Council (not exceeding 9 members), a Legislative Council (not exceeding 20 members), and an elected House of Assembly consisting of 36 representatives (27 government party, 9 opposition). Members of the Legislative Council receive 180 dollars per session, members of the Legislative Assembly receive 300 or 360 dollars per session, according as they are resident or not in St. John's. Governor and Commander in Chief—Walter Edward David son, C.M.G., appointed October, 1912 salary 10,000 dollars. The Ministry formed March 8, 1909, is as follows:—

Prime Minister, without Portfolio—Rt. Hon. Sir Edward P. Morris, P.C., K.C.M.G., K.C., LL.D.

Colonial Secretary—Hon. Robert Watson.

Minister of Justice—Hon. D. Morison, E.C.

Minister of Finance and Customs—Hon. M. P. Cashin.

Minister of Agriculture and Mines—Hon. S. D. Blandford.

Leader of the Legislative Council—Hon. R. K. Bishop.

Without Portfolio—Hon. C. H. Emerson, K.C., Hon. M. P. Giblin, and Hon. J. C. Crosbie.

Not in the Cabinet are

Minister of Public Works—Mr. William Woodford.

Minister of Marine and Fisheries—Mr. A. W. Piccott.

For electoral purposes the whole colony is divided into 18 districts or constituencies. Of the total population in 1911, 78,616 belonged to the Church of England, 81,177 were Roman Catholics, 68,045 Methodists, 1,876 Presbyterians, 10,128 Salvation Army, 2,767 other denominations. At the colleges of the Church of England, Roman Catholic, and Methodist bodies, in 1911 there were 478, 369 and 476 students respectively. The number of schools of all kinds (1911) was Church of England, 826, Roman Catholic, 825, Methodist, 335, and other denominations, 82. The attendance at Board schools (1911) was Church of England, 16,425, Roman Catholic, 16,791, Methodist, 14,539, and others 2,500; total, 50,246. Total expenditure, including Government grants, fees, &c., $37,373 dollars.

By the Anglo-French Convention of 1904, France renounced her exclusive fishing rights under the treaty of Utrecht, but retained the right to fish in territorial waters from St. John's Cape northwards to Cape

May for all sorts of fish, including bait and crustacea. An agreement for the submission of the Newfoundland fisheries disputes to The Hague was concluded at Washington, January 27, 1909. The award was published in September, 1910, and was satisfactory to British claims. Among other things, it secured the right of Great Britain to make regulations without the consent of the United States, subject to any limitations imposed by treaty. It also confirmed Great Britain's contention that the whole extent of a bay from headland to headland is comprised within territorial waters. Number of vessels engaged in Whaling trade (1911), 7. Catch 10 sperm whales, 38 sulphur bottoms, 288 finbacks. The whale factories turned out 406,844 gallons of oil, 672 tons of guano and 516 cwt. of bone.

The revenue and expenditure in five years ended June 30 have been (1 dollar = 4s 1½d) —

Of the imports (1911-12) the value of 4,024,474 dollars came from the United Kingdom, 5,165,999 dollars from British Possessions (mainly Canada) 5,074,871 dollars from the United States. Of the exports the value of 2,802,666 dollars went to the United Kingdom 2,428,949 dollars to British Possessions (mainly Canada), 1,401,366 dollars to United States, and 7,156 329 to other countries.

Shipping — Total tonnage of vessels entered and cleared in 1910-11 2,241,495 tons, of which 1,245,751 tons was British. Vessels registered December 31, 1911, 3,867 sailing vessels of 181,854 tons, and 71 steam vessels of 14,706 tons; total, 3,876 vessels of 146,554 tons. Fishing is the principal occupation of the population, the value of the fishing products being almost two millions sterling annually.

Production, &c.—The chief agricultural products in 1911 were oats (8,544 bushels), potatoes (1,552,768 bushels), turnips (281,030 bushels). In 1911 there were in Newfoundland 13,694 horses, 39,472 cattle, 97,597 sheep, and 26,956 swine. Some fine pine forests exist to the north, and large saw mills have been established. The mineral resources of Newfoundland are considerable. Large beds of iron ore have been found and are being worked on Bell Island in Conception Bay, on the east coast, and other rich deposits have been discovered on the west coast. Output 1911, 1,180,683 tons, value, 1,318,992 dollars. Copper ore and pyrites are worked successfully. In 1911, 42,131 tons of ore were mined, valued at 231,693 dollars. Coal is found near St. George's Bay on the west coast, and in the Grand Lake district. In the eastern part of the island gold-bearing quartz rock, and extensive deposits of silver and lead ore have been found. Extensive paper and pulp mills have been erected at Grand Falls. These mills are furnished with the most up-to-date machinery and are making in a day of 24 hours, 100 tons of paper and 240 tons of pulp. At Grand Falls and Bishop's Falls there have been completed extensive pulp mills, which are now making pulp for exportation and machinery for the manufacture of paper is about to be installed. The paper and pulp is largely exported to England. There is a likelihood that mills will soon also be constructed at Deer Lake and Hawkes Harbour.

Communications, &c.—Railways open 1911 723 miles of Government line with a gauge of 3 ft. 6 in., and 47 miles of private line. By acts of the Newfoundland Legislature in 1910 an agreement was made by the Government for the construction and maintenance of five branch lines of railway running to Bonaville, Heart's Content, and Grates Cove, Trepansey, Fertane Bay, and Bonne Bay. The Government agreed to pay the contractors 15,000 dollars a mile for construction and to give 4,000 acres of land per mile constructed for operation to do which it raised by loan 3,993,206 dollars. The line to Bonaville was completed in 1911 and the line to Trepansey in 1912. These lines will open up various fertile sections of the island. Communication between various points on the coast and between the island and the continent is maintained by a fleet of 8 first class steamers, each of which connects with some central point on the railway. There are (1912) 652 post offices. Letters and cards sent in 1911 3,600,000 newspapers, books, &c., 3,300,000, parcels, 118,078. Post office revenue, 24,956, expenditure, 81,210. Telegraph line open (1911), 4,718 miles 829 miles of telephone wire.

In December 1911, the Newfoundland Savings Banks held 3,015,443 dollars standing to the credit of 7,961 depositors. This is in addition to the amounts held by the Savings Departments of the three banks doing business in St. John's.

The legal coin of the colony is the gold dollar, equivalent to 4s 1½d of British money.

AUSTRALASIA AND OCEANIA

The British Territories in Australasia comprise the self governing States which now form the Commonwealth of Australia, the Australian Dependencies of Papua and Northern Territory, the self governing Dominion of New Zealand and adjacent islands, and the Crown Colony of Fiji. The British possessions in Oceania include the Tonga Islands and many other groups of islands and islets scattered over the Pacific.

THE COMMONWEALTH OF AUSTRALIA

The Commonwealth of Australia, consisting of the six colonies (now denominated Original States) of New South Wales, Victoria, Queensland, South Australia, Western Australia, and Tasmania, was proclaimed at Sydney January 1, 1901. After five of these colonies had by legislative enactments, approved by the direct vote of the electors, declared their desire for a Federal Union, the British Parliament, on July 9, 1900, passed the Act to constitute the Commonwealth. This Act provided for the inclusion of Western Australia in the Federation if that colony so desired, and in the following month the colonial legislation necessary for this end was passed.

Legislative power is vested in a Federal Parliament consisting of the King, represented by a Governor General, a Senate, and a House of Representatives. The Senate consists of Senators (six for each of the Original States voting as one electorate) chosen for six years. In general the Senate will be renewed to the extent of one half every three years, but, in case of prolonged disagreement with the House of Representatives, it may be dissolved, and an entirely new Senate elected. The House of Representatives consists, as nearly as may be, of twice as many members as there are Senators, the numbers chosen in the several States being in proportion to the respective numbers of their people as shown by the latest statistics of the Commonwealth but not less than five for any original State. For the first House of Representatives the number was 75, distributed as follows: New South Wales, 26, Victoria, 23, Queensland, 9, South Australia, 7, Western Australia, 5, Tasmania, 5. As a result of the Census enumeration of 1911, New South Wales will have 27 members, Victoria 21 and Queensland 10. Every House of Representatives continues for three years from the date of its first meeting, unless sooner dissolved. Electoral qualifications for both Chambers of the first Federal Parliament were those for the more numerous House of the Parliament of the State in which the elector was competent to vote. Every Senator or Member of the House of Representatives must be a natural born subject of the King, or have been for five years a naturalised subject under a law of the United Kingdom or of a State of the Commonwealth. He must be of full age, and must possess electoral qualification. Since the first Parliament of the Commonwealth was instituted, an Electoral Act has unified the franchise for both Chambers, on the basis of universal adult suffrage.

Last election April, 1910. Labour Party, 44, Fusionists, 29, Independent Liberals, 2.

The legislative powers of the Federal Parliament are extensive, embracing commerce, shipping, &c., finance, defence, postal, telegraph and like services, census and statistics; conciliation and arbitration in industrial disputes extending beyond the limits of any one State. Authority is given for the Commonwealth to assume jurisdiction in regard to railways, light houses, &c., marriage and divorce, emigration and immigration, currency and banking; weights and measures. The several State Parliaments retain legislative authority in all matters which are not transferred to the Federal Parliament, which is thus a government of limited and enumerated powers, the several State Parliaments retaining the residuary power of government over their respective territories. With respect to money bills, the House of Representatives has special powers, and provision is made for cases of disagreement between the two Houses.

The Executive power, vested in the King, is exercisable by the Governor General, who is assisted by an Executive Council of responsible Ministers of State. These Ministers are, or must become within three months, members of the Federal Parliament; they are paid salaries not exceeding, in all, 12,000*l.* a year. The Executive Government of the Commonwealth is constituted as follows:—

Governor General—His Excellency the Right Hon Thomas, Baron Denman, P.C., G.C.M.G., G.C.V.O., Commander-in-Chief of the Commonwealth of Australia and its Dependencies.

Prime Minister and Treasurer—Rt Hon A. Fisher, P.C.

Attorney-General—Hon W. M. Hughes.

External Affairs—Hon J. Thomas.

Minister of Home Affairs—Hon E. O'Malley.

Postmaster General—Hon C. E. Frazer.

Minister of Defence—Hon G. F. Pearce.

Minister of Trade and Customs—Hon F. H. Tudor.

Vice President of the Executive Council—Senator the Hon G. McGregor.

Honorary Ministers—Senator the Hon E. Findley and the Hon E. A. Roberts.

High Commissioner for Australia in London—The Right Hon Sir George Hombourk Reid, P.C., K.C., G.C.M.G., 79 Victoria Street, Westminster, S.W.

The Constitution provides for a Federal Judicature for an inter-State Commission on Trade and Commerce, for the transfer of State officials, State property, and State debts to the Commonwealth, for the collection and expenditure of duties during the transition period, and for alteration of the Constitution. A High Court (consisting of 5 judges) has been established, with original as well as appellate jurisdiction. The selection of the Yass Canberra site for the Federal Capital was voted in the Senate and House of Representatives, and in 1910, the Commonwealth acquired from the State of New South Wales an area of approximately 800 square miles. An area of 2 square miles at Jervis Bay was also acquired for purposes of a Naval College, and the right to construct a railway from the Capital thereto. At present the Federal Government has its seat at Melbourne.

Finance

Actual revenue and expenditure for 1909-10 to 1911-12 and estimated revenue and expenditure for 1912-13 are given in the following table. The payments to States represent the balances of revenue collected in the several States after the necessary expenditure on Commonwealth services. Under the "Surplus Revenue Act, 1910," the amount payable by the Commonwealth to each State from the 1st July, 1910, is a sum equivalent to 25 shillings per head of the population as estimated by the Commonwealth Statistician at 31st December in each year. (In 1910-11 this amount is subject to certain deductions.) Western Australia is to receive in addition an annual sum commencing with 250,000 in 1910-11, and diminishing by 10,000 per year thereafter —

Invalid and Old Age Pensions.

The Invalid and Old Age Pension Acts provide for the payment of invalid and old age pensions at such rates as the Commissioner deciding the question deems sufficient, but so that the amount shall not exceed 26*l.* a year, nor the pensioner's whole income (including the pension) exceed 52*l.* a year. Old age pensions are granted upon application to persons who are at least 65 years of age and have lived in Australia or Australian territory at least 20 years. Invalid pensions are granted to persons who have lived at least 5 years in Australia, have there become incapacitated, and have no other sufficient means of support. On October 9, 1912, a Maternity Bill was passed providing for the payment of a bonus up to a maximum amount of 5*l.* in respect of every child born in Australia of white parentage. The disbursements for old age pensions were 1,497,880*l.* in 1909-10, 1,674,459*l.* in 1910-11, and 2,155,481*l.* in 1911-12. The estimate for 1912-13 is 2,414,000*l.* The maternity allowance is estimated in 1912-13 at 400,000*l.* The numbers of pensioners in the Commonwealth on the 18th December, 1912, were — Old age, 80,206, invalid, 11,907, total, 92,113.

Defence

ARMY

The principal ports of the States are protected by fortifications, and forts have been erected at King George's Sound and Thursday Island.

The military forces of the various States on June 30 1912 were —

The year 1911 saw the commencement of the new defence scheme adopted by the Australian Government on the basis of Lord Kitchener's recommendations. The Defence Act of 1902, amended by the Acts of 1909, 1910, 1911 and 1912, imposes a system of compulsory training, beginning with children of 12 to 18 years of age (junior and senior), followed by 1 year in the Citizen Forces on recruitment, after which the men remain as soldiers for 7 years. Liability ceases with the completion of the 26th year, but the men are expected to join the existing rifle clubs and keep up their shooting. The actual period of training is very short, that imposed on the young citizen soldiers of 18 to 26 being only 16 days (of 6 hours), or their equivalent, in each year. The whole country is divided up into 98 recruiting districts of approximately equal population, each providing one battalion, besides other troops. It is intended that there should be 7 divisions: Queensland finds the 1st, New South Wales the 2nd and 3rd, Victoria the 4th and 5th, with a spare brigade to help South Australia to form the 6th. Western Australia finds 1½ brigades and Tasmania 1 brigade.

It is estimated that the total number of men under training, when the system is in full operation, will be 160,000 cadets and 120,000 citizen soldiers. At present the Militia consists of about 22,000 of all ranks and there are about 90,000 undergoing compulsory training. About 55,000 are registered in the Rifle Clubs. A Military College for the training of officers has been established at the proposed Federal capital.

The present militia and volunteer units will be gradually merged into the new citizen army. This is to consist when complete of 28 infantry brigades (of 4 battalions), 28 regiments of light horse 49 field and 7 heavy batteries (all of 4 guns), 14 field companies of engineers and the necessary departmental troops. In the event of war, about half of the whole would be required to garrison the defended ports &c. while the remainder would form a mobile striking force.

The annual cost of the scheme when in full working order that is in 8 or 9 years, will exceed 2,000,000/. The estimated defence expenditure exclusive of administration and works in 1911-12 was 1,528,733/.

NAVY

Naval estimates 1912-13 = 349,272.

Sydney is a first class naval station, and the headquarters of the British fleet in Australasia. The Naval Agreement Act of 1903 (for 10 years) provided that the Naval Force on the Australian Station should consist of not less than one armoured cruiser, first class, two second class cruisers, four third-class cruisers, four sloops, and of a Royal Naval Reserve of 25 officers and 700 seamen and stokers. The base of this force should be the ports of Australia and New Zealand and their sphere of operations the waters of the Australia, China, and East India Stations. One ship should be kept in reserve and three others partly manned should be used as drill ships for training the Royal Naval Reserve; the remainder should be kept in commission fully manned. The drill ships and one other vessel were to be manned by Australians and New Zealanders paid at special rates. They were officered by officers of the Royal Navy and Royal Naval Reserve. Eight nominations for naval cadetships were to be given annually to the Commonwealth and two to New Zealand. An annual charge of 200,000/ was to be paid to the Imperial Government by the Commonwealth and 40,000/ by New Zealand.

On June 30 1911, the naval forces of the Commonwealth were as follows:—Permanent naval forces (sea-going), 862 administrative and instructional staff, 124, reserves—adults, 993, reserves—senior cadets 2,990. Total, 4,969, navy office, 40, Grand Total, 6,009.

The policy of the Commonwealth is to make Australia self-defending. Having accepted the position that a fuller Imperial partnership is necessary for the future security of the Empire, and that a definite place in the Pacific has been allotted to Australia, the Government has agreed to furnish an Australian Fleet Unit, upon which King George conferred the title of "Royal Australian Navy" (Sept. 19 1911). The main obligation of the Commonwealth are to provide a battle cruiser of the Edinburgh class, three unarmoured cruisers of the Bristol class, six destroyers of the improved River class and two submarines of 'B' class; also the necessary auxiliaries such as docks and depot ships. This fleet will be one of the three divisions of the Eastern Fleet working in close association with the China and East Indies squadrons of the Royal Navy—all being under one control in war, but the Australian Unit being controlled by the Commonwealth Government in peace. The personnel will be subject to the King's regulations, and under naval discipline. The vessels will be manned as far as possible by Australians, supplemented by Imperial officers and men. Two of the destroyers arrived in Australia in November, 1910 a third has been launched in Australia. The battle cruiser is under construction. The modern Australian Navy by the end of 1913 should consist of one Dreadnought battle cruiser Australia (sister to the New Zealand), three protected cruisers of the Town class Melbourne, Sydney Brisbane and 11 River class destroyers. A Naval College is to be established for the training of officers.

Production.

The area under crops (distinguishing the principal crops) in the Commonwealth, and the yield in 1911-2, were as follows

The total area under all crops in 1911-12 was 12,106,642 acres, and the total value of agricultural production, 38,776,000*l*.

At the end of 1911 there were in the Commonwealth 2,279,000 horses, 11,819,000 cattle, 92,948,000 sheep, and 1,111,000 pigs. The production of wool in 1911 amounted to 767,785,000 lba. and the exports to 578,824,000 lba. greasy, valued at 21,385,000*l*, 68,258,000 lba. scoured, valued at 4,401,000*l*, and 2,513,000 lba. of tops, valued at 275,000*l*. The exports of tallow amounted in value to 1,937,000*l*, of sheepskins to 1,614,000*l* and of frozen mutton to 8,232,000*l*. The butter produced amounted to 212,876,000 lba., of which 101,722,000 lba., valued at 4,637,000*l*, were exported.

The mineral products were valued at 28,487,000*l*. in 1911, including, gold, 10,552,000*l*. (2,484,000 fine oz.) silver and lead, 3,021,000*l*, copper, 2,564,000*l*, tin, 1,210,000*l*, coal, 8,930,000*l*.

Statistics of the manufacturing industries in the Commonwealth in 1911 are given as follows.—number of establishments, 14,455, hands employed, 811,772, salaries and wages paid, 27,532,000*l*, value of plant and machinery, 21,369,300*l*, value of materials used, 79,042,000*l*; value added by manufacture, 54,143,000*l*, value of output, 133,187,000*l*.

Commerce.

Throughout the Commonwealth there are uniform customs duties, and trade between the States is free. For 1911 the net revenue collected from customs duties amounted to 12,444,037*l*.

The following table shows for 5 years the value of the imports and exports (merchandise, bullion, and specie) into or from the Australian Commonwealth from or into countries outside the Commonwealth

Years	Imports	Exports		Total
		Australian Produce	Other Produce

1912	78,088,000	—	—	78,885,000

The value of goods imported represents the amount on which duty is payable or would be payable if the duty were ad valorem. The value of goods subject to duty is taken to be the fair market value in the principal markets of the country whence the same were exported, with an addition of 10 per cent. to such market value.

The Customs Tariff Act of 1908 provides for preference to goods produced in and shipped from the United Kingdom to Australia as against the goods of other countries, and also affords a larger measure of protection to Australian industries than previous tariffs.

The value of goods exported is the value in the principal markets of the Commonwealth in the usual and ordinary commercial acceptance of the term.

NEW SOUTH WALES

Constitution and Government.

New South Wales became a British Possession in 1788, in 1848 a partially elective Legislative Council was established, and in 1855 responsible government was granted. The constitution is embodied in the consolidating Act No 52, 1902. The legislative power is vested in a Parliament of two Houses, the first called the Legislative Council, and the second the Legislative Assembly. The Legislative Council consists of not less than twenty one members (59 in October, 1912), appointed by the Crown for life, and the Assembly has 90 members. During 1904 the State was divided into 90 electorates, each with only one member. Every man or woman being a natural born or naturalised subject above 21 years of age, having resided one year in the State and three months in a particular electoral district, is qualified as an elector and is entitled to one vote only. The duration of a Parliament is not more than three years. Members of the Legislative Assembly are paid 500*l* per annum in addition to which they are allowed to travel free on Government railways and tramways in the State, and are provided with official stamped envelopes for the free transmission of correspondence through the post. The leader of the Opposition is allowed 250*l* per annum in addition. The Speaker of the Legislative Assembly receives a salary of 1,000*l* per annum, and the Chairman of Committees 740*l* per annum. Members of the Legislative Council receive no allowances but may travel free over all Government railways and tramways. At the general election of 1910, 584,353 electors out of 844,881 enrolled in contested districts, or 69.20 per cent. of the electors on the roll voted. Included in the foregoing figures are 262,154 female electors who voted out of 400,139 enrolled in contested districts. The executive is in the hands of a Governor, appointed by the Imperial Government.

State of Parties (December, 1912) — Labour, 46, Liberal, 39, Independent Liberals, 5.

Governor — Sir Gerald Strickland, K C M G, from March, 1913 (Salary 5,000*l*).

Lieut. Governor — His Honour Sir William Portus Cullen, LL.D., Chief Justice.

In the exercise of the executive the Governor is assisted by a Cabinet consisting of the following members —

Premier and Colonial Secretary — Hon. James Sinclair Taylor McGowen.

Attorney General — Hon. William Arthur Holman.

Colonial Treasurer — Hon. John Henry Cann.

Secretary for Public Works — Hon. Arthur Hill Griffith.

Minister of Justice and Solicitor General — Hon. David Robert Hall.

Secretary for Mines — Hon. Alfred Edden.

Minister of Labour and Industry and Public Instruction — Hon. Ambrose Campbell Carmichael.

Minister for Lands and Agriculture — Hon. John Louis Trellé.

Vice-President of the Executive Council — Hon. Frederick Flowers, M. L. C.

The Attorney-General and Minister of Justice has a salary of 1,520*l*, and the other ministers, except the Vice-President of the Executive Council, of 1,370*l*. The Premier has an additional salary of 800*l*. The salary of the Vice-President of the Executive Council is 800*l*.

Agent-General in London.—T. A. Coghlan, L.S.O.
Secretary.—T. G. White

LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Under the Local Government Act of 1906, the system of Local Government has been extended to the whole of the State, with the exception of the Western Land Division. The 190 boroughs and municipal districts which existed under the Act of 1867, still remain under the title of municipalities, and in addition thereto, 184 new corporate bodies have been established, which are called shires.

Under the 1867 Act the State grants an endowment to every municipality for a period of 15 years after its incorporation as follows: For each of the first 5 years a sum equal to the local revenue raised during the past year, in each of the next 5 years one moiety, and in each of the next 5 years a fourth of the amount raised by general rates. Under the 1906 Act, however, municipalities which are not entitled to a subsidy under the original Act may receive endowments up to 3s. 4d. in the £ on the general rate. Shires receive endowments when the receipts from general rates are insufficient to meet requirements. All persons who are owners, occupiers, or lessees, whether male or female, in any municipality or shire, and paying rates, are entitled to vote for the election of aldermen or councillors.

Area and Population

The area of the State is 810,867 square miles. The State is divided into various districts for departmental purposes, the most important division being that into 141 counties.

The population (including aborigines) at five consecutive censuses was —

Year	Males	Females	Total	Pop. per square mile	Average increase per cent per annum
1871	276,561	328,430	503,981	1.62	3.7
1881	411,149	340,819	751,468	2.42	4.1
1891	612,562	519,672	1,132,234	3.65	4.2
1901	712,456	646,677	1,359,133	4.28	1.8
1911	858,850	789,896	1,648,746	5.82	2.0

The estimated population on June 30, 1912, was 1,729,765.

According to the race or origin, percentages were as follows at the census of 1911 (exclusive of aborigines):—New South Wales, 74.51, other Commonwealth States, 9.67, New Zealand, 0.85, English, 7.49; Irish, 2.85; Scotch, 1.94; Welsh, 0.27; other British subjects, 0.45; total British subjects, 84.80. Chinese, 0.47, German, 0.45, other foreigners, 0.96; total foreigners, 1.92. Born at sea, 0.09. Aborigines:—Males, 1,142, females, 890; total, 2,032.

According to occupation the number of actual workers (not including aborigines) was distributed thus at the census of 1901:—

Professionals	41,384
Domestic (excluding instruction)	72,813
Commerce and Trade	77,464
Transport and Communication	25,887

Industries	146,688
Primary Producers (Agricultural, Pastoral, Dairying, Mining, &c)	172,854
Indefinite	9,524

Total workers	564,799

The number of persons classed as dependents was 787,798, of whom 13,760 were dependent on public or private charity.

The census population of Sydney (1911), including suburbs and shipping, was 688,853. Of the country towns Newcastle, including suburbs, at the census of 1911 had 55,380. Bathurst, 8,575, Goulburn, 10,023. Parramatta, 12,465, Broken Hill, 50,972. Marland (East and West), 11,313, Albury, 6,309, Granville, 7,231, Lithgow, 8,196, Wagga Wagga, 6,419. Tamworth, 7,145, Orange and East Orange, 6,721, and Grafton and South Grafton, 5,888.

The following table shows the births, deaths, and marriages for five years.

Year	Marriages	Total Births	Illegitimate	Total Deaths	Excess of Births
1907	12,189	42,195	2,969	16,410	25,785
1908	12,642	42,525	2,932	16,090	26,435
1909	13,048	43,760	2,879	15,840	27,920
1910	14,294	45,533	2,900	16,191	29,342
1911	15,267	47,677	2,949	17,179	30,498

The increase in population between the census of 1901 and that of 1911 was 291,857. Towards this the excess of births over deaths contributed 247,871.

The following are the statistics of the arrivals and departures by sea for five years, making allowance for those unrecorded —

	1907	1908	1909	1910	1911
Immigrants by sea	98,275	100,856	106,310	111,525	141,667
Emigrants "	82,646	84,452	99,025	102,205	117,154
Excess of immigrants by sea	15,329	16,404	7,285	9,320	24,513

In December, 1905, New South Wales revived the policy of assisted immigration, and assisted passages are now granted enabling female domestic servants, agriculturalists, and other workers to emigrate from the United Kingdom at fares ranging from 8*l* to 6*l*, 8*l* to 8*l* and 8*l* to 11*l*, respectively. Assistance is also given to immigrants from other countries. Five hundred and ninety assisted persons arrived in 1906, 2,917 during 1907, 2,048 in 1908, 4,368 in 1909, 5,068 in 1910, and 9,922 in 1911.

Religion

An Act abolishing State aid to religion was passed in 1862. The clergy who received State aid when the Act was passed, and now survive, still receive that aid.

The Church of England in the State is governed by a Metropolitan who is Archbishop of Sydney, Metropolitan and Primate of Australia and Tasmania. He is nominated by the Bishops in Australia and consecrated by the Arch-bishop of Canterbury. There were in 1911 six dioceses. The affairs of the Roman Catholic Church are administered by the Bishops of seven dioceses.

Denomination	Clergy 1911	Adherents Census 1911	Denomination	Clergy 1911	Adherents Census 1911

Instruction

Education is under State control, and instruction is compulsory between the ages of 6 and 14 years, in State Primary and Superior public schools education is free

There were during 1910, 3,257 Government schools, divided into 3,464 departments and classified as follows — High schools 5 public schools 1,859, half time schools 306, provisional schools 485, house-to-house schools 9, evening schools 42, subsidised schools 448, industrial and reformatory schools 3, total 3,257 schools. During 1910 there were 243,839 children enrolled, and an average attendance of 157,488, with 5,900 teachers. In 1910 the expenditure on Public Instruction was 1,191,713/.

Of private schools at the end of 1910 there were 774, with 59,217 pupils and 3,602 teachers, of which 394 were Roman Catholic Denominational Schools having 1,985 teachers and 44,249 pupils.

The University of Sydney, founded in 1850, receives from Government a yearly subsidy amounting, with special aid to 18,800/ in 1910. The total revenue for 1910 was 64,305/. There were 1,357 students and in addition to 6 honorary lecturers and demonstrators, 106 professors, lecturers, &c. There are 3 theological colleges and a college for women, unsectarian, affiliated to the University. The Technical College, with branch schools, comprising classes in agriculture, physics, applied mechanics, &c. had a total enrolment of 22,822 in 1910.

Old Age, Invalidity and Accident Pensions

In Australia the old age pension law grants (subject to conditions as to birth, residence, and character) a pension of 26/ a year to every person over 65 years of age or over 60 if incapacitated by infirmity or injury from earning a living. The amount of the pension is diminished by one pound for every pound of income which the pensioner receives from other sources above 26/, and by one pound for every 10/ over 50/ of property the pensioner possesses. In the year 1909-10, 27,806 pensioners received 690,490/ in New South Wales. Since July 1, 1909, old age pensions have been paid throughout the Commonwealth by the Federal Government, and on December 13, 1912, 80,202 pensions were current.

Invalidity and Accident Pensions are paid to persons over the age of 16 years who are permanently incapacitated and who are not receiving an old age pension. From Dec 15 1910, the payment of these pensions was undertaken by the Federal Government, and 5,028 persons were in receipt of the benefits on December 13, 1912.

Justice and Crime

There are Courts of Magistrates of Quarter Sessions, and the Supreme Court, with a chief justice and six puisne judges. Prisoners charged with offences bearing sentences of more than six months imprisonment are tried by a jury of twelve persons, either at Quarter Sessions, or before the Supreme Court. Prisoners charged with capital crimes must be tried before the Supreme Court. There is a special Court to deal with children.

In the Sydney metropolitan, Newcastle, and Broken Hill districts police courts are presided over by stipendiary magistrates, in other districts, police magistrates and honorary justices of the peace adjudicate. The licensing of houses for the sale of spirituous and fermented liquors is transacted by magistrates specially appointed for that purpose.

In 1910 there were 63,671 convictions before magistrates, and 546 distinct persons were convicted at Quarter Sessions and at Central Criminal and Circuit Courts.

There are in all 30 gaols. On December 31, 1910 there were 1,298 prisoners in confinement.

The financial statistics of the 134 shires (area 192,110 square miles) during 1910 were as follows —

Unimproved Capital Value £9,65,012 Revenue " 434 Expenditure " 4,012

For Defence see under Commonwealth of Australia. A naval establishment, the main works of which are at Garden Island, Sydney, has been completed. Sydney is the headquarters of the squadron in Australian waters, and has a dockyard, naval coaling station, and victualing and other stores. The cost of the defence of the State is borne by the Commonwealth Government.

Production and Industry

I. AGRICULTURE

In 1911-12 there were 3,629,170 acres under crops. About one fourth of the total area of the State is under forest. The cultivated land is principally to be found in small holdings of less than 500 acres. The State is divided into three divisions—the Eastern, Central and Western. The Districts in the Eastern and Central Divisions are, for the purpose of local administration, grouped into 12 Land Board Districts which are sub-divided into 88 Land Districts. The Western Division is under the control of the Western Land Board—consisting of three Commissioners—and the head offices of the Lands Department and Western Land Board offices are in Sydney. In the Eastern and Central Divisions there are a number of tenures under which land may be acquired, those of most interest to intending settlers being Conditional Purchase (with which is associated Conditional Lease), Homestead Selection, Settlement Lease, Conditional Purchase Lease, and Settlement Purchase. Conditional Purchase and Conditional Lease—The Statutory price of Crown lands available for residential Conditional Purchase is 11/ per acre, but Crown Lands may be specially classified at prices either above or below that amount. A deposit of 10 per cent. is required, and the balance is payable in regular instalments after the third year, and may extend over a period exceeding 80 years, interest being charged at the rate of 2½ per cent. on the outstanding balance only. The selector must reside on his holding for the first 10 years, and certain improvements must be carried out. Homestead Selection—This tenure is practically a perpetual lease and offers special advantages to the man with small means, as the land may be held for the first six years at the low rental of 1½ per cent of its capital value. After issue of the Crown grant or after expiration of first six years if the grant be not previously issued, the annual rental is 2½ per cent. of the capital value of the land. Settlement Lease—This has a term of 40 years and the lessee must reside on the land during its currency. After the first five years a Homestead Grant of 1 280 acres may be obtained of that part of the lease on which the dwelling house is situated. Conditional Purchase Lease—This tenure is especially attractive to the land seeker with small capital. The lease has a term of 40 years—rental 2½ per cent of the capital value—but may be converted at any time into a Conditional Purchase and thus be put on a freehold basis. Settlement Purchase—This form of holding arises when large private estates are resumed by the Crown and made available in blocks, each one of which is intended to support a family in comfort. A ten years residence condition is attached and instalments extend over a period of 38 years after which the purchase becomes freehold. Homestead selections and settlement leases may be converted into conditional purchases or conditional purchase leases.

In the Western Division the land is leased by the State to pastoral tenants, mainly for grazing but small areas in or near townships are leased for special purposes.

The following are the chief features of the Act of 1901, which governs the administration of the western lands.

(1) Tenure of Western Leaseholds extended to June 30 1943 subject to resumption of one eighth of the total area and all new leases are made to expire on the same date. (2) Occupation Licences are held as Annual Tenures—out of which Western Lands Leases may be granted. (3) Improvements on the land at date of granting of the Leases become the property of the Crown on the expiration of the Leases, but the Lessees have tenant right in all authorised improvements. (4) Rent minimum 2s 6d per square mile maximum 7d per sheep on the carrying capacity of the land.

The total land alienated or in process of alienation on June 30, 1911, was 54 115 203 acres. The total land occupied under leases of various kinds was 125,771,584 acres. The following table gives the statistics of holdings of 1 acre and upwards for years ended March 31—

The principal fruit-culture of the State is that of the orange. There were in March, 1912, 20,423 acres under citrus fruit, with an estimated production of 946,196 bushels of oranges, 256,433 bushels of lemons, 475,121 bushels of mandarins, and 4,580 bushels of other citrus fruit.

In 1911-12 the State had 44,982,637 sheep, 3,182,939 cattle, 688,414 horses, 871,093 pigs. The production of wool as in the grease in 1905 297,154,000 lbs. in 1906 325,441,000 lbs. in 1907, 367,446,000 lbs. in 1908 338,129,000 lbs. in 1909, 370,804,000 lbs. in 1910 415,938,000 lbs., and in 1911, 371,546,000 lbs.

There were 154,372 persons engaged in agricultural and pastoral pursuits during the year 1911-12.

There is a Forest Conservation Department. The timber reserves, in which State forests are included, cover an area of 7,379,395 acres. The revenue from royalties, licences, &c., amounted in 1907 to £5,730L. in 1908 to 57,129L., in 1909 to 57,241L., in 1910 to 81,837L., and in 1911 to 99,518L.

Most of the gold won in the State is received at the Mint for coinage. The value of silver and silver lead and ore obtained to the end of 1911 was 54 739 723<sup>1</sup>. In 1911 1 767 496 ounces of silver were raised, valued at 177 095<sup>1</sup> and 338 469 tons of silver lead ore and metal, altogether valued at 2,285 669<sup>1</sup>. The value of copper raised in 1911 was 590 102<sup>1</sup>. The estimated value of copper raised from its discovery in 1858 until the end of 1911 is 11,204,311<sup>1</sup>. The total value of the output of tin since the mines were opened in 1872 has been 8,989,535<sup>1</sup> the value in 1911 being 307,089<sup>1</sup>. In 1911 there were 135 coal mines, employing 17,657 men the quantity of coal raised in 1911 was 8 691 604 tons valued at 3,167 185<sup>1</sup>. The estimated value of coal raised to the close of 1911 amounted to 65 427,678<sup>1</sup>. There are 84 smelting furnaces and ore dressing establishments giving employment to 3 867 hands, principally for the smelting of silver tin and copper ores. The output of zinc (spelter and concentrates) in 1911 was 16 378 tons valued at 1 414 960<sup>1</sup> and of lead, 17 278 tons valued at 209 784<sup>1</sup>. Between 1901 and 1911 the value of the minerals produced in N & W increased from 1,580 739<sup>1</sup> to 4 758,006<sup>1</sup>.

<sup>2</sup> These figures relate to Overseas trade only as the inter-State transfers were not collected after September 1st 1910 and complete returns are therefore not available

The chief exports are gold silver copper, lead tin, coal wool, butter, wheat flour fruit, timber meat (frozen and preserved), hides and skins, tallow leather, cocoa nut oil

Nearly all trainways are the property of the Government. There were on June 30 1911 19½ miles open for traffic the capital cost being 5 664 324<sup>1</sup>. The gross earnings for 1911-12 were 1 591,397<sup>1</sup> the working expenses, 1 331,413<sup>1</sup> and the percentage of working expenses to revenue 84 19. There were, besides, 7 miles of privately owned trainways.

Of the Savings Bank of New South Wales established in 1832, the Governor is president and the management is vested in thirteen trustees. Besides the head office and 7 branches in Sydney and suburbs there are 19 branches in the country districts.

The Government Savings Bank established in 1871 was reorganised by an Act passed in 1906, by which it was placed under three commissioners. Its business is carried on in two separate departments—the Savings Bank Department and the Advance Department, the former of which receives and invests deposits, and pays interest on amounts not exceeding 500*l*, while to the latter has been handed over the administration of the State system of loans to agriculturists, formerly vested in an Advance to Settlers Board. The number of branches open on the 31st December 1911, was 87, and the number of post office agencies in conjunction therewith was 618.

Statistics of both are given below —

Year	Number of Depositors	Amount on Dec. 31	Average per Depositor
1897	421,928	17,530,157	41 10 11

VICTORIA

Constitution and Government

Victoria, formerly a portion of New South Wales was in 1851, proclaimed a separate colony with a partially elective Legislative Council and in 1855 responsible self government was conferred. The legislative authority is vested in a Parliament of two Chambers. By an Act of 1906 separate representation of State public servants was abolished and the upper house now consists of 34 members, elected for six years, and the lower of 65, elected for three years (unless sooner dissolved). Members of the Council must be in possession of an estate of the net annual value of 50*l.* for one year prior to their election and electors must be in the possession or occupancy of property of the rateable value of 10*l.* per annum if derived from freehold or of 15*l.* if derived from leasehold or the occupation of rented property. No electoral property qualification is required for graduates of British or Colonial universities, matriculated students of the Melbourne University, members of religion of any denomination certificated teachers, lawyers, medical practitioners, and officers of the army and navy active and retired. One half of the members of the Legislative Council retire every three years. The members of the Legislative Assembly require no property qualification and are elected by universal suffrage and no person may vote in more than one district, nor twice in the same district. The franchise was conferred on women by the Adult Suffrage Act of 1908. Clergymen of any religious denomination are not allowed to hold seats in either the Legislative Council or the Legislative Assembly.

Members of the Legislative Assembly are entitled to reimbursement for expenses at the rate of 300*l.* per annum, and members of both Houses have free passes over all the railways.

Governor — Hon. Sir John Michael Fleetwood Fuller Bart. A.C.M.G. (Salary 5000*l.*)

Lieutenant Governor — Hon. Sir John Madden, G.C.M.G., LL.D.

In the exercise of the executive he is assisted by a Cabinet of responsible ministers.

The Ministry, October 1912, is as follows —

Premier and Treasurer —Hon W A. Watt M L A

Chief Secretary, and Minister of Labour —Hon. J Murray M L A

Minister of Water Supply and Agriculture —Hon. George Graham, M L A

Minister of Lands —Hon Hugh McKenzie, M L A

Minister of Railways, Mines and Forests —Hon Peter McBride M L A

Minister of Education —Hon A A Billson M L A

LOCAL GOVERNMENT

For purposes of local administration the State is divided into urban and rural municipalities. The former, called cities, towns and boroughs, ought not to be of a greater area than nine square miles and in being constituted must contain at least 500 householders, and rateable property capable of yielding 3000 upon a rate of one shilling in the £. The latter called shires, are portions of country, of undefined extent, containing rateable property capable of yielding a revenue of £5000 on a rate of one shilling in the £. In 1911 there were 61 urban and 146 rural municipalities, only 650 square miles in the State not being included within their limits. Every ratepayer has one or more votes, according to the amount of his rates.

Area and Population

The State has an area of 87 884 square miles, or 56 245 760 acres, about  $\frac{1}{4}$  part of the whole area of Australia. The State is divided into 37 counties, varying in area from 920 to 5,933 square miles.

The growth of the population as shown by census returns, is exhibited in the following table —

Date of Enumeration	Males	Females	Total	Annual rate of increase per cent
March 29 1857	264,384	146,432	410,766	—
April 7, 1862	328,651	211,671	540,322	7.83
April 2 1871	401,050	240,478	781,528	3.07
April 3, 1881	452,043	410 263	862,346	1.65
April 5, 1891	598,414	541,991	1 140,405	2.83
March 31, 1901	603,883	567 458	1,201,341	0.48
April 2, 1911	665,591	652,960	1,315,551	0.91

The average density of the population is 13 persons to the square mile, or one person to every 46 acres.

The population in 1881 included 6,577 Chinese and 563 aborigines; in 1901, 7,545 Chinese and 653 aborigines; and in 1911, 6,601 Chinese and 643 aborigines.

At the date of the census of 1911, 98 per cent. of the population were British subjects by birth, native Victorians numbered 1,010,219, or 77 per cent. of the population; natives of the other Australian States, 98,720; of New Zealand, 10,067; of England and Wales, 39,382, of Ireland, 41,477, of Scotland, 36,577, of Germany, 6,142, and of other countries, 32,961.

Of the total population in 1901, there were 534,049 bread-winners and 682,856 dependants, while 4,837 were not accounted for. Of the bread-winners there were—professional, 35,224, domestic, 68,815, commercial, 70,048; industrial, 146,228, engaged in transport, 31,516, primary producers, 165,147 (including agricultural, 100,403, pastoral, 52,373, Fisheries, 916; mining, 81,447); indefinite, 10,066.

About three-fifths of the total population of Victoria live in towns. At the end of 1911 it was estimated that the town population numbered 514,576, out of a total population of 1,357,678.

Inclusive of the suburbs the estimated population on December 31, 1911, of Melbourne was 600,160, or more than two-fifths of that of the State, and the population at the Census of 1911 of the undermentioned towns was as follows—Ballarat, 42,463, Bendigo, 39,417, Geelong, 28,518, Warrambool, 7,010, Castlemaine, 7,030, Maryborough, 5,675, and Stawell, 4,410, and Hamilton, 4,306.

The following are the births, deaths, and marriages in the State for five years—

Year	Total Births	Illegitimate	Deaths	Marriages	Surplus of Births
1907	31,369	1,762	14,542	9,575	16,627
1908	31,161	1,750	15,767	9,334	15,334
1909	31,549	1,367	14,436	9,431	17,113
1910	31,437	1,769	14,786	10,240	16,791
1911	33,044	1,964	16,217	11,068	17,827

The recorded immigration into and emigration from the State of Victoria by sea were as follows in each of the five years—

Year	Immigration (by sea)	Emigration (by sea)
1907	75,784	73,945
1908	78,863	75,614
1909	78,744	73,763
1910	82,594	77,951
1911	102,329	85,329

enumerated numbers of each of the principal religions in 1911—Episcopalians, 475,308 (including 'Protestant,' so stated, 24,118), Presbyterians, 224,453; Methodists, 176,663, other Protestants, 93,729, Roman Catholics, 266,123, Jews, 3,270; Buddhists, Confucians, &c., 2,572, others (including unclassified), 46,126.

Instruction.

Educational establishments in Victoria are of four kinds, viz., the University, established under a special Act and opened in 1855, with its three affiliated colleges, State schools (primary), technical schools or colleges, and private schools. Out of the general revenue the University received in 1910-11, by way of endowment, 21,000*l.*, and for buildings, apparatus, &c., 17,357*l.* It is both an examining and a teaching body, and grants degrees in all Faculties except Divinity.

Affiliated to the University are three colleges—Trinity, Girton, and Queen's—in connection with the Church of England, Presbyterians, and Wesleyan Churches respectively, also the School of Mines at Ballarat. From the opening of the University to the end of 1911, 6,847 students matriculated, and 4,461 direct degrees were conferred. In 1911 the students who matriculated numbered 288, the direct graduates numbered 248 and there were 1,230 students attending lectures.

Public instruction is strictly secular, it is compulsory for children between the ages of 6 and 14, and free for the subjects comprised in the ordinary course of instruction. In 1911 there were 2,059 State schools with 5,087 teachers, a total enrolment of 234,766 scholars, and an average attendance of 146,464 or 62 per cent of the numbers on the roll. Amongst persons aged 15 years and upwards at the census of 1911, 98 per cent. were able to read and write. In 1910-11 the total cost of public (primary) instruction, exclusive of expenditure on buildings, was 842,281*l.*—all paid by the State. Although the education given by the State is strictly primary, the Minister for Public Instruction may annually award 80 scholarships, each tenable for 4 years for facilitating higher education. In addition 40 teaching scholarships are allotted annually, each tenable for two years at a Continuation School. Secondary education is for the most part under the control either of private persons or proprietary bodies, usually connected with some religious denomination. There were in 1911 587 private schools in Victoria, with 1,975 teachers, and a net enrolment of 51,032 scholars. Nearly one-fourth of these schools, about one-third of the teachers, and over half of the scholars were estimated to be in connection with the Roman Catholic denomination, the members of which do not as a rule avail themselves of the free education afforded by the State.

Under the auspices of the Education Department are 17 technical schools, a college of domestic economy, a working men's college, two agricultural colleges, and a horticultural college. In 1911 there were 199 teachers attached to the technical schools, irrespective of agricultural and horticultural colleges, the gross enrolment of pupils being 4,511.

The amount raised by taxation (exclusive of taxes collected by Commonwealth) as shown in the above table, viz. 1,458,800*l*, was equivalent to a proportion of 1*l*. 3*s*. 8*d*. per head of population.

Victoria has a debt, incurred in the construction of public works, which amounted, on June 30, 1911, to 57,983,764*l* (exclusive of temporary treasury bills). Of this sum, 42,486,708*l* was borrowed for the construction of rail ways, 8,744,402*l* for waterworks, 1,219,968*l* for State school buildings, &c., and 5,482,761*l* for other public works and purposes. The nominal rate of interest on the public debt varies from 3 to 4 per cent, and averages 3.54 per cent. The total debt on 30 June, 1912, was 60,757,216*l*.

The net local ordinary revenue and expenditure (Municipalities, Harbour Trust, Metropolitan Board of Works, and Fire Brigade Boards) for 1911 were respectively 2,583,963*l*. and 2,581,850*l*. The net local debt (exclusive of amounts borrowed first by Government) amounted to about 15,754,591*l* on June 30, 1911.

The estimated total value of the rateable property of the State in 1911 amounted to about 275,078,517*l*, and the annual value was 14,774,660*l*.

Production and Industry

I AGRICULTURE.

Of the total area of Victoria about 29,758,022 acres are either alienated or in process of alienation. Of the remainder about 5,018,674 acres are at present suitable for agriculture, 8,657,959 acres for pastoral purposes, 587,800 acres are held under perpetual lease. State forests, timber, water, and other reserves, 4,997,520 acres, unimproved land, 788,789 acres, roads, 1,702,843 acres, unsold land in towns, &c., 2,183,253 acres, and unclassified land, 1,591,500 acres.

The total number of holdings in 1911-12 was 66,849.

The following table shows the areas under the principal crops and the produce of each for five years —

Years ended March 31	Total Area Cultivated	Wheat		Oats		Barley		Potatoes		Hay
		Acres	Bushels	Acres	Bushels	Acres	Bushels	Acres	Tons	Acres	Tons
1908	1,000	1,000	1,000	1,000	1,000	1,000	1,000	1,000	1,000	1,000	1,000

II MINING

The subjoined statement gives, from official returns, the estimated quantities of gold, with value obtained in Victoria in five years —

Years	Number of Ounces	Approximate Value	Years	Number of Ounces	Approximate Value
1907	754,270	2,954,617	1910	609,998	2,422,745
1908	721,220	2,849,838	1911	542,074	2,140,855
1909	702,221	2,778,956

The total quantity of gold raised from 1851 to 1911 is estimated at 72,531,961 oz., of an aggregate value of 289,663,989*l.* The estimated number of miners at work on the gold fields in 1911 was 14,015.

In 1911, 658,864 tons of coal, valued at 298,829*l.* were raised in Victoria. In 1911, about 1,754 persons were employed in coal mining. Other minerals raised in 1911 were tin, 2,617*l.*; gypsum, 448*l.*; silver, extracted from gold at the Melbourne Mine, 2,076*l.*; antimony, 8,223*l.*; other metals and minerals, 123,262*l.*

III. MANUFACTURES.

The total number of manufactories, works, &c, in 1911, was 5,126, of which 1 958 used steam or gas engines, the aggregate horse-power used was 79,515, the number of hands employed was 111 948, and the lands, buildings, machinery, and plant were valued at 18 257 893/. The value of materials used was 25,064,525/, and of articles produced or work done, 41,687,883/. The wages paid (excluding working proprietors), amounted to 8,911,019/. The manufactures are almost entirely for home consumption.

Commerce and Credit

The commerce of Victoria, exclusive of inter State trade, is included in the statement of the commerce of the Commonwealth of Australia.

The total value of the imports and exports of Victoria, excluding inter State trade, in five years, was —

Years	Total Imports (Overseas)	Total Exports (Overseas)	Years	Total Imports (Overseas)	Total Exports (Overseas)
	£	£		£	£
1907	17 101 092	17 112,208	1910	20 045,446	18 188,226
1908	14 483,332	15 165 031	1911	21 850 963	16 915 716
1909	16,681 981	17 845 876

The customs duties collected in 1911 amounted to 3 291 250/, equal to 15 per cent. of the total value of overseas imports.

The chief exports are gold, wool, live stock, cereals, butter, hides, and skins, and meat frozen or preserved.

Shipping and Communications are dealt with under Australian Commonwealth.

A branch of the Royal Mint was opened at Melbourne on June 12, 1872. Up to Dec. 31, 1911, 84,382,440 oz. of gold valued at 135 322,068/, was received at the mint, and gold coin and bullion issued of the value of 135,823,885/. No silver or bronze coin is struck at the Melbourne Mint.

On 30th June, 1911 the Savings Bank of Victoria (with which have been amalgamated the Post Office Savings Banks) had 103 banks and branches with 319 agencies at post offices in the State. On the 30 June, 1912, there were 641,736 depositors, with a total balance of 19,662,466/. There is a special branch of the Savings Bank, called the "Advances Department," which makes advances to farmers and others at a low rate (4½ and 4 per cent.) of interest, repayable by instalments extending over a term not exceeding 3½ years. The requisite funds are raised by the issue of bonds, taken up either by the Commissioners of Savings Banks or by the general public, and repayable by half yearly drawings. The amount advanced during 1910-11 was 263,900/.

During the last quarter of 1911 there were in Victoria 12 banks, possessing 693 branches and agencies, with notes in circulation, 235,492/, deposits 47,455,000/., the total liabilities being 48,158,503/.; gold and silver, coined and in bars and Australian notes, 8,761,444/., landed property, 1,674,923/., advances, &c., 28,908,538/., total assets, 49,343,505/. ## QUEENSLAND

Constitution and Government.

Queensland, formerly a portion of New South Wales, was formed into a separate colony in 1859, and responsible government was conferred. The power of making laws and imposing taxes is vested in a Parliament of two Houses—the Legislative Council and the Legislative Assembly. The former consists of 43 members, nominated by the Crown for life, but no limit is put to the number. The Legislative Assembly comprises 72 members, returned from 72 electoral districts for three years, elected by ballot. Members of the Assembly are entitled to payment of 300*l* per annum, with travelling expenses. At the General Election of April, 1912 there were 173,801 males and 185,789 females registered as qualified to vote under the "Electors Act Amendment Act of 1905." This provides for male and female adult franchise, a twelve months continuous residence in the State being the only proviso. Owners of freeholds and leaseholds of a certain value, possessing a residential qualification in another electorate, can elect to be registered for the former in lieu of that within which they reside, but no person can be enrolled for more than one electorate. State of parties (December, 1912), Liberals, 45, Labour Opposition, 27.

Governor of Queensland.—Right Hon. Sir William Macgregor, G.C.M.G., O.B.

The Executive Council of ministers appointed June, 1912, consists of the following members—

President and Chief Secretary and Vice-President of the Executive Council—Hon. D. E. Denham.

Attorney-General.—Hon. T. O'Sullivan, K.C.

Treasurer and Secretary for Public Works.—Hon. W. H. Barrow.

Secretary for Public Lands.—Hon. E. H. Macartney.

Home Secretary and Secretary for Mines.—Hon. J. O. Appel.

Secretary for Railways.—Hon. W. T. Page.

Secretary for Public Instruction.—Hon. J. W. Hirst.

Secretary for Agriculture and Stock.—Hon. James Todda.

Minister without portfolio.—Hon. A. H. Barlow.

Each minister has a salary of 1,000*l.*, the Vice-President of the Executive Council receives 800*l.*

Agent-General for Queensland in Great Britain.—Major Sir T. B. Robinson.

Secretary—Mr. P. J. Dillon.

Provision is made for Local Government by the subdivision of the State into areas denominated respectively cities, towns and shires. These are under the management of aldermen and councillors, who are elected by the ratepayers and are charged with the control of all matters of a parochial nature, more especially the construction and maintenance of roads and bridges within their allotted areas. Shires for the most part consist of purely rural districts.

The number and area of these subdivisions, together with the receipts and expenditure for the year 1911 were —

	No	Area in square miles	Receipts £	Expenditure £
Cities	9	79½	808 046	298 651
Towns	24	285½	126 79	180 999
Shires	189	669 890½	891,802	377 949

Area and Population

Queensland comprises the whole north eastern portion of the Australian continent, including the adjacent islands in the Pacific Ocean and in the Gulf of Carpentaria. Estimated area 670 500 English square miles, with a seaboard of 2,250 miles. In 1825 a branch penal settlement was made at Moreton Bay, in 1842 free settlers were admitted to the country, and during the next twenty years great progress was apparent.

The increase in the population at different periods since 1846 has been as follows —

Years	Population	Equivalent increase per cent. per annum	Years	Population	Equivalent increase per cent. per annum	Years	Population	Equivalent increase per cent. per annum
1846	2,337	—	1868	99 901	15.66	1888	322,883	10.24
1856	15,544	72.16	1871	120 104	6.74	1891	593,718	4.89
1861	20,060	17.66	1876	173,383	8.35	1901	498,139	2.73
1864	31,447	24.28	1881	312,590	4.64	1911	600,818	2.14

At the census of 1911 the population consisted of 320,500 males, and 278,307 females. The total included 6,138 male and 576 female Chinese, 1,845 male and 400 female "Polynesians", 1,428 male and 78 female Japanese; 4,573 persons of other Asiatic, &c., races. In addition there were 5,145 male and 3,542 female full-blooded Aborigines living in a civilised manner.

As to occupation the population in 1901 was classified as follows — Professional class, 18,741, domestics, 25,210, commercial, 26,606; industrial, 51,718, transport and communication, 18,185; agricultural, pastoral, mining, &c., 84,698, indefinite, 1,935, dependent class (wives, children, scholars, students, dependent relatives, &c.), 231,272

Of the total population, 1911, 382,216 persons (exclusive of aborigines) were born in the State, 65,268 in England, 31,599 in Ireland, 20,530 in Scotland; 2,620 in Wales, 38,921 in N S Wales, 15,948 in Victoria, 2,348 in E. Australia, 482 in W. Australia, 1,798 in Tasmania, 8,987 other Australians, including 'Australia undefined', 2,576 in New Zealand, 11,079 in Germany, 2,641 in Denmark, 1,054 in Sweden, 686 in Norway

The following table shows the births, deaths, and marriages for five years —

Years	Total Births	Illegitimate	Deaths	Marriages	Excess of Births
1907	14,542	1,068	5,599	4,105	8,943
1908	14,828	1,704	5,680	4,009	9,148

Brisbane, the capital, had in 1911 a population within a ten-mile radius of 143,514. Other towns including their suburbs contained Rockhampton, 20,915, Townsville, 13,835, Maryborough, 11,626, Gympie, 12,419, Ipswich, 25,000, Toowoomba, 24,200, Charters Towers, 17,298

Religion

There is no State Church. Previous to 1861 valuable grants of land had been made to the principal religious denominations, which they still retain. The following were the numbers in 1911 — Church of England, 212,702, Church of Rome, 137,000; Presbyterians, 75,500, Methodist, 59,820; Lutherans, 34,265; Baptists, 12,715; other Christian sects, 60,556, Jews, 671, other Non-Christians, 5,613; no religion, 1,923; unspecified, &c., 21,696.

Instruction

Primary secular education is free and by the State compulsory. Of the census population in 1911, 498,989 could read and write, 3,828 could read only, 93,198 could not read (including 78,704 children under 5 years of age); 10,348 not specified. According to the marriage statistics for 1911, 99.07 per cent. of persons married during 1911, were able to read and write. The Public Expenditure on account of education for the year 1911 was 430,513*l*. At the end of 1911 there were 1,254 public elementary schools in operation, with 2,750 teachers, and an average daily attendance of 70,194 pupils. Secondary education is provided for by 10 grammar schools, 6 for boys and 4 for girls, with, in 1911, 91 teachers and an average attendance of 1,146 pupils. There were also 131 private schools, with 638 teachers, and an average daily attendance of 12,414 pupils. The Government grants annually a considerable number of scholarships tenable for three years, to the various grammar schools. There were 16 technical schools in 1911 with 7,089 distinct students. The receipts amounted to 22,180*l*, and the expenditure to 29,265*l*. The Queensland University (established in 1911) in Brisbane had at the end of 1911, 4 professors and 15 lecturers, &c., with 81 students on the roll.

Justice and Crime

Justice is administered by Supreme Courts, District Courts, and Courts of Petty Sessions. In the last Justices of the Peace sit, presided over in the more important centres by stipendiary magistrates. The Supreme Court consists of a Chief Justice and four puisne judges. The total number of persons convicted of serious offences by the Superior Courts in 1911 was 828, and the summary convictions at petty sessions numbered 18,331 (excluding 4,241 cases of bail estreated). Including penal establishments, there were, at the end of 1911, 12 prisons, with 433 male and 37 female prisoners. The total police force, including native troopers, averages about 1,106 men.

Pauperism, Old Age Pensions

Charitable institutions are maintained by public subscription, supplemented by State endowment, hospitals, benevolent asylums, an institution for the blind, deaf, and dumb, refuges and homes helped. Persons suffering from want were relieved at an expenditure of 8,189*l*. in 1911, at the cost of the State. 3,359 orphans and other homeless and unprotected children were provided for chiefly by the Government at a cost of 86,104*l*. Old Age and Invalidity Pensions are now payable by the Commonwealth. The number of Old Age Pensioners in the State at December 12, 1912, was 10,666, and of Invalid Pensioners, 1,230.

Finance

The following table shows the net revenue and expenditure of Queensland during five years ending June 30 —

	1906-09	1909-10	1910-11	1911-12	1912-13 Estimated
Revenue	4,706,844	5,119,252	5,320,008	5,989,847	6,348,802
Expenditure	4,756,804	5,115,578	5,814,787	5,665,692	6,242,693

The gross income from or expenditure on account of Departments under the control of the Commonwealth are not included.

The chief items of expenditure during 1911-12 were as under:—Interest on public debt, 1,724,304*l.*; public instruction, 436,672*l.*; treasurer's department, 249,364*l.*; public lands department, 214,737*l.*; department of agriculture, 71,394*l.*; cost of working railways, 1,915,246*l.* The total expenditure from loans, mostly on public works, was 3,524,248*l.*, of which the principal item was railways, 2,654,500*l.*

The estimated value of landed property in 1911 for assessment for Local Government purposes was 43,622,407*l.* This includes lands leased from the Crown for pastoral purposes, the leasees interest in which has been capitalised for assessment purposes at 3,067,163*l.*, but is exclusive of unoccupied Crown lands, the property of local bodies, reserves for public purposes, and lands upon which are erected buildings for public worship.

The gross public debt of the State amounted, on June 30, 1912, to the sum of 45,442,286*l.*

Defence

For defence, see under Commonwealth of Australia. The Government gun-voeels are the Guyendak and Paluma (360 tons), sister vessels, launched in 1884, one of which has been appropriated by the Commonwealth Authorities and stationed away from Queensland the Oiler and Stingorae, 290 and 450 tons, are twin screw tenders, the Midge is a steam pinnace, and the Mesquite is a second-class steel torpedo boat.

Production and Industry

Of the total area of the State, 15,709,186 acres have been alienated in process of alienation, under deferred payment system, are 9,025,029, leaving 664,368,785 acres still the property of the Crown, or about 94 per cent. of the total area. The receipts from the sale of land up to the end of 1911 amounted to 9,083,187*l.* Provision is made for both conditional and unconditional selection, under the latter land can be purchased at prices from 12*s.* 4*d.* per acre, payable by twenty annual instalments. Conditional selection is the more general, homestead farms, agricultural farms, grazing farms, and grazing homesteads can be selected. Homestead farms up to 160 acres, if occupied by selector personally for five years, may be secured in freehold at 2*s.* 6*d.* per acre, payable in ten annual instalments, but, if conditions have been performed, the purchase may be completed and a title obtained at the end of five years. Agricultural farms can be acquired by a 20 years' lease with right of purchase; maximum area, 1,280 acres, annual rent one fortieth of the purchase price, which becomes part of the purchase money. Grazing farms can be secured on a 7, 14, 21, or 28 years' lease; maximum area, 20,000 acres, annual rental varying according to quality; minimum 4*s.* per acre, subject to reassessment at end of first 7 years and each subsequent 7 years. Grazing homesteads may be leased on similar conditions. In the letting of agricultural and grazing farms and homesteads conditions as to residence are imposed.

A large proportion of the area is leased in squatting runs for pastoral purposes, amounting to 322,153,880 acres in 1911, the number of runs was 1,697, besides 42,180,651 acres in grazing farms and homesteads, and 43,478,880 acres under occupation licence. The livestock in 1911 numbered 618,934 horses, 5,078,201 cattle, 20,740,881 sheep, and 178,902 pigs. The total area under cultivation in 1911 was 779,800 acres, and of this 526,368 acres were under crop, besides which 188,175 acres are laid down with permanent artificial pasture. The wool exports (representing nearly the whole of the clip) amounted in 1907 to 26,618,865 lbs. clean, and 60,969,961 lbs. greasy, in 1908, to 23,528,679 lbs. clean, and 66,956,876 lbs. greasy, 1908 production as 'greasy,' 110,545,577 lbs. 1909, exports, home production, 24,172,020 lbs. clean, 76,674,835 lbs. greasy, 1909, production expressed as greasy, 129,648,398 lbs. 1910, production expressed as greasy, 139,250,803 lbs., 1911 production expressed as greasy, 143,882,269 lbs.

A considerable area consists of natural forest, eucalypti, pine and cedar being the timbers mostly in demand, although a considerable quantity of more ornamental woods are utilised by cabinet makers. In 1907, 91,752,076 superficial feet were cut in the various sawmills, in 1908, 100,759,016 superficial feet, 1909, soft woods, 70,137,903 superficial feet, cedar, 1,142,287 superficial feet; hardwood, 87,111,069 superficial feet, 1910, soft woods, 70,582,582 superficial feet, cedar, 625,212 superficial feet, hard woods, 44,453,240 superficial feet, hardwood railway sleepers (sawn) 25,435, 1911, soft woods, 83,954,514 superficial feet, cedar, 685,027 superficial feet, hard woods, 54,255,941 superficial feet, hardwood railway sleepers (sawn) 82,947, the quantity actually cut for all purposes is nearly double these quantities.

The crops, &c., in two years were as follows —

	Acres		Yield

In the western portion of the State water is comparatively easily found by sinking artesian bores. Up to June 30, 1911, 1,711 bores were recorded as having been sunk. Total depth bored, 334 miles. The continuous yield of water is estimated at 516,591,000 gallons per diem. 785 bores are flowing and from 329 more supplies are pumped.

Commerce and Shipping

The commerce of Queensland, exclusive of inter-State trade, is comprised in the Statement of the Commerce of the Commonwealth of Australia.

The total value of the imports and exports of Queensland, including inter State trade, in six years, is given in the following table—

SOUTH AUSTRALIA

Constitution and Government

South Australia was formed into a British Province by Letters Patent of February, 1836, and a partially elective Legislative Council was established in 1851. The present Constitution bears date October 24, 1856. It vests the legislative power in a Parliament elected by the people. The Parliament consists of a Legislative Council and a House of Assembly. The former is composed of eighteen members. Every three years nine members retire, and their places are supplied by new members elected from each of the four districts into which the State is divided for this purpose. The executive has no power to dissolve this body. The qualifications of an elector to the Legislative Council are to be twenty-one years of age, a natural born or naturalised subject of His Majesty, and have been on the electoral roll six months, besides having a freehold of 50*l.* value, or a leasehold of 20*l.* annual value, or occupying a dwelling house the rent of which is not less than 17*l.* per annum, or a registered proprietor of a Crown lease with improvements to the value of at least 50*l.*, the property of the elector, head teacher of a college or school residing on premises, postmaster or postmistress residing in the building, railway stationmaster resident in premises; member of police force in charge of a station, officiating minister of religion. By the Constitution Amendment Act, 1899, the franchise was extended to women. There were 79,213 registered electors in 1911. The qualification for a member of Council is merely that he be thirty years of age, a natural born or naturalised subject, and a resident in the State for three years. Each member of the Council and also of the House of Assembly, receives 300*l.* per annum and a free pass over Government railways.

The House of Assembly consists of 42 members elected for 3 years, representing 12 electoral districts. The qualifications for an elector are that of having been on the electoral roll for 6 months, and of having arrived at 21 years of age, and the qualifications for a member are the same. There were 234,441 registered electors in 1911. Judges and ministers of religion are ineligible for election as members. The election of members of both houses takes place by ballot.

State of parties (December, 1912).—Liberals, 24, Labour, 18.

The executive is vested in a Governor appointed by the Crown and an Executive Council, consisting of 6 responsible ministers and the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court.

Governor of South Australia.—Admiral Sir Day Hord Boaden, G.C.V.O., K.C.B.

The Chief Justice, being also Lieutenant-Governor, acts pending a new appointment, or during the absence of the Governor.

The Governor has a salary of 4,000*l.* per annum. The departments of the Public Service are controlled by the following ministers:—

Premier, Treasurer and Minister of Education.—Hon. A. H. Peake, M.P.

Commissioner of Crown Lands and Immigration.—Hon. F. W. Young, M.P.

Chief Secretary.—Hon. J. G. Bice, M.L.C.

Attorney-General and Minister of Industry.—Hon. H. Homburg, M.P.

Minister of Agriculture and Irrigation.—Hon. T. Pascoe, M.L.C.

Commissioner of Public Works and Minister of Mines and Marine.—Hon. R. Butler, M.P.

The Ministers have a salary of 1,000*l.* per annum each. They are jointly and individually responsible to the Legislature for all their official acts, as in the United Kingdom.

Agent-General for South Australia in London.—Hon. A. A. Kirkpatrick.

Secretary and Registrar of Stock.—J. B. Whiting.

The settled part of the State is divided into counties, hundreds, municipalities, and district councils, the last being the most general, as they cover most of the settled districts. The ratepayers have the power of levying rates, &c., and applying the funds for road making purposes. There are 47 counties, blocks of country thrown open for agricultural purposes. There are 3 extensive pastoral districts—the western, northern, and north-eastern. There are 33 municipalities and 147 district councils.

Area and Population.

The original boundaries of the State, according to the statute of 4 & 5 Will IV cap. 96, were fixed between 132° and 141° E. long. for the eastern and western boundaries, the 36° of S. lat. for the northern limit, and for the South the Northern Ocean. The boundaries were subsequently extended, under the statute of 24 and 25 Victoria, cap. 24. By Royal Letters Patent, dated July 2, 1890, all the territory lying northward of 36° S. latitude and between the 130th and 135th degrees of East longitude, and now known as the Northern Territory (see below), was added. On January 1, 1911, this Territory was transferred to the Commonwealth. Total area of South Australia proper to 580,670 square miles, i.e., excluding the Northern Territory (523,620 square miles)

Religion and Instruction.

The aggregate number of churches and chapels in the State in 1911 was 1,579. At the census of 1911 the numbers belonging to the leading denominations were as follows — Church of England, 113,781, Roman Catholic, 50,944, Methodists, 100,402, Lutherans, 26,881, Baptists, 21,868, Presbyterians, 22,567, Congregationalists, 13,357, Church of Christ, 9,324, Salvation Army, 3,525; other Christians, 23,769, Jews, 765, Mohammedans, 440, Confucians, &c., 236, other non-Christian, 2,143, not stated, 18,441. No aid from the State is given for religious purposes.

Public instruction is under the charge of the Educational Department. Teachers are paid from the general revenue, public lands being set apart for educational purposes. Education is secular, free, and compulsory. The Government grants exhibitions and scholarships, carrying the holders to higher schools and universities. In 1911 there were 786 schools, 19 being high schools, the number of children under instruction during 1911 was 59,231. There is a training college for teachers. The University of Adelaide, incorporated in 1874, is authorised to grant degrees in arts, law, music, medicine, and science. Its endowment amounts to 182,788<sup>1</sup> and 50,000 acres of land. There are several denominational secondary schools. There were 180 private schools, with 12,127 pupils, in 1911.

Justice, Crime, Old Age Pensions.

There is one supreme court, a court of vice-admiralty, a court of insolvency, 104 local courts and police magistrates' courts. There are circuit courts held at several places. There were 73 convictions for felonies and misdemeanours in the Higher Courts and 7,301 in the Magistrates' Courts in 1911. The total number of persons in gaols at the end of 1911 was 234.

Old Age and Invalidity Pensions are now paid by the Commonwealth Government. The number of pensioners in South Australia at December 13, 1912 was: Old Age, 7,375, Invalid, 820.

For defence, see under Commonwealth of Australia. For the purposes of local defence a small cruiser the Protector (920 tons), launched in 1884, is stationed off the chief port of the State, which is defended by two well-armed forts.

Balance of Commonwealth revenue returned to State 1911-12, 512,000<sup>1</sup>.

Most of the revenue is derived from inland revenue, railways, and territorial receipts, while most of the expenditure is on account of public works, railways, and interest on public debt.

The public debt of the State, excluding the Northern Territory, 3,250,001<sup>1</sup>, dating from 1852 amounted, on June 30, 1912, to 31,762,069<sup>1</sup>. Over half of the public debt has been spent on railways, water works, and telegraphs.

Production and Industry

Of the total area of South Australia proper (245,244,800 acres), 11,654,000 acres were alienated and in process of alienation under systems of deferred payments at the end of 1911. The freehold and leasehold land in South Australia proper amounts to 123,345,549 acres, of which 4,340,435 acres were under cultivation in 1911-12.

The chief crops in two years were —

	Acres (1910)	Acres (1911)	Quantities (1910)	Quantities (1911)

Fruit culture is extensively carried on, both fresh and dried fruit being exported in 1911. The chief fruit crops, besides grapes, are currants, apples, apricots, peaches, almonds, oranges, lemons, olives (yielding in 1911 about 7,817 gallons of oil). The live stock in December, 1911 consisted of 259,719 horses, 393,566 cattle, and 6,171,907 sheep. In 1911, the area of 143,041 square miles was held under 610 pastoral leases.

The mineral wealth as yet discovered consists chiefly in copper, silver and gold. The value of copper produced in 1911 was 382,600/ the output of gold in 1911 amounted to 8,537 ounces, value 15,000/. Value of total mineral production in 1911, 450 084/.

In 1911 there were 1,314 factories in the State, employing 27,907 hands. Wages and salaries amounted to 2,845,388/. Gross value of output, 12,580,851/., machinery, land and buildings &c valued at 5,460,855/.

Commerce and Shipping

The Commerce of South Australia, exclusive of inter State trade, is comprised in the statement of the Commerce of Australia given under the heading of the Commonwealth.

Imports and exports, inclusive of inter State trade —

Years	Imports	Exports	Years	Imports	Exports
	£	£		£	£
1906	9,702,264	11,938,171	1909	11,335,689	12,646,701

WESTERN AUSTRALIA.

Constitution and Government

Western Australia became a British settlement in 1830, in 1870 partially representative government was instituted, and in 1890 the administration was vested in the Governor, a Legislative Council, and a Legislative Assembly. The Legislative Council was, in the first instance, nominated by the Governor, but it was provided that in the event of the population of the Colony reaching 50,000, it should be elective. In 1893 this limit of population being reached, as set forth in a proclamation dated 18th July of that year, the Colonial Parliament passed an Act (57 Vict. No 14) amending the constitution.

By the Commonwealth Act Amendment Act, 1899, further amended by the Constitution Act Amendment Act, 1911, it is provided that the Legislative Council shall consist of 30 members representing 10 electoral provinces and holding their seats for six years. Members must be 30 years of age, resident in the State for two years, and either be natural-born British subjects or naturalised for 5 years and resident in the State for 5 years. Every elector must have resided in the State for 6 months, and must possess within the province freehold estate of the clear value of £50, or be a householder occupying a dwelling house of the clear annual value of £17, or holder of a lease of the value of £17 per annum, or the holder of a lease or license from the Crown of the annual rental of £10, or have his name on the electoral list of a Municipality or Roads Board in respect of property in the province of the annual rateable value of £17. The Legislative Assembly consists of 50 members, each representing one electorate, and elected for 3 years. Members must be 21 years of age, have resided in Western Australia for twelve months, and be either natural born subjects of the Crown or naturalised for 5 years. Electors must be 21 years of age, natural-born or naturalized subjects of the Crown, and must have resided in the State for 6 months and be on the roll, and must be resident in the district for at least one month when making their claims. Electors for both Houses may be of either sex. No person can be registered as a voter in more than one district or more than once in each Province for which he holds a sufficient qualification. Members of the Legislature are paid 300*l* a year, and travel free on all Government railways. The entire management and control of the waste lands of the Crown in Western Australia is vested in the Legislature of the State.

miles. According to the latest computations, the total estimated area of the State is 975,867 English square miles, or, 635,588,860 acres. It is divided into 28 magisterial districts.

Western Australia was first settled in 1829, and for many years the population was small.

The enumerated population in the various census years was as follows —

Years	Males	Females	Total
1864	7,778	3,965	11,743
1859	2,522	5,815	14,837
1870	15,375	9,410	24,785
1881	17,062	13,646	29,708
1891	22,607	19,876	42,483
1901	112,875	71,249	184,124
1911	161,565	120,549	282,114

There were in 1911, enumerated 6,369 pure and 1,475 half-caste aborigines (not included in the table). Of the total population in 1911, 104,208 were returned as born in Western Australia. The number of married persons was 98,432 (50,702 males and 48,730 females), widowers, 4,180, widows, 5,785 divorced, 187 males and 108 females, unmarried, 106,060 males and 68,807 females. The number of males under 21 was 58,833, and of females 56,203. Of the males over 21, 56,737 had never been married, and of the females over 21, 55,198. The estimated population in December, 1912 (excluding full-blooded aborigines) was males, 174,098, females, 131,446, Total, 305,544.

The Municipality of Perth, the capital, at the time of the 1911 census, had a population of 85,767, that of Fremantle, 14,499. The principal towns, with census population of 1911, are —

Towns	1911	1909	Towns	1911	1909
Perth, Fremantle and suburbs	104,792	78,700	Albany	3,586	3,029
Kalgoorlie	8,781	6,954	Bunbury	3,763	3,560
Boulder	10,824	11,156	Geraldton	3,478	3,800
			Northam	3,361	2,942

The movement of population in 5 years is given as follows —

Years	Marriages	Births	Deaths	Immigrants	Emigrants
1908	2,612	7,754	2,532	24,401	21,334
1909	1,906	7,491	2,706	24,608	22,758
1910	2,197	7,635	2,744	31,308	24,553
1911	2,421	8,085	2,324	41,309	28,736
1912	2,536	8,431	2,323	32,882	31,926

In 1908 there were 306, in 1909, 337, in 1909, 448, in 1910, 513, and in 1911, 592, immigrants from the United Kingdom.

Religion.

The religious division of the population was as follows at the census of 1911—Church of England, 103,435; Methodists, 34,348, Presbyterians, 23,673, Congregationalists, 5,203, Baptists, 4,801, other Protestants, 18,189, Roman Catholics, 56,610 Catholics (Greek and undefined), 5,754, other Christians, 1,786, Jews, 1,790 Mahometans, 1,517, Buddhists, 1,795, other non Christians, 748, indefinite, 1,555, no religion, 1,240, not stated, 9,689

Instruction

Of the total white population of 15 years and upwards in 1911, 1.70 per cent. were stated to be unable to read. Education is compulsory.

The following table shows the average cost per head and attendance in Government schools and in private schools in three years—

	No of Schools	No of Scholars	Av Attendance	Cost per Head of av Attendance
Government Schools				£ s d.
1909	445	81,374	28,673	5 6 7
1910	463	82,591	27,442	5 6 11
1911	504	85,476	29,448	5 10 6
Private Schools				—
1909	121	8,506	7,209	—
1910	119	8,910	7,563	—
1911	123	9,423	8,015	—

The grants to private schools ceased from 1895, but compensation was made to the schools that had so far received subsidy, the sum of 16,000*l.* being divided amongst them in proportion to the grants received by them during 1895.

The total sum spent on education and schools during the financial year ended June 30, 1912, was 289,565*l.*

Justice and Crime.

The following table gives the number of offences, apprehensions, and convictions for four years—

On December 31, 1911, there were 5 prisoners undergoing penal servitude in the State. The total number of distinct persons committed to prison in 1911 was 1,464; the number of commitments totalled 2,561—viz. male adults, 2,172, adult females, 386, juveniles, male 4, female nil.

All the above figures are exclusive of aboriginal crime.

Pauperism and Old Age Pensions.

There are three charitable institutions, one situated at Claremont, and two at Fremantle, both supported by public funds, with 494 inmates on December 31, 1911 Twenty-one Government hospitals, also a Government sanatorium for consumptive patients, at Coolgardie, and two hospitals for the insane are wholly supported by public funds, as are also two aboriginal lock hospitals, on Durr and Bernier Islands, whilst three public and twenty seven other assisted hospitals exist, partly supported by private subscriptions and partly out of public funds, in addition to the numerous private hospitals situated in Perth and suburbs as well as the principal goldfield towns, four Protestant and two Roman Catholic orphanages are partly supported by private subscriptions and partly out of public money. There are also three native and half-caste institutions, four Industrial Schools supported in a similar manner, and one Government receiving dépôt for the Industrial Schools. During the year ended June 30, 1912, a total of 2,187 persons in the State received outdoor relief.

Old Age and Invalidity Pensions are now paid by the Commonwealth Government. The number of pensioners in Western Australia at December 13, 1912, was - old age, 3,263, invalid, 435

Finance

The revenue and expenditure of Western Australia in six years, ended June 30, were as follows —

Years ended June 30	Revenue	Expenditure	Years ended June 30	Revenue	Expenditure
	£	£		£	£
1908	2,574,641	2,579,008	1911	3,650,430	2,734,448
1909	2,967,914	2,803,551	1912	3,968,074	4,101,062

Nearly half the public income is derived from railways (£1,896,679 for the year ended June 30, 1912), and the rest mainly from various forms of taxation: leases of Crown lands, water supply, harbour dues, public batteries and other mining receipts, and the surplus returned to the State of the Commonwealth Revenue derived from Customs, Excise, Post Office, and other receipts (£38,527 for 1911-12). Western Australia had a public debt of 26,283,523*l.* on June 30, 1912 the annual charge for which was 1,101,561*l.* The amount of accrued sinking fund at same date was 2,918,734*l.*

TASMANIA

Constitution and Government

Tasmania became a British settlement in 1803 as a dependency of New South Wales. In 1825 its connection with New South Wales was terminated. In 1851 a partially elective Legislative Council was established and in 1856 responsible government came into operation. There are a Legislative Council and a House of Assembly called the Parliament of Tasmania. The Legislative Council is composed of eighteen members elected by all natural born or naturalised subjects of the Crown who possess either a freehold worth 10½ a year, or a leasehold of 307, or are barristers or solicitors on roll of Supreme Court, medical practitioners duly qualified, and all subjects holding a commission, or possessing a degree. Each member is elected for six years. Members of the Legislative Council, and also of the House of Assembly, are paid 150£ per annum, and have the right to free railway passes. The House of Assembly consists of thirty members, elected by all natural born or naturalised subjects who have continuously resided in Tasmania for over 12 months. The Assembly is elected for three years. The number of electors for the Legislative Council in 1911 was 25,413 (19,872 males, 5,541 females), or 13.85 per cent. (estimated on mean population of 190,316), and for the House of Assembly, April 30th, 1912, 108,518 (52,853 males, 56,665 females) or 54.88 per cent. (estimated on mean population of 190,316). The legislative authority vests in both Houses, while the executive is vested in a Governor or Administrator appointed by the Crown.

Governor—Rt. Hon. W. Edmond Macartney (from March, 1913).

Deputy Governor and Chief Justice—Sir J. S. Dodds, K.C.M.G. (1,500l)

The Governor is aided in the exercise of the executive by a cabinet of responsible ministers, consisting of four members, as follows (in June, 1913) —

Premier and Attorney General—Hon. A. E. Solomon, M.H.A.

Chief Secretary—Hon. G. H. Butler, M.R.C.S. M.L.C.

Minister for Lands, Works and Mines—Hon. E. Mulcahy, M.H.A.

Treasurer—Hon. H. J. M. Payne, M.H.A.

Minister without Portfolio—Hon. C. Russen.

Each of the ministers has a salary of 750l per annum. The Premier has 200l a year. The ministers must have a seat in one of the two Houses.

Agent-General in London—Hon. John McCall, M.D.

Secretary—Herbert W. Ely.

Office.—5, Victoria Street, Westminster.

Area and Population.

Area, with Macquarie (170 square miles), 26,215 square miles or about 16,778,000 acres, of which 15,571,500 acres form the area of Tasmania Proper, the rest constituting that of a number of small islands, in two main groups, the north-east and north-west. The colony is divided into eighteen counties.

The population has increased as follows —

Year	Population.	Increase per Ct. per Annum.	Year	Population	Increase per Ct. per Annum.
1851	89,977	—	1891	146,667	2.36
1871	99,328	1.13	1901	172,475	1.64
1881	115,705	1.38	1911	190,898	1.07

In 1911 there were 97,336 males and 93,562 females. The average density is 7.38 persons to a square mile. Of the total population in 1911, 79.2 per cent. were natives of Tasmania, 11.5 per cent. natives of the United Kingdom, and 7.3 per cent. natives of other Australasian colonies. In 1910 the population contained 29,000 males and 28,600 females married. The aborigines of Tasmania are entirely extinct.

Of the population in 1901, 4,997 were returned as professional, 7,937 domestic, 7,497 commercial transport and communication, 4,848, 18,750 industrial, 27,899 primary producers, 1,556 indefinite, 98,981 dependants.

The births, deaths, and marriages for five years have been as follows —

—	Births.	Marriages.	Deaths.	Excess of Births
1907	5,291	1,410	1,908	3,296
1908	5,615	1,422	2,119	3,486

Instruction.

There are 20 superior schools or colleges in the State with an average attendance in 1911 of about 1,500. 94 other than State schools with 5,217 children on rolls. 399 public elementary schools with 32,244 scholars on roll in 1911. Education is compulsory. There are two technical schools, exclusive of two Schools of Mines (191 scholars), with about 598 pupils, at Hobart and Launceston. The higher education is under a university which holds examinations and grants degrees, in 1911 it had 124 students (75 matriculated and 49 non matriculated). Elementary education is under the control of a government director. There are several valuable scholarships from the lower to the higher schools, also State scholarships tenable at secondary schools. At the census of 1911 the number of persons returned as unable to read was 34,479, or 18.03 per cent. of the population.

The total cost to Government of education in 1911 was 87,854½ (from revenue).

Justice and Crime

There is a Supreme Court, courts of petty, general, and quarter sessions, the latter presided over by a stipendiary magistrate, assisted by justices of the peace. According to the Police Report, during the year 1911-12 4,615 male and 363 females were summarily convicted, and 58 males and 8 females were committed for trial. Before the Supreme Courts and sessions courts 27 persons were convicted in 1910. The total police force on June 30 1912 was 232. There were 2 gaols, with 45 male and 4 female inmates at the end of June, 1911, and in training school 17 inmates.

Pauperism, Old Age Pensions.

Besides hospitals and benevolent institutions there are two establishments for paupers, with 141 male and 95 female inmates on June 30, 1911-12, the daily average number of persons maintained during the year being 125 males and 92 females. The total net expenditure during the year 1911-12 was 4,001½. During the year 1911-12 outdoor relief was administered to the amount of 2,092½, 128 children were boarded out, and 1,187 persons (including children) were relieved by Benevolent Societies in 1911.

Old Age and Invalidity Pensions are paid by the Commonwealth Government. The number of pensioners in Tasmania at December 13, 1912, was: Old age, 4,027; Invalid, 81½.

Revenue and Expenditure

The revenue is derived chiefly from duties, licences, railways, and other public services, and from the rental and sale of Crown lands. The customs, postal and telegraph, and defence services are now in the hands of the Commonwealth, and an amount equal to 25s per head of population is returned to the State.

Included in the receipts and disbursements for 1907-08 are certain sums raised and expended for 'redemption of loans, under the name of 'Territorial Revenue'.

The public debt of Tasmania amounted June 30, 1912 to 11,802,411<sup>1</sup>, the debt, except 3 721 050<sup>1</sup> at 4 per cent. consists principally of 3½ per cent. debentures, redeemable from 1912 to 1940, and the whole was raised for the construction of public works.

The total Local Government revenue for 1911-12 was 286 312<sup>1</sup> (in cluding 41 419<sup>1</sup> from Government), and the expenditure 312,595<sup>1</sup>. Local debt, 1910-11, 1,230 414<sup>1</sup>.

For defence, see under Commonwealth of Australia. There are four batteries on the river Derwent, and one on the Tamar.

Production and Industry

The total area of the colony is 16,778,000 acres including 1,206,500 acres islands and lakes. Unalienated land, principally heavily timbered or mineral-bearing 4,967,645 acres. The quantity of timber cut in 1911 was about 66 060,937 feet, value 201 928<sup>1</sup> including value of box timber. In 1911 12,473 (exclusive of 2,859 dairy) persons were directly engaged in agriculture, and 2,067 in pastoral pursuits. In 1911 there were 270 000 acres under crop, and 505 940 acres under permanent artificially sown grasses. Of the total area, 6,240,268 acres were sold or granted to settlers by the Crown up to the end of 1911, while 1 534 331 acres were leased as sheep runs, and for mining purposes. In 1911-12 the total area under fallow, 34,311, 31,041 acres were devoted to horticulture. Acreage and produce of the chief crops —

THE NORTHERN TERRITORY OF AUSTRALIA.

Government.

The Northern Territory after forming part of New South Wales, was annexed by Royal Letters Patent, dated July 6, 1863, to South Australia. On the establishment of Federation in 1901, the Territory entered the Commonwealth as a corporate part of the State of South Australia. The Commonwealth Constitution Act of 1900 made provision for the surrender to the Commonwealth of any territory by any State and under this provision an agreement was entered into on December 7, 1907, by the Commonwealth and South Australia for the transfer of the Northern Territory to the former. After the necessary legislation approving this agreement had been passed by the two parliaments concerned, the Territory formally passed under the control of the Commonwealth Government on January 1, 1911. The Commonwealth at the same time assumed responsibility for the State loans contracted by South Australia on behalf of the territory. It took over by purchase the railway from Port Augusta to Oodnadatta, and it undertook to construct a transcontinental railway from Pine Creek southwards to the boundary of South Australia, and to connect these two railways. The cost of these obligations to the Federal Government is stated as follows:—Public Debt of Northern Territory at June 30, 1909, 2,719,000*l*, deficit, 780,000*l*, cost of Port Augusta railway, 2,242,000*l*, estimated cost of transcontinental railway, 4,500,000*l*, total 10,241,000*l*.

The South Australian laws remain in force until the Federal Government decrees otherwise by Ordinance. Several Ordinances were passed in 1911 and 1912.

Administrator—Dr J. A. Gihluth, D V.Sc., M.B.C.V.S., F.R.S.E.

Area and Population

The Northern Territory is bounded by the 26th parallel of south latitude, and the 129th and 138th degrees of east longitude. Its area is 523,820 square miles. The area alienated at the end of 1911 amounted to 473,232 acres absolutely, 104,832,447 acres were held under leases and licences; and the remainder, 228,361,121 acres, was unoccupied. The coast line exceeds 1,300 miles. The Territory possesses many fine rivers and several good harbours, the principal harbour being Port Darwin, where Darwin is situated. The greater part of the interior consists of a tableland rising gradually from the coast to a height of about 1,700 feet. On this tableland there are large areas of excellent pasture. The southern part of the territory is generally sandy with a small rainfall, but it can be watered by means of artesian bores. The climate is tropical, but varies considerably over the whole Territory. The proximity of the sea in the north keeps it fairly equable in the coastal region, but further south the climate is of a continental type, showing a great variation between the hottest and coldest months.

Population.—The population, excluding aborigines, has varied as follows:—

Year	Europeans	Others	Total
1881	679	2,766	3,435
1891	1,144	3,764	4,898
1901	1,869	3,041	4,910
1911 (Census)	1,415	1,693	3,110
1911 (31st Dec.)	1,739	1,519	3,258

FINANCE—PRODUCTION AND INDUSTRY—COMMERCE 348

Of the Census total 562 were females. Of the total at the end of 1911, 586 were females

The aborigines are estimated to number about 20,000, but it is possible this is an under estimate

The tribes inhabiting the Northern Territory are Larakaya and Woregait at Port Darwin, Melville Island Tribe, Port Lanning Tribe Djanan Tribe at Katherine Creek, Yangman Tribe round Elsey Creek, Mungarai Tribe along the upper part of the Roper River, Nullakun Tribe middle part of the Roper River, and the Mara Tribe south of the Roper River

Finance

The revenue derived by the Commonwealth in 1910-11 was 25 578*l*, the expenditure, 66,080*l*

The revenue is derived mainly from Customs and Excise Posts and Telegraphs, railways and Crown lands The main heads of expenditure are interest, postal department, gold fields and mining, works and buildings, police, and railways

Production and Industry

The soils of the Territory differ greatly, but it is stated that most products known to the tropical and temperate zones can be grown successfully At present, however agriculture is insignificant In most parts the natural grasses are extremely rich in nutriment, and provide food for cattle horses, sheep, and other stock The numbers of stock at the end of 1911 were — cattle, 460,000, horses, 21,400, sheep, 51 000, pigs, 1,500

The Territory is rich in mineral resources, though these are very little developed. The total value of the production of metals and minerals up to the end of December, 1910, and in 1911 is given as follows —

—	Total to 1910	1911	—	Total to 1910	1911
	£	£		£	£
Gold	2,102,000	30,910	Silver	68,000	—
Copper	148,000	1,470	Other Metals	123,000	4,070
Tin	304,000	22,900
			Total	2,746,000	59,350

The number of miners in 1911 was 676, of whom 101 were Europeans and 575 Chinese.

Commerce

The imports and exports are given as follows —

Year	Imports	Exports	Year	Imports	Exports
	£	£		£	£
1906	74,438	254,322	1909	57,094	273,505
1907	78,906	244,721	1910	52,296	269,088

TERRITORIES OF THE AUSTRALIAN COMMONWEALTH

TERRITORY OF PAPUA (BRITISH NEW GUINEA)

This possession is the south-eastern part of the island of New Guinea with the islands of the D'Entrecasteaux and Louisiade groups, and all islands between 8° and 12° S latitude, and 141 and 155° E longitude. It is bounded on the west by the Dutch and on the north by the German possessions. Area, 90,540 square miles, of which about 87,786 are on the mainland of New Guinea, and 2,754 on the islands above mentioned. On June 30, 1911, the population was as follows—European, 1,032, coloured, (other than Papuan), 230, Papuans (estimated), 270,745.

The government of British New Guinea is founded on the British New Guinea Act of November, 1887 and on Letters Patent issued June 8, 1888. The cost of the administration to the extent of 15 000*l* a year was formerly contributed in equal proportions by New South Wales, Victoria, and Queensland. The Federal Government took over the control in 1901, the political transfer was completed by the Papua Act of the Federal Parliament in November, 1905, and on September 1, 1906, a proclamation was issued by the Governor-General of Australia declaring that British New Guinea is to be known henceforth as the Territory of Papua. There is an executive council composed of official members, and a legislative council composed of the executive councillors and three non-official members nominated by the Governor-General of Australia.

Governmental Secretary—Hon. Alexander Malcolm Campbell

Tribes have in large areas settled down to peaceful habits. Four missionary bodies are at work many thousands of natives are being taught by these bodies. Three hundred thousand acres of land have been leased, principally by planters, and plantation work has commenced with energy, the principal cultures being coconuts, rubber, sisal hemp, coffee and Murva fibre. Cotton, vanilla, kapoc, cocoa, tapioca, cinnamon, tea and tobacco are also being cultivated. Suitable areas may be obtained from the Crown. By the Papua Act 1906, freehold alienation is prohibited, but leases may be obtained at low rentals for long terms. On hundreds of square miles indigenous sago is growing and there are at least 250,000 acres covered with native-owned coconut trees. The forests contain valuable timbers, in most cases easily accessible by river; the coconut and sago palm are plentiful, sandal-wood, ebony, gums, rattans, and other forest products are found.

There are four parts of entry—Port Moresby, Samarai, Daru, and Bougain (Woodlark Island);

There are 9 magisterial districts, each in charge of a resident magistrate. There are also 2 relieving and 13 assistant resident magistrates, and 4 patrol officers. There is a Central Court at Port Moresby, but it holds sittings wherever and whenever necessary. For native government some simple regulations have been passed. There are 464 village policemen, armed constabulary, 250 (exclusive of Europeans who are officers of armed constabulary).

Years ended 30 June	Local Revenue	Expenditure	Imports	Exports	Tonnage entered and cleared

Revenue is mainly from customs duties. A subsidy of 30,000L was given by the Australian Government in 1911-12 in addition to revenue, as also a loan of 5,000L for the establishment of Government plantations, 25 000L will be lent for this purpose spread over 5 years to be repaid from profits on the plantations.

There are 8 proclaimed mineral fields in the Territory, seven of which are gold fields, and 1 copper. Gold mining is the most important industry, and claims the attention of 144 adult Europeans. Gold is obtained in the Louisiade Islands, on the mainland, and on Woodlark Island. A large area near Port Moresby with promising copper deposits has been proclaimed a mineral field, and a number of 'shows' are being extensively developed. Copper ore exports in 1909, 1 841L, in 1910-11, 1,439L, in 1911-12, 12,886L. In 1907 the gold output was valued at 39,710L, 1908, 52,837L, 1909, 54,969L, 1910, 59,247L, 1911, 62,112L. The trade is principally with Queensland and New South Wales. The chief imports are food stuffs, tobacco, drapery and hardware exports, trepang, copra, pearl shell, gold, pearls, sandal wood, coffee, rubber. Number of horses (1911), 389, cattle, 1,149, mules, 116.

Large steamers trade fortnightly between Sydney and Port Moresby and small coastal steamers run at frequent regular intervals between the various inter-territorial ports. Oil launches and numerous cutters are also employed on the local trade.

NEW ZEALAND

Government and Constitution.

By Order in Council of September 9, 1907, and by Proclamation, the designation of the Colony of New Zealand was changed to the Dominion of New Zealand (officially established as a Colony in 1840), on and from September 26 1907. The present form of government was established by Statute 15 & 16 Vict., cap. 72, passed in 1852. The Colony was divided into six provinces, afterwards increased to nine. By a subsequent Act of the Colonial Legislature, 39 Vict., No. xxi., passed in 1875, the provincial system of government was abolished, and the powers previously exercised by superintendents and provincial officers were ordered to be exercised by the Governor or by local boards. The legislative power is vested in the Governor and a 'General Assembly' consisting of two Chambers—a Legislative Council and a House of Representatives. The Governor has the power of assenting to or withholding consent from bills, or he may reserve them for His Majesty's pleasure. He summons, prorogues, and dissolves the Parliament. He can send drafts of bills to either House for consideration, but in case of appropriations of public money must first recommend the House of Representatives to make provision accordingly before any appropriations can become law. He can return bills for amendment to either House.

The Legislative Council consists (September, 1912) of thirty nine members, who are paid at the rate of 200*l.* per annum. Those appointed before September 17, 1891, are life members but those appointed after that date hold their seats for seven years only, though they are eligible for reappointment. The House of Representatives consists of eighty members, including four Maori, elected by the people for three years. They are paid at the rate of 200*l.* per annum. Every man registered as an elector is eligible as a member of the House of Representatives. Women cannot be members of either branch of the Legislature. For European representation every adult person (of either sex), if resident one year in the Dominion and three months in one electoral district, can be registered an elector. No person may be registered on more than one electoral roll. Every adult Maori resident in any of the four Maori electoral districts can vote, provided he (or she) be not registered on any European roll. Registration is not required in Native districts.

At the general election in 1911 there were 592,043 (321,022 men and 269,009 women) electors on the rolls, who returned 78 European members to the House of Representatives; for the four Maori members

11,768 votes of Natives were recorded. For one European and one Maori Electorate there was no election, the sitting member being returned unopposed in each case. In 1911 there was one European member in the House of Representatives to every 13,354 persons, and one Maori member to about 12,461 Natives. The proportion of European electors to population in the year 1908 was one to every 18 persons.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT

For purposes of local government New Zealand is divided into counties and boroughs. The counties are subdivided into ridings. County councils are empowered to constitute road districts on petition being made. Besides the road districts, which are very numerous, there are town, drainage, and water supply districts and river tramway and harbour boards.

The ratepayers in the road districts of a county are qualified as electors for the purposes of the county council, and the members of each road board are elected by the ratepayers of the district.

Area and Population

There are two principal islands the North and South Islands, besides Stewart Island, and small outlying islands, including (since 1901), the Cook and some other islands in the Pacific Ocean. The group is 1,000 miles long, and 180 miles across at the broadest part, coast line 2,000 miles. New Zealand is about 1,200 miles east of Australia. Area, including all islands, 104,761 square miles. North Island 44,408 square miles, South Island 58,525, Stewart Island 666 square miles. Acreage 68,881,449, exclusive of the Cook and other islands (179,200 acres), and up to March, 1912, 28,918,464 acres had been alienated, including lands reserved and set apart by the State for special purposes (11,942,428 acres). Estimated population (June 30, 1912), Europeans, 1,034,439, Maoris, 49,844, Cook Islanders, 12,598, total, 1,096,881. Population exclusive of aborigines —

Excluding Maoris, in 1911, 996,418 persons, or 98.80 per cent., were British subjects. Of these, 702,779, or 69.74 per cent., were born in New Zealand, and 293,639, or 29.26 per cent., in the United Kingdom (153,311 in England, 2,206 in Wales, 51,709 in Scotland, and 40,293 in Ireland). Foreign subjects numbered 12,060, or 1.20 per cent. of the population.

Excluding Chinese, 61.80 per cent. were unmarried, 34.21 per cent. married, and 3.99 widowers or widows.

In 1911, 550,000 (64.97 per cent.) were dependants, 121,000 (13.95 per cent.) agricultural, pastoral, mineral, and other primary producers, 134,000 (15.24 per cent.) industrial, 102,000 (10.18 per cent.) commercial; 44,000 (4.89 per cent.) domestic, 23,000 (2.25 per cent.) professional; and 10,000 (1.07 per cent.) indefinite occupation.

MOVEMENT OF THE POPULATION

1910	35,769	32,361	3,408
1911	41,389	27,189	4,200

Religion

No State aid is given to any form of religion. For the Church of England the Dominion is divided into six dioceses. The Roman Catholic Church is under an Archbishop residing at Wellington and three bishops.

Denomination	Number of clergy July, 1912	Number of churches and chapels, &c. Census 1911	Denomination	Number of clergy July 1912	Number of churches and chapels &c. Census 1911
Church of England	421	796	Baptist	47	55
Presbyterian	343	709	Other Christian bodies	153	321
Roman Catholic	221	858	Hebrew	6	5
Methodist bodies	217	583
Congregational	84	32	Total	1,482	2,859

In 1911, 41.14 per cent. of the population (exclusive of Maoris) belonged to the Church of England, 23.32 were Presbyterians, 9.43 per cent. Methodists, other Protestant sects being Baptists, Independents, Lutherans, Friends, and Unitarians. The total Protestants numbered 508,801, and Roman Catholics and Catholics undefined, 140,523 or 18.47 per cent. of the population. There were 2,128 Jews, 1,601 Pagans, and 35,905 who objected to state their religion.

Instruction

The University of New Zealand is solely an examining body, with an annual grant of 8,000*l*. The number of graduates admitted after examination is now 1,681. There are four affiliated colleges—the Otago University at Dunedin, with 37 professors and lecturers, the Canterbury College at Christchurch, with 32 professors and lecturers, the Auckland University College, with 17 professors and lecturers, and the Victoria College at Wellington with 19 professors and lecturers. They are all endowed with lands. The Canterbury Agricultural College is a recognised school of agriculture.

At the end of 1911 there were 32 incorporated or endowed secondary schools, with 340 teachers and 5,465 pupils. Total income, 1910, 157,461*l*., more than half from endowments and Government payments. There are also 59 District High Schools with 87 teachers and 1,790 scholars. Children receiving secondary instruction at Technical Day Schools numbered 1,341 at the end of 1911.

For primary schools there is an Education Department. There are 13 Education Local Boards, with about 1,300 School Committees. There are 2,166 public primary schools, 4,551 teachers, 161,648 scholars on the rolls, average attendance 142,186. Education is compulsory between the ages of 7 and 14. The instruction given at the public schools is secular only, and for the ordinary standard course entirely free. Where there are no secondary schools classes may be formed in the public school for extra subjects, for which special subsidies are given.

There are 326 private schools, with 993 teachers and 19,868 pupils, 7 schools of mines, 4 normal schools, 5 central schools of art, 12 industrial schools, with 2,617 children or young persons, a school for deaf mutes, with 97 pupils, an institute for the blind (at Auckland), and a special school for mentally backward boys at Otago.

There are 104 Native village schools, with 227 teachers and 4,557 scholars, and 9 boarding schools providing secondary education for native children, at which 128 Government scholars are under instruction, and 6 mission schools, with 230 pupils. Total net expenditure by Government on Native schools in 1911 was 35,881*l*. Total expenditure in 1911-12 upon education of all kinds 1,294,000*l*.

Justice and Crime

There are six supreme court judges, and thirty stipendiary magistrates. There are numerous Magistrates' courts and justices of the peace.

	1906	1907	1908	1909	1910	1911
Europeans summarily convicted	27,128	30,466	30,300	30,697	31,980	34,537

At the end of 1911 the gaols contained 573 prisoners.

Pauperism

The Dominion is divided into districts, with elective boards for the administration of the public hospitals and charitable relief. The Government subsidises bequests at the rate of 10s in the pound, voluntary contributions, 24s. in the pound and contributions by local authorities, according to a sliding scale, ranging from 12s 8d in the pound to 24s 8d in the pound, according to the value of rateable property within the district. The total expenditure on Charitable Aid during the year ended 31st March, 1912, was 98,822l. During 1911 the benevolent asylums accommodated 2,649 inmates, 2,617 children (1,594 boys and 1,023 girls) were wholly or partly maintained by the Government in industrial schools and other institutions.

Old Age Pensions.

In 1898 an Act, amended in 1905 and consolidated in 1908, provided for old-age pensions. Every person, not an alien or an Asiatic, who fulfils certain conditions, is entitled to a pension of 26l a year. The joint annual income of a married couple in receipt of pensions must not exceed 90l (including pensions). Total pensions on March 31, 1912, 16,649, representing a yearly payment of 416,580l, the average pension being 25l 0s 4d.

Finance

The following table of revenue is exclusive of sales and rents of land —

1912	3 603 844	2 467 718	1 020 236	986 527	608 070	10 340 868

Budget estimates, 1912-1913 Revenue, 11,005,680l, expenditure, 10,863,688l.

The total expenditure out of the Public Works Fund from 1870 to March 31, 1912, was 55,027,466l, including charges and expenses for raising loans.

The rate of the ordinary land tax for 1909-10 was 1d in the pound on the unimproved value. There is also a graduated tax on land, rising from one-sixteenth of a penny in the pound on unimproved values from 5,000l to 7,000l, thence by progressive increases on values up to 200,000l or over, the maximum tax of 2½ per centum being then reached. Previous Acts were consolidated under the Statute of 1908. The graduated tax is increased by 50 per cent. in the case of absentees, but the absentee tax does not apply to companies, but to shareholders in companies. For and after the year ended March 31, 1910, the new progressive graduated scale over 40,000£ is increased by 25 per cent. in the case of all land other than "business premises." The average taxation per head of the population, excluding Maoris, in 1911-12, was 5½ 8s 10d.

The public debt is shown in the following table —

Year ended March 31	Public debt			Debt charge			Interest on Treasury Bills
	Debentures and Stock	Sinking Fund	Net debt	Interest	Sinking Fund	Total
	£	£	£	£	£	£	£
1908	68,458,607	2,028,036	66,534,961	2,065,618	81,842	2,168,860	30,559
1909	70,889,454	3,154,089	67,731,546	2,149,739	91,438	2,341,177	17,169
1910	74,290,643	3,112,066	71,778,580	2,353,182	98,124	2,877,806	20,160
1911	81,078,122	3,559,736	77,658,596	2,881,000	54,104	2,435,104	23,848

The reduction in the amount of the sinking funds shown in 1912 is due to the fact that a new system of accounts has been introduced into the Treasury and the following items included with the Sinking Funds in previous years are now excluded as not being strictly part of the Sinking Funds proper, i.e., Reserve Funds Societies' 800,000£ Bank of New Zealand Preference Shares, 500,000£ and New Zealand Consols held by the New Zealand Government, 347,168£, on March 31, 1912. For each of the years 1908 to 1911, the first two items were the same, and the last item amounted to 860,751£ in 1908, 877,765£ in 1909, 808,840£ in 1910 and 835,240£ in 1911.

The net debt per head of population on March 31, 1912, amounted to 79£ 12s. 8d.

LOCAL FINANCE.

The following table shows receipts and expenditure of the local governing bodies —

Defence

New Zealand is a party to the Naval Agreement between Great Britain and Australasia (see under Commonwealth of Australia)

New Zealand passed a Defence Act in 1909, amended 1910, which provides for the gradual military training of every male New Zealander from the age of 12 to the age of 25, after which he will serve in the Reserve up to the age of 30. There are no distinctions and no exceptions except for the physically unfit. From 12 to 14 the boy is a junior cadet, from 14 to 18 a senior cadet, from 18 to 25 he becomes a soldier in the Territorial Force, from 25 to 30 he belongs to the Reserve. Senior cadets do 50 drills and a musketry course each year. The soldier in the Territorial Force does 7 clear days annual training and a musketry course, besides 30 drills and 6 whole day parades, but there are modifications to meet the requirements of local conditions in certain directions.

The Territorial Force is about 29,000 strong, and is organised in field and coast-defence units with practically the same establishment for peace as for war. In each of the four military districts into which the Dominion is divided there is a brigade of infantry, a brigade of mounted rifles and a brigade of field artillery, as well as 9 companies of garrison artillery for coast defence and a field company of engineers, besides medical units and other departmental troops. An infantry brigade will include four battalions and a signal company, a mounted brigade, three regiments of mounted rifles and a signal company, and a brigade of artillery, two four gun batteries. The force will be fully armed and equipped according to the most modern standard. It is estimated that the annual cost of the scheme when carried out completely will be 400,000/. It will take several years before the scheme is in complete working order.

I AGRICULTURE.

Two thirds of the surface of New Zealand is suitable for agriculture and grazing. About 17,000,000 acres are still under forest. The total area under crop (including 14,214,741 acres in sown grasses and 209,973 acres broken up) in 1911, was 16,154,218 acres, excluding 111,672 acres in gardens, orchards, and plantations. The area of Crown lands surveyed and open for selection on March 31 1912, was 1,242,473 acres.

The largest freehold estates are held in the South Island. The extent of occupied holdings of or over one acre in 1911 was as follows—

Size of Holdings	Number of Holdings	Acres	Size of Holdings	Number of Holdings	Acres
1 to 10 acres	18,675	81,897	5 001 to 10,000 acres	526	3,526,514

The quantities and values of imports are obtained from Customs entries verified by invoices and, where necessary as with goods subject to an ad valorem duty, by examination. For exports the free-on board in New Zealand value is given but, as regards the main items the Collector of Customs examines carefully the amounts stated and compares them with current price lists to prevent any over estimate. Goods transhipped at a foreign port are regarded as imported from the country where they were originally shipped, and exports as destined for the country where it is intended to land them. The countries named, however may not be those of origin or destination, as no attempt is made to trace the goods beyond the ports disclosed by the documents presented to the Customs. Very little cargo is transit passes through New Zealand.

For the year ended March 31, 1912 the value of imports was 20,490,338*l* and of exports 19,086,664*l*. The principal imports and exports in 1911 are given as follows —

FIJI

Constitution and Government.

Fiji was ceded by the chiefs and people of Fiji on October 10, 1874. The government is administered by a Governor appointed by the Crown, assisted by an Executive Council consisting of the Chief Justice, Colonial Secretary, the Attorney-General, the Native Commissioner, the Hon A. E. Coates, Agent-General of Immigration, and the Hon R. S. D. Rankine, Receiver-General. Laws are passed by a Legislative Council, of which the Governor is president. It comprises ten official members, six elected members, and two native members.

Governor of Fiji and High Commissioner for the Western Pacific.—Sir Ernest Bickham Sweet-Escott, K.C.M.G. Salary 3,000*l.* (and 1,000*l.* from Imperial funds.)

Colonial Secretary—Hon. Eyre Hutson, C.M.G.

The Governor is High Commissioner and Consul-General for the Western Pacific.

There is a constabulary consisting of natives and Indians, and a 'Rifle Association' under the supervision of Government.

For the purposes of native government the colony is divided into 17 provinces, in 10 of which a superior native chief exercises, under the title of Roko Tui, a form of rule which recognises to a large degree the principles of native administration by which the people formerly governed themselves. In seven of the provinces there are European commissioners. About 186 native chiefs of inferior degree are employed in subordinate administrative capacities. There are also 31 native stipendiary magistrates associated with 17 European magistrates in the administration of justice. A European commissioner, who is also Government medical officer, resides in Rotumah.

Area and Population.

Fiji comprises a group of over 200 islands (about 80 inhabited) lying between 15° and 20° south latitudes and 177° east and 178° west longitude. The largest is Viti Levu, area 4,250 square miles, next is Vanua Levu, area 2,600 square miles. The island of Rotumah, between 12° and 16° of south latitude, and 175° and 177° east longitude, was added to the colony in 1880. Total area, including Rotumah, 7,455 square miles.

At the census of April 2, 1911, the population was 139,541; the Europeans, 2,707 (2,403 males, 1,304 females), Fijians, 87,096 (45,110 males, 40,986 females), Rotumans, 2,176 (1,043 males, 1,133 females), Indians, 40,288 (28,873 males, 14,313 females), Polynesians, 2,758 (2,429 males, 329 females), Chinese, 305 (276 males, 29 females), others, 3,213 (1,674 males, 1,539 females). On December 31, 1911 the estimated population was 142,761.

Among Europeans in 1911 the births were 90 and deaths 46; among Fijians, births 3,298, deaths 3,851; among Indians, births 1,271, deaths 791.

Suva, the capital, is on the south coast of Viti Levu. European population (census of April 2, 1911), 1,376.

Religion and Instruction

Attending at Wesleyan native churches in 1911, 84,306. Roman Catholic Mission, 10,592. The Wesleyan Mission comprises 14 European missionaries, 6 European mission sisters, 100 native ministers, 132 catechists, 881 teachers, and 3,655 local preachers, 5,449 class leaders, with 730 churches, and 384 other preaching places. The Roman Catholic Mission has 32 European ministers and 246 native teachers, 47 European sisters, 80 churches and chapels, 3 native training institutions.

Two public schools, in Suva and Levuka, receive 744*l.* a year State aid, 340 scholars in 1911. Another State-supported school is solely for natives; 66 scholars in 1911. During 1911 the Wesleyan Mission had 1,062 schools with 16,939 scholars; the Roman Catholic had 157 schools with 2,298 scholars. The Roman Catholic Mission maintains 4 schools for Europeans, with 244 children in 1911.

Shipping and Communications

Fiji is in regular steam communication with New Zealand, Australia, Tonga and Samoa Honolulu and Canada. During 1911 the number of merchant vessels entered at the ports of entry was 140 steamers (all British) of 290,167 tons, and 10 sailing vessels of 5,310 tons. Total tonnage entered and cleared in 1911, 584,935 tons. Registered shipping 1911, 16 vessels of 2,293 tons, 288 vessels holding coasting licenses (1911), tonnage, 3,800. There is also a subsidised inter-island steamer.

Local correspondence, 1911, 325,194 letters and postcards, 94,253 book packets, 323,362 newspapers, 8,365 parcels, foreign correspondence, 588,051 letters, 251,276 newspapers, 139,037 book packets and 12,127 parcels. There is a Money Order system with the United Kingdom, Canada, the Australian States, New Zealand, and Tonga. An overland telephone from Suva to Lautoka, 120 miles. Wireless telegraph stations have been erected at Suva, Labasa and Tavuni.

Money, weights, and measures are the same as in the United Kingdom.

PACIFIC ISLANDS

TONGA.

(FRIENDLY ISLANDS)

The Tonga or Friendly Islands continued up to 1899 to be a neutral region in accordance with the Declaration of Berlin, April 6, 1886. By the Anglo German Agreement of November 14, 1899, subsequently accepted by the United States the Tonga Islands were left practically under the Protectorate of Great Britain. A Protectorate was proclaimed over Tonga on May 19 1900. In December, 1900 the British High Commissioner, with the assent of the King and native chiefs, assumed the exercise of civil and criminal jurisdiction over all subjects of Foreign Powers in Tonga, and the supervision of the financial administration.

King—George II., born June 18, 1874 succeeded his great grandfather, George Tubou in 1893 married June 1st 1899, to Lavinia, who died in April, 1902. He married again in 1909.

There is a Legislative Assembly which meets every three years composed one half of hereditary nobles, who hold their office subject to good behaviour, and half of representatives elected for three years by the people, every adult male who has paid his taxes and is not criminally incapacitated being qualified to vote.

The kingdom consists of 3 groups of islands, called respectively Tonga, Haapai, and Vavau, and lies between 15° and 23 30' south, and 178° and 177° west, its western boundary being the eastern boundary of Fiji. Area, 390 square miles, population census, April, 1911 23,011 Tongans, 346 Pacific islanders, and 380 Europeans. Capital Nukualofa. The natives are Christian, mostly Wesleyan Methodists. The revenue chiefly from customs (28,232l in 1911), a poll tax and leases (no land being sold), amounted in 1911 to 51,050l and the expenditure to 50 012l. Native produce consists mostly of copra, green fruit, mats, tapa (a textile from bark), and fungus. Imports, 1910 218,309l, 1911, 223,101l, exports, 1910, 245,946l. 1911, 240,103l. The imports include specie (40,377l in 1911) drapery (40,188l in 1911), bread stuffs, meats and beverages, and the exports, copra 231,479l in 1911, green fruit, 5,545l. The imports are chiefly from Australia and New Zealand. The exports chiefly to Australia, New Zealand, and Germany. In 1911 56 vessels of 105,324 aggregate tonnage entered and 53 of 103,444 tons cleared (mainly British). Two boats of the New Zealand Union Steamship Company visit each of the 3 Tongan groups every two weeks, one running from Auckland to Tonga, Samoa, Fiji, and Sydney the other going in the inverse order.

Since May 1, 1905, British coin is the only legal tender. The weights and measures are the same as in Great Britain. Accounts are kept in pounds, shillings, and pence.

In the sections devoted to New South Wales and New Zealand mention is made of various annexed Pacific Islands. The following summary (omitting islands described elsewhere) gives the names and positions of islands which are unattached —

DUKE ISLAND, 24° 40' S lat., 124° 48' W long. PITCAIRN ISLAND, 25° 5' S, 130° 5' W, area 2 sq. m., pop. in 1911, 145 (40 adult males, 45 adult females, 43 children aged 6 to 16, and 17 children under 6 years). The affairs of the island are conducted by a Parliament of 7 members with a President, a Vice President and a Judge. In religion the islanders (descendants of the mutineers of the Bounty) are 'Seventh Day Adventists.' The products of the island are sweet potatoes, yams, taro, melons, pumpkins, oranges, bananas, pineapples, and arrowroot, which is prepared in limited quantities with antiquated appliances. Excellent coffee also grows, and its cultivation will probably extend. On the island there are about 200 wild goats and a small stock of chickens. Pigs formerly common are now extinct. The British Government has relieved them of liability to repay an advance of 200*l* granted in 1902. DUDOZA ISLAND, 7° 40' S lat. 161° W long., area 2 sq. m. VICTORIA ISLAND, area 2 sq. m. uninhabited. UNION, or TOKELAU GROUP, between 8° 30' and 11° 8' lat., and 171° and 172° W long. Five clusters of islets, the principal of which are Fakaafo or Bowditch, Nukunono or Duke of Clarence, Atafu or Duke of York, Nassau, Danger, area of group, 7 sq. m., pop. 912 natives and 2 Europeans (1911). The islands are included in the Gilbert and Ellice Islands Protectorate. PHOENIX GROUP, between 2° 30' and 4° 30' S lat., and 171° and 174° 30' W long. Eight islands. Mary, Enderbury. PHOENIX Burney Gardner McKean, Hull, Sydney area of group, 16 sq. m. pop. 59. ELlice ISLANDS between 6° 30' and 11° 20' S lat., and 176° and 180° E. long. The principal islands are Funafuti, Nukufetai, Vaitupu, Nui (or Netherland), Niutao (or Lynx or Speiden), Nenamaga (or Hudson), Nanomea (or St. Augustine), Nukulaelae (or Mitchell), Nukuta (or Sojhia), area of group, 14 sq. m., pop. (1911), 3,084 natives, 4 Europeans, and 1 Asiatic. GILBERT ISLANDS, on the equator. The principal islands are Butaritari, Makin, Tarawa, Abaiang, Marakei, Maiana, Abemama, Kuria, Ananuka, Nonouti, Tapitea, Heru, Nukunai, Onotoa, Tamana, Arorae and Ocean Islands. Area 166 sq. m., estimated pop. (1911) 20,417 natives and 446 foreigners. Revenue of the Protectorate, which includes the Gilbert, Ellice, and Union groups, was 21,331*l* in 1911, and expenditure, 17,965*l*. The trade in 1911 amounted to 75,421*l* for imports, and 238,950*l* for exports (142,165 tons phosphates from Ocean Islands, value 218,250*l*, and 2,070 tons copra, value 20,700*l*). BRITISH SOLOMON ISLANDS, about 8° S and 160° W, are Guadalcanal, Malaita, Isabel, San Cristoval, New Georgia, Choiseul, Shortland, Mono (or Treasury), Vella Lavella, Ronongu, Gizo, Rendova, Russell, Florida, Rennell, and numerous small islands (the Lord Howe Group or Ougtong Java, and the Santa Cruz Islands are also included in the Solomon Islands Protectorate). Area 14,800 sq. m., European population (1912), 500; native population about 150,000. They are under British Protection. Revenue (1911-12), 18,040*l*, expenditure, 22,639*l*. About 18,000 acres planted by white planters, were under coco-nuts in March, 1911 and about 800 acres under rubber, sweet potatoes, pineapples, bananas are grown, 60 acres were under cotton in March, 1910. From these islands in 1903, 663 labourers were recruited for Queensland. Recruiting ceased at the end of 1903, in March 1904, there were about 6,000 of the islanders in Queensland, but there is a steady stream of returning labourers. The value of imports in 1910-11 was 103,147*l*, and copra, pearl shell, ivory nuts, &c., were exported to the value of 88,890*l*. Foreign going vessels entered, 1911-12, 23 of 25,321 net tons (25,548 tons British), cleared, 74 of 24,323 net tons (24,094 British). There is a Resident Commissioner. SANTA CRUZ ISLANDS, seven large islands, the largest about 15 miles long.

DUFF or WILSON ISLANDS, eleven islands, the largest about 6 miles in circumference. STARBUCK ISLAND, 6° 30' S lat., 155° W long, area 1 sq m., uninhabited. MALDEN ISLAND 4° S lat., 155° W long, area 85 sq m., pop 168. JARVIS ISLAND on the equator, 159° W, area 1½ sq m., pop 30. FANNING ISLAND, 3 50' N, 159° W, area 15 sq m., pop 150. WASHINGTON ISLAND, 4 40' N, 160° 20' W, area 6 sq m. PALMYRA, 6° N, 162° 30' W, area 1½ sq m. BAKER ISLANDS, on the equator.

These islands are mostly of coral formation, most of them grow coconut trees in large quantities, and some of them are valuable for their guano.

The High Commissioner of the Western Pacific, assisted by deputies, has jurisdiction, in accordance with an Order in Council of 1893, for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of the Pacific Islanders Protection Acts of 1872 and 1875, and to settle disputes between British subjects living in these islands. The jurisdiction of the High Commissioner extends over all the Western Pacific not within the limits of Fiji, Queensland, or New South Wales, or the jurisdiction of any civilised Power, and includes the Southern Solomon Islands, and the various small groups in Melanesia.

The NEW HEBRIDES, however, are under a mixed commission of English and French naval officers on the Pacific station. Under the Anglo-French Convention of February, 1906, ratified October, 1906, there is an arrangement for the reorganisation of the administration. This convention also guarantees the interests of French, British, and natives, respectively, and fixes the conditions of land holding in the islands. It also provides for the regulation of the recruitment of native labourers. Within the Islands Great Britain is represented by a Resident Deputy Commissioner, who reports to the High Commissioner for the Western Pacific. The larger islands of the group are Espiritu Santo, Mallicolo, Api or Tasiko, Efate or Sandwich, Erromanga, Aipere or Tanna, Futuna or Erromanga, and Anietyum. Area, 5,100 square miles, population about 70,000. At the end of 1905 there were within the group 225 British and 417 French subjects. There are 3 French Catholic mission schools, and 1 Presbyterian. Settlers have acquired large areas within the islands, and though there are many disputes as to rightful possession, and much of the land is still uncleared, coconuts (for copra), maize, mullet, coffee, and bananas are grown, and a prosperous timber factory prepares Kauri wood for export. The distillation and importation of spirits are prohibited. The expenditure for 1908 was estimated at 30,060*l.* or 15,030*l.* for the British and an equal amount for the French. There are several French and British trading companies, and the commerce of the islands in the absence of statistics, may be estimated at about 53,000*l.* for imports, and 43,000*l.* for exports. The trade is mostly with Sydney and Nouméa (New Caledonia). The imports are provisions and foodstuffs, clothing, metal work, and furniture, the exports are maize, copra, coffee, and other island products. Vessels visit the islands frequently, including the repeated voyages of two French and one British company, whose steamers provide for communication with Sydney, Nouméa, the Solomon Islands and sometimes the Gilbert Islands.

PART THE SECOND

THE UNITED STATES

UNITED STATES.

(UNITED STATES OF AMERICA)

Constitution and Government.

THE Declaration of Independence of the thirteen States of which the American Union then consisted was adopted by Congress July 4, 1776. On November 30, 1782, Great Britain acknowledged independence of the United States, and on September 3, 1783, the treaty of peace was concluded.

The form of government of the United States is based on the Constitution of Sept. 17, 1787, to which ten amendments were added Dec. 16, 1791, an eleventh amendment Jan. 8, 1793, a twelfth amendment, Sept. 25, 1804, a thirteenth amendment, Dec. 18, 1865, a fourteenth amendment, July 28, 1868, and a fifteenth amendment March 30, 1870.

By the Constitution, the government of the nation is entrusted to three separate authorities, the Executive, the Legislative, and the Judicial. The executive power is vested in a President who holds his office during the term of four years, and is elected, together with a Vice President chosen for the same term in the mode prescribed as follows:—'Each State shall appoint, in such manner as the Legislature thereof may direct, a number of electors, equal to the whole number of senators and representatives to which the State may be entitled in the Congress; but no senator or representative, or person holding an office of trust or profit under the United States, shall be appointed an elector.' The practice is that in every State the electors allotted to the State are chosen by direct vote of the citizens on a general ticket, on the system known in France as scrutin de liste. The Constitution enacts that 'the Congress may determine the time of choosing the electors, and the day on which they shall give their votes, which day shall be the same throughout the United States; and further, that no person except a natural born citizen, or a citizen of the United States at the time of the adoption of this Constitution, shall be eligible to the office of President, neither shall any person be eligible to that office who shall not have attained to the age of thirty five years and been fourteen years a resident within the United States.'

The quadrennial election is held every fourth (leap) year. Electors are chosen in the several States on the Tuesday after the first Monday in November: the electors meet and give their votes at their respective State capitals on the second Monday in January next following their appointment, and the votes of the electors of all the States are opened and counted in the presence of both Houses of Congress on the second Wednesday in February. The presidential term begins on March 4, in the year following leap years.

The President is commander in chief of the army and navy, and of the militia in the service of the Union. The Vice President is ex officio President of the Senate, and in the case of the death or resignation of the President, he becomes the President for the remainder of the term.

President of the United States—Woodrow Wilson, of New Jersey, born at Staunton, Virginia, December 28, 1856; educated at Princeton University (1875–1879), Associate Professor at Bryn Mawr College (1885–1888), Professor of Political Economy at Wesleyan University (1888–1890), Professor of Jurisprudence and politics at Princeton University (1890–1902), President of Princeton University (1902–1910), Governor of New Jersey (1911–1913).

Vice-President of the United States—Thomas Riley Marshall, of Indiana, born 1854, admitted to the bar, 1875, Governor of Indiana, 1909–1913.

The President of the United States has an annual salary of 75,000 dollars, with an additional allowance of 25,000 dollars for travelling expenses, and the Vice President 12,000 dollars.

Since the adoption of the Constitution the offices of President and Vice President have been occupied as follows —

By a law which came into force Jan. 19 1886 in case of removal, death, resignation, or inability of both the President and Vice-President, the Secretary of State and after him, in the order of the establishment of their departments, other members of the Cabinet, shall act as President until the disability of the President is removed or a President shall be elected. On the death of a Vice President the duties of the office shall fall to the President pro tempore of the Senate, who receives the salary of the Vice President.

The administrative business of the nation is conducted by nine chief officers, or heads of departments, who form what is called the 'Cabinet.' They are chosen by the President, but must be confirmed by the Senate. Each of them presides over a separate department and acts under the immediate authority of the President. The heads of departments are (March 1913) —

1 Secretary of State — William Jennings Bryan of Nebraska, born in Illinois, 1860 educated at Illinois College admitted to the bar 1883. Member of Congress, 1891-95, Candidate for President of the United States, 1896, 1900, 1908. Present appointment, March 5 1913.

8 Secretary of Agriculture.—David Franklin Houston, of Missouri, born in South Carolina, 1866, has held professorships in several southern colleges and been President of the University of Texas, recently, Chancellor of the Washington University of St Louis Missouri Present appointment, March 5, 1913

9 Secretary of Commerce.—William C. Redfield, of New York born in New York, 1858 Member of Congress, 1911-13 Present appointment, March 5, 1913

10 Secretary of Labour.—William Baucke Wilson, of Pennsylvania born in Scotland, 1862 Secretary of the United Mine Workers of America 1900-1909 Member of Congress, 1907-1913 Present appointment March 5 1913

The Ministry for Labour was created in 1913.

Each of the above ministers has an annual salary of 12,000 dollars and holds office during the pleasure of the President

The whole legislative power is vested by the Constitution in a Congress consisting of a Senate and House of Representatives. The Senate consists of two members from each State, chosen by the State Legislatures for six years. Senators must be not less than thirty years of age, must have been citizens of the United States for nine years, and be residents in the States for which they are chosen. Besides its legislative functions, the Senate is entrusted with the power of ratifying or rejecting all treaties made by the President with foreign Powers, a two thirds majority of senators present being required for ratification. The Senate is also invested with the power of confirming or rejecting all appointments to office made by the President and its members constitute a High Court of Impeachment. The judgment in the latter case extends only to removal from office and disqualification. The House of Representatives has the sole power of impeachment.

The House of Representatives is composed of members elected every second year by the vote of citizens who according to the laws of their respective States, are qualified to vote. In general such voters are all male citizens over 21 years of age. Neither race nor colour affects the right of citizens. The franchise is not absolutely universal residence for at least one year in most States (in Rhode Island and Kentucky two years, in Michigan and Maine three months) is necessary, in some States the payment of taxes, in others registration. On the other hand many of the Western States admit to the franchise unnaturalised persons who have formally declared their intention to become citizens. Several of the Southern States have adopted methods—which differ from one another—too complicated for explanation here, with the express and avowed purpose of excluding the negroes from the franchise, and yet avoiding the constitutional consequences of discriminating 'on account of race, colour or previous condition of servitude.' Untaxed Indians are excluded from the franchise, in most States convicts, in some States duellists and fraudulent voters, in Massachusetts voters are required to be able to read English. In some Southern States they are required to give a reasonable explanation of what they read. Wyoming (1890), Colorado (1893), Utah (1896), Idaho (1896), Washington (1910), California, Arizona, Kansas and Oregon (1912), admit women to the franchise on equal terms with men. The number of members to which each State is entitled is determined by the census taken every ten years. By the Apportionment Act consequent on the census of 1910, the number of representatives is 433.

In 1912 with the admission of Arizona and New Mexico it became 436, distributed as follows —

Alabama	10	Maryland	6	Oregon	3
Arizona	1	Massachusetts	18	Pennsylvania	36
Arkansas	7	Michigan	13	Rhode Island	3
California	11	Minnesota	10	South Carolina	3
Colorado	4	Mississippi	8	South Dakota	7
Connecticut	5	Missouri	16	Tennessee	10
Delaware	1	Montana	2	Texas	18
Florida	4	Nebraska	8	Utah	2
Georgia	12	Nevada	1	Vermont	2
Idaho	2	New Hampshire	2	Virginia	10
Illinois	27	New Jersey	12	Washington	5
Indiana	13	New Mexico	2	West Virginia	6
Iowa	11	New York	43	Wisconsin	11
Kansas	8	North Carolina	10	Wyoming	1
Kentucky	11	North Dakota	3
Louisiana	8	Ohio	22
Maine	4	Oklahoma	8	Total	436

On the basis of the census of 1910 there is one representative to every 210,415 inhabitants. The popular vote for President in 1912 was 15 041 658 or about one in six of the entire population. In 1910 there were in the States, which alone participate in elections of President and representatives, 26,999,151 males of voting age, 21 years and over, including 8,829 581 of foreign birth, naturalised and unnaturalised.

According to the terms of the Constitution, representatives must not be less than twenty five years of age, must have been citizens of the United States for seven years, and be residents in the States from which they are chosen. In addition to the representatives from the States, the House admits a 'delegate' from each organised Territory, who has the right to speak on any subject and to make motions, but not to vote. The delegates are elected in the same manner as the representatives.

Each of the two Houses of Congress is made by the Constitution the 'judge of the elections, returns, and qualifications of its own members' and each of the Houses may, with the concurrence of two thirds, expel a member.

The Congress of the United States has the power to propose alterations in the Constitution by the 5th article of the same. The article orders that the Congress, whenever two thirds of both Houses shall deem it necessary, shall propose amendments to the Constitution, or on the application of the Legislatures of two-thirds of all the States, shall call a convention for proposing the amendments, which in either case shall be valid to all intents and purposes as part of the Constitution when ratified by the Legislatures of three-fourths of the several States, or by conventions in three-fourths thereof, as the one or other mode of ratification may be proposed by Congress.

The salary of a senator, representative, or delegate in Congress is 7 500 dollars per annum, with an allowance, based on distance, for travelling expenses. The salary of the Speaker of the House of Representatives is 12,000 dollars per annum.

No senator or representative can, during the time for which he is elected, be appointed to any civil office under authority of the United States which shall have been created or the emoluments of which shall have been increased during such time, and no person holding any office under the United States can be a member of either House during his continuance in office. No religious test is required as a qualification to any office or public trust under the United States, or in any State.

The period usually termed 'a Congress' in legislative language, continues for two years—as, for example, from noon, March 4, 1918, until noon, March 4, 1919, at which latter time the term of the representatives to the 65th Congress expires, and the term of the new House of Representatives begins.

Senate 43 Republicans, 49 Democrats. House of Representatives (after New Apportionment Act) 289 Democrats, 145 Republicans, 2 Independents.

The National Government has authority in matters of general taxation, treaties and other dealings with foreign powers, army, navy, and (to a certain extent) militia, commerce, foreign and inter State, postal service, coinage, weights and measures, and the trial and punishment of crime against the United States.

Slavery was abolished throughout the whole of the United States by the thirteenth Amendment of the Constitution, passed December 18, 1865. The vast change in the political and social organisation of the Republic made by this new fundamental law was completed by the fourteenth and fifteenth Amendments of the Constitution, passed in 1868 and 1870, which gave to the former slaves all the rights and privileges of citizenship.

STATE AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

The Union comprises 13 original States, 7 States which were admitted without having been previously organised as Territories and 28 States which had been Territories—48 States in all. Each State has its own constitution, which must be republican in form and each constitution derives its authority not from Congress, but from the people of the State. Admission of States into the Union is granted by special Acts of Congress, either (1) in the form of 'enabling Acts, providing for the drafting and ratification of a State constitution by the people in which case the Territory becomes a State as soon as the conditions are fulfilled, or (2) accepting a constitution already framed, and at once granting admission.

Each State is provided with a Legislature of two Houses, a Governor, and other executive officials, and a judicial system. Both Houses of the Legislature are elective, but the Senators (having larger electoral districts) are less numerous than the members of the House of Representatives, while in some States their terms are longer and, in a few, the Senate is only partially renewed at each election. Members of both Houses are paid at the same rate, which varies from 150 to 1,500 dollars per session, or from 1 to 8 dollars per day during session. The duties of the two Houses are similar, but in many States money bills must be introduced first in the House of Representatives. The Senate has to sit as a court for the trial of officials impeached by the other House, and besides, has often the power to confirm or reject appointments made by the Governor. In most of the States the sessions are biennial, the Governor having power to summon an extraordinary session but not to dissolve or adjourn. State Legislatures are competent to deal with all matters not reserved for the Federal Government by the Federal constitution, or falling within restrictions imposed by the State constitutions. Among their powers are the determination of the qualifications for the right of suffrage, and the control of all elections to public office, including elections of members of Congress and electors of President and Vice President, the criminal law, both in its enactment and in its execution, with unimportant exceptions, and the administration of prisons, the civil law, including all matters pertaining to the possession and transfer of, and succession to, property; marriage and divorce, and all other civil relations, the chartering and control of all manufacturing, trading, transportation, and other corporations, subject only to the right of Congress to regulate commerce passing from one State to another, the regulation of labour, education, charities, licensing, including regulation of the liquor traffic, fisheries, and game laws. The revenues of the States are derived chiefly from a direct tax upon property, in some cases both real and personal, in others on land and buildings only. The prohibition upon Congress to levy direct taxes save in proportion to population, contained in the national constitution, leaves this source of revenue to the States exclusively.

The Governor is chosen by direct vote of the people over the whole State. His term of office varies from 1 year to 4 years and his salary from 1 000 to 10,000 dollars. His duty is to see to the faithful administration of the law, and he has command of the military forces of the State. His power of appointment to State offices is usually unimportant. He may recommend measures, but does not present bills to the legislature. In some States he presents estimates. In all but two of the States the Governor has a veto upon legislation, which may, however, be overridden by the two houses, in some States by a simple majority, in others by a three fifths or two thirds majority.

The officials by whom the administration of State affairs is carried on (secretaries, treasurers, members of boards of commissioners, &c.), are usually chosen by the people at the General State elections for terms similar to those for which governors hold office, the party in power appointing its own adherents.

In a Territory (Hawaii is now the only Territory) there is a local legislature, the form of which has been prescribed by the National Government. These bodies have powers similar to those of the States, but any of their acts may be modified or annulled by Congress. The Governor of a Territory is appointed for 4 years by the Federal President to whom he makes an annual report. The President appoints also the Territorial secretaries and other officials, together with the Territorial judges. Porto Rico, although not designated as a 'territory' in the technical sense, is self governing. Its government is organised on a system almost identical with that of the territories. The Philippine Islands are governed by a civil Governor and a mixed commission of Americans and natives, appointed by the President. Alaska has no power of self government.

The District of Columbia is the seat of the United States Government, provided by the State of Maryland for the purposes of government in 1791. It is co-extensive with the city of Washington, and embraces an area of 60 square miles. The district has no municipal legislative body, and its citizens have no right to vote either in national or municipal concerns. By an Act of Congress of 1878, its municipal government is administered by three commissioners appointed by the President.

The unit of local government in the North, especially in the New England States, is the rural township, governed directly by the voters who assemble annually or oftener if necessary and legislate in local affairs, levy taxes, make appropriations, and appoint and instruct the local officials (select men, clerk, school committee, &c.). Where cities exist the township government is superseded by the city government. Townships are grouped to form counties, each with its commissioners and other paid officials who have charge of public buildings, lay out highways, grant licences, and estimate and apportion the taxation necessary for county purposes. In the South the counties are themselves the units, though subdivided for educational or other special purposes. Their officials have in general additional functions, as the care of the poor and the superintendence of schools. In the Middle and North Western States the two systems of local government are mixed. In the West all the public land is already divided into townships six miles square.

II MOVEMENT OF POPULATION

There is as yet no national system of registration of births, deaths, and marriages in the United States. The birth rate computed for 1900, on the basis of infants under 1 year of age living at the close of the Census year and of those who were born and died during that year, was 27.2 per 1,000, but this is acknowledged to be too low. Death rates are computed from returns for certain areas where local registration records are kept. These areas, now include California, Colorado, Connecticut, Indiana, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina (municipalities of 1,000 population and over in 1900), Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Utah, Vermont, Washington, Wisconsin, the District of Columbia, and 43 cities in non-registration states. - The estimated population for the registration area in 1910 was 58,843,896, or over one half (58.3 per cent) of the total estimated population of Continental United States, and the number of deaths returned for that year was 805,412, or 15.0 per 1,000 of population.

In 1909, 859,290 marriages and 72,062 divorces were recorded in the United States. Marriage and divorce rates, computed on the basis of the 1900 population and the annual averages of marriage and divorce from 1898 to 1902, were as follows:

Marriage rate per 10,000 based on total population 93, based on population over 15 years of age, 141, based on unmarried population over 15 years of age, 321. Divorce rate per 10,000, based on total population, 7.8, based on married population, 20.0

The number of marriages and divorces by States was as follows:

It is estimated that, from the foundation of the Government up to 1820 about 250,000 alien passengers arrived, 98 per cent. of whom were immigrants. The total number of immigrants from 1820 to 1909 (June 30) was 27,825,893. In the following statement, immigrants from Canada and Mexico are not included —

Of the total increase of 15,977,691 in the population of the country between 1900 and 1910 whites contributed 14,022,761 negroes 965,769 and other races, 81,161. The increase in the native population was 12,903,081 and that in the foreign born 8,174,610 or about one-fifth of the total increase.

The percentage of increase for the whites was 22.8 and for the negroes, 11.2. The native white population increased 20.8 per cent. and the foreign born white 80.7 per cent.

In 1910 whites constituted 88.4 per cent. of the total population as compared with 87.9 per cent. in 1900. Native whites however constituted a slightly smaller proportion of the total in the later year than in the earlier while foreign-born whites formed 14.6 per cent. of the total in 1910 as compared with 13.4 per cent. ten years earlier.

Instruction.

Each State of the Union has a system of free public schools established by law. The work of these is largely supplemented by private and parochial schools. In 1880 the percentage of illiterates in the population above ten years of age was 17 per cent, in 1890 13.8 per cent, in 1900 10.7 per cent, in 1910 7.7 per cent. The following statistics are for 1910 —

	Total Population	Per cent of total population	Population 10 years of age and over

The United States Government has set aside for elementary schools in each of the newer States, from two to four 'sections' (or square miles) in each township six miles square the proceeds from the sale of which form the chief part of the permanent school funds of those States, the income alone being used for the support of the schools. This income is supplemented by State and local taxation, so that it constitutes about 8.3 per cent. of the total school revenue of all the States. In 1909-10 the amount expended on public schools of elementary and secondary grades was 426,250 434 dollars. In 1910 the 494 universities and colleges, including the 352 co-educational colleges and the 142 colleges for men only, had an income of 70,667,865 dollars from productive funds, from fees, and from United States Government, State, and Municipal appropriations. The 108 colleges for women had an income of 7,205,602 dollars.

The following table is for 1909-10. School statistics for States will be found under the several States —

Justice and Crime

The judicial system like the executive and legislative systems, is dual. The General Government maintains courts for the trial of civil causes arising out of the admiralty, patent, banking, and other laws of the United States, of certain causes between citizens of different States, and of crimes against the United States. Almost all offences against the person and against property are dealt with by the State courts, also all civil causes where the parties are residents of the same State, and matters of probate, divorce, and bankruptcy (when, as now, there is no national bankruptcy law).

In the separate States the lowest courts are those held by Justices of the Peace, or, in towns and cities, by Police Judges. In the counties, courts of record are held, some by local county officers, others by District or Circuit Judges, who go from county to county. In these courts there are usually the grand and petty jury. The highest court in each State is the Supreme Court, or Court of Final Appeal, with a Chief Justice and Associate Judges. These judges are usually elected by the people, but sometimes appointed by the Governor, with or without the Senate or Council, they usually hold office for terms of years, but sometimes practically for life or during good behaviour. Their salaries vary from 2,500 dollars to 7,500 dollars.

The judges of the United States Courts are appointed for life. Of the United States Courts the lowest are those of the districts, of which there are about 80, each State forming one or more districts. These courts may try any case of crime against the United States not punishable with death. Each of the nine Justices of the Supreme Court must hold a Court in one of the nine circuits into which the country is divided, at least once every two years. There are also circuit courts of appeal. The Supreme Court consists of a Chief Justice and eight Associate Judges, appointed by the President with the consent of the Senate. It deals with appeals from inferior courts, and has original jurisdiction in cases affecting foreign ministers and consuls, and those in which a State is a party. The Chief Justice has a salary of 15,000 dollars, and each of the Associate Judges 14,500 dollars.

Other courts with criminal jurisdiction are the Court of the District of Columbia and those of the Territories.

Pauperism

A special report of the U S Census Bureau gives the number of paupers in almshouses on December 31, 1908. The number of almshouses reported on was 2,746, and the number of pauper inmates, compared with numbers on June 1, 1890, and on June 1, 1880, was as follows, the proportion per 100,000 of population in each year being also shown —

1908	2,626,806,272	1912	2,868,373,874

The net debt—that is, what remains after deducting the cash in the Treasury—was 1,027,574,697 dollars on June 30 1912. About one hundred and eighteen and one half millions of the interest-bearing debt is at 4 per cent., and the rest at 2½ and 3 per cent.

In 1900 the true value of property was estimated at 88,517,806,775 dollars. In 1904, at 107,104,192 410 dollars.

II STATE FINANCE.

The revenues required for the administration of the separate States are derived from direct taxation, chiefly in the form of a tax on property real and personal, and the greater part of such revenue is collected and expended by the local authorities, county, township, or school district.

For details see the separate States.

Defence

1 ARMY

The military forces consist of a Federal regular army obtained by voluntary enlistment, of the National Guard (also obtained by voluntary enlistment) which belongs to the different States, and of a reserve to the National Guard which is unorganised but means a levée en masse.

In the regular army enlistment is for seven years, of which four years are spent with the colours and the remaining three on furlough—practically in the reserve. Re-enlistment for a further term of seven years is allowed under certain circumstances. The pay of a private in any branch of the service is 15 dollars a month (about 2s. a day) at first, but the soldier can obtain 'continuous service' or re-enlistment 'pay', so that after three years he may be drawing 18 dollars a month, equivalent to about 2s. 6d. a day. The minimum height is nominally 5 feet 4 inches, and the chest measurement 32 inches, but a certain relaxation of standards is allowed.

The U.S. Infantry is organised in 80 regiments of 3 battalions, each of 4 companies, the ordinary peace strength of a company being 3 officers and 65 men. The Porto Rico regiment (natives) now a part of the regular establishment, has 2 battalions of 4 companies. There are 15 cavalry regiments of 3 squadrons, of the same strength as infantry companies; the cavalry are practically mounted rifles. Two infantry regiments and 2 of cavalry are composed of negroes, with white officers. Four special infantry regiments and two special cavalry regiments have moreover been organised for permanent service in the Philippines. The field artillery of the U.S. Army comprises 6 regiments, each of 6 batteries, of these, 2 regiments are 'light artillery, 2 mountain artillery, 1 field artillery, and 1 horse artillery. All batteries have 4 guns and 8 wagons both in peace and war. There are also 170 companies of coast artillery. The engineers consist of 8 battalions, each of 4 companies of 3 officers and 159 men.

In addition to the regular United States army, there are 52 companies of Philippine Scouts, (natives) each of 3 officers and 104 men, total 5,912. There are also the Indian Scouts, 75 in number.

The authorised peace strength of the army at present is as follows —

Infantry, cavalry, artillery and engineers	74,092
Staff and Departments	16,688
Native Colonial troops	5,912
Total all ranks	96,692

The regular U.S. troops stationed abroad amount to about 15,500 of all ranks, viz. —12,200 in the Philippines, 2,400 in Hawaii and 900 in the Isthmian Canal Zone.

In the case of the National Guard or organised Militia the various States maintain the units of all arms with the aid of grants from the Federal Government. Enlistment in the National Guard is purely voluntary, the term of service being usually three years. The organisation has been assimilated to that of the regular troops. The President can call out the Militia for service either within or without the borders of the United States. The total strength of the National Guard is about 112,000 officers and men, and it is estimated that about three fourths of the whole could actually be put into the field. It is organised in 140 regiments and 9 battalions of infantry, 69 squadrons of mounted troops, 51 batteries of artillery, and 122 coast artillery companies.

The reserve, or unorganised Militia comprises, with certain exemptions, the whole of the manhood of the nation between the age of 18 and 45, all being legally liable to serve in a national emergency for a period of 2 years. Their estimated number is 15 millions but they are untrained, and of no present value, though encouragement is being given to rifle shooting.

In event of war the United States could put into the field about 80,000 regular troops, and about 80,000 or 90,000 partially trained National Guard. The American nation relies on being able to raise in case of emergency a great volunteer army. If sufficient numbers were not forthcoming the reserve militia could be obliged to serve for two years, but this army, whether its ranks were filled by voluntary or compulsory recruitment, would practically be a new creation.

The regular infantry and cavalry are both armed with the short U.S. rifle Springfield model, 1903, calibre 300. The armament of the horse and field batteries is a shielded Q.F. gun firing a 15 lb shell.

The President is Commander in Chief of both the army and the navy. The Secretary of War controls the army with the aid of an Assistant Secretary and a Chief of the Staff. The former has charge of finances, and non-military work, while the latter is entrusted with the general supervision of the army.

The army budget in 1912-13 amounted to 94,210,400 dollars (£18,642,080). This does not include the expenditure by the several States on their National Guard; nor the enormous sum paid in pensions to former soldiers, both regulars and volunteers, which is separately provided.

II. NAVY.

The navy estimates (financial years ending June 30), were as follows —

Years.	$	Years.	$
1912-13	25,851,402	1908-09	24,968,968
1911-12	26,405,290	1907-08	23,719,800
1910-11	25,787,118	1906-07	20,891,325
1909-10	28,163,831	1905-06	24,444,948

The control of naval affairs is vested in the Secretary of the Navy, a Cabinet officer, appointed by the President, with the approval of the Senate. The Assistant-Secretary, a civilian, also appointed by the President with the approval of the Senate, the chiefs of eight administrative bureaus, the Commandant of the Marine Corps, and the Judge-Advocate-General, are directly responsible to the Secretary. The administrative bureaus are yards and docks, equipment, navigation, ordnance, construction and repair, steam engineering, supplies and accounts, and medicine and surgery.

The Government constructive and repairing establishments are at Portsmouth, N H., Boston, Mass., Brooklyn, N Y., League Island, Pa., Washington, D C., Norfolk, Va., Pensacola, Fla., Mare Island, Cal., and Puget Sound, Washington, and the naval stations are at Newport, R.I., New London, Conn., Charleston, S C., Port Royal, S C., Key West, Fla., New Orleans, La., Guantanamo, Cuba, Hawaii, Tutuila, Samoa, Cavite, P I., Olongapo, P I.

All warships, under the requirements of law, are built within the country and of home material. On January 1, 1912 there were 29 rear admirals, 212 captains and commanders, 1,108 other line officers, 280 midshipmen, 809 medical officers, 201 pay officers. The enlisted strength allowed by bill, approved August 22, 1912, was 51,500 men. Marine Corps, allowed strength, on October 12, 1911 352 officers and 9,521 men. Appropriations for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1912, were 129,278,166.99 dollars, 1912-13, 123,181,588.76 dollars.

The following is a classified statement of the strength of the United States Navy. Old iron and wooden cruising vessels, several small gunboats converted from yachts and tugs, others taken from Spain and used in the Philippines for picket duty, and vessels appropriated for training ships and other purposes, and vessels over 20 years old not reconstructed since 1900, are not included. —

The public lands are divided into two great classes. The one class have a dollar and a quarter an acre designated as the minimum price, and the other two dollars and a half an acre, the latter being the alternate sections, reserved by the United States in land grants to railroads, &c. Titles to these lands may be acquired by location under the homestead laws, or, as to some classes, by purchase for cash. The homestead laws give the right to 160 acres of a-dollar-and-a-quarter lands to any citizen or applicant for citizenship who will actually settle upon and cultivate the land. The title is perfected by the issue of a patent after five years of actual settlement. The only charges in the case of homestead entries are fees and commissions. On July 1, 1912, 682,984,762 acres were unappropriated and unreserved, of which 868,010 648 were in Alaska. In 1907, 14,754,584 acres were taken up under the Homestead Act, and in all 80,866,592 acres were disposed of to individuals, States, and railroad and wagon road companies. It is provided by law that two sections, of 640 acres of land, in each township, are reserved for common schools, so that the spread of education may go together with colonization.

The power of Congress over the public territory is exclusive and universal, except so far as restrained by stipulations in the original cessions.

According to census returns the total acreage of farms and the improved acreage have been —

Years	Farm area Acres	Improved area. Acres	Value of farm property Dollars	Value of products in preceding year Dollars

The output of cane sugar in 1910-11 amounted to 596,640,000 pounds. The beet sugar production in 1910-11 amounted to 500,172 short tons.

The cotton production in 1911 (as returned by growers) amounted to 15,334,279 bales including linters (equivalent 500 pounds), grown in the following States: Texas, 4,447,648 bales; Georgia, 2,845,790; Mississippi

1,252,322, Alabama, 1,757,207, S. Carolina, 1,584,096, Louisiana, 408,483, Arkansas, 972,294, N. The preliminary returns for 1912 show a production of 13,820,000 bales, the largest amount coming from Texas (4,850,000).

In 1912 there were under tobacco 1,225,800 acres, which yielded 962,855,000 lbs. of tobacco. The chief tobacco growing States were Kentucky, 441,000 acres yielding 548,980,000 lbs., Virginia, 187,000 acres, yielding 112,300,000 lbs., Ohio, 86,200 acres, yielding 79,304,000 lbs., North Carolina, 179,000 acres, yielding 110,980,000 lbs., Wisconsin, 42,200 acres, yielding 54,438,000 lbs., Pennsylvania, 44,200 acres, yielding 64,090,000 lbs., Tennessee, 110,000 acres, yielding 72,600,000 lbs., Connecticut, 17,500 acres, yielding 29,750,000 lbs., Maryland, 26,000 acres, yielding 17,160,000 lbs., Indiana, 18,700 acres, yielding 14,960,000 lbs., South Carolina, 85,000 acres, yielding 24,500,000 lbs., New York, 4,000 acres, yielding 5,200,000 lbs., and Massachusetts, 5,800 acres, yielding 8,880,000 lbs.

The following table exhibits the number of farm animals on January 1 in 1900, 1911, 1912, and 1913 —

Live Stock	1900	1911	1912	1913
Horses	13,537,524	20,277,000	20,509,000	20,567,000
Mules	2,085,027	4,823,000	4,862,000	4,886,000
Cattle of all kinds	43,802,414	60,502,000	57,959,000	56,527,000
Sheep	41,883,065	58,683,000	52,382,000	51,482,000
Swine	87,079,856	65,620,000	65,410,000	61,178,000

The total value of farm animals in the United States on January 1, 1912, was 5,008,827,000 dollars. On April 15, 1910 (according to census returns), the farm animals were horses, 19,833,113, mules, 4,209,769, cattle, 61,503,866, sheep, 52,447,861, swine, 58,185,676, goats, 2,915,125.

In 1905 the factories used 12,183,375,885 pounds of milk, made 581,478,141 lbs. of butter, 817,144,872 lbs. of cheese, and 308,485,182 lbs. of condensed milk. The total value of the products manufactured was 188,182,789 dollars. In addition, butter and condensed milk to the value of 529,317 dollars were made by establishments engaged primarily in the manufacture of other products. Of the States, New York, Wisconsin, and Iowa have the largest dairy industries.

In 1901 the estimated wool clip was 302,502,328 pounds, and in 1911, 318,547,900 pounds.

The census reports for 1905 show that the value of canned vegetables (tomatoes, corn, peas, &c.) for the preceding year was 45,232,148 dollars, of canned fruits, 11,844,942 dollars, and of dried fruits 15,864,784 dollars. This industry is most extensive in California, but in other States, notably New York and Maryland, it flourishes.

The production of apples in the United States in 1911 amounted to 30,065,000 barrels, of peaches, 128,000,000 lbs., of oranges and lemons to 24,558,000 boxes; of hops to 238,000 bales. The vintage in California was estimated in 1906 at 36,458,000 gallons; in 1907 at 48,492,000 gallons, in 1908 at 24,863,000 gallons; in 1909 at 45,087,000 gallons, and 42,230,000 gallons in 1910. The prune crop of California was estimated at 170,000,000 pounds in 1911.

II FORESTRY

The original forests of the United States containing saw timber covered about 1,800,000 square miles, besides probably 150,000 square miles more of scrubby forest and brush land, chiefly in the West. According to present standards of utilization, this original forest contained about 5,200 billion board feet of saw timber. Cutting, clearing, and fire have reduced the forest area to about 860,000 square miles, or about one fourth of the total area of the country, and the stand to some 2,500 billion feet of merchantable timber.

There are five principal forest regions. The Northern Forest covers northern New England and New York, northern Michigan, Wisconsin, and Minnesota, and most of southern New York and Pennsylvania, with a southern extension along the Appalachian Mountains as far as northern Georgia. It is composed chiefly of softwoods, with a considerable admixture of hardwoods. The Southern Forest mainly softwoods, extends from Chesapeake Bay through the Atlantic and Gulf States into eastern Texas with an extension northward through western Arkansas and eastern Oklahoma into Missouri. The Central Forest mainly composed of hardwoods, originally covered southern New England and the Hudson and Mohawk valleys, the Piedmont Plateau, and the country from the Appalachians to the prairies. The two remaining forest regions are those of the Rocky Mountains and the Pacific Coast, both made up almost entirely of softwoods (i. e., conifers).

The Northern Forest is estimated to contain about 145,000 square miles and 800 billion feet of timber; the Southern Forest, 235,000 square miles and 500 billion feet; the Central Forest, 200,000 square miles and 800 billion feet; the Rocky Mountain Forest, 155,000 square miles and 800 billion feet; and the Pacific Coast Forest, 125,000 square miles and 1,100 billion feet.

The present rate of cutting is three times the annual growth of the forests, and the heavy demand for timber is steadily pushing the great centres of the lumber industry toward the south and west. Twenty billion cubic feet of wood are taken from the forests yearly, including waste in logging and manufacture. In a single year 90 million cords of firewood, 45 billion board feet of lumber, 150 million ties,  $1\frac{1}{2}$  billion staves, over 125 million sets of heading, nearly 800 million barrel hoops,  $3\frac{1}{2}$  million cords of native pulp wood, 165 million cubic feet of round mine timbers, and  $1\frac{1}{2}$  million cords of wood for distillation are used. In 1911, over 4 million cords of wood were used in the manufacture of paper, of which 940,000 cords were imported from Canada. A larger drain upon the forest resources is made by the demand for the railroad ties, of which 148,231,000, equivalent to nearly 5 billion board feet, were used in 1910.

Since 1905 the State of Washington has led in lumber production, in 1910 Louisiana, Mississippi, Oregon, Wisconsin, Texas, Arkansas, North Carolina, Michigan, and Virginia followed in the order named. Yellow pine now holds first place in the cut, with  $14\frac{1}{2}$  billion feet in 1910, Douglas fir of the North west second, with nearly 6 $\frac{1}{2}$  billion feet, oak third, with  $3\frac{1}{2}$  billion feet, and white pine fourth, with less than 4 billion feet. The present area of merchantable yellow pine forests in the Southern States is about 200,000 square miles, with a stand of about 500 billion feet.

The census of 1909 reports 40,671 lumber establishments with a capital of 1,176,675,000 dollars, using raw material valued at 508,118,000 dollars, and turning out a finished product worth 1,156,122,000 dollars. Four fifths of the lumber cut is from conifers.

Four-fifths of the standing timber of the country is privately owned. Forests publicly owned consist chiefly of holdings of the National Government. These include National forests, National parks, Indian reservations, military reservations, and the forests of the unreserved public domain. The National forests on July 1, 1912, had a total area of 187,408,378 acres, or about 860,000 square miles, with an estimated stand of 892 billion feet of timber. Indian reservations are estimated to have a stand of 84 billion feet of timber, the unreserved public domain 14 billion feet, and National parks 11 billion feet. Forest lands belonging to States are estimated to have a stand of 85 billion feet.

The practice of forestry in the United States is mainly on National forests where all timber is cut under methods planned with reference to the production of a new crop on the same land. National forest administration aims also at utilization of the forage crop and protection of the water supplies of the West. Grazing on the National forests is permitted under regulation to prevent injury to young forest growth, streamflow, and permanence of the forage crop. A moderate fee is charged for the grazing privilege.

In the fiscal year 1912 the National forests yielded the Government a revenue of 1,089,702.04 dollars from timber sales, 968,942.26 dollars from grazing fees, and 98,712.27 dollars from special uses of various kinds. The total cut of timber for the year was 554,725,000 feet, of which 128,238,000 feet were cut under free-use privileges. The timber cut under sales brought an average price of 2 dollars per thousand. The number of stock grazed was as follows:—Cattle, 1,403,025; horses, 95,843; hogs, 4,830; sheep, 7,467,800; and goats, 83,849. The total cost of administering, protecting, and improving the forests was 5,669,521 dollars, and the total expenditures for all work of the Forest Service was 5,919,989 dollars for fiscal year ending June 30, 1911. The total appropriation for the Forest Service in the fiscal year 1913 is 6,538,000 dollars, including an emergency fire fund of 200,000 dollars.

III MINING

The following are the statistics of the metallic products of the United States in 1910 and 1911 (long tons, 2,240 lbs., short tons, 2,000 lbs.) The values are for iron and nickel the value at Philadelphia, for copper, lead, and zinc, the values at New York, for quicksilver and antimony, the values at San Francisco, for platinum, the value at New York City; for aluminium, the value at Pittsburg:—

The report on gold and silver are the result of conference between the U S Geological Survey and the Director of the Mint

The precious metals are raised mainly in Colorado, California, and Alaska for gold, and Colorado, Montana, Utah, and Idaho for silver. The coming value of the gold produced from mines in the United States from 1792 to 1903 is estimated by the Director of the United States Mint at 2,543,752,000 dollars, and of the silver at 1,873,477,000 dollars, from 1904 to 1908 (5 years) the value was Gold 448,014,900 dollars, silver (commercial value, 1904-08) 171,284,676

Precious stones are found in considerable varieties in the United States, the total production was valued in 1908 at 415,063 dollars, in 1909 at 534,380 dollars, in 1910 at 295,797 dollars, and in 1911 at 343,692 dollars. There are sapphire deposits in Montana where the output in 1911 was valued at 216,313 dollars. The turquoise is found in Arizona and New Mexico, California, Colorado and Nevada. The tourmaline deposits are worked in Connecticut, Maine, and California. Garnets are found in North Carolina, California, and Utah. Chrysoprase is found in California and Arizona. Other stones found are beryl, agate, amethyst, ruby, topaz and quartz crystals in various forms.

IV MANUFACTURES

The following table shows the condition of manufacturing industries in the United States as reported at each census from 1880 to 1910. The censuses of 1905 and 1910, unlike the earlier censuses, did not include hand and neighbourhood industries, but were confined to establishments conducted under the factory system or producing goods for the general market. The statistics for each census cover the preceding calendar year —

Census	Number of Establishments	Capital	Persons employed	Value of products	Cost of materials
		Dollars		Dollars	Dollars

The censuses of 1890, 1900, and 1905 cover Alaska, the census of 1910 covers Alaska, Hawaii and Porto Rico.

The census of manufactures for 1904 and 1909 (not including Alaska, Hawaii and Porto Rico) were confined to establishments under the factory system, to the exclusion of neighbourhood industries and hand trades such as custom dress making, tailoring, carpentering, grist and saw milling. The census results were as follows.—

In 1909 there were 236 blast furnaces at work with a daily capacity of 101,297 tons; in 1904, 242 with a daily capacity of 78,130 tons. In 1909 the output of pig iron was 25,651,798 tons, value 387,830,443 dollars, in 1904, 16,623,626 tons, value 228,911,116 dollars. The iron and steel rolling mills in 1909 had a daily capacity, double turn, of 150,408 tons, in 1904, 105,591 tons. Bessemer steel plants in 1909 had 99 converters, in 1904, 81, total daily capacity of ingots or direct castings, double turn, in 1909, 45,983 tons, in 1904, 41,448 tons. Open hearth steel plants in 1909 had 687 acid and basic furnaces, in 1904, 481, daily capacity of ingots, in 1909, 61,601 tons, in 1904, 34,243 tons. The total value of products of the steel works and rolling mills in 1909 was 985,722,584 dollars, in 1904 was 673,965,026 dollars. The value of output comprised —

The output of tin plates in 1909 was of the value of 38,259,885 dollars, in 1904, 28,429,971 dollars. The output of terne plates in 1909 was of the value of 7,555,261 dollars, in 1904, 6,119,672 dollars.

The output of sawed lumber in 1909 amounted to the value of 684,479,859 dollars, in 1904, to 435,708,084 dollars. The output of the leather, tanned, and curried industry, in 1909, was valued at 327,874,187 dollars, in 1904, at 252,630,986 dollars. The boot and shoe products manufactured in 1909 were valued at 442,630,726 dollars, in 1904, at 320,107,458 dollars, leather gloves and mittens, products, 1909, 23,630,508 dollars, 1904, 17,740,885 dollars.

The value of the output of paper and wood pulp products in 1909 was 267,553,944 dollars, in 1904, 185,715,189 dollars. The value of the output of printing and publishing industries including bookbinding and blank books, engraving steel and copper plate, lithographing, book and job, music, and newspapers and periodicals, in 1909 were valued at 787,576,687 dollars, in 1904, 558,473,353 dollars.

The output of the chemical and allied industries for 1904 and 1909 comprised products to the values shown below —

Products	1909	1904
	Dollars	Dollars
Chemicals (acids, &c.)	137,803,942	92,683,878
Cotton seed products	107,528,204	68,310,624

Alcohol	27 639 846

Fermented liquors 62,176,694 barrels

V FISHERIES

In 1908 (latest census) there were in the United States 143,881 fishermen or 8,932 vessels and 1 83,549 boats, and the products were valued at 54,030,630 dollars. The capital invested was 42,021 000 dollars.

For the canning and preserving of fish there were in 1909, according to the census reports, 374 establishments with an aggregate capital of 29,618 010 dollars, employing 9,977 wage earners, using raw material valued at 19 964,429 dollars, and giving an output valued at 34 704,418 dollars.

Commerce

The subjoined table gives the total value, in dollars, of the imports and exports of domestic merchandise in years ended June 30 —

Year (ended June 30)	Imports of Merchandise	Exports of Merchandise	Year (ended June 30)	Imports of Merchandise	Exports of Merchandise
	Dollars	Dollars		Dollars	Dollars
1907	1,434,421,425	1 858,718,034	1910	1,546 947 480	1 710,033,995

In the United States the values are fixed not according to average prices but according to invoice or shipping papers, which the importers and exporters have to produce. For imports the invoices are signed by an American Consul for exports the shipping papers are signed by the exporter or Agents at the port of shipment. The quantities and values are determined by declarations.

The most favored nation treatment in commerce between Great Britain and the United States was agreed to for 4 years by the treaty of 1815, was extended for 10 years by the treaty of 1819, and indefinitely (subject to 12 months notice) by that of 1837.

Internal Communications.

According to Poor's Railway Manual, the extent of railways in operation in 1880 was 28 miles, it rose to 52,922 miles in 1870; to 166,793 miles in 1890, in 1900, 194,262, in 1907, 228,128, in 1908, 232,046, in 1909, 238,356, including railroads constructed prior to 1909, and reported for the first time, in 1910 242,107, in 1911, 246,573.

The mileage of railways in 1911, not including double track, sidings, or spurs, is divided among the several groups of States as follows — New England States, 8,533 miles, Middle Atlantic, 24,430 miles, Central Northern, 45,995 miles, South Atlantic, 28,377 miles, Gulf and Mississippi Valley, 23,121 miles; South Western, 52,586 miles, North Western, 49,008 miles, Pacific, 24,610 miles. The ordinary gauge is 4 ft. 8½ in.

The total capital invested in railways (stock, funded and unfunded debt) in 1911 was $3,990,194 dollars. For 1911 the gross earnings were $2,648,268,265 dollars, and the net earnings, 902,319,137 dollars.

In 1912 the track mileage of electric railways was 40,068 miles.

The telegraphs of the United States are largely in the hands of the Western Union Telegraph Company, which had, in 1910-11, 219,219 miles of line, 1,467,345 miles of wire, and 24,926 offices; the number of messages sent in 1911 was 77,780,782, not including messages sent over leased wires or under railroad contracts, the receipts, $7,188,989 dollars, expenses, $9,058,632 dollars and profits, 7 104,857 dollars.

The following table relates to the business of another important company, the figures of the table do not represent the operations of one company, but the aggregation of the figures of many companies which have traffic contracts with or go to make up the telegraph system which is generally known as the "American Telephone and Telegraph Company" ("Bell Telephone System") —

Money and Credit.

The monetary system is monometallic, and has been so since 1873, gold being the standard.

The Act of February 28, 1878, commonly known as the Bland Allsman Act, required the purchase by the Secretary of the Treasury of silver bullion at the market price of silver of not less than 2,000,000 dollars or more than 4,000,000 dollars worth per month, the same to be coined as fast as so purchased into silver dollars. 378,166,793 silver dollars were coined under the Bland Allsman Act. The Act of July 14, 1890, known as the Sherman Act, required the purchase of 4,500,000 ounces of fine silver monthly, which was paid for in Treasury notes issued as the silver was purchased. The total amount of silver purchased under this Act from August 13, 1890, to November 1, 1893, date of repeal of the purchasing clause, was 168,674,682 five ounces, costing 155,931,002 dollars, the coinage value of which was 218,084,438 in silver dollars. From the bullion purchased under the Act of July 14, 1890, there were coined to December 31, 1901, 149,710,168 silver dollars. Under the Act of March 3, 1891, for the coinage of trade dollars, 5,078,472 silver dollars were coined, making a total of 532,955,428 standard silver dollars coined from March 1, 1878, to December 31, 1901.

Money, Weights, and Measures

The dollar of 100 cents is of the par value of 48.25s., or 4.8665 dollars to the pound sterling.

The monetary unit, in accordance with the monetary law of March 14, 1900, is the gold dollar of 25.8 grains (or 1.6718 gramme) 900 fine. The Government undertakes to maintain parity between gold and silver coin, and a fund of 150,000,000 dollars in gold has been established for the repayment of United States notes and Treasury notes in gold at sight.

Gold coins in common use are 20, 10 and 5-dollar pieces called double eagles, and half eagles. The eagle weighs 258 grains or 16.71818 grammes 900 fine, and therefore contains 232.2 grains or 15.0464 grammes of fine gold.

The silver dollar weighs 412.5 grains or 26.780 grammes 900 fine, and therefore contains 371.25 grains or 24.057 grammes of fine silver. Subsidiary silver coins contain 347.22 grains of fine silver per dollar.

British weights and measures are usually employed, but the old Winchester gallon and bushel are used instead of the new or imperial standards. They are—

Wine Gallon	= 0.83333 gallon
Ale Gallon	= 1.01695 "
Bushel	= 0.9692 imperial bushel

Instead of the British cwt a Cental, of 100 pounds, is used. The short ton contains 2,000 lbs., the long ton 2,240 lbs.

Religion, Instruction and Charity—Protestant churches are in the ascendancy in the State. The order of strength of different religions bodies is: Baptist, Methodist, Roman Catholic, Presbyterian, Disciples or Christians.

The public elementary schools in 1910 had 8,756 teachers, and 424,411 enrolled pupils. The 142 public high schools had 450 teachers and 9,895 pupils in 1911. The six public normal schools in 1909 had 51 teachers and 1,890 pupils. For superior and professional education there are various institutions, the more important being (for men and both sexes) —

Began	Institutions
1681	University of Alabama (State)
1880	Spring Hill College (R. C.)
1841	Howard College, East Lake (Bapt.)
1859	Southern University Greensboro (M. E. S. C.)
1893	St. Bernard College (R. C.)

Other important schools are the Alabama Girls Industrial School the Alabama Polytechnic Institute the Tuskegee Institute (negro) under Booker T. Washington, besides various special and technical schools.

Within the State are 95 benevolent institutions (hospitals, homes, orphanages, &c., but not almshouses). County commissioners make rules for the support of the poor. Indigent and infirm veterans are pensioned, the following sums being authorised: to the first class, 100 dollars per annum, to the second, 80, to the third 60, to the fourth, 50. Relatives, within certain degrees, are liable for the support of their poor. On January 1, 1905, the almshouses in Alabama contained 771 pauper inmates, of whom 414 were white and 357 negro.

Finance, Defence—The revenue is derived mostly from taxes on property of all kinds, the assessment being made at cash value for State and county purposes by the county assessors on the sworn statements of the taxpayers. The board of county commissioners sits as a board of review and judges on objections to the assessment, the State being regarded as plaintiff and the taxpayer as defendant. The State tax commission equalises tax values throughout the State and it alone has power to assess the franchises and intangible values of public utilities. In the State Board of Assessment is vested the sole power to assess the properties of railroad and long distance telephone and telegraph companies.

The receipts and disbursements in the year ending September 30, 1912 were —

The bonded debt of the State in 1908 amounted to 9,657,000 dollars. The assessed value of real property in 1907 was 255,391,787 dollars, of personal property, 195,397,844 dollars; total assessed value, 450,689,633 dollars.

The militia (or State Troops) consists of cavalry, artillery, and infantry total strength (1909) 221 officers and 8,093 enlisted men.

Production and Industry—Alabama is largely an agricultural State, the farm area in 1910 was 20,733,812 acres, of which 9 698 581 acres was improved land, the value of all farm property was 370,138,429 dollars. The chief crops are maize, 54,000 000 bushels in 1911, wheat, 345,000 bushels, oats, 3,251,146 bushels, rice, 5,170 bushels. Other crops are potatoes, hay and vegetables. Tobacco, 360,000 pounds. Sugar is largely grown and manufactured. In 1910 the live stock comprised 171,000 horses, 258 000 mules, 289,000 milk cows, 528 000 other cattle, 178 000 sheep, and 1 176 000 swine. In 1910 the area under cotton was 3,730 482 acres the yield was 1,221,225 bales of cotton, valued at 883 880,000 dollars. In 1910 there were 3,398 manufacturing establishments with capital amounting to 173,180 000 dollars, employing 72,148 wage earners who earned 27,284,000 dollars, used raw material worth 85 443,000 dollars, and turned out products valued at 145,902,000 dollars. The iron and steel output was worth 21,236,000 dollars, cotton goods, 22,212,000 dollars, lumber and timber products, 23 058,000 dollars, other large industries being foundry work, railway car construction, the manufacture of fertilisers, of cotton seed oil and cake, and of turpentine and resin.

In 1911 the output of coal was 15,021,421 short tons, valued at 19,079,949 dollars. Of sandstone, marble, and limestone the output in 1911 was valued at 928,998 dollars. Clay products of the State were valued at 1,947,102 dollars. Alabama yielded in 1910 pig iron to the amount of 1,617,150 long tons (17,379,171 dollars). The total value in 1911 of the mineral output of the State (including pig iron but not iron ore) was 28,005,278 dollars.

The chief port of Alabama is Mobile, through which there is a large trade. The exports comprise raw cotton (over 12,062,000 dollars annually), timber, lumber &c. (6 800,000), cereals and flour (2,950 000), and lard (1,800,000), besides cattle, sheep and other animals, nuts, hops, fruit, flax, seed and oil, sugar, tobacco, &c. The port is the outlet not only for products of Alabama, but for those of neighbouring States. The imports at Mobile are mostly from Mexico and consist largely of bananas and sisal grass. The harbour channel is deepened to 22½ ft.

The larger rivers in the State are navigable (except at low water) for several hundred miles, the Alabama river for 400 miles. In 1910 the rail ways within the State had a length of 5,226 miles, exclusive of 302 miles of electric railway.

At Mobile in 1910 there were 8 banks whose deposits amounted to 6,006,000 dollars.

ARIZONA

Government.—Arizona was admitted into the Union as a Sovereign State on February 14, 1912. The process of changing from Territorial to State form of government began with an Act passed by the National Congress, in June, 1910, called the Enabling Act, which gave permission to the people of Arizona to frame a Constitution to form the basis of Statehood. This Constitution was to be submitted to Congress and the President of the United States for approval before becoming effective. The Constitutional Convention, which consisted of 52 elected delegates met in Phoenix October 10, 1910, and remained in session until December 9, 1910. The Constitution which was drafted contained a provision for the recall of the judiciary and because of this President Taft refused to approve, except upon condition that the voters of Arizona eliminated the feature from the document. This they did at the first State election, held December 12, 1911, rather than forfeit Statehood. But having become a State, with all the attending powers and privileges it is now proposed that the recall of the judiciary shall be restored to the Constitution, and the question was determined at the general election in November, 1912.

In the laws which the first State Legislature of Arizona enacted, the affairs of State government are placed under direct control of the people, who can at any time exercise the machinery of the Initiative, Referendum and the Recall. Among the amendments to the Constitution upon which the people voted in 1912 was one giving the State power to engage in industrial pursuits.

The State Senate consists of 19 members and the House of Representatives 35. The State is represented in the National Congress by one member of the lower house and two Senators.

Governor —George W. P. Hunt, 1911–14 (4,000 dollars)

Secretary —Sidney Osborn

The State capital is Phoenix (population in 1910 11,184). Tucson in 1910 had 13,193 inhabitants. The State is divided into 14 counties.

Area, Population and Instruction —Area of 113,020 square miles, of which 100 square miles is water. The Indian reservations had an area of 28,434 square miles in 1905.

The population in four census years was —

Years.	Population	Per Sq. Mile	Years.	Population	Per Sq. Mile.
1880	40,440	0.4	1900	122,931	1.1
1890	59,620	0.8	1910	204,354	1.8

In 1910 there were 24,201 Indians, 2,067 negroes, 1,587 Mongolians. The foreign born numbered 48,844, of whom 14,172 were from Mexico.

The order of strength of religious bodies is Roman Catholic, Latter day Saints, Presbyterian, Methodist, Congregationalists.

School attendance is compulsory for 12 weeks (6 consecutive) annually for children from 8 to 14 years of age. Instruction is free for children from 6 to 21 years of age. The enrolled pupils in 1911 numbered 59,611 and there were 876 teachers (140 males and 736 females). Two public normal schools at Tempe and Flagstaff had 579 students in 1911. The State University of Arizona, at Tucson, founded in 1891, had 42 professors and 195 students in 1911 (128 men and 71 women). There is a State Agricultural School also at Tucson.

Charity.—The State has reform and industrial schools and 11 penal and benevolent institutions (exclusive of almshouses), which had on June 30, 1910, 875 inmates. The general supervision of charitable and penal institutions is vested in a board of control consisting of the governor, the auditor, and one citizen of the State. In each county the care of the sick poor is entrusted to a contractor, who must give a bond of 5,000 dollars for the faithful performance of his contract, or the Board of Supervisors of the county may employ a physician at an agreed salary to attend the sick and furnish medicines, and a superintendent to take charge of the institution and such other attendants as may be required. The almshouses in the State on January 1, 1905, had 191 pauper inmates (180 white and 11 coloured).

Finance, Defence.—Revenues are derived mainly from the general property tax levied on all property not specially exempted. The first State Legislature created a Tax Commission to determine the value of all property. The revenues from all sources, and expenditure for all purposes, in the year ending June 30, 1910, were —

Taxes and other sources	Dollars 986,872
Special Services	134,568
Total	1,121,440
Disbursements	978,193
Balance, June 30, 1910	146,277

The bonded debt, June 30, 1910, amounted to 3,055,275 dollars. The assessed value of taxable real and personal property amounted to 140,000,000 dollars for 1912.

The militia, or national guard, with headquarters at Phoenix, consists of cavalry and infantry, total strength (1911), 50 officers and 703 enlisted men.

Production and Industry—Arizona, with its dry climate, is not well suited for agriculture but along the watercourses and where irrigation is used the soil is productive. The wide pasture-lands are favourable for the rearing of cattle and sheep. Several large reservoirs for the storage of water have been and are being constructed by the United States Government, notably the Roosevelt dam, which supplies water to the rich Salt River Valley District, of which Phoenix is the principal city. The Federal Government is now engaged on the Yuma project, which will make use of the water of the lower Colorado River and add hundreds of thousands of acres to the agricultural area.

Alfalfa is the most important crop, next to it, wheat and barley. In the south are grown figs, grapes, almonds, &c.; in the north potatoes, apples and other fruits. On January 1, 1910, were 115,990 horses; 6,000 mules, 25,000 milk cows, and 636,900 other cattle; 1,020,000 sheep, and 25,000 swine. The wool clip in 1911 amounted to 5,850,560 pounds of wool, valued at 961,700 dollars. The national forests in the State have an area of 13,462,800 acres. There is considerable ostrich-farming (begun in 1893). In 1910 Arizona had over 6,000 birds, being about 80% of total in the United States.

The mining industries of the State are important. The output of copper in 1911 was 348,644,523 pounds; lead, 858 short tons of merchant lead; gold, 170,343 fine ounces; silver, 2,528,900 fine ounces. The quartz in 1911 yielded granite, sandstone and limestone to the total value of 55,714 dollars. Tungsten, asbestos, quicksilver, zinc are (less or more) worked in the Territory. Total value of mineral output in 1911, 44,104,781 dollars.

The capital invested in manufacturing industries in the State in 1910 amounted to 82,878,000 dollars, the raw material used cost 38,803,600 dollars, and the output was valued at 50,257,000 dollars. By far the most important of the industries is copper smelting and refining, for which there were 8 establishments with a capital of 21,487,000 dollars, employing an average number of 3,129 wage-earners, using material costing 12,486,782 dollars, and giving an output valued at 29,242,000 dollars. Other industries are car construction and repair by railway companies showing an output worth 2,394 000 dollars. Lumber and timber working, and flour and grain milling with an output of 1,082,000 dollars.

The lower course of the Colorado river is the only navigable waterway of the State. In 1910 there were 2,041 miles of steam railway, the principal lines being the Southern Pacific, the Santa Fé Pacific, and the Santa Fé Prescott and Phoenix. There are 37 miles of electric railway.

ARKANSAS

Government.—The General Assembly consists of a Senate of 36 members elected for four years, partially renewed every two years, and a House of Representatives of 100 members elected for two years. The Sessions are biennial and limited to 60 days unless extended by a two thirds vote of each House. Senators and Representatives must be citizens, the former 25 years of age and the latter 21, and both must have resided in the State two years, and in the county or district one year next before election. The State is represented in Congress by two Senators and seven Representatives.

Governor —

(4,000 dollars)

Secretary of State.—Earl W. Hodges.

The State is divided into 75 counties. The State Capital is Little Rock.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area 53,850 square miles (805 square miles being water).

Years	Population
	White <sup>1</sup>	Negro	Total	Per Sq. Mile

	Native	Foreign
Male	480,959	8,911	185,342	58	42
Female	449,435	5,275	181,514	4	24
Total	930,394	14,186	366,856	62	66

Of the foreign born 5,971 were German.

The population in 1910 was 1,574,449 (810,025 males and 764,424 females)

Little Rock (capital) had a population at 45,941 in 1910 Fort Smith, 23,505, Pine Bluff 13,038, Hot Springs 11,157

The most numerous religious bodies in the State are Baptist, Methodist, Roman Catholic, Disciples of Christ, and Presbyterian, in the order named.

The State has a full public school system under which separate schools are provided for white and black children. No child under 14 can be employed in a manufacturing establishment unless he attends school 12 weeks each year and can read and write English.

In 1910 the public elementary schools had 9,522 teachers and 395,978 enrolled pupils, 107 public high schools had 347 teachers and 7,700 pupils in 1910, 2 public normal schools had 18 teachers and 319 students. The University of Arkansas, founded in 1872, had in 1910 126 professors and 1,410 students. There are a large Baptist college with 80 professors and 320 students, a Presbyterian college with 7 professors and 138 students, and a Methodist Episcopal college with 8 professors and 677 students.

Charity—Within the State are 27 benevolent institutions (hospitals, homes, &c. but not almshouses) to which, in 1904, 3,766 inmates were admitted. Each county relieves its own poor. There are county courts of the poor which, on information given by constables and other officials, commit paupers to the poor house, where they remain till discharged by an order of the court. Poor houses are let annually to the lowest responsible bidder under bond for faithful care of the inmates. On January 1, 1905, the poor-houses contained 645 paupers (478 white, and 167 coloured)

Finance, Defence—The State debt on October 1, 1907, amounted to 1,260,500 dollars, consisting of 3 per cent interest bearing bonds. The assessed value of real and personal property was 302,181,563 dollars.

The militia, or State Guard, with headquarters at Little Rock, consists of artillery and infantry, total strength, 129 officers and 1,327 enlisted men.

Production and Industry—Arkansas is an agricultural State. In 1910 the total farm area was 14,691,356 acres, of which 7,698,343 was improved land. In the north maize (49,712,000 bushels in 1911), wheat (1,008,090 bushels), oats, potatoes, hay and forage crops are grown, in the south, cotton and tobacco. For 1910 the cotton area was 3,471,000 acres, and the yield 776,789 bales. The cultivation of tobacco is decreasing in the State. In the north-west, fruits, especially apples and peaches, are grown. The cultivation of roses (for perfumes) is pursued locally. Live stock in 1910 comprised 390,000 horses, 215,000 mules, 361,000 milk cows, 600,000 other cattle, 223,000 sheep, and 978,000 swine. The wool clip in 1910 yielded 400,000 pounds of wool, valued at 98,000 dollars. The national forests in Arkansas in 1911 had an area of 2,325,390 acres.

The State has a large coal area, the output from which in 1911 was 2 106 789 short tons of coal, valued at $,895,849 dollars. Manganese ores and lead are found. Arkansas produces whetstones (from nevadulite). It also produces bauxite (for aluminum), the phosphate rock deposits are little worked. The quarries yield limestone, sandstone, granite, and slate, besides asphalt, mineral waters, and natural gas. Value of total mineral output in 1911, 5,829,566 dollars.

Of the industries the cutting and working of timber is the most important, (1,697 establishments) the State having a forest area of 25,600,000 acres. Arkansas, according to the census of manufactures of 1910, has 2,925 manufacturing establishments employing 8,293 salaried officials and 44,982 wage earners. Their united capital amounted to 70,174,000 dollars, the cost of materials used in a year to 34 935 000 dollars, and the value of output in a year to 74,916,000 dollars. Statistics of 8 leading industries are —

Industries	Capital	Wage earners	Cost of materials	Value of output
	Dollars	Number	Dollars	Dollars
Lumber and timber	42 340 000	83 082	14 300 000	40 640 000

CALIFORNIA

Constitution and Government.—California, though unexplored and practically unknown to Europeans, was from its discovery down to 1846 politically associated with Mexico. On July 5, 1846, the American flag was hoisted at Monterey, and a proclamation was issued declaring California to be a portion of the United States, and on February 2, 1849, by the treaty of Guadalupe, the territory was formally ceded by Mexico to the United States, and was admitted to the Union September 9, 1850.

The State Legislature is composed of the Senate of forty members, elected for terms of four years—half the number being elected each two years—and the Assembly, eighty members, elected for two years. Regular sessions are held once in two years.

The qualifications for eligibility to the Senate or Assembly are citizenship of the State for three years and residence in the district for one year.

California is represented in Congress by 2 Senators and 8 Representatives.

Governor — Hiram W. Johnson, 1911–15 (10,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—F. C. Jordan.

The most important State Boards and Commissions are The Board of Education, the Board of Regents of the University, appointed by the Governor for terms of sixteen years, the State Board of Prison Directors, appointed by the Governor for terms of ten years, and having entire control of the penitentiaries, the State Board of Equalization, elected at general elections, and dealing with the assessment of property for revenue purposes; the Railroad Commission, elected and vested with authority to regulate railroad charges; the Bank Commission, the State Board of Health, the Insurance Commission, the State Engineering Department (formed in 1907) the State Board of Charities and Corrections, Board of Agriculture, the Commission of Horticulture, the State Department of Forestry, the Commission in Lunacy. The last-named, which is an ex-officio commission made up of State officers, controls the hospitals for the insane. There are many boards and commissions, &c. (for schools, horticulture, architecture, mining, fisheries, &c.), unpaid, appointed by the Governor.

California is divided into fifty-eight counties, one of which—San Francisco—has a combined county and city government. In each county government the legislative authority is vested in a board of five members elected from districts. The seat of the State Government is at Sacramento.

Area and Population.—Area 158,360 square miles (2,188 square miles being water).

The population at the date of each of the Federal censuses was as follows:

Years	White. <sup>1</sup>	Coloured.	Total	Per Sq. Mile
1870	555,976	4,272	560,247	8.6
1890	1,196,806	11,822	1,208,130	7.8
1900	1,674,008	11,045	1,685,053	9.5
1910	2,855,904	21,645	2,877,549	18.3

In 1900 the population by sex and race was —

	White.	Negro	Asiatic.	Indian	Total.
Male	755,147	5,766	51,895	7,723	820,531
Female	647,580	5,279	4,009	7,654	664,522
Total	1,402,727	11,045	55,904	15,377	1,485,053

There are about 25 Indian reservations in the State, their total area being about 641 square miles.

Three-fourths of the population of California are of American birth, but considerably more than half the total population is of foreign parentage. Of the 837,240 persons of foreign birth in 1900, 72,449 were German, 44,476 Irish, 35,746 English, 2,467 Scotch, 37,498 Canadian, 12,366 French, 22,777 Italian, and 14,849 Swedish, with a sprinkling of Portuguese, Swiss, Russians, and Armenians.

In 1910 the population of the State was 2,877,549, and of the larger cities. San Francisco, 412,312; Los Angeles, 419,193; Oakland, 169,174; Sacramento, 44,606; San Jose, 33,946; Alameda, 32,953. In 1906 the death-rate in cities was 22.3 and in rural districts 18.7 per 1,000 of the population.

By 1899 the number of Chinese had reached 54,983, by 1870 49,310, and by 1866, 75,218. A plebiscite was taken and the people of California voted in favour of the restriction of Chinese immigration. In 1882 Congress passed the restriction law which, by successive renewals, has been kept in force till the present time. The Chinese population of California by 1899 had declined to 71,060, and by 1910 to 86,187. In 1900 the Japanese numbered 10,151, and within the last 5 years they have become much more numerous (41,324 in 1910). They have largely taken the place formerly held by the Chinese as agricultural labourers and domestic servants, and quite recently there has commenced a new agitation in favour of the exclusion of all Asiatic immigration.

Religion and Instruction—In the matter of religious association all churches are represented in California, the Roman Catholic being much stronger than any other single church, next are Methodists, Presbyterians, Baptists, and Congregationalists.

Education is compulsory for children 5–17 years of age for at least five months in the year. In the State elementary schools there were, in 1910, 868,591 enrolled pupils with 11,369 teachers. The 184 public high schools had 1,759 teachers and 80,650 pupils, five State normal schools had 104 teachers and 2,022 students in 1910. The State also maintains three polytechnic and other special schools.

There are in California two great universities—the State University, or University of California at Berkeley and Leland Stanford Junior University. The former was established in 1868, and has grown steadily until it has become one of the great universities of the United States, or of the world. It comprises many colleges and the Lick Astronomical Department. In 1911 the University had at Berkeley 895 professors and teachers with 5,724 students of whom 1,361 were women. Leland Stanford Junior University at Palo Alto was chartered in 1885, and opened its doors to students in 1891. An endowment, now amounting to 20,000,000 dollars in interest bearing funds, besides large landed estates, was given by Mr and Mrs Leland Stanford. In 1911 it had 149 professors and 1,646 students. The University of Southern California at Los Angeles (Meth. Episcopal) had 206 instructors and 1,483 students. There are several other prosperous colleges in the State.

Charity—In the State there are 153 benevolent institutions (exclusive of almshouses). The board of supervisors of each county must provide for the dependent sick and poor by building or hiring and maintaining hospitals and almshouses, and appointing superintendents and other officers, or may provide otherwise for this purpose at their discretion. A State Trade and Training School is provided for orphans, abandoned children, and children placed by court under the guardianship of the Board of Trustees. The care of the poor may be let out to the lowest bidder. Indigent sick and poor persons who have resided 8 months in a county, or city and county, are relieved at the expense of the county, others at the expense of the county where they have lawful residence. Kindred (within certain degrees) must support pauper relatives. It is a misdemeanour to bring poor or incompetent persons into a county or city where they are not lawfully settled. The State board of charities may investigate and report on hospitals and almshouses. On January 1, 1905, the almshouses of the State had 4,393 pauper inmates (4,155 white and 138 coloured).

Finance, Defense.—For two years ending June 30, 1912, the receipts and disbursements of the General Fund into which all moneys pass, not specifically appropriated to other funds, and from which the ordinary expenses of State Government are met (exclusive of those chargeable against the School Fund) were —

	1910-11 Dollars	1911-12 Dollars
Cash in hand July 1	7 201,219	7,453,602
Total Receipts	18,843,854	27,395,144

The assessed value of taxable property in 1907 was 1 878 661,035 dollars. The net bonded debt of the State amounted to 2,227 590 dollars in 1912.

The National Guard of California consists of 3 regiments of infantry, 8 troop of cavalry, a coast artillery corps, a medical department, 2 companies of signalmen, and 8 divisions of Naval Militia. The number enrolled in the National Guard in 1909 was 2,348 enlisted men and 192 officers, while the Naval Militia had 552 men and 49 officers.

The Mare Island Navy Yard, the most important of the Federal naval establishments on the Pacific coast, is situated in California about 25 miles north of San Francisco, and there are United States Army posts at San Francisco, Benicia, Monterey, and San Diego.

Agriculture and Forestry.—While the crops common to most portions of the United States—such as wheat, barley and corn—are produced with ease, there is also a range of special products. It is the only State in which the best European varieties of grapes are successfully cultivated, and this gives great importance to the wine product. Extending seven hundred miles from north to south, and being intersected by several ranges of mountains, California has almost every variety of climate, from the very wet to the very dry, and from the temperate to the semi tropical. There appears to be nothing which is cultivated elsewhere which will not flourish in some part of California. At the date of the last Federal census (1910) there were 88,197 farms, comprising 27,931,444 acres, of which 11,389,894 acres were improved. The value of farms was 1,614,694,584 dollars, and the value of the annual product 131,690,606 dollars. Irrigation is extensively practised, being necessary in the more arid districts and beneficial in a larger area.

The wheat industry has declined in relative importance, while horticulture has made rapid strides. The cereal crops in 1912 were rouse, 1,924 000 bushels, wheat, 6,295,000 bushels, oats, 7,600,000 bushels, barley, 41,740,000 bushels. Apples, pears, peaches, figs, apricots, plums, grapes, oranges, lemons, and other fruits are grown in vast quantities. The total products in 1911 in tons amounted to 187,750, including 14,000 tons of peaches, 95,000 tons of pears, 64,000 tons of raisins, and 11,000 tons of apricots. The dry wine production in the year was about 25 800,000 gallons, sweet wine, about 16,000,000 gallons. Olives, honey, hops, walnuts, and almonds are also largely produced.

The best sugar product is attaining importance, the output in 1912 being 10 42 short tons. Dairy products are also increasing rapidly. In January, 1910, the farm animals were 420 000 horses, 83 000 mules, 452,000 milk cows, 1,120,000 other cattle, 2,374,000 sheep, and 540 000 swine. The wool clip (1909) produced 13,800,000 pounds of wool valued at 2,894,000 dollars. Ostrich farming is carried on at South Pasadena.

There are 20,000,000 acres of commercial timber, or forest which may be cut for lumber. Of this area 1,500,000 acres are coast redwoods (Sequoia sempervirens), a timber tree peculiar to California, the remainder is chiefly yellow pine, sugar pine, and red fir. In addition to the commercial timber there are several million acres of woodland, not valuable for the lumberman, but containing a more or less dense stand of inferior oaks and pines useful for fuel and domestic purposes and for protecting the watersheds.

About twenty years ago the Federal Government inaugurated the policy of withdrawing from sale large wooded areas especially in the mountains where the rivers have their sources, and these forest reserves have now reached the area of 25,735 4.5 acres. Systematic forestal management is gradually being introduced by the federal forest service. Ten per cent. of the gross revenue of the National Forests is paid over to the State for the benefit of the counties in which they are situated.

Mining, Manufactures, etc.—Since the discovery of gold in 1848, California has produced 1,500,000,000 dollars worth of gold, and the output, which had fallen off very greatly, shows a tendency again to increase. In 1911 the gold output was 964,041 fine ounces valued at 19,928,500 dollars. In the same year the silver output amounted to 1,270,900 fine ounces, valued at 656 300 dollars. Other mining products were copper, 85 335,651 pounds (4,479,456 dollars), and 615 short tons of lead (55,350 dollars). The output of quicksilver in 1910 was 18,860 flasks (of 75 pounds net), valued at 867,749 dollars. The coal output of the State was 10 747 short tons, valued at 16,097 dollars. California produces more petroleum than any other State of the Union, in 1911 the output reached 81,194 891 barrels valued at 38 719 080 dollars. Other mineral products were granite and limestone, &c., valued at 3 291,585 dollars. Portland cement is manufactured, the clay products of California (1911) were valued at 4 915 366 dollars. From California comes nearly all the borax produced in the United States. The output in 1911 was 53,830 short tons, valued at 1,569,151 dollars. Other mineral products are iron pyrites, 48,415 long tons (182 787 dollars), salt, 1,086,163 barrels (555,859 dollars), mineral waters sold, 2,810,237 gallons (578,439 dollars), magnesite, 9,375 short tons, value about 75 000 dollars. Bismuth, asbestos, manganese, lithium, tungsten, chromium, infusorial earth, ochre, asphalt, and a great variety of precious stones are found in the State. The value of all the minerals produced in 1911 was 90,517,566 dollars.

In California in 1910 there were 7,659 manufacturing establishments with an aggregate capital of 587,134,000 dollars, employing 18,203 salaried officials and 115,296 wage earners, using materials costing 325,288,000 dollars, and giving an output worth 529,767,000 dollars. Statistics of the more important industries are given in the following table

Industries	Capital	Wage-earners	Raw material	Output
	Dollars	Number	Dollars	Dollars
Cement	24,014,000	2,407	2,162,000	0,564,300
Canning and preserving	18,416,000	7,707	24,093,000	22,315,000
Copper and tin products	7,108,000	1,888	3,555,000	6,894,000
Flour milling	18,434,000	948	21,192,000	95,182,000
Lumber and timber	65,785,000	22,635	18,599,000	4,300,000
Petroleum refinery	12,881,000	980	12,898,000	17,876,000

The lack of an abundant supply of coal for fuel has been a drawback to manufacturing progress, but this is being overcome through the abundance and cheapness of petroleum, which has taken the place of coal in practically all industrial establishments. At the same time there has been a great development of long-distance electric power transmission. California has great numbers of torrential mountain streams, which are utilised to generate electricity, which is transmitted a hundred or a hundred and fifty miles to the coast cities.

The coast and river fisheries are important, giving employment to 5,000 persons. A year's catch is thirty to forty million pounds, worth about 4,000,000 dollars. Salmon is the most valuable variety of fish taken, but as many as one hundred and thirty different varieties of fish are found in the markets of San Francisco.

Commerce and Transportation—The chief commercial port of California is San Francisco, through which in 1910-11 the imports amounted to the value of 11,682,359½, and the exports to 9,217,806½. Among the domestic exports are dairy products and eggs, hops, and lumber. In 1910-11 494 steam vessels of an aggregate tonnage amounting to 1,430,586 tons entered the port and 502 vessels of 1,392,731 tons cleared. The trade with China, Japan, and the Australasian Islands is conducted by several lines of steamers, British, German, and Japanese, and there is keen competition for the Pacific trade.

Railways have been built in California to the extent of 7,771 miles (1910) for steam roads and about 2,580 miles for electric railways. San Francisco is now the terminus of four transcontinental railways.

Government.—The General Assembly consists of a Senate of 33 members elected for four years, one-half retiring every two years, and of a House of Representatives of 68 members elected for two years. Sessions are biennial. Eligible to either House are all citizens of the United States male and female 25 years of age and 12 months resident in the district for which they seek election. Qualified as electors are all persons male and female (except criminals and insane) 21 years of age who are citizens of the United States, and had at the last preceding election been 12 months resident in the State.

Governor —E. M. Ammons, 1913-15 ($5,000 dollars).

Secretary of State —James B. Pearce

The State sends to the Federal Congress two Senators and 4 Representatives.

The State is divided into 62 counties. The State Capital is Denver.

Area and Population —Area 103,948 square miles

In 1910 the foreign born population numbered 128,971. In 1900 it was 91,155, of whom 13,575 were English, 4,089 Scottish, 10,132 Irish, 14,606 German, 10,765 Swedish, 9,797 Canadian. Denver, the capital, had a population in 1910 of 213,381. Pueblo, 44,395, Colorado Springs, 29,978, Leadville 7,508, Cripple Creek 6,206.

Religion and Instruction.—Roman Catholics outnumber other denominations, Methodists and Presbyterians ranking next, then Baptists and Congregationalists.

The public schools are under the general supervision of the Superintendent of Public Instruction. In 1910 the public elementary schools had 5,200 teachers with 149,017 enrolled pupils. The 107 public high schools had 700 teachers and 14,425 pupils in 1910. Public school teachers are trained at the State Teachers' College, which in 1910 had 88 teachers and 831 pupils. Another State normal school has been established at Gunnison. For superior education there are several colleges. Colorado College, founded in 1874 at Colorado Springs, has 57 professors and 780 students; the University of Colorado, founded in 1877 at Boulder, has 130 professors and 1,221 students. The University of Denver, founded by Territorial Charter in 1884, has 160 professors and teachers and 1,324 students; the Chamberlin Observatory in University Park stands at an altitude of 5,280 feet above sea level. State institutions are an Agricultural College with 65 instructors and 537 students, and a School of Mines with 36 teachers and 381 students.

Charity.—The State has a Penitentiary (744 inmates in 1910), a Reformatory (150 inmates in 1910), and two Industrial Schools one for boys (865 inmates in 1910), the other for girls (181 inmates in 1910). Charitable institutions are a school for the deaf and blind, an asylum for the insane, a neglected children's home, and a home for discharged soldiers and sailors. Including private and ecclesiastical institutions there are, in the State, 59 benevolent establishments (exclusive of almshouses). The chairman of the board of county commissioners is superintendent of the poor of the county. Almshouses are under the control of the county board and subject to inspection by State board of charities and county board of visitors. No relief is given till the name, age, sex, place of birth, time of immigration into the United States and into Colorado are recorded by the county clerk. On January 1, 1905, the almshouses had 462 pauper inmates (452 white and 10 coloured).

Finance, Defence — The State Treasurer's biennial report for 1909 and 1910 shows the following general results —

	Dollars
On hand December 1, 1908	2,820,268 19
Receipts in 1909-10	8,001,713 98
Total Receipts	9,321,983 17
Disbursements in 1909-10	6,012,662 63
Balance Dec 1, 1910	3,809,320 54

The State debt in 1910 was. Gross floating and bonded debt, 4,257,616 55 dollars, less assets due to the State, 1,360,428 89 dollars, net debt, 2,897,192 66 dollars. The assessment valuation for 1911 amounted to 415,815,394 dollars.

The militia, called the National Guard, with its headquarters at Denver, consists of two regiments of Infantry, one squadron of Cavalry, a battery of light Artillery, a Signal Corps, a Hospital Corps and three detachments. Total strength, in 1909, 71 officers and 774 enlisted men.

Production and Industry — By irrigation large portions of the State have been brought under cultivation. Projects for irrigation are being carried out by the Federal Government involving an expenditure of 72,872,000 dollars for the reclamation of 2,528,747 acres in Colorado. The chief crops are wheat (10,968,000 bushels in 1912), oats (12,412,000 bushels), maize (2,964,000 bushels), barley, potatoes and great quantities of hay. Sugar from beet (1912), 11,07 short tons. Fruit and vegetables are widely cultivated. Within the State stock raising is older than husbandry. In 1911 the number of farm animals was 306,000 horses, 16,300 mules, 298,000 milk cows, 1,091,000 other cattle, 1,610,000 sheep, 419,000 swine. The national forests in the state have an area (June, 1911) of 14,761,900 acres.

Colorado has great mining and smelting industries, coal and the ores of the precious metals being extensively worked. The output of gold in 1911 was 325,889 fine ounces, valued at 19,138,500 dollars, and of silver 7,331,200 fine ounces, valued at 3,958,800 dollars. The output of petroleum in 1911 amounted to 226,926 barrels (of 42 gallons), valued at 228,104 dollars. Iron ore was extracted to the amount of 378,407 gross tons. The output of copper was 9,791,861 pounds, valued at 1,223,983 dollars, the output of lead was 30,621 tons (2,755,890 dollars), and of zinc (spelter), 42,823 tons (4,514,522 dollars). The output of granite, sandstone, and limestone was valued at 1,514,627 dollars. Portland cement, mica, tungsten, blamuth, graphite, rose quartz, and fluor spar are produced.

The output of coal in 1911 was 10,157,888 tons. The total value of the mineral products in 1908, was 83,288,010 dollars, in 1911, 65,222,574 dollars, in 1911, 51,953,289 dollars.

The manufacturing industries of Colorado, according to the census of 1910, employ a capital of 162,668,000 dollars, 2,034 establishments with 1,722 owners and firm members, 4,326 clerks, &c., and 28,067 wage earners. They gave an output valued at 130,044,000 dollars in 1910. The more important of the manufactures are given thus —

Industries	Capital	Wage- earners	Material used	Output
	Dollars	Number	Dollars	Dollars
Flour and grist	4,835,000	263	6,672,000	7,668,000
Foundry and machine work	7,066,000	1,813	2,804,000	5,907,000
Car making and repairing	4,708,000	3,990	3,604,000	6,559,000
Slaughtering and meat packing	8,638,000	1,534	8,295,000	9,657,000
Brewing	7,827,000	424	900,000	3,811,000
Butter and cheese	1,221,000	270	1,924,000	2,840,000

There are large works for the smelting and refining of metals (iron, lead, copper, zinc), the chief base metals refined are lead and zinc but three fourths of the value of the smelting products is for gold and silver.

Denver is the centre of distribution for the live stock traffic of the Rocky Mountain States.

On Jan. 1, 1911 there were in the State 7,226 miles of railway 338 miles were built in 1911 at a cost of 11,085,000 dollars.

There is a British Vice-consul at Denver.

CONNECTICUT

Government.—The General Assembly consists of a Senate and a House of Representatives. All male citizens (with necessary exceptions) 21 years of age, resident in the State for a year and in the town for six months preceding the election, have the right of suffrage provided that they can read the Constitution in English. The Senate at present consists of 36 members, the House of Representatives of 258 members. Members of each House are elected for the term of two years, and each receives 300 dollars for that term. Legislative sessions are biennial.

Governor —Simon E. Baldwin, 1918–19 (4,000 dollars)

Secretary —Albert L. Phillips

The State is represented in the Federal Congress by two Senators and five Representatives. For local administration the State is divided into eight counties, which are sub-divided into towns within which are cities and boroughs. The State Capital is Hartford.

Area, Population, and Instruction.—Area 7,965 square miles

1910	1,099,682	15,174	1,114,756	231.8

The population by sex and colour in 1910 was —

	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male	555,821	7,229	516	76	563,642
Female	543,076	7,945	17	76	551,114
Total	1,098,897	15,174	533	152	1,114,756

In 1910 the foreign born population numbered 328,759 of whom 22,422 were English, 6,750 Scottish, 58,457 Irish, 81,126 German, 54,120 from Russia, 18,208 Swedish, 54,959 Italian.

The chief towns are New Haven (pop in 1910), 138,605, Hartford (capital), 98,915, Bridgeport, 102,054, Waterbury, 78,141, New Britain, 43,816 inhabitants, Meriden, 27,365, New London, 19,659, Norwich, 20,267, Stamford, 25,138, Danbury, 20,234, Ansonia, 15,162, Manchester, 18,641, Naugatuck, 12,729, Torrington, 10,840.

Of the religious bodies the most important in order of strength are the Roman Catholic, Congregationalist, Protestant Episcopal, Methodist, and Baptist.

Elementary instruction is free for all children between the ages of 4 and 16 years, and compulsory for all children between the ages of 7 and 16 years. In 1911 the public elementary schools had 5,468 teachers with 199,055 enrolled pupils. There were also 71 public high schools with 628 teachers and 14,580 pupils. The four normal schools had 168 teachers and 864 pupils. Instruction in agriculture and the mechanic arts is provided at the Connecticut Agricultural College located at Storrs, whose work is supplemented by the Storrs Agricultural Experiment Station, and the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station located at New Haven. Yale University, New Haven, founded in 1791 had, in 1911, in all departments, 524 professors and teachers and 2,229 students. Wesleyan University, Middletown, founded in 1831, had, in 1911, 39 professors and teachers, and 394 students, including 26 women. Trinity College, Hartford, founded in 1828, had 29 professors and teachers, and 331 students.

Charity.—State institutions include the State Prison, State Reformatory for male offenders from 16 to 25 years of age, Colony for Epileptics, Fitch's Home for Soldiers and Soldiers' Hospital, two Hospitals for the Insane, a School for Boys, an Industrial School for Girls mainly supported by the State for the education and maintenance of its wards and 4 normal schools. Including private and ecclesiastical institutions, there are in the State 113 benevolent establishments (exclusive of almshouses) into which in 1910, 24,000 paupers were admitted. The selection of such towns, as overseers of the poor, provide for the subsistence of all paupers belonging to the town whether they reside there or not, and the expenses must be borne by the towns in which paupers have a settlement (gained in general by 4 years' residence without poor relief), except that in case of State Paupers (those not having a town settlement) the town is reimbursed by the State for such case. The cost of State Paupers for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1911 was 68,846 dollars. Paupers are supported (not by contract) in almshouses, though out door relief may be given. A town may have its own almshouse, or several towns may have one in common. Almshouses are subject to inspection by the State board of charities. In 1910, the almshouses contained 4,800 paupers.

Finance, Defence—The total receipts and expenditure for the year ending September 30, 1911, were —

	Dollars
Cash balance, Oct 1, 1910	1,164,847
Receipts, 1910-11	8,229,658-98
Total	9,394,500 98
Disbursements, 1910-11	9,017,924 71
Balance Oct 1, 1911	376,576 27

The total bonded debt of the State is 3,064,100 dollars, the assessed value of property, 1,041 334 019 dollars.

The National Guard consists of infantry, cavalry, and light artillery, with a signal corps, total, 194 officers and 2,534 enlisted men. The Naval Militia contains 20 officers and 214 enlisted men.

Production and Industry—In 1910 the capital invested in agriculture amounted to 159,599,771 dollars. In 1912, besides other agricultural products, tobacco was produced to the amount of 29 750,000 pounds, the area under the crop having been 17,500 acres.

The State has some mineral resources. Iron ore is found. In 1911 granite, trap rock and limestone were produced to the value of 528,904 dollars. Mineral waters 182,744 dollars, clay products (bricks, tiles, pottery), crystalline quartz and infusorial earth are worked in the State. The whole mineral output for 1911 was valued at 3 161 583 dollars.

According to the census of manufactures of 1910 there were in Connecticut 4,261 manufacturing establishments with an aggregate capital amounting to 517,647,000 dollars, employing 19,811 salaried officials and on the average 210,793 wage earners. The cost of the raw material used annually was 257 269,000 dollars and the value of the output was 490,272 000 dollars.

In 1911 there were 1,001.03 miles of railway track in Connecticut, besides 888 671 miles of electric street railway track.

Banking—The total amount of deposits in 87 Savings Banks on October 1, 1911, was 262,157,930 dollars, showing an increase during 1911 of 18,815,158 dollars.

The capital surplus and undivided profits of the 7 State Banks, and 51 Trust Companies on October 1, 1911, amounted to 11,488,877 00 dollars. Twelve building and loan associations had assets amounting to 2,655 753 00 dollars.

DELAWARE

Government.—The General Assembly consists of a Senate of 17 members elected for four years and a House of Representatives of 35 members elected for two years. Senators must be 27 years of age, and Representatives 24, both must be citizens who have resided three years in the State, and one year in the electoral district immediately preceding the election.

With necessary exceptions all citizens, registered as voters, who have resided in the State one year in the county three months, and in the district 30 days next preceding the election have the right to vote. But no person who shall attain the age of 21 years after January 1, 1900, or shall after that date become a citizen of the United States, shall have the right to vote unless he is able to read English and to write his name. United States soldiers and sailors merely stationed in the State are not considered resident. The registration fee of one dollar was abolished by constitutional amendment which took effect on January 21, 1907.

Delaware is represented in Congress by two Senators and one Representative
Governor — Charles R. Miller, 1913–17 ($4,000 dollars.)

Secretary of State — Thomas Miller

The State capital is Dover (population 3 720 in 1910). Delaware is divided into three counties.

Area, Population, Instruction — Area 2,050 square miles, of which 90 square miles is water.

Years	White <sup>1</sup>	Negro	Total	Per sq mile
1800	49,852	14,421	64,273	32.8

In 1910 the population by sex and colour was —

	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male	87,788	15,616	83	3	103,435
Female	83,320	15,565	—	2	98,887
Total	171,108	31,181	83	5	202,322

The foreign-born numbered 18,810 of whom 5,044 were Irish, 2,382 German, 1,506 English, and 1,122 Italian.

The largest city in the State is Wilmington, with a population of 87,411 in 1910. Other towns, Dover, 3,720, Milford, 2,603.

The most numerous denominations of the State are, Methodist, Roman Catholic, Presbyterian, Episcopalian, and Baptist.

The State has free public schools, and compulsory school attendance separate schools being provided for white and coloured children. In 1910 the public elementary schools had 993 teachers and 85,959 enrolled pupils. The 19 public high schools had 84 teachers and 1,806 pupils. The State has two normal schools, agricultural and mechanical colleges, and at Newark, Delaware College, founded in 1884, having in 1909, 23 professors and 184 students. A college for coloured students at Dover has 6 professors and 136 students.

Charity—The State has an hospital and an industrial school for girls. It grants assistance to indigent soldiers and sailors, and contributes to institutions for the support and training of the deaf, dumb, and blind outside the State.

In 1904 there were in the State five private and 11 ecclesiastical benevolent institutions to which 1,198 inmates were admitted the number remaining at the end of the year being 590.

In each county the sole charge of the poor and of almshouses is in the hands of trustees of the poor. They appoint the overseer of their almshouse, who must provide employment for the inmates. County liability for support of paupers is determined by settlement, which is obtained in various ways (by the applicant having held public office for a year having paid poor taxes for any two years, having paid a rent of at least 50 dollars for a year, &c.) Parents and grand parents are liable for support of pauper children, and vice versa. There is a penalty for bringing paupers into a county. On January 1, 1905, the almshouses had 292 pauper inmates (229 white and 63 coloured).

Finance, Defence—For the year 1912 the aggregate receipts and disbursements of the State General Fund were —

	1912
	Dollars
Balance in January 1912	49,986
Receipts in 1912	848,571

Balance January, 1913	92,347

On January 14 1913 the outstanding debt amounted to 826,735 dollars.

The assessed valuation of property in the State (1903) was 76,000,000 dollars. The value of all property in the State in 1904 was estimated at —

	Dollars
Real property	134,481,240
Personal	95,829,736
Total	230,260,976

In 1909 the militia or National Guard with its headquarters at Wilmington, consisted of one regiment of infantry of 40 officers and 361 men.

Production and Industry—Delaware is mainly an agricultural state, 85 per cent. of the land being in farms, which in 1910 had a total area of 1,033,866 acres 718,588 acres being improved land. The chief crops are maize and wheat; but fruit and tomato growing are important. About 16,000 acres are devoted to tomatoes. Stock raising is of minor importance.

The State has oyster and other fisheries which are receiving increasing attention.

The mineral resources of Delaware are not extensive, the total mineral output in 1911 was valued at 491,657 dollars.

The capital invested in manufacturing industries in the State in 1910 amounted to $2,902,000 dollars; the persons employed (owners, firm members, clerks, &c., and wage-earners) numbered 23,984; the cost of materials used was $0,922,000 dollars, and the output was valued at $2,840,000 dollars. Statistics of the chief industries are as follows —

—	Capital	Wage-earners	Materials used	Output
	Dollars	Number	Dollars	Dollars
Leather	8,242 000	8 045	8,147 000	12,079 000
Foundry and machine work	7 461 000	2 210	2,402,000	4,781 000

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

The District of Columbia is the seat of Government of the United States, and consists of an area ceded by the State of Maryland to the United States as a site for the National Capital. It was established under the authority and direction of Acts of Congress approved July 16, 1790, and March 3, 1791 which were passed to give effect to a clause in the eighth section of the first article of the Constitution of the United States, giving Congress the power —

'To exercise exclusive legislation in all cases whatsoever over such district (not exceeding ten miles square) as may, by resolution of particular States and the acceptance of Congress, become the seat of the Government of the United States, and to exercise like authority over all places purchased by the consent of the legislature of the State in which the same shall be, for the erection of forts, magazines, arsenals, dockyards, and other needful buildings.'

The authority of the United States over it became vested on the first Monday of December, 1800.

The local affairs of the District have been managed by a number of distinct forms of government. From its inception until June, 1802, they were administered by Commissioners appointed by the President of the United States, from that date until July 1, 1871, the local government consisted of a Mayor, and Boards of Aldermen and Common Council, similar to those in other cities. A territorial form of government was established in the District on June 30 1871, with a Governor and Legislative Assembly and a Board of Public Works as its main features, and continued until June 20, 1874, when it was succeeded by a temporary board of three Commissioners appointed by the President of the United States, which was in turn supplanted on July 1, 1878 by the present form of local government, which is a municipal corporation having jurisdiction over the territory ceded by the State of Maryland to the Congress of the United States for the permanent seat of the Government of the United States.

This government is administered by a board of three Commissioners having in general equal powers and duties. Two of these Commissioners, who must have been actual residents of the District for three years next before their appointment, and have during that period claimed residence nowhere else are appointed from civil life by the President of the United States, and confirmed by the Senate of the United States, for a term of three years each, and until their successors are appointed and qualified. The other Commissioner is detailed from time to time by the President of the United States from the Engineer Corps of the United States Army, and shall not be required to perform any other duty. This Commissioner shall be selected from among the captains or officers of higher grade having served at least fifteen years in the Corps of Engineers of the Army of the United States. Three officers of the same corps, junior to said Commissioner, may be detailed to assist him, by the President of the United States and act in his stead, in the order of seniority during his absence. The Commissioners are in a general way vested with jurisdiction covering all the ordinary features of municipal government. Congress has, by sundry statutes empowered them to make and enforce reasonable and usual police regulations for the protection of lives, health, quiet, &c., of all persons and the protection of all property within the District and other regulation of a municipal nature.

Secretary to the Board of Commissioners — William Tindall

The area of the District of Columbia originally was about ten miles square, but by the retrocession to the State of Virginia in the year 1846, of the portion derived from that State, was reduced to 69.245 square miles, 60.01 of which are land.

The population in 1800 numbered 14,093, in 1820, 33,039, in 1840, 48,712, in 1860, 75,080 in 1880, 177,624, in 1900, 278,718; in 1910, 331,069, in 1912, 350,843, of whom 26,612 were of the negro race or of negro descent, generically denominated 'colored'.

A portion of the District of Columbia embracing 6,654 acres is known as the City of Washington. But that name is, and has been since June 30, 1871, a geographical distinction only, as the territory it includes is not a municipality separate from the rest of the District, but is subject to the same government in every respect.

The most numerous religious bodies are Roman Catholic, Baptist, Methodist, Protestant Episcopal, and Presbyterian.

The public schools of the District in September, 1912, had 1,180 white teachers and 89,118 white pupils, and 557 negro teachers and 18,663 negro pupils. There were 7 public high schools with 287 teachers and 6,595 pupils, and 32 private schools with 2,000 pupils. For the instruction of teachers there were 3 public normal schools with 35 teachers and 331 pupils.

Superior education is given in Georgetown College, an institution under the management of the Jesuit Order, founded in 1795, it has 133 professors and 1,375 pupils the George Washington University, non-sectarian, founded in 1831, has 186 professors and 1,270 students, the Howard University, principally engaged in the higher education of negroes, was founded in 1867, and has 116 professors and 1,409 pupils. The Catholic University, a post-graduate institution, was founded in 1884, and has 56 professors and about 683 pupils.

On August 8, 1912, the almshouse of the District contained 283 pauper inmates.

The revenues of the District are derived from the general property tax, taxes on corporations and companies, and licences for various businesses.

In 1912 the revenue of the District of Columbia amounted to 15,206,484 dollars, and the disbursements to 14,807,681 dollars. The net debt at the end of the year amounted to 10,240 499 57 dollars. In 1912 the assessed valuation of the real property within the municipality amounted to 330,322,487 dollars and of personal property to 44,586,564 58 dollars total 374 909,051 58 dollars.

The value of all property within the District in 1912 was estimated at real property, 950,000,000 dollars, personal, 300,000,000 dollars, total, 1,250,000,000 dollars.

The District of Columbia has a militia force organized under an Act of Congress of March 1, 1889. It consists of cavalry, artillery, and infantry, with a total strength of 216 officers and 5,561 enlisted men, and a naval force of 23 officers and 400 men. The unorganized militia, or those liable for military service, numbers about 72,151.

The District has considerable industries the products of which are mainly for local consumption. The United States census of manufactures in 1909 showed that (excluding government works) the capital invested in such industries amounted to 30,563,000 dollars, the salaried officials, superintendents, managers and clerks numbered 1 576, and the average number of wage earners employed during the year was 7,707, the raw material used cost 10,246 000 dollars, and the output was valued at 25,289 000 dollars.

On June 14, 1912, there were in the District 29 national banks, trust companies and savings banks. Their aggregate resources and liabilities balanced at 112,277,616 dollars. Their paid in capital stock stood at 16,921 876 dollars surplus funds at 8,498,722 dollars, individual deposits at 67,488,930 dollars. United States deposits at 3,231,815 dollars, national bank notes outstanding, 5,743,932 dollars, and loans and discounts at 58,258 680 dollars.

Within the District are 164 miles of electric street railway track.

1900	297,812	230,730	528,542	9.7
1910	443,950	308,669	752,619	13.7

In 1910 the population by sex and birth was as follows —

	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indians	Total
Male	—	—	191	49	394,163
Female	—	—	38	26	358,453
Total	443,646	308,669	229	75	752,619

Of the total the foreign born numbered 23,832, of whom 4,910 were from the West Indies, 2,231 from England, 1,812 from Germany, 1,707 from Italy, 1,202 from Canada, and 1,084 from Spain. The largest cities in the State are Jacksonville with a population of 57,699 in 1910, Tampa, 37,782, Pensacola, 22,982, Key West, 19,945.

Of the church members of the State 41.6 per cent. are Baptist, and 37.2 per cent. Methodist. Others are chiefly Roman Catholics, Protestant Episcopalians, and Presbyterians.

Attendance at school is not compulsory. There are no provisions as to religious instruction in public schools. Separate schools are provided for white and coloured children.

In 1911 the public elementary schools had 4,618 teachers and 149,651 enrolled pupils (93,756 white). In 77 public high schools there were 176 teachers and 2,920 pupils. One public normal school had 2 teachers and 25 students in 1909. The State provides higher education in a University of the State of Florida at Gainesville with (1911-12) 17 professors and 302 students, and a State College for Women, with 316 students, there is a college at Winter Park with 18 professors and 180 students. There is also a Baptist University with 49 professors and 581 students.

Charity.—The State contains 83 benevolent institutions, hospitals, homes, schools for the deaf and blind, &c. (exclusive of almshouses). There is no general statute governing poor relief in Florida, but the State constitution says that the counties shall provide in manner prescribed by law for those inhabitants who from age, infirmity or misfortune have claims on public sympathy and aid. The county commissioners have the duty of providing for the poor and indigent of the State. City and town councils may look after their own poor. On January 1, 1905, the almshouses contained 150 pauper inmates (60 white and 70 coloured).

Finance, Defence.—For the year 1912 the receipts and disbursements amounted to the following sums —

	Dollars
Balance from 1911	336,389
Receipts in 1912	1,202,085
Total	1,538,474
Disbursements in 1912	1,185,172
Balance Jan 1, 1913	353,312

These sums are exclusive of funds of which the State treasurer is ex-officio treasurer.

In 1912 the public debt of the State consisted of refunding bonds to the amount of 801,567 dollars at three per cent interest, all of which were held by State educational funds. In 1908, the assessed valuation of property amounted to Realty 99,872,097 dollars, personalty, 31,299,129 dollars, railways and telegraphs, 28 719 004 dollars; total, 159,890 230 dollars.

The militia, called the Florida State troops, with its head-quarters at Tallahassee, consists of infantry and artillery with a total strength of 101 officers and 1,242 men. The Federal authorities have naval stations at Key West and Pensacola.

Production and Industry.—Agriculture is pursued generally in all parts of the State. In 1910 there were 50,016 farms, with a total acreage of 5,258,538, of which 1,805,408 acres were improved. The chief products are pineapples and oranges, the former fruit being grown almost nowhere else in the United States. Other crops are tobacco 2,604 000 pounds in 1912, rice, 15 000 bushels in 1912, besides maize, oats, peas, and pecan nuts. In 1910 the cotton area was 263,454 acres, and the yield 65,056 bales. Forests of valuable timber cover three fourths of the State, and large quantities of pitch pine are exported as well as oak timber for ship-building. Tar, turpentine, and rosin are prepared in increasing quantities.

The chief mineral product is phosphate rock, 2,436,248 long tons (9,473,638 dollars) in 1911. Fullers' earth, lime, and mineral waters are also produced. The whole mineral output in 1911 was valued at 10,250,228 dollars.

Florida, with its long coast line, has extensive fisheries, which, though not fully developed, are more important than those of any other Gulf State. The chief fishery products are shad, red snappers, mullet, turtles, and sponges, of which Florida has almost a monopoly. Pensacola is said to be the most important fresh fish market on the Gulf. From this port tar, resin, and turpentine are exported to the value of over 500,000 dollars annually, and also cotton (1,500,000 lbs.), tobacco, and phosphate produced in other States.

The manufacturing industry of Florida increased the value of their output from 45,882,394 dollars in 1909 to 72,690,000 dollars in 1910. The following table refers to the year 1910:—

Industries	Capital	Wage-earners	Material used	Output
	Dollars	Number	Dollars	Dollars
Tobacco	11,164 000	12 280	8,585,000	1 675,000
Lumber and Timber	27 670 000	19 227	6,389 000	29 828 000
Turpentine and Rosin	6 511 000	18 143	1,869,000	11,938 000
Fertilizers	8 738,000	539	2,375 000	3,878,000
Cars	1 251 000	1 703	601 000	1 748 000

The tobacco industries are prosperous, and Key West and Tampa compete with Cuba in the manufacture of fine cigars. In 1910 the output of spirit of turpentine was 13,809 785 gallons and of rosin 1,535,749 barrels. Phosphate rock is an important mineral product of the State, but little of it is used in the manufacture of fertilizers, which consist largely of cotton seed meal.

The State has facilities for transportation both by land and water. A large trade is carried on through Pensacola where the domestic exports were largely cottons, other merchandise being forest products, phosphate, tobacco, wheat flour &c. The harbour channel is now 30 feet deep at low tide. At Jacksonville harbour improvements are being carried out. In 1910 there were 4 431 miles of steam railway and 150 miles of electric railway. The Atlantic Coast railway and the Louisville and Nashville railway run through the State. The Florida East Coast Railway extension to Key West was opened January 22nd, 1912. The U S Government is deepening the channel at Key West and making other improvements.

GEORGIA.

Government.—The colony of Georgia (so named from George II) was founded in 1733. Georgia entered the Union as one of the original States.

The General Assembly consists of a Senate of 44 members and a House of Representatives of 184 members. Both Senators and Representatives are elected for two years. Legislative Sessions are annual and limited to 50 days. There is manhood suffrage, but residence and United States citizenship are required. The State is represented in Congress by two Senators and 11 Representatives.

Governor —John M. Slaton, 1913-1915 ($5,000 dollars)

Secretary —Philip Cook

Georgia is divided into 146 counties. The State Capital is Atlanta.

Area and Population.—Area 59,475 square miles, of which 495 square miles are water.

Years	White <sup>1</sup>	Negro	Total	Per sq. mile
1800	102,881	60,425	162,686	2.8

1900	1,181,518	1,034,813	2,216,331	37.6
1910	1,432,234	1,176,987	2,609,121	44.4

In 1900 the population by sex and birth was —

	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male	593,128	509,869	193	11	1,103,201
Female	588,166	524,944	12	8	1,113,130
Total	1,181,294	1,034,813	205	19	2,216,331

Of the total population 12,408 were foreign born of whom 4,910 were from the West Indies, 3,407 from Germany, 2,293 from Ireland, 1,514 from England, and 1,234 from Russia. The population in 1910 was 2,609,121. The largest cities in the State are Atlanta (capital) with population 154,839; Savannah (1910) 65,064; Augusta, 41,040; Macon 40,665, and Columbus, 20,554.

Religion, Instruction, Charity—Baptists and Methodists predominate, Baptists having more than half of the religious membership of the State.

No law making education compulsory has been passed. At the head of the State school system is a State School Commissioner elected by the people for two years. There is a county school Supervisor in each county. In 1910 the public elementary schools had 555,794 enrolled pupils and 12,625 teachers, while the 174 public high schools had 9,936 pupils and 460 teachers. One public normal school had 81 teachers and 560 pupils in 1909.

For higher education the more important institutions for men (and both sexes) in the State are as follows —

Begin	Institutions	Professors	Students
1800	University of Georgia, Athens (State)	39	502
1867	Atlanta Baptist College	28	225
1857	Bowdon College (Non-sectarian)	7	403

1872	North Georgia Agr. College (State)	15	224

FINANCE, DEFENCE—PRODUCTION AND INDUSTRY 451

The State contains 59 benevolent institutions (hospitals, homes, schools for the deaf and blind, &c.), of which 10 are public, 34 private, and 15 ecclesiastical. County authorities (ordinaries) have supervision of paupers and may establish poorhouses &c. levy a tax to meet their cost, make the necessary regulations, and appoint a commissioner of the poor. Persons bringing paupers into the State or from one part of it into another are liable for their support. Any county may give relief to ex confederate soldiers without compelling them to be poorhouse inmates. On January 1, 1905, the almshouses of the State contained 1 009 pauper inmates (602 white and 407 coloured).

Finance, Defence—The amounts received and disbursed in the years 1908 and 1909 are stated as follows —

	1908 Dollars	1909 Dollars
Balance, January 1 1908 and 1909	820,740	638 717
Receipts in 1908 and 1909	5 388,273	5,377,016
Total 1908 and 1909	6 209,013	6,015,738
Disbursements, 1908 and 1909	5 370,295	5,529,576
Balances, January 1, 1908 and 1909	638,718	486,157

In December, 1909, the bonded debt of the State amounted to 7,034 202 dollars, including an unfunded debt of 90,202 dollars on which interest at seven per cent per annum was paid to the University trustees. The assessed valuation of real and personal property in 1904 amounted to 725,018,197 dollars.

The State militia called the Georgia State Troops or the Georgia Volunteers, have their headquarters at Atlanta. They consist of Cavalry, Artillery and Infantry, with a total strength of 239 officers and 2,794 men in 1909. Georgia has also a Naval militia with 8 officers and 44 enlisted men.

Production and Industry—Of the total area, about 70 per cent is in farms, of which 37 per cent are operated by negroes and 36 per cent of negro farms are rented. The negro farmers raise little but cotton, in the production of which Georgia ranks second among the States while it is the largest producer of sea island cotton. For 1912 the cotton yield was 1,701 000 bales. In the northern part of the State the cultivation of cereals is of importance, corn being grown on five times the area of other cereals. The yield of corn (maize) in the State in 1912 was 53 958,000 bushels. Oats and wheat are also grown, while rice is an important product of coast counties (27,000 bushels in 1912). The growth of sugar cane is increasing. The tobacco crop in 1912 amounted to 1 162,000 pounds. Forests of pine &c. cover 42,000 sq miles. In 1910 the farm animals were 141,000 horses, 248,000 mules, 314,000 milk cows, 673,000 other cattle 245,000 sheep 1,647,000 swine.

The fisheries of the State are of some importance, especially the oyster and shad fisheries.

The State has considerable mineral resources gold, silver, coal, iron, and manganese ores, iron pyrites, bauxite, graphite, lime, ochre, infusorial earth, natural cement, talc and soapstone, marble and other quarries, and mineral springs being worked. In 1911, the output of gold (from quartz and placer workings) amounted to 1,548 fine oz (32,600 dollars), and of silver to 600 oz (800 dollars) In 1911 coal was extracted to the amount of 165,210 short tons (246,808 dollars), stone to the value of 1,967,077 for granite, marble, and limestone. The marble of Georgia has a high reputation all over the States. The clay working industries (bricks, tiles, pottery) in 1910 gave an output valued at 2,636,880 dollars. In 1911, 8 282 short tons of lime ore were extracted. The total mineral output in 1911, including iron ore but not pig iron was valued at 6,171 867 dollars.

In 1910 Georgia had 4,792 manufacturing establishments with a total capital of 202,773,000 dollars employing 118 086 persons (salaried and wage earning) using material costing 116,970,000 dollars, and giving an output worth 202,863,000 dollars.

The chief manufacturing industries were as stated below (1905 Census) —

Nature of industries	Capital	Wage earners	Cost of materials	Output
	Dollars	Number	Dollars	Dollars
Cotton manufactures	42 849 618	34 130	28 832,297	35 174 248

Railway car work	2,105 818	4 777	2 637,669	4 776 109

In 1908 there were 153 cotton mills 36 355 looms and 1,791,354 spindles

The means of transportation by sea and land are ample. The principal port is Savannah, which has 8 miles of river frontage, and which, by harbour improvements, is to be made accessible to vessels of large tonnage. The river is being deepened, and now has a mean low water depth of 26 feet, and a depth of 32 at high tide on the bar. From this port in 1911 the imports amounted to 1,297,9217 and the exports to 17 162,6427 chiefly cotton, cotton seed and meal and cake of cotton seed besides turpentine and lumber. From Brunswick the exports were valued at 16,369,216 dollars, the most important articles of export being timber, lumber, railway sleepers, &c.

The railways in the State have a length (1910) of 7,056 miles, besides 895 miles of electric railway.

On June 7 1911, Georgia had 114 State banks with aggregate capital of 17,536,780 dollars, 87 national banks with paid up capital of 8,958,500 dollars and a few private banks.

IDAHO

Government.—The Legislature consists of a Senate of 23 members, and a House of Representatives of 53 members, all the legislators being elected for two years. Sessions are held biennially. The electorate of the State consists of citizens, both male and female over the age of 21 years, who have resided in the State over six months. The State is represented in Congress by two Senators and one Representative.

Governor — John M. Haines 1913-15 ($5,000 dollars)

Secretary of State — W. L. Gifford

The State is divided into 23 counties. The capital is Boise (population 17,358 in 1910).

Area, Population, Religion, Instruction.—Area, 84,800 square miles of which 510 square miles is water. In the last 4 census years the total population was — 1880, 32,610 (0.4), 1890 84,385 (1.1) 1900, 161,772 (1.0), 1910, 325,594 (3.9). In the white population were included 1,467 Chinese, 1,291 Japanese and 4,228 Indians. Of the total population 24,604 were foreign born, 3,943 being English, 2,974 German, 2,923 Canadian, 2,822 Swedish, 1,173 Norwegian, and 1,634 Irish.

The population is largely Mormon; other religious denominations, in the order of their numbers, being Catholics, Methodists, Presbyterians, and Disciples or Christians.

For supervision of the public schools there is a Board of Education, of which the Superintendent of Public Instruction is President. In 1910 the public elementary schools had 2,232 teachers, 76,168 enrolled pupils, while the 54 public high schools had 4,093 pupils and 242 teachers. The two public normal schools had 22 teachers and 211 pupils in 1910. Superior instruction is given in the State Academy of Idaho and the State University of Idaho founded in 1892, which had 61 professors and 517 students in 1910. The State has an industrial training school, and a school for the deaf and blind. There are also 6 sectarian colleges or schools to which, however, pupils are admitted without respect to their religious belief.

Charity.—Idaho has a State home for aged soldiers, two asylums for the insane, and a penitentiary. Within the State are six hospitals (for benevolent purposes, not for profit), into which, in 1904, 1,494 patients were admitted, the number of inmates at the end of the year being 111. The board of county commissioners may contract for the maintenance of the indigent sick and poor. There is no requirement as to residence on the part of applicants for relief, and being extended even to residents of other States, nor is there any provision for the support of the poor by relatives. Applications for relief must be written, sworn to, and addressed to the clerk of the court or other proper officials. On January 1, 1905, the almshouses had 112 pauper inmates (one of whom was coloured).

Finance, Defense.—For the 2 years ending September 30, 1912, the receipts and disbursements were as follows —

	Dollars
Cash in hand, October 1, 1910	967,716
Receipts, 1910-1912	6,858,682
Total	7,826,398
Disbursements, 1910-12	6,545,745
Balance, September 30, 1912	1,280,653

On Sept. 30, 1912, the State bonded debt amounted to 2,364,250 dollars sinking fund 400 000 dollars, and the assessed value of real and personal property to 120,000 000 dollars

The Militia or National Guard of Idaho consists of a regiment of infantry containing 59 officers and 592 men

Production and Industry—A great part of the State is naturally arid, but extensive irrigation works have been carried out irrigating 3 266 386 acres, and there are now being constructed works to cost 18,811,000 dollars for the irrigation of 480 000 acres in the State. The most important crop is wheat to which in 1912 510,000 acres were devoted, the yield amounting to 14,566 000 bushels. Other crops in 1912 were oats 17,017 000 bushels barley, 6 916 000 bushels, besides potatoes and hay. Fruit and vegetables are also grown. There is an active live stock industry, especially in sheep the number of which in 1910 was put at 4,248,000, and the clip (1911) at 16,500,000 pounds. The State contains about 19 643,355 acres of national forest.

The State has rich deposits of gold, silver, and other metals. About 7,000 miners are employed. In 1911 the output of gold amounted to 65,688 fine ounces of the value of 1 357,900 dollars, of silver, to 8,184 900 fine ounces of the value of 4 419,800 dollars copper, 4,514,116 pounds (564,265 dollars), lead, 117 159 short tons (10 544,310 dollars), zinc, 3,180 short tons (362,520 dollars). Coal is mined, but not to a great extent, in 1911 the output was only 1 805 short tons (4,808 dollars). Iron, nickel, cobalt, mica, phosphate rock, antimony, tungsten granite, sandstone, limestone and lime pumice and salt are worked more or less. Total value of mineral output in 1911 17,588 340 dollars.

Besides the agricultural and mining industries the State has manufactures of considerable importance. In 1910 there were together 725 industrial establishments, employing a total of 9 909 persons including 8,220 wage-earners, with a total capital of 32,477,000 dollars cost of material being 9 920,000 dollars and value of output 22,400 000 dollars. The chief of these industries are the working of lumber and timber, (capital, 17,872,000 dollars wage-earners, 5,212 cost of material, 3 345,000 dollars and value of product 10,689,000 dollars) and flour and grist milling (capital 2,038,000 dollars, wage-earners, 125, cost of material, 2,025 000 dollars and value of product, 2,480,000 dollars). Within the State there are 260 lumber mills, one at Pocatello is said to be the largest in the world and can cut 750,000 feet daily. Idaho has also 46 flour mills.

The State contains (1910) 2,178 miles of railway, besides 145 miles of electric railway track. The principal railways crossing the State are the Great Northern, the Northern Pacific, and the Oregon Short Line.

ILLINOIS

Government.—The Legislature consists of a Senate of 51 members elected for four year (about half of whom retire every two years), and a House of Representatives of 153 members elected for two years. Sessions are biennial. Qualified electors are all male citizens 21 years of age, resident in the State one year, in the county 90 days and in the district 30 days next before the election. The State is divided into Senatorial districts, in each of which one Senator and three Representatives are chosen. For the election of Representatives each elector has three votes, of which he may cast one for each of three candidates, or one and a half for each of two, or all three for one candidate.

Governor —Edward F. Dunne 1913-17 (12,000 dollars.)

Secretary of State —Harry Woods

Illinois is divided into 102 counties, the most important being Cook County, within which is the city of Chicago. The State capital is Springfield.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area of 56,850 square miles, of which 650 square miles is water.

Charity—The relief of the poor generally falls to the counties, but sometimes to cities. Overseers of the poor provide relief either out door or in poor houses.

Within the State there are 257 benevolent institutions, hospitals, orphan ages, homes, and schools for the deaf and blind. Of these institutions 20 are public, 117 private and 120 ecclesiastical. Overseers of the poor in counties not under township organization and in towns with over 4,000 inhabitants are designated by the county board, in counties with township organization the overseers of the towns are overseers of the poor. Where there is no poorhouse the overseers may contract for the support of the poor. Provision is made for the establishment and maintenance of poorhouses. Paupers must (as whole or part) be supported by relatives according to their ability. For bringing a pauper into a county where he has no legal residence a fine of 100 dollars may be imposed.

Finance Defence—For the 2 years ending September 30, 1912, the receipts and disbursements were —

	Dollars
Balance on hand, Oct. 1, 1910	4,424,610
Receipts, 1910-12	26,957,187
Total	31,381,798
Disbursements, 1910-12	25,882,587
Balance, Oct. 1, 1912	5,499,211

The State has no debt. Outstanding bonds which have ceased to draw interest amount to 17,500 dollars. For 1909 the assessed value of property was 1,123,633,157 dollars.

The State Militia, or National Guard, consisting of cavalry, artillery, and infantry, had a total strength of 920 officers and 6,315 enlisted men in 1909. The naval militia had 51 officers and 587 enlisted men.

Production, Industry—Illinois is largely agricultural. In 1910 the farm area comprised 32,522,937 acres of which 28,048,323 acres were improved land. The chief cereal crops are maize 426,320 000 bushels in 1912, wheat, 9,819 000 bushels, oats 182 728 000 bushels, barley, rye, and buckwheat being also grown. The potato crop in 1912 amounted to 13,837 000 bushels, and hay to 3,286 000 tons. Tobacco, grown on 1,000 acres, yielded 750 000 pounds, valued at 58,500 dollars in (1911). The State has an active live stock industry. In 1910 there were 1,655,000 horses (farm animals) 152 000 mules, 1,232,000 milk cows, 1,874,000 other cattle, 817,000 sheep, and 3,772,000 swine in the State. The wool clip in 1911 yielded 4,900,000 pounds of wool, valued at 1,095,640 dollars. In 1910 Illinois had 18,028 manufacturing establishments with an aggregate capital of 1,548,171,000 dollars, employing 561,044 persons (salaried and wage earning), using material costing 1,160,927 dollars, and giving an output worth 1 919,277,000 dollars.

The chief industries with the capital number of wage earners, cost of materials, and value of output, were —

The chief mineral product of Illinois is coal, the productive coal fields having an area of about 42,900 square miles. In 1911, 68,306 persons were employed in the mines, the output was 53,979 118 short tons, valued at 59,519,478 dollars. There are petroleum wells, and in 1911 the yield was 31,317,088 barrels, valued at 19,734,839 dollars. The natural gas sold was of the value of 837,728 dollars. Zinc is worked, and in 1911 the output was 2,884 short tons (528,776 dollars). Fluor spar to the amount of 68,817 short tons was produced, valued at 481,635 dollars. The output of sandstone and limestone was of the value of 2,467,930 dollars, of Portland cement 4,552,841 barrels (3,583,301 dollars), of natural rock cement 133,869 barrels (68,772 dollars), of clay products (bricks, tiles, pottery), 14,232,911 dollars. The total mineral output in 1911, excluding 2,086,081 long tons of pig iron valued at 31,152,927 dollars, was estimated at the value of 106,231,556 dollars.

On the Great Lakes there is a large fleet of steamers engaged in carrying iron ore, cereals, and other products between the lake ports. In 1911 the receipts by lake transport at Chicago included 490 693,000 lbs. of fresh beef, and the shipments 870 704 600 lbs. The receipts of living animals by all routes at Chicago in 1911 were cattle, 2,931,831 calves, 524,430, pigs, 7,456,869, sheep, 5 736,245 horses and mules 104 545 making a total of 16,753,360. Within the State there are 106 miles of canal and 11,878 miles of railway, besides 3 015 miles of electric railway track.

Purdus University, for agricultural and mechanical instruction, has 146 professors and instructors and 1,574 students.

Charities.—All the public charities and many of those of a private nature are under the supervision of the Board of State Charities. This is an unsalaried, advisory body of six members, appointed by the Governor, who is its president. The State maintains four hospitals for the insane and is erecting a fifth. It has also State Homes for Soldiers and for Soldiers and Sailors Orphans, schools for the deaf blind, and feeble-minded respectively and a Village for Epileptics. In every county there is an asylum for the poor. The superintendents are appointed by the boards of county commissioners, for two years and are paid. In 76 of the counties there are boards of county charities, who inspect the public institutions and report to the County Commissioners the circuit court, the local press, and the Board of State Charities. In the 1,018 townships the care of the poor not in institutions is in the hands of the township trustees, who are ex-officio, overseers of the poor. These officials serve for a term of four years, and once a quarter must send a detailed report of their work to the County Commissioners and the Board of State Charities. They are expected to give only temporary aid, and are required by law to make a thorough investigation before giving relief. Work for dependent, neglected delinquent, or orphan children is under the supervision of the Board of State Charities. The Board employs six agents, who inspect orphanages and place and visit children in family homes. No person or organization can conduct an orphan home, a maternity hospital or a boarding house for infants, or place children in homes without a license from the Board. Children can be supported at public expense only when made public wards by the juvenile court. The laws provide for a juvenile court and a board of children's guardians and a County Board of Charities and Correction in every county.

There are in Indiana 15 State charitable, penal and correctional institutions 40 orphanages receiving public wards and 11 receiving only private wards 23 homes for the aged 47 general hospitals 92 county poor asylums 91 county jails and a number of town lock ups and city police stations.

The Militia or National Guard, with headquarters at Topeka, consists of artillery and infantry with hospital and signal corps, total strength 1 383 enlisted men and 129 officers in 1910

Production and Industry — Kansas is pre eminently agricultural, but suffers from lack of rainfall in the west. In 1910 the area of farmland was 48,884,799 acres, of which 29,904,067 acres was improved land. Under the Federal Reclamation Act, 8 000 acres in the Garden City district are to be irrigated. The chief crops are maize (174 225,000 bushels in 1912), wheat (92,290 000 bushels) and hay, but oats, barley, rye, potatoes and flax are grown. The production of kaffir corn is mostly confined to this State. Cotton is grown but not extensively. Various orchard fruits are cultivated. The State has an extensive live stock industry comprising, in 1910, 1,187,000 horses, 154,000 mules, 737 000 milk cows and 3,260,000 other cattle, 278,000 sheep, and 1,942,000 swine.

Kansas has coal fields with an area of about 15,000 square miles, employing about 14,600 miners, the output in 1911 amounted to 6,254,228 short tons, valued at 2 645 572 dollars. In Kansas in 1911 the yield of the oil fields amounted to 1,278 819 barrels, valued at 608,766 dollars. Natural gas produced in Kansas in 1911 was sold to the value of 4,854,584 dollars. The output of zinc amounted to 6,848 short tons (780 102 dollars). The quarries yield sandstone, limestone, gypsum and there is a large output of Portland cement, amounting in 1911 to 4,871,903 barrels, valued at 3 725 108 dollars. In 1911 the State produced 2,160 869 barrels of salt, valued at 806,027 dollars, salt is important to the State both for live stock and dead meat industries. The output of clay products in 1911 was valued at 2,360,262 dollars. The total mineral output of the State in 1911 was valued at 24,987,807 dollars.

In the manufacturing industries in 1910 there were 3,435 establishments with 3,571 proprietors or firm members, 6,868 clerks, &c., and 44,215 wage earners. The raw material used during the year cost 258,884,000 dollars, and the output was valued at 325,104,000 dollars. The slaughtering and milling industries are the most important. Further statistics of these and other industries are —

Industries	Capital	Wage-earners	Cost of Material	Output
	Dollars	Number	Dollars	Dollars
Slaughtering, &c.	57,869 000	10,591	147,644,060	65,961,060

KENTUCKY

Government.—The General Assembly consists of a Senate of 38 members elected for four years, one-half retiring every two years, and a House of Representatives of 100 members elected for two years. Sessions are biennial. Qualified as electors are (with necessary exceptions) all citizens who have resided in the State one year, and in the county six months.

The State is represented in Congress by two Senators and 11 Representatives.

Governor—James B. McCreary, 1911–15 ($6,000 dollars)

Secretary of State.—O. F. Creelhus

The State is divided into 119 counties. The State Capital is Frankfort (pop. in 1910, 10,447).

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area, 40,400 square miles, of which 400 square miles are water.

Years	Population	Per sq. mile	Years	Population	Per sq. mile
1860	1,155,684	28.9	1900	2,147,174	53.7
1880	1,648,890	41.2	1910	2,289,905	57.0

In 1910 there were 261,666 negroes, the foreign born population in 1910 numbered 40,028, of whom 27,555 were German, and 9,874 Irish, other nationalities represented being English, Swiss, Canadian, and Russian.

The population of the principal cities was, according to the 1910 census, as follows:—

Cities	Population	Cities	Population	Cities	Population
Louisville	222,928	Lexington	35,099	Owensboro'	16,011
Covington	58,220	Paducah	22,760	Frankfort	10,465
Newport	30,809	Henderson	11,452	Bowling Green	9,278

The predominant religious denominations of the State are Baptist, Roman Catholic, and Methodist, less numerous bodies being Disciples of Christ and Presbyterians.

Kentucky has a law for compulsory attendance at school between the ages of 7 and 14 years for eight consecutive weeks, but in the larger cities, for the full term. In 1911 the common elementary schools of the State had 11,185 teachers and 740,848 enrolled pupils, of whom 656,252 were white and 85,091 coloured. 147 public high schools had 471 teachers and 9,677 pupils. The State had 4 public normal schools with 65 teachers and 2,743 students in 1910. For superior instruction there are universities and colleges, the more important of which (1910) were as follows —

Began	Institutions	Staff	Students
1832	Central University of Kentucky Danville (Presb.)	35	245
1856	Berea College (non Sect.)	67	1,558
1886	Kentucky University (State)	67	664
1887	University of Louisville	110	640

The State Agricultural College has 108 professors and 2,308 students.

Charity —Exclusive of almshouses and asylums for the insane, &c., Kentucky has 82 benevolent institutions, most of which have been provided by private persons or ecclesiastical bodies. They comprise 29 hospitals (six public), 36 orphanages, 25 homes for adults (one public), and two schools for the deaf and blind (both public). County courts provide for support of the poor, erect and maintain poorhouses, and appoint poorhouse commissioners, who may compel able-bodied paupers in the poorhouse to labour. It is unlawful to bring paupers from one county to another. On January 1, 1905, the almshouses had 1,702 pauper inmates (308 coloured).

Finance, Defence —The balance sheet for 1909 of the general expenditure fund shows the amount available for the fund to be 2,696,650 dollars, and the cash in the treasury to be 336,873 dollars, total assets available, 3,033,523 dollars. The expenditure amounted to 4,237,478 dollars, showing a deficit of 1,203,954 dollars.

The only bonded debt of the State is 2,315,627 dollars, the interest of which goes to the school fund.

The total value of all property in the State in 1904 was estimated at —

	Dollars
Real property	859,247,997
Personal property	668,238,233
Total	1,527,486,230

In 1910 the State Militia, or the Kentucky National Guard, consisted of 3 regiments of infantry, and hospital corps, total strength, 1,712 men and officers.

Production and Industry —Kentucky is largely an agricultural State. In 1910 the farm area was 22,189,127 acres, of which 14,354,471 acres was improved land. The central portion of the State contains the "blue grass region" which, having a rich soil, produces cereals, grasses and fruits of fine quality. In 1912 the maize crop amounted to 102,440,006 bushels, and the wheat crop to 6,869,009 bushels, other farm products being hay, potatoes, sweet potatoes, water-melons, and fruits of many sorts. The chief crop however is tobacco, under which in 1912 were 411,000 acres, yielding 843,880,000 pounds, valued at 22,926,000 dollars.

In Kentucky hemp is grown (15,000,000 pounds annually) some cotton, and also sorghum.

Stock raising is important in Kentucky, which has long been famous for its horses. The live stock in 1910 consisted of 407,000 horses, 207,000 mules, 334,000 milk cows, 685 000 other cattle, 1,060,000 sheep, and 989,000 swine. In 1910 the wool clip yielded 3,800 000 pounds of scoured wool, valued at 1,013,680 dollars.

The State has extensive forests of oak, maple, ash, beech, walnut, pine, &c., and its lumber industries are important.

Kentucky has bituminous and cannel coal mines, in the working of which about 20 000 men are employed. The output for the year 1911 was 13,706,839 short tons, valued at 13,617,217 dollars. There is also a considerable output of petroleum, the yield in 1911 amounting to 472,453 barrels, valued at 325,614 dollars. Fluorspar was obtained in 1911 to the amount of 12,403 short tons, valued at 96,574 dollars. The quarries also yielded sandstone and limestone and the clay working establishments turned out bricks, tiles, pottery, &c. to the value of 2,368 094 dollars. Other mineral products are iron, lead, barytes, lime, natural cement, asphalt, natural gas, and mineral waters. Including iron ore but not pig iron, the value of the mineral output in 1911 was 18,910,781 dollars.

In 1910 the census of manufactures showed there were 4,776 manufacturing establishments with an aggregate capital of 172,772,000 dollars, 65,400 wage-earners who earned 27,883 000 dollars, and turned out manufactures worth 223,754,000 dollars. The output of the flour and grist industries was valued at 22,865 000 dollars, lumber and timber products, 21,331,000 dollars, tobacco, 18,698,000 dollars, spirits and ales, 44,860,000 dollars, men's clothing, 3,276 000 dollars.

The Ohio and Mississippi rivers provide natural facilities for transport. In 1910 the State had 3,526 miles of railway besides 380 miles of electric railway track. The principal railway lines are the Louisville and Nashville, the Chesapeake and Ohio, the Illinois Central, and the Southern.

LOUISIANA

Government.—The Legislature consists of a Senate of 41 members and a House of Representatives of 115 members, Senators and Representatives being chosen for four years. Sessions are biennial.

Qualified electors are (with the usual exceptions) all registered male citizens resident in the State for two years and in the parish one year next before the election. For registration, however, the citizen must show his ability to read and write, or must own property worth 300 dollars, or must prove that his father or grandfather was entitled to a vote on January 1, 1867, but in this case the applicant must have resided in the State for five years next before the election. The "father or grandfather" clause is intended to secure white supremacy.

The State is represented in Congress by two Senators and seven Representatives.

Governor — Luther E. Hall, 1912-1916 ($5,000 dollars)

Secretary — A. E. Hebart.

Louisiana is divided into 60 parishes (corresponding with the counties of other States). The State Capital is Baton Rouge.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area, 48,720 square miles (3,300 square miles being water)

Years	White <sup>1</sup>	Negro	Total	Per sq. mile
1860	357,629	350,373	708,002	15.6

1910	942,514	713,874	1,656,388	36.5

The population in 1900 by sex and race was —

—	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male	371,142	322,664	589	338	694,733
Female	358,470	328,140	27	255	686,892
Total	729,612	650,804	616	593	1,381,625

In 1910 there were 835,275 males and 821,113 females.

Most of the white population are descended from the early French settlers. In 1900 the foreign born numbered 52,903, of whom 17,431 were Italian, 11,839 German, 8,500 French, 6,486 Irish, and 2,068 English. The largest city in the State is New Orleans with a population of 339,075 in 1910. Other cities are Shreveport, 28,015; Baton Rouge (Capital) 14,897.

Most of the Southern States are strenuously Protestant, but over 61 per cent. of the population of Louisiana are Roman Catholic. Of Protestants in the State, Baptists and Methodists are the most numerous, then Protestant Episcopalians and Presbyterians.

According to the State constitution no funds raised for the support of the public schools of the State shall be appropriated to or used for the support of any private or sectarian school. City school systems are under separate organization. In 1910 the elementary public schools had 6,966 teachers and 233,846 enrolled pupils, 57 public high schools had 230 teachers and 3,550 pupils. The two public normal schools had 25 teachers and 976 students in 1909. Superior instruction is given in the Louisiana State University and Agricultural and Mechanical College. The university was opened in 1860, and the college in 1874. On June 1, 1877, they were by law united into one and the same institution with its seat at Baton Rouge. In 1911 it had 40 professors and 620 students. Tulane University (founded in 1864) had, in 1911, 123 professors and 1,500 students. This university has State support to the extent of the remission of certain taxes. There are also 2 Roman Catholic Colleges, one with 20 professors and 160 students, the other with 20 professors and 350 students, a large Baptist College with 38 professors and 423 students, and at New Orleans the Southern University for coloured persons (established 1880) with 500 enrolled students in 1910. There is an Industrial Institute at Ruston and another at Lafayette. The State has also an institution for the deaf and dumb and another for the blind both at Baton Rouge.

Charity—Besides almshouses and asylums for imbeciles, &c., Louisiana has 56 benevolent institutions, most of which have been provided by private persons or ecclesiastical bodies. They comprise ten hospitals (four public), 25 orphanages, 17 homes for adults (two public), and three schools for the deaf and blind (two public). The police juries provide for the support of the poor in their parishes, except in municipal corporations wholly or partly exempt from parish taxation; they may establish a home or farm for their paupers and appoint suitable officials.

Finance, Defence—For the biennial period 1906-07 the receipts for all funds (including transfers and balances from former periods) and the disbursements were—

	1906 Dollars	1907 Dollars
Receipts, 1906 (including balances)	6,232,631	6,028,602
Disbursements, 1906	4,862,892	5,209,179
Balance Jan. 1, 1907 and 1908	1,369,939	1,419,323

The bonded and floating debt of the State up to March 1, 1908, amounted to 12,244,835 dollars. The assessed valuation of property in 1910 amounted to 527,773,956 dollars.

The total value of all property in the State in 1904 was estimated at—

	Dollars
Real property	489,395,161
Personal property	542,938,845
Total	1,032,229,006

The militia or State National Guard, with headquarters at Baton Rouge, consists of infantry, artillery, and cavalry, with a mounted signal corps, and had a total strength of 111 officers and 1,248 enlisted men in 1910. The naval militia has 52 officers and 583 enlisted men.

Production, Industry—The products and manufactures of Louisiana are very various. The chief crops in 1912 were corn, 1,805,000 acres, producing 52,490,000 bushels, rice grown on 352,600 acres, yielding 11,612,000 bushels, cane sugar, 503,625 acres, producing 656,913,702 lbs. For 1913 the cotton area was 1,114,000 acres, and the yield 435,000 bales. Oats, potatoes, sugar, rice, and tobacco are also grown, but not extensively. In 1911 there were 564 acres under tobacco, the yield being 310,000 pounds. In 1910 the State contained 392,014 head of cattle, 143,496 horses, 69,279 sheep, and 237,345 swine.

The State has a large forest area, and extensive lumber industries.

Louisiana has valuable fisheries. Oyster reefs extend almost continuously along the coast, and the oyster fisheries are the most valuable south of Virginia, the area suitable to planting and growing oysters being over 7,000 square miles.

Rich sulphur mines are found in Louisiana, and wells for the extraction of sulphur by means of hot water and air at the surface are in operation. In 1911 the petroleum output was 10,720,420 barrels (valued at 5,668,814 dollars). Another mineral worked is rock salt. Total mineral output in 1911, valued at 12,710,958 dollars.

The manufacturing industries are chiefly those associated with the products of the State sugar, lumber, cotton seed, rice. In 1910 there were 3,516 manufacturing establishments which employed altogether 8,103 clerks, &c., and 76,165 wage-earners. The material used cost 134,865,000 dollars, and the output was valued at 223,949,000 dollars. The following statistics of the more important industries are given —

Industries	Capital	Wage-earners	Cost of material	Output
	Dollars	Number	Dollars	Dollars
Sugar and Molasses	64,872,060	5,815	12,508,810	78,785,669

Foundry work and machinery	3,043,949	1,608	1,122,661	2,149,209
Cars, railway works	1,414,097	2,434	1,114,189	2,635,290

Brewing, confectionery, printing, and other works are also prosperous.

A large international trade is carried on through the port of New Orleans where in 1910 the imports amounted to 12,294,052 and the exports to 31,043,750. The exports consisted of cotton and cotton seed products, wheat, flour, rice, and other produce.

The State has ample facilities for traffic, having besides 24,900 miles of public roads, the Mississippi and other waterways, with 4,794 miles of navigable water. In 1910 the railways in the State had a length of 6,271 miles, being an increase of 197 miles on the previous year, besides 250 miles of electric railway track. The principal lines are operated by the Illinois Central, Queen and Crescent Louisville and Nashville, Texas and Pacific, and the Southern Pacific systems. The telegraph systems had a mileage of pole, 1,080 miles, wire, 19,182 miles, cable, 66,362 miles. The telephone companies had mileage pole, 3,125 miles, wire, 30,321 miles, cable, 6,250 miles.

The bank clearings in 1910 amounted to 987,491,284 dollars at New Orleans.

MAINE.

Government.—There is a Legislature of two Houses, the Senate, consisting of 31 members, and the House of Representatives with 151 members, both Houses being elected at the same time for two years. The suffrage is possessed by all registered male citizens of the United States, 21 years of age, who can read English and write his own name, but paupers and untaxed Indians have no vote.

Governor —William T. Haines 1913-15 (3,000 dollars)

Secretary of State —Cyrus W. Davis.

For local government the State is divided into 16 counties, subdivided into towns, cities, plantations and various unincorporated places. The State Capital is Augusta.

Area, Population, Education.—Area, 33,040 square miles of which 29,895 square miles is land

Years	Population		Years	Population
	Total	Per sq. mile		Total	Per sq. mile
1860	623,279	21.0	1900	694,466	23.2
1880	648,936	21.7	1910	742,971	24.8

In 1910 the population consisted of 740,017 white and 1,354 coloured persons, and 990 others, total, 742,871. There were 377,053 males, and 365,818 females. The foreign born population numbered 93,330, of whom 36,169 were English Canadian, 30,908 French Canadian, 10,159 Irish, and 4,723 English. Within the State especially in the north, there is a strong French and French-speaking element. The largest city in the State is Portland with a population of 58,571 in 1910. Other cities and towns (with population in 1910) are Lewiston 26,247, Bangor, 24,803, Biddeford, 17,079, Auburn, 15,064, Augusta 13,211, Bath, 9,376, Waterville, 11,458.

The largest religious body is Roman Catholic, then come Baptists, Congregationalists, Methodists, and Protestant Episcopalians.

Education is free for pupils from 5 to 21 years of age, and compulsory from 5 to 14. The State Superintendent has general supervision over education, there are no county superintendents. Cities and towns have elective school attendance committees. In 1911 the 4,645 public elementary schools had 6,923 teachers and 132,823 enrolled pupils. The 183 public high schools had 565 teachers and 11,759 pupils. 46 academies, institutes, and seminaries had 236 teachers and 4,055 pupils. For the training of teachers in 1911 there were six public Normal Schools with 49 teachers and 373 students. The University of Maine, founded in 1868 at Orono, has 112 professors and teachers and 773 students. It is endowed by and receives large appropriations from the State. Bowdoin College, founded in 1794 at Brunswick, has 73 professors and 409 students. Bates College at Lewiston has 29 professors and 433 students, and Colby College at Waterville has 21 professors and 383 students.

Public schools are mainly supported by appropriations from the towns or cities and from the State, and by the income from school funds.

Charity —A part from almshouses and asylums for the insane, &c., there are 43 benevolent institutions in the State, nearly all being provided by private or ecclesiastical charity. They comprise 12 hospitals (one public), 10 orphanages (one public), 20 homes for adults (one public), and a school for the deaf (public). Blind children are sent to an institution at Boston at the expense of the State, which also makes grants in aid of charitable associations. The overseers of towns have charge of the poor and of the poor farm and buildings and may cause all their paupers to be supported there, but veterans may not be sent to an almshouse. Towns may contract for the support of their poor. Settlement is obtained by residence for 5 successive years without poor relief and entitles a pauper to support. Parents, grandparents, children, and grand-children are liable for each other's support. It is a punishable offence to bring a pauper into a town where he has no settlement. Towns are reimbursed by the State for the support of a pauper who has no legal settlement in the State.

Finance, Defence—For 1912 the amount of revenue and expenditure was as follows—

	Dollars
Balance from 1911	502,202
Receipts in 1912	5 321,711
Total	5 823,913
Payments, 1912	5,366,785
Balance, January 1, 1913	457,128

The bonded debt in 1911, amounted to 269,000 dollars.

The total valuation of the cities, towns, and plantations for 1911, as certified by the municipal assessors, amounted to 404,897,851 dollars, an increase over the valuation of 1910 of 10 346 243 dollars. These figures do not include the valuation of the wild lands, as fixed by the Board of State Assessors, which is 41 279,890 dollars.

The National Guard of Maine contains 1,398 enlisted men (cavalry and infantry) and 134 officers. The Naval Militia has 7 officers and 109 men.

Production, Commerce, Railways—The products of Maine are derived chiefly from agriculture, forestry, quarrying, and fisheries. The State has, besides other attractions, excellent hunting and fishing, and is a favourite summer resort. The soil is not generally fertile, an important exception being that of the Aroostook valley which is well adapted for the growing of fruit and vegetables. In 1910 the State contained 60,016 farms with a total acreage of 6,296,859 acres, of which 2,860,657 acres was improved land. The chief crops are oats (1912), 4,602 000 bushels, maize, 640,000 bushels, buckwheat, potatoes and hay. In 1910 the farm animals comprised 112,000 horses, 175,000 milk cows, 139,000 other cattle, 264,000 sheep and 62,000 swine. The wool clip amounted to 900,000 pounds of wool, valued at 208,000 dollars in 1910.

In 1911 the quarries yielded granite to the value of 2 263,200 dollars, slate, 283,316 dollars. In the State there are mineral springs, which in 1911 yielded 1,264,783 gallons, valued at 431,740 dollars. The value of the total mineral output in 1911 was estimated at 4,645,630 dollars.

In the State are large granite works, cotton mills, paper mills, manufactures of clothing, &c. In 1910, according to the census of manufactures of that year, the State had 3,546 manufacturing establishments employing altogether 4,880 salaried officials and 78,955 wage-earners. Their aggregate capital amounted to 202,260,000 dollars; the cost of raw materials in a year to 97,101,000 dollars, and the value of a year's output to 178,029,000 dollars. Statistics of some of the leading industries are —

Industries	Capital	Wage earners	Cost of materials	Value of Output
	Dollars	Number	Dollars	Dollars
Paper and wood pulp	66,135,000	8,647	20,504,000	33,950,000

MARYLAND

Government.—The General Assembly consists of a Senate and a House of Delegates. There are 27 senators and 101 Delegates. The Senators serve for four years, and the Senate is renewed to the extent of half every two years. Delegates are elected for two years.

There is manhood suffrage for United States citizens who have resided one year in the State, six months in the Congressional District, and one day in the precinct next preceding election.

Maryland is represented in Congress by two Senators and six Representatives.

Governor.—P. L. Goldsborough, 1912-16 (4,500 dollars).

Secretary of State.—Robert P. Graham.

The State is divided into 23 counties and Baltimore City. The State Capital is Annapolis.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area, 12,210 square miles, of which 9,360 square miles is land.

Years	Population	Per sq. mls.	Years	Population	Per sq. mls.
1820	407,350	41.8	1900	1,188,044	120.5
1860	687,049	69.7	1910	1,295,546	130.3

Of the total in 1910, 232,249 were coloured, 104,176 were foreign born, of whom 44,498 were from Germany, 13,374 from Ireland, 13,574 from Russia and Russian Poland, and 5,299 from England.

The largest city in the State and also the chief manufacturing and commercial centre, is Baltimore with a population in 1910 of 555,485. Other cities, with population in 1910, are Cumberland, 21,889; Hagerstown, 16,507; Frederick, 10,411; Annapolis (Capital), 8,809.

The prevailing forms of religion are Protestant, but Roman Catholics have 35.8 per cent. of the Church membership in the State.

Education compulsory for children 6 to 12 years of age in Baltimore City and Allegany County, and 12 to 16 years unless lawfully employed.

In 1911, there were in the public elementary and high schools of the State, 5,549 teachers, of whom 780 were coloured, and 237,119 enrolled pupils, of whom 43,802 were coloured. The State had 4 normal schools, with 35 teachers and 864 pupils in 1910.

The most important institution for higher education is Johns Hopkins University, organized in 1876. It is non-sectarian, and in 1910 had 198 instructors and 786 students. Its hospital with educational features is famous. The Woman's College, founded in 1888, has 42 instructors and 345 students. Other institutions are the Peabody Institute for the Education of Music, the Maryland Institute School of Art and Design, Walter's Art Gallery, Maryland University, Maryland Agricultural College with 24 professors and 220 students, the Princess Anne Academy for Coloured Youths, with 4 teachers and 47 students.

The Enoch Pratt Free Library has 11 branches, and a recent donation made by Andrew Carnegie of 500,000 dollars provides for 20 additional branches.

Charity.—For charitable purposes the State contains (besides almshouses and asylums for the insane) 117 institutions nearly all provided by private or ecclesiastical charity. They comprise 82 hospitals (one public), 10 dispensaries (two public), 38 orphanages, three day nurseries, 20 homes for adults, and four schools for the deaf and blind (two public). The number of persons admitted (apart from dispensaries and day nurseries) in 1904 was 25,539 (best figures available), and at the end of the year there were 5,571 inmates. The care of the poor and management of almshouses is, in general, regulated by local laws, each valid for a particular county or city, but pauper lunatics and minors are cared for under general laws. Pauper children are placed in families or schools, visited by the proper authorities. In 1909 a new State Tuberculosis Sanatorium was opened at Sablilleville.

Finance, Defence—For the year ending September 30, 1910, the total receipts and disbursements were as follows:—

	Dollars
Balance, Sept. 30, 1911	1 471,520
Receipts, 1911-12	8,908,454
Total, Sept. 30 1912	10 379,974
Disbursements, 1911-12	8,553,744
Balance, Sept. 30, 1912	1,826,230

In 1912 the gross debt of the State amounted to 180,216 095 dollars. In this credit there is 5,701,836 dollars invested in gilt edged securities and 1,500,000 in other securities. In 1911 the assessed valuation of real and personal property amounted to 951 926,271 dollars.

The Militia or National Guard consists of infantry, cavalry, a signal corps and a hospital corps, total, 157 officers and 1,911 enlisted men. The naval militia has 23 officers and 271 enlisted men. The Federal authorities have a navy recruiting rendezvous and a navy pay office at Baltimore. The United States Naval Academy, for the education of boys intended for the Federal naval service, is at Annapolis.

Production and Industry—Agriculture is an important industry in the State, about 82 per cent. of the area being in farms mostly worked by their owners. The chief crops are wheat (599,893 acres valued at 8,586,000 dollars in 1912) maize (24,445,000 bushels, valued at 13,450 000 dollars), hay, potatoes (87,000 acres, 4,144,000 bushels, valued at 2,404,000 dollars in 1912), vegetables and fruit. In 1911, the yield of tobacco was 17,845,699 pounds valued at 1,457,112 dollars. Maryland canned 46 5 per cent. of the tomatoes put up in the United States in 1911. The dairy output in 1910 was worth 44 million dollars, the poultry products, 3,650,000 dollars. The flour mills in 1910 gave an output of 1,015,866 barrels of wheat flour, besides corn meal, feed, and offal. The farm animals in the State on January 1, 1910, were horses, 160 000 mules, 20,000, milk cows, 160 000, other cattle, 138,000, sheep, 163,000, swine, 273,000. The wool clip in 1911 yielded 742,400 pounds of wool, valued at 171,494 dollars.

Of mining industries in the State the most important is coal mining, which, in 1911, gave an output of 4,885,795 short tons, valued at 5,197,066 dollars. Some iron ore is also worked. Quarrying is also of importance, the value of the output of stone of various sorts amounting to 1,070,823 dollars in 1909. Other products were sand, talc, slate, lime, and natural rock cement. The output of bricks, tiles, pottery, &c., was of the value (1911) of 1,848,273 dollars. Pig iron was produced (3,467,789 dollars) from ore imported from other States. The total mineral output in 1911, including pig iron, was valued at 9,386,663 dollars.

The fisheries of the State are valuable, especially the oyster fisheries, which yield more than any other State in the Union. Other fishery products are shad, bass, perch, and various shell fish. Value of fishing products in 1908, 2,305,679 dollars.

The manufacturing industries carried on within the State are extensive and various. In 1911, the capital invested in them amounted to 251,237,000 dollars, they employed 17,568 salaried officials and 107,921 wage-earners, the cost of the raw material used was 200,034,000 dollars, and the output was of the value of 315,689,000 dollars. The more important industries of Baltimore (according to the value of output) in 1910 are indicated thus —

Industries	Capital	Wage earners	Cost of material	Value of output
	Dollars	Number	Dollars	Dollars
Men a clothing	19 238,000	18 596	20,572,000	86 262 000

Shipbuilding	2,079 000	555	260 000	871 000
Foundry and machine work	7,863,000	8 714	4 204 000	9,074 000
Bakeries	2 066 000	1 637	8 639 000	5,714,000
Tin ware copper and sheet iron	20 655 000	4,172	8,172,000	12 653,000
Tobacco manufactures	6 442 000	3,294	5 580,000	10 270,000

The leading industry is copper smelting and refining, others are petroleum refining, shipbuilding, and the manufacture of cotton duck, but of these industries totals cannot be given.

The State has ample facilities for traffic both by sea and land, having railways with 2 165 miles of line in the State and 495 miles of electric rail way, while 80 steamboat lines enter the port of Baltimore, which is one of the best ports on the Atlantic coast. The city, since the disastrous fire in February 1904, is constructing piers, docks and wharves, widening streets, constructing a costly sewerage system, improving the water supply, and continuing electric railways. The harbour channel has been deepened to 35 ft. at mean low water. The railway companies have wharves, piers, and warehouses at their terminals, with elevators and other facilities for the handling of grain, coal, and other merchandise. The tonnage entering the port in 1911 in foreign trade amounted to 1,151 792 tons, and that clearing, to 1,385,186 tons. The value of the imports in 1911 was 23,382,580 dollars (5,840,037), and of the exports, 94 465,806 dollars (19,439,055). The exports consist of wheat, flour, meat, and other provisions, cattle, tobacco, cotton, and dried fruits, many of the products being from Central and Western States.

The construction of a Chesapeake and Delaware ship canal by the Federal Government is progressing. The Inter coastal commission has recommended its purchase at a cost of 2,500 000 dollars (514,400), and that it be increased to a width of 250 feet on the surface and a depth of 25 feet. It further recommended that the canal be continued from Norfolk to North Carolina by the purchase of the existing Albemarle and Chesapeake Canal, linking the Elizabeth River near Norfolk with Currituck Sound in North Carolina. This canal is to have a depth of 12 feet. The entire section, from the Delaware to Beaufort, is estimated to be fully completed within four years after construction has been begun. At Loonst Point, Baltimore, the United States Government will erect a new immigrant station.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Constitution and Government.—After various attempts had been made to colonise the coast of the region which was afterwards called New England, the Plymouth Company in 1614 undertook exploring expeditions and obtained a Royal Charter granting sovereign powers over the region lying to the north of Virginia. It is supposed that the coast of Massachusetts was visited by the Norsemen as early as the year 1,000, but the first permanent settlement within the borders of the present state was made at Plymouth in December, 1620, by the Pilgrims from Holland, who were separatists from the English Church. This was the nucleus of the Plymouth Colony. In 1638 another company of Puritans settled at Salem, and from that beginning the Massachusetts Bay Colony was formed. In 1630 Boston was settled. In 1629 the whole region called New England was formed into a province. By a special Charter the Government was divided between the colony of Plymouth and that of Massachusetts Bay, but in 1692 they were re-united, and thenceforward acted together both in peace and war. In the struggle which ended in the separation of the American colonies from the mother country, Massachusetts took the foremost part, and became one of the thirteen original States of the Union.

There is a legislative body consisting of a Senate and a House of Representatives, styled collectively the General Court of Massachusetts. The Senate consists of 40 members elected annually by popular vote, the State being divided into 40 senatorial districts each of which returns one senator. The House of Representatives consists of 240 members, elected in 178 districts, each of which returns one, two or three representatives according to population. There is an annual session of the Legislature.

Male citizens of the United States who can read and write may vote in all State elections, provided they are not paupers or under guardianship, and provided they have lived one year in the State and six months in the election district or precinct.

The State sends 2 Senators and 16 Representatives to the Federal Congress.

Governor—Eugene N. Foss, of Boston, re-elected for 1918, third term, (salary, 8,000 dollars).

Secretary of the Commonwealth.—Frank J. Donahue, 1918.

There are 14 counties in the State, varying largely in population, and there are 83 cities and 321 towns. The State Capital is Boston.

Area, Population, Instruction.—With a land area of 8,040 square miles Massachusetts had, according to the United States census of 1910, a population of 3,366,416, representing an increase of 561,070 or 20·0 per cent. over 1900. The average number of persons per square mile was 418·7 in 1910, as compared with 348·9 in 1900. The total population of the State in 1910 was 3,366,416, and the number of legal voters in 1905 was 674,164. Of the total population, 1,654,226 were males and 1,711,190 were females; 3,326,658 were white, 39,643, coloured, 2,498, Chinese; 140 Japanese, and 686 Indian. The native born numbered 2,665,638 and the foreign born, 918,044. The returns for nativity of the foreign born showed that the leading nationalities of the foreign born were: Irish, 236,872; Canadian-French, 118,747; English, 68,663; Nova Scotian, 66,191; Italian, 58,648; Canadian-English, 48,678; Russian, 42,804; Swedish, 37,517; German, 36,353; Canadian (New Brunswick), 34,716; Scotch, 34,668; Polish, 21,460;

Portuguese (Western Islands), 20,859 These returns show that there has been a large influx of immigrants from Italy and Russia since 1900

According to the United States census of 1910, the population of each of the 85 cities of the State was as follows —

Cities	Population	Cities	Population	Cities	Population
Boston (capital)	679,368	Brockton	56,876	Waltham	37,834
Worcester	146,988	Malden	44,404	Chicopee	26,401

The Registrar's Report for 1911 showed Births, 88,327 deaths, 53,082 divorces granted, 2,137 The number of marriages in 1911 was 32,051 Divorce is granted for cruelty, desertion drunkenness, imprisonment, impotency, intoxication non support, and nullity of marriage

The total number of church members and communicants in the State in 1906 (Special Report, United States Bureau of the Census) was 1,562,621, as compared with a total population in 1900 of 2,806,346 Of the 1,562,621 members and communicants 1,080,706 were communicants of the Roman Catholic Church, and 449,358 were members of Protestant bodies, while the remaining 32,557 belonged to other religious bodies The leading Protestant bodies, with the number of members, were as follows Congregational 119,196, Baptist, 78,165, Methodist-Episcopal, 61,828, Protestant Episcopal 51,836, Church of Christ, Scientist, 43,547, Unitarian, 35,440, and Universalist, 12,983

The only provision for religious instruction in the public schools of the State is that a portion of the Bible shall be read daily, without written note or oral comment, but a pupil, whose parent or guardian informs the teacher in writing that he has conscientious scruples against it, shall not be required to read from any particular version, or take any personal part in the reading The school committee shall not purchase or use school books in the public schools calculated to favour the tenets of any particular religious sect The law provides, however, for moral instruction in the public schools and in the higher educational institutions.

There is a State Board of Education School attendance is compulsory from 7 to 14 years of age For the school year ending June 30, 1912, the number of teachers required for the public common schools was 16,403, the total number of pupils enrolled was 546,326, and the average attendance was 457,589 (returns for one town not included) The 269 public high schools had 2,713 teachers and 69,090 pupils In 1911 there were 401 private schools and academies with 102,910 pupils, and there were 10 State normal schools with an enrolment on October 1, 1911, of 2,865 pupils

State-aided vocational schools were inaugurated in Massachusetts under a law enacted in 1908 In 1907-08 the number of such schools was six with an enrolment of 1,400 In 1911-12 the number was 24 with an enrolment of 7,164 For the year 1910-11, the State expended $5,784 dollars by way of reimbursement for one-half of the operating expenses of these schools. This amount was expended for the reimbursement of cities and towns maintaining approved day and evening industrial, agricultural and household art schools under the provisions of Chapter 471, Acts of 1911

Within the State there are 17 colleges and universities, of which 14 are non-sectarian and 3 are sectarian (2 Catholic and 1 Methodist). Of these 17 institutions, 6 are exclusively for women. These institutions, with the year of foundation, incorporation, or charter and the numbers of members of the teaching staff and students (October, 1912), are:—

Charity and Correction.—On October 1, 1911, there were in the State eleven public institutions strictly for the insane, two for the feeble-minded, one for inebriates, and one for epileptics, and in addition to these, there were one large private institution for the insane and 25 smaller institutions for one or more of the above classes of patients. The whole number of insane in institutions in the State on October 1, 1911, was 12,914, of which number 12,287 were in the public institutions. Of the total number, 6,865 were males and 6,029 were females. The total number of feeble-minded in the State was 2,034, of whom 1,192 were males and 842 were females.

Each city and town must support the indigent poor lawfully settled therein, settlement of adults being acquired in general by residence for 5 consecutive years. Elected or appointed overseers of the poor in towns and cities provide for the poor by out-door relief, or by boarding them (under contract and State inspection) with other families, or in almshouses. Liability for support of relatives extends to parents, grandparents, children and grand children. It is an offense to bring a pauper into a place where he has no legal settlement. The State provides for paupers who have no settlement, and the State Board of Charity visits and reports on almshouses.

On September 1, 1913, there were 13 institutions under the supervision of the State Board of Charity, consisting of the State Farm with 2,317 inmates, the State Infirmary with 2,187 inmates, three industrial schools with 877 inmates, a hospital school for crippled children with 324 inmates, four sanatoria for consumptives with 851 inmates, the Norfolk State Hospital with 47 inmates, and Pesthouse Hospital (for leprosy) with 15 inmates. In addition to the above, there were in 1910, as State minor wards, under the custodial care of the Board, 3,259 children boarded in families and 1,877 children in families without board.

The number of paupers in almshouses during the fiscal year ending November 30, 1911, was 10,860. Besides almshouses and asylums for the insane, &c., there were in Massachusetts during the same year 742 incorporated charitable institutions from which annual returns were called for by the State Board of Charity. The number of institutions which made returns to the Board was 676.

The penal institutions in the State consist of 5 strictly State institutions and 91 county jails or houses of correction. On September 30, 1912 the number of prisoners in these institutions was 6,358, being 537 less than on the corresponding date in 1911. During the fiscal year 1911 the number of sentences was 29,657, of which 1,905 were for crimes against the person, 8,665 against property, 24,467 against public order. Of the offences against public order, 30,088 were for drunkenness leaving 4,411 for all other offences in this class.

Finance, Defence—For the fiscal year ending November 30, 1912, the net revenue and expenditures of the State were as follows—

	Dollars
Cash in Treasury, December 1, 1911	8,208,335
Net receipts, year ending November 30, 1912	48,054,456
Total	56,262,791
Total net expenditure, year ending Nov. 30, 1912	47,892,827

Cash in Treasury, December 1, 1911	8,369,864

The direct debt of the State on December 1, 1911, amounted to 41,920,417 dollars, while the sinking fund amounted to 21,488,295 dollars. The contingent debt amounted to 74,813,745 dollars and its sinking fund to 14,406,853 dollars.

For the year ending November 30, 1911, the assessed value of real and personal property in the State amounted to 5,417,678,441 dollars, as compared with an assessed valuation of 5,027,154,808 dollars for the previous year.

For the financial year ending January 31, 1912, the actual receipts of the city of Boston were 33,789,589 dollars, and the actual expenditures were 33,941,529 dollars, while the net funded debt of the city, including the Cochituate Water Debt and the Suffolk County Debt for which the city is responsible, was 73,474,233 dollars.

The military force of the State is the Massachusetts Volunteer Militia, composed of the land forces (the Massachusetts National Guard) with an authorized strength of 6,807, and the naval forces (the Massachusetts Naval Militia), with an authorized strength of 695. In January, 1912, the actual strength of the National Guard was 6,890, comprising 2 general officers, 72 officers in the staff departments, 9 enlisted men in staff departments, 5 regiments and 2 separate battalions of infantry (4,178), headquarters, band, and 12 companies of coast artillery (802), 1 battalion of 3 four gun batteries of field artillery (374), 1 squadron of 4 troops of cavalry (265), 1 signal corps company (59), and hospital corps and ambulance company (134). The number of men liable to military service was 555,125. The U. S. Navy Department has loaned the State for the use of its Naval Militia the cruiser Albatross and the torpedo boat Albatross. Men are enlisted for a period of three years, on the expiration of which they may re-enlist for one, two, or three years.

Under the authority of the U. S. Statutes, a steam sloop of war (U. S. S. Albatross) is loaned by the National Government to the State to be used as a training ship by the pupils of the State Naval School, the officers of this vessel are detailed by the U. S. Navy Department. There is an armed vessel under the control of the State which is used to prevent incursion on the fishing grounds of the Commonwealth.

Production, Industry, Commerce.—In 1910 the number of farms in Massachusetts (a farm being defined for census purpose as 'any tract of land of three or more acres used for agricultural purposes, and also any tract containing less than three acres which produced at least 250 dollars worth of farm products in the year 1909') was 36,917 or 2.1 per cent. less than in 1900. Approximately 56 per cent. of the total land area of the State was in farms, the total acreage of farm land having decreased 8.6 per cent. since 1900. Notwithstanding this decrease in area of farm lands, the value and productivity of such lands have increased considerably since 1900. The value of all farm property (including land valued at 105,532,616 dollars) in the State in 1910 was 226,474,025 dollars, representing an increase in value of 24 per cent. during the decade 1900-10. Of the 36,917 farms in the State, approximately 87 per cent. were operated by the owners, 5 per cent. by managers, and 8 per cent. by tenants. The total value of the agricultural products of the State during the year 1909, was 31,948,095 dollars, representing an increase of 38 per cent. over the corresponding total for the year 1899. The principal agricultural products in 1909 with their values were: Hay and forage, 11,280,989 dollars; potatoes and other vegetables, 8,184,213 dollars; flowers and plants and nursery products, 3,061,842 dollars; forest products of farms, 2,668,410 dollars; fruits and nuts, 2,108,799 dollars; small fruits, 1,676,790 dollars; cereals, 1,617,131 dollars; and tobacco, 1,218,060 dollars. The cultivation of tobacco is confined largely to the Connecticut valley.

In the last half of the nineteenth century so many industrial enterprises came into existence that Massachusetts has been quite transformed from an agricultural into a manufacturing community. At present nearly three-fourths of the population dwell in the cities or closely settled places.

The census of manufactures in the State in 1910 showed that the total capital invested in manufactures was 1,194,442,498<sup>1</sup> dollars (in 1905 965,948,887<sup>2</sup> dollars), employing on the average 578,551 persons (in 1905 488,389 persons), who earned 304,852,691 dollars (in 1905 232,388,946 dollars), using raw material valued at 863,381,868 dollars (in 1905, 626,410,481 dollars), and turned out products worth 1,465,749,810 dollars (in 1905, 1,124,092,051 dollars).

Condensed statistics of the more important industries are given in the following table (1910 census).—

Industries	No of Estab-lish-ments	Capital invested dollars	Stock used dollars	Goods made and work done dollars	Persons employed	Wages dollars

The Massachusetts fisheries are important. According to the Census of 1905 they employed 16,796 men, including officers and crew, 1,809 vessels and 2,422 boats, the value of the products was 8,986,186 dollars. The fish caught included cod, haddock, mackerel, halibut, and herring, besides oysters and other shell fish.

In 1905 the first census of mercantile trade ever taken in the United States was taken in Massachusetts. The returns showed that the total value of goods sold by all the mercantile establishments in the State was 1,884,241,883 dollars of which amount the sum of 987,009,354 dollars was credited to Boston. The number of establishments in the State was 29,045 the total capital invested in them was 287,966,450 dollars.

There is very little mining within the State. Iron pyrites is worked to a limited extent in the west. Coal is found, but it is of little value, asbestos, talc and soapstone, infusorial earth and emery are found. Marl, peat, sand, and clay are found throughout the State, and there are extensive brick and earthenware works. The output of clay products (bricks, pottery, &c.) in 1911 was valued at 1,700,287 dollars. There are large stone quarries at Quincy and Rockport. The output of granite in 1911 was valued at 3,681,747 dollars. Other quarry products were sandstone, trap rock, marble, and limestone. The value of all the mineral products (including pig iron from two blast furnaces) was 8,623,077 dollars in 1911.

A large foreign trade is carried on through the Port of Boston, which is port of entry for several foreign steamship companies. In the year 1911 (including the trade of Charlestown) the imports were valued at 115,682,058 dollars and the exports (including foreign trans shipped) at 73,918,325 dollars. The principal commodities imported, with valuation, were Wool, 12,161,433 dollars, hides and skins, 17,603,395 dollars, cotton, 19,549,494 dollars, sugar, 8,519,150 dollars, fibres and vegetable grasses, 13,698,313 dollars, chemicals, drugs and dyes, 5,325,112 dollars, and iron and steel manufactures, 4,060,486 dollars. The principal exports, with valuation were Meat and dairy products, 15,705,580 dollars, leather, 12,708,547 dollars, cotton, 10,576,830 dollars, breadstuffs, 8,104,516 dollars, iron and steel manufactures, 6,424,812 dollars, and animals, 4,918,281 dollars.

According to the State census taken in 1905 the value of vessels (including outfit but not wharf property, &c.) registered in Massachusetts and engaged in coastwise and ocean commerce was 21,652,277 dollars. The total earnings of these vessels was 30,518,157 dollars.

In 1911 the vessels engaged in foreign trade which entered the port of Boston had a tonnage of 2,907,821; and those which cleared 1,891,754. The tonnage of vessels engaged in the coasting trade and entering the port of Boston was 11,905,887.

The total number of immigrants from Trans-Atlantic ports admitted at the Port of Boston during the year 1911, arriving at this port for the first time and intending to remain permanently, was 41,900, classified as follows — Italians (principally South Italian), 10,498, English, 7,042, Irish, 6,699, Scandinavian, 4,534, Scotch, 3,331, Portuguese, 3,150, Jews, 2,132, Finnish, 1,054, all others, 3,460. Of the total number (41,900) 25,128 or 59.97 per cent. gave their destination as Massachusetts.

On June 30, 1911, there were 2,111 miles of main and branch steam rail roads in the State. The 3 principal railroads, the Boston and Albany (New York Central and Hudson River, lease), the Boston and Maine, and the New York, New Haven and Hartford, each having a terminus in Boston, have operated about 95 per cent of the railroad mileage and conducted over 93 per cent of the entire passenger and freight business as expressed in gross income. On June 30, 1911, the total length of electric railways (main and second track, surface and elevated) within the State was 2,721 miles. The elevated track is confined to Boston.

On September 1, 1911, there were 188 national banks in operation in the State, of which 17 were in Boston. The total assets of the 188 National banks amounted to 544,867,821 dollars. On October 21, 1911, there were in operation in the State 192 savings-banks with assets of 862,634,063 dollars and 169 co-operative banks with assets of 67,573,381 dollars, and 62 trust companies having an aggregate capital on December 5, 1911, of 23,988,000 dollars. For many years there have been no State banks, strictly so-called, in Massachusetts. The total clearings of the Boston Clearing House during the calendar year, 1911, amounted to 8,389,718,553 dollars.

MICHIGAN

Government.—According to the revised constitution adopted in 1908 the legislative authority is vested in a Senate of 32 members elected by the counties or groups of counties for 2 years, and a House of Representatives of 100 members, the electoral districts being re arranged according to population every 10 years. Electors are male citizens over 21 years of age resident in the State for 6 months next preceding the election, and resident at the time of the election in the district, county, or township for which the election is held.

The State is represented in Congress by 2 Senators and 13 Representatives.

Governor.—Woodbridge N. Ferris, 1913-15 ($5,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—Frederick C. Martindale.

For local government the State is organized in counties, cities, townships, and villages. There are 83 counties, each of which is a corporate body with a Board of Supervisors as its administrative authority. Cities must have each a population of not less than 2,000, but a few which have been long incorporated have a smaller population. Cities hereafter incorporated must have at least 2,000 inhabitants and 500 persons per square mile. Villages in the legal sense have a population of at least 500 within an area of a square mile. The State Capital is Lansing.

Area, Population, Education.—Area, 58,815 square miles, of which 1,455 square miles is water. The total length of Michigan coast line is 1,620 miles.

1820	8,722	174	8,896	0.1
1860	742,314	6,798	749,113	13.0
1900	2,406,166	16,816	2,422,982	42.2

In 1904 the population by sex and birth was —

	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male	1,287,956	7,897	241	3,061	1,298,854
Female	1,231,074	6,809	5	2,874	1,231,862
Total	2,509,030	14,706	246	5,935	2,530,016

In 1910 there were 1,454,584 males and 1,355,639 females.

Of the total population 2,530,016 in 1904, 546,861 were foreign born, of whom 183,689 were from British America, 124,456 Germany, 42,138 England, 86,193 Poland, 31,072 Holland, 28,573 Ireland, 26,438 Sweden, 19,067 Finland, 9,900 Scotland, 7,632 Norway, 7,053 Italy. There is a scattered Indian population throughout the northern part of the State, and a small reservation in Beraga County.

In 1910 the population of the principal cities was —

Cities	Pop	Cities	Pop	Cities	Pop
Detroit	463,706	Battle Creek	25,267	Manistee	12,381
Grand Rapids	112,571	Muskegon	24,002	Alpena	12,706

Kalamazoo	39,487	Flint	38,650	Monominee	10,507
Jackson	31,483	Ann Arbor	14,517	Marquette	11,506

The death rate per 1,000 of population in the State was, in 1908, 15.9, in 1909, 13.6, in 1910, 14.4.

The more important religious bodies are the Roman Catholic, Methodist, Lutheran, Baptist, Presbyterian, and Congregational.

Education is compulsory for the school term for children from 7 to 16 years of age. In 1911 the public schools had 545,379 enrolled pupils and 19,207 teachers, 852 public high schools had 1,739 teachers and 38,667 pupils. The State has 4 public normal schools with 161 teachers and 5,667 pupils in 1911. The highest education provided by the State is given in the University of Michigan, founded in 1817 at Ann Arbor, in 1911 it had 423 professors and teachers and 5,291 students. There is a State Agricultural College at Lansing, founded in 1855; it had (1911) 123 professors and 1,868 students. There is a college of Mines at Houghton; in 1911 it had 28 instructors and 233 students. Other institutions are —

Charity—Each county has 3 Superintendents of the poor appointed by the board of supervisors, and has (or may have) infirmaries. Either indoor or outdoor relief may be given, indigent persons suffering from disease or injury are sent to the University Hospital at Ann Arbor. Where there is a distinction between county and township poor, the poor are supported by the township in which they have a settlement. Parents are liable for support of children and vice versa. In general, settlement is gained by a year's residence. To bring an indigent person into the State is a misdemeanor punishable by fine or imprisonment. Poor houses are inspected and reported on by the State board of corrections and charities. Number of persons maintained in the poor houses during 1911 was 6,636. Average number for the entire year was 3,460. Within the State there are (apart from almshouses, &c.) 118 benevolent institutions, most of them provided by private persons or ecclesiastical bodies. They comprise 59 hospitals (six public), a sanatorium for the treatment of persons suffering from tuberculosis, six dispensaries, 23 orphan ages (one public), 26 homes for adults (one public), and three schools for the deaf and blind (3 public).

Finance, Defence.—For the year ending June 30, 1912, the revenue and expenditure were as follows:—

	Dollars.
Balance, July 1, 1911	2,235,425
Receipts, 1911-12	14,190,498
Total	16,425,924
Disbursements, 1911-12	7,445,519
Balance, July 1, 1912	8,980,404

In 1911 the total assessed valuation of the State as equalized amounted to 2,288,000,000 dollars. In 1904 the value of all property within the State was estimated by the Federal Census Bureau at:—

	Dollars
Real property	2,019,296,490
Personal property	1,268,123,627
Total	3,287,419,117

The Michigan National Guard had in 1912 216 officers and 2,568 enlisted men. The Naval Militia of the State comprised 40 officers and 400 men.

Production and Industry—The State is largely agricultural. In 1910 it contained 290,940 farms with a total area of 18,940,514 acres, of which 12,532,078 acres was improved land. In 1912 the chief crops were maize, 55,250,000 bushels, wheat, 7,000,000 bushels, hay, 3,185,000 tons, potatoes, 25,750,000 bushels. In 1909 the best-sugar manufactured was 106,844 tons. In 1910 the number of sheep was 2,302,478. Other live stock in 1910 consisted of 610,043 horses, 767,063 milk cows, 780,740 other cattle and 1,245,883 swine. The estimated acreage and yield per acre of the principal fruits raised in Michigan in 1911 are as follows—Apples, 269,449 acres, yielding 41.08 bushels per acre, peaches, 80,000 acres, with 51.75 bushels per acre, strawberries, 10,217 acres, with 61.42 bushels per acre.

Michigan has immense resources of iron ore in the Marquette, Menominee, and Gogebic ranges. The total output of ore in 1911 amounted to 8,944,893 long tons (28,808,935 dollars). Copper mining in the Lake Superior region is of very great importance. The yield of copper amounted in 1911 to 218,185,286 pounds (27,278,155 dollars), silver, in 1911 was produced to the amount of 507,700 fine ounces (274,100 dollars), salt (1911), 9,768,410 barrels (2,455,983 dollars), coal, 1,476,074 short tons (2,791,461 dollars). The output of the clay working industries (bricks, tiles, &c.) in 1911 was valued at 2,083,932 dollars, of Portland cement (1911), 3,686,718 barrels (3,024,676 dollars). Graphite, asbestos, grindstones, gypsum, sandstone, limestone, mineral waters, and (in small quantity) petroleum are worked. The mineral output in 1911 including iron ore, but not pig-iron, was 65,077,282 dollars.

The manufacturing industries of the State are concerned chiefly with lumber, timber, and agricultural products, metal working and machinery. In 1909, the number of manufacturing establishments reported on was 9,159, with an aggregate capital of 533,947,000 dollars, 7,732 proprietors or firm members, 30,607 clerks, &c., and 221,499 wage earners. The cost of materials used during the year was 868,612,000 dollars, and the value of the output was 685,109,000 dollars. Statistics (census 1910) of some of the more important industries are as follows—

Industries	Capital	Wage earners	Cost of Materials	Output
	Dollars	Number	Dollars	Dollars
Lumber and Timber	57,390,000	35,627	99,042,000	61,514,000

Canning and preserving	4,495,000	2,073	3,074,000	4,971,000

In 1909, Michigan contributed 83.8 per cent. of the total value of products for the automobile industry for the country as a whole. Detroit holds sixth place as a manufacturing city.

Other industrial products are butter and cheese, beet sugar, chemicals, various forms of iron and steel work, and malt liquors. Slaughtering and meat packing have also considerable importance.

In 1911 there were 9,122 miles of railway in operation, besides 906 miles of electric railway, exclusive of city lines. During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1912, 48,578,923 net tons of freight passed through the St. Mary's Falls Ship Canal. This canal is located at Sault Ste. Marie, Michigan, and serves as a gateway between the lakes, it is the largest ship canal in the world.

Government.—The legislature consists of a Senate of 33 members, one being elected in each of the legislative districts, and a House of Representatives of 119 members elected in the same districts in numbers proportioned to population. Senators are elected for 4 years, half their number retiring every 2 years, Representatives are elected for 2 years.

Governor—A. O. Eberhart 1913 15 (7,000 dollars.)

Secretary of State—Julius A. Schmahel

There are 82 counties, few of which contain less than 400 square miles and 2,000 inhabitants. Townships, as in other western States, are geographically areas of land 36 miles square, each divided into 36 sections of one square mile, numbered on a uniform principle. When organized they are corporate bodies with a town meeting, 3 supervisors, and other officers elected for one year. Incorporated villages have not less than 175 inhabitants, they form separate election and assessment districts and have each a village council. The State Capital is St. Paul.

Area, Population, Education—Area 83,366 square miles, of which 4,166 square miles is water. The population in 1910 numbered 2,076,708 (1,108,511 males and 967,197 females) of whom 7,084 were coloured. The foreign born inhabitants numbered 505,318, comprising, 117,007 Germans, 115,478 Swedes, 104,895 Norwegians, 36,515 English Canadians, 22,428 Irish, 16,299 Danes, 12,063 French Canadians, and 12,022 English. The Indian Reservations in the State have an area of 1,481 square miles and contain over 3,000 Indians.

The largest towns are Minneapolis with a population of 281,408 in 1910, St. Paul (the administrative capital), 214,744, Duluth, 78,496 Winona, 18,583, Stillwater, 10,193, Mankato, 10,365.

The chief religious bodies are the Roman Catholic, Lutheran, Methodist, Presbyterian, and Baptist.

In 1910 the public elementary schools of the State had 15,157 teachers and 440,083 enrolled pupils, 199 public high schools had 1,080 teachers and 23,018 pupils. For the instruction of teachers (who are examined and licensed by county superintendents) there were 6 public normal schools with 111 teachers and 2,801 pupils in 1910. The University of Minnesota at Minneapolis, founded in 1868, had 269 professors and 4,452 students in 1910. Other institutions for superior instruction are —

Charity.—Within the State there are (besides almshouses and asylums for the insane, &c.) 86 benevolent institutions, 74 of which have been provided by private persons or ecclesiastical bodies. They comprise 44 hospitals (seven public), three dispensaries (one public), 16 orphanages (one public), three day nurseries, 18 homes mainly for adults (one public), a school for the deaf and another for the blind (both public). The county commissioners are superintendents of the poor, and erect and maintain a county poor-house, or otherwise provide for the indigent. They appoint an overseer. In counties with the township system of poor relief, the supervisors of towns, and the common councils of villages and cities, are the superintendents of the poor, but the county commissioners (with the approval of the State board of control) may erect and maintain a poor house. Parents, grand parents, children, grand children, brothers and sisters are liable for support of a pauper. Legal settlement is gained by a year's residence. In counties under township system there is provision for aiding non-resident paupers, and for deportation of alien paupers. A person bringing a pauper into a county is liable to a fine of 50 dollars.

Finance Defence—The revenue and expenditure for the year ending July 31 1911, were —

	Dollars
Balance on August 1, 1911	5,608,491
Receipts to July 31, 1912	15,895,302
Total	19,513,793
Payments to July 31, 1912	16,821,065
Balance August 1, 1912	2,992,728

The funded debt (1910) amounted to 141 000 dollars. The assessed value of property was (1909) Real, 897,641,617 dollars, personal, 193,043,319 dollars total, 1,090,684,936 dollars. In 1904 the value of all property in the State was estimated at —

	Dollars
Real property	1 982,552,389
Personal property	1,361,169,687
Total	3,343,722,076

The Militia, called the National Guard, contained, in 1909, 201 officers and 6,747 enlisted men. All able bodied men from 21 to 45 years of age are enrolled and liable to military service. The naval militia has 11 officers and 123 men.

Production and Industry—Minnesota is largely an agricultural State. In 1910 it contained 156,137 farms with a total area of 27,675,823 acres, of which 19,849,523 acres was improved land. In 1912 2,266,000 acres of land under maize yielded 78,137,000 bushels. Other crops were wheat, 47,036,000 bushels; oats, 132,992,000 bushels; barley, 42,018,000 bushels; flax-seed, 4,121,000 bushels. On January 1, 1910, the farm animals included 767,000 horses, 1,125,000 milk cows and 1,229,000 other cattle, 482,000 sheep, and 1,600,000 swine. In 1911 the wool clip amounted to 1,747,500 pounds of wool, valued at 698,850 dollars.

The mining of iron ore, mostly red hematite, in the Mesabi and Vermilion ranges has reached great importance. Certain quarry products also are of value, the output of granite, sandstone, and limestone being great, clay products, 1,702,525 dollars. Including iron ore, but not pig iron, the total mineral output in 1911 was estimated at the value of 53,460,561 dollars.

Other industries are connected with the traffic in cattle, sheep, and swine, while important manufacturing industries are the making of boots and shoes, clothing, furniture, metal goods, and machinery. According to the census of manufactures of 1910 there were in the State 5,561 manufacturing establishments with a total capital of 275,416,000 dollars, employing 84,767 wage earners, who were paid in the year 15,452,000 dollars, the cost of raw material used was 281,622,000 dollars and the output was valued at 400,420,000 dollars.

Minneapolis is an important centre of the grain trade. In 1909 the receipts comprised wheat, 81,111,410 bushels, corn, 5,082,850 bushels, oats, 14,059,230 bushels, barley, 20,285,500 bushels while the shipments comprised wheat, 21,693,500 bushels, corn, 3,124,500 bushels, oats, 15,323,920 bushels, barley, 18,000,120 bushels. Duluth is an important port on Lake Superior.

In 1910, Minnesota had 8,668 miles of railway, besides 500 miles of electric railway track. From St. Paul 10 railways, with a total length of 60,000 miles radiate. The Great Northern Railway Company of St. Paul has a line of steamers which sail between Puget Sound and China, Japan, and the Philippines, the railway of the company carrying vast loads of merchandise from St. Paul to the port of shipment at very low freights.

MISSISSIPPI

Government.—The Legislature consists of a Senate and a House of Representatives, both elected for four years.

Qualified as electors are all male United States citizens who have resided in the State and in the election district for one year (clergymen for six months) next before the election, have paid the legal taxes, and have been registered. The applicant for registration must be able to read the State Constitution or show that he understands it when it is read to him (a requirement intended to secure white domination).

The State is represented in Congress by two Senators and eight Representatives.

Governor — Earl Brewer, 1912-18 (4,500 dollars).

Secretary of State. — J W Power

The State capital is Jackson (population in 1900, 7,818). Mississippi is divided into 78 counties.

Area, Population, Education.—Area 46,810 square miles, 470 square miles being water

Total	641,200	907,630	237	2,253	1,551,270

In 1910 there were 905 761 males and 891 353 females.

The foreign born inhabitants numbered 7,981 of whom 1,926 were German, and 1,264 Irish. In 1910 the population of the larger cities was Meridian, 20 503, Vicksburg, 15,710 Natchez, 13,476

About half the church going inhabitants of Mississippi are Baptists and one third are Methodists. The remainder are mostly Roman Catholic, Presbyterian, or Disciples (Christians). There is no law for compulsory attendance at school, white and coloured children are taught in separate schools. In 1910 the public elementary schools had 10 166 teachers, 469,137 enrolled pupils. 147 public high schools had 395 teachers and 7,708 pupils. Two public normal schools in 1910 had 5 teachers and 217 students. For higher education Mississippi has 6 universities and colleges. These institutions comprise the University of Mississippi, which in 1910 had 46 instructors and 490 students, Mississippi College, Clinton (Bapt), with 18 professors and 398 students, Rust University, Holly Springs (M E S), with 8 professors and 255 students, and Millsaps College, Jackson (M E S), with 12 professors and 265 students. The Agricultural and Mechanical College has 64 professors and 1 090 students. The Alcorn Agricultural and Mechanical College for coloured youths has 21 professors and 618 students. The Mississippi Industrial Institute and College for the education of the young women of the State, has 32 teachers and 760 students.

Charity—Within the State are (apart from almshouses, &c.) 17 benevolent institutions, of which 13 have been provided by private persons or ecclesiastical bodies. They comprise six hospitals (two public), six orphan ages, three homes, mainly for adults, a school for deaf, and one for blind children (both public). The new State Charity Hospital at Jackson is now nearing completion.

The county board of supervisors have charge of the county poor, control the poor house, and appoint the superintendent. Parents, grand parents, and descendants of a pauper are liable for his support. Persons after six months residence in a county may claim poor relief, others are supported by the county of residence. Pauper orphan children may be apprenticed on contract.

Finance, Defence—The annual receipts and disbursements in the year ending September 30, 1912, were as follows:—

	Dollars
Balance, October 1, 1911	573,047
Receipts, 1911-12	4,172,283
Total	4,751,330
Disbursements, 1911-12	4,500,831
Balance, October 1, 1912	250,999

In 1911 the bonded debt of the State amounted to 4,185,891 dollars. For 1910 the assessed valuations were Real property, 231,882,588 dollars, personal property, 110 713,772 dollars, railroads, &c., 51,002,284 dollars total, 393,608,644 dollars.

The State militia, or National Guard, in 1911 had a strength of 135 officers and 1 873 men.

Production and Industry—Agriculture is the chief industry of the State, which has a semi-tropical climate and a rich soil. In 1910 the farm area was 18,567,533 acres, of which 9,008,310 acres was improved land. The chief product is cotton, which was grown on 3,391,000 acres, and yielded 1,344,419 bales in 1910, valued at 88,830,000 dollars. Other crops are maize, 56,840 000 bushels in 1912, rice, wheat, oats, potatoes, and tobacco (60,000 pounds from 100 acres). In 1910 there were in the State 385,000 horses, 260,000 mules, 380,000 milk cows, 577,000 other cattle, 178,000 sheep, and 1,296,000 swine.

The State has oyster, shrimp, and other fisheries. The fishery products in 1908 were valued at 556,170 dollars. Though there are mineral deposits in Mississippi such as hydraulic limestone, coal, gypsum, and rich clay, there is no mining enterprise. The total mineral output in 1911 was valued at 1,052,642 dollars, and that amount included 687,836 dollars for clay products.

In 1910 there were 2,598 establishments engaged in the manufacturing industries, their aggregate capital amounted to 72,393,000 dollars, they employed 3,403 clerks, &c., and 50,384 wage-earners, the raw material used cost 36,936,000 dollars, and their output was valued at 80,555,000 dollars. The most important industries are associated with the products of the State.

Railway cars, &c.	1,416,000	2,218	1,237,000	2,228,000

Oyster-canning and preserving, and the manufacture of fertilizers are also important.

The State in 1910 had 4,506 miles of railway, besides 96 miles of electric railways. The railroads with greatest length of line in the State are the Yazoo and Mississippi Valley, the Illinois Central, the Southern, the Mobile and Jackson and Kansas City, the Mobile and Ohio, and the Gulf and Ship Island railways. The Mississippi river and the Gulf Coast provide natural facilities for transport.

The Lincoln Institute for coloured youths has 19 professors and 511 students.

Charity —The Missouri system of charities and corrections proper consists of 13 separately governed state charitable and penal institutions, of county goals and almshouses or infirmaries in practically all counties of the state, of special institutions of this character controlled by some of the larger cities, a general system of public relief of the poor in their homes amounting to somewhat less than 250,000 dollars annually and juvenile courts in the six largest urban districts of the state. In 1908 the sum of $78,693 dollars was expended by counties on 2,893 persons in state hospitals, and $30,683 dollars on 12,457 persons not in state hospitals. In each county the county court has the care of the poor inhabitants, and may erect a poor-house, appoint a superintendent, and make regulations for management. An inhabitant of a county is one who has resided there 12 months before applying relief, but the court at its discretion may relieve others. Support of the poor may be let out by contract.

Finance, Defenses.—For the years 1912 and 1911 the revenue and expenditure were —

	1912 Dollars	1911 Dollars
Balance, January 1, 1912 and 1911	2,038,712	1,829,546
Receipts, 1912 and 1911	11,013,126	9,164,661

Balance, Jan 1, 1913 and 1912	2,981,831	2,038,712

On January 1, 1911 the bonded debt of the State amounted to 4,398,829 dollars (interest being payable to State funds). The assessed value of real property (1911) was 1,857,245 dollars, of personal property, 4,868,585 dollars of railway bridge, telephone and telegraph property, assessed by State board, 1,817,151 dollars.

The militia, or National Guard, consists of infantry and artillery with a total strength of 223 officers and 3,217 men in 1909, the naval militia had 10 officers and 96 men.

Production and Industry — Agriculture is the chief occupation in the State. In 1910 the farm area was 34,591,248 acres, of which 24,581,000 acres was improved land. The chief crops are cereals. In 1912 the maize crop amounted to 245,042,000 bushels, wheat to 21,546,720 bushels, and oats 29,488,500 bushels. Potatoes and sorghum are grown throughout the State. In the south-eastern lowlands the important product is cotton, the area under which was 59,800 acres and the yield 25,857,000 pounds. In 1912, 10,150 acres were under flax, yielding 71,071 bushels of flax seed. The acreage under tobacco was 5,174, from which the crop was 4,894,600 pounds, valued at 587,352 dollars. There are many orchards, and small fruit is grown. Stock raising is important, especially the raising of hogs of which in 1910 there were 2,714,000 in the State. In that year there were also 925,000 milk cows, 2,165,000 other cattle, 957,000 sheep, and 1,005,000 horses. The wool clip in 1911 yielded 8,050,000 pounds of wool, valued at 1,663,985 dollars.

The productive coal fields of Missouri have an area of about 14,000 square miles, and employ 11,104 miners. The output in 1911 amounted to 3,760,607 short tons, valued at 6,431,066 dollars. Petroleum and natural gas are also produced. The output of red and brown hematite iron ore was 72,788 long tons, valued at 153,676 dollars. The output of zinc was 127,540 short tons (14,539,560 dollars). The output of lead in 1911 was 182,207 short tons, valued at 16,395,630 dollars. The lead ores at Mine La Motte, Missouri, contain cobalt and nickel. Barytes in 1911 was produced to the amount of 21,500 short tons, valued at 81,380 dollars. The output of limestone, sandstone, and granite was valued at 2,338,585 dollars, of bricks, tiles, and pottery, at 6,274,853 dollars. Other products are Portland cement (output in 1911, 4,114,858 barrels, valued at 3,349,312 dollars), grindstones, pig-iron, copper, blue and white lead. The mineral products of the State in 1911, including iron ore but not pig iron, were valued at 52,636,343 dollars.

Missouri has prosperous manufacturing industries, the more important of which depend on agriculture and forestry. In 1910 there were 8,375 industrial establishments; the capital invested in all the industries of the State amounted to 443,343,060 dollars, the number of persons employed in them (including proprietors, clerks, and wage-earners) was 185,765, and the year's output was valued at 574,111,000 dollars. The chief industries, with their capital, their wage-earners, and their output in 1910 were:—

Industries	Capital	Wage earners	Output
	Dollars	Number	Dollars
Slaughtering & meat packing	18,787 000	4,674	79 581,000
Flour and grist milling	17,066,000	2,198	44,568,000

Bakeries	17,048,000	4,748	10,829,000

St. Louis and Kansas City are important centres of the traffic in grain and live stock.

In the State there were in 1910, 8,082 miles of railway, besides 1,688 miles of electric railway track. The northern portion of the State is better supplied with railways than the southern. The principal lines in the State are the Missouri Pacific, the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé, the St. Louis and San Francisco, and the St. Louis South Western. St. Louis is the terminal for the larger river steamers, and there is a heavy traffic between it and the Gulf of Mexico. The market for the grain and animal produce of the Western States is largely reached via Missouri.

There is a British Vice-Consul at Kansas City and another at St. Louis.

Area, Population, Instruction.—The State has a total area of 144,572 square miles, including a water surface of 770 square miles, and a population in 1910 of 279,000. The Federal census results give the population as follows:—

The coloured population in 1910 numbered 1,884. Of the total population 107,113 were foreign born. In 1900 the foreign population comprised 10,810 Canadian English, 9,436 Irish, 8,077 English, and 7,162 German. There is an Indian reservation of 13,632 square miles, with a population of 9,904. The largest cities in the State are Butte, with a population of 89,165 in 1910, Great Falls had 13,948, Helena (capital), 12,515, Missoula, 12,369, Anaconda, 10,184, Billings, 10,031.

The religious bodies are Roman Catholic, Methodist, Presbyterian, Episcopal and Lutheran.

In 1910 the public elementary schools had 2,250 teachers, 66,141 enrolled pupils, 29 public high schools had 202 teachers and 3,483 pupils. The normal school had 10 teachers and 160 students in 1910. The University of Montana in 1910 had 24 instructors and 154 students. The State also supports a College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts, to which is affiliated the Experimental Station, and a State School of Mines.

Charity—The benevolent institutions in Montana comprise 16 hospitals, 15 of which are private or ecclesiastical, two orphanages, one of which is a State institution, four homes for adults, one of which is a State home, and the State School for the Deaf and the Blind. The county commissioners have exclusive superintendence of the poor. Applicants for relief must, (except in extreme cases) have resided 2 months in the county. Parents, grand parents, and dependants of a pauper are liable for his support. The board may establish a poor farm, or may let out the support of the poor by annual contract.

Finance, Defence—The total receipts and disbursements for the year September 1, 1910, to August 31, 1911, were —

	Dollars
Balance on September 1, 1910	682,243
Receipts, 1910-11	3,275,460
Total	3,957,703
Disbursements, 1910 11	3,179,442
Balance, August 31, 1911	778,261

Bonded Debt—Direct State obligation, 279,000 dollar 4%, Capital Building Grant, 350,000 dollar 6% and 425,000 dollar 5%. Sinking Fund for Capital Building Bonds, September 1, 1911 is 222,750 dollars, and for State Bonds, 4,986 dollars. State has 3,437,650 dollars invested in Bonds yielding an average of 4½% per annum.

The assessed valuation of all kinds of property in 1910 was 309,673,697 dollars.

The National Guard (artillery and infantry) in 1910 consisted of 62 officers and 684 enlisted men.

Production—Montana has considerable undeveloped agricultural and mineral resources, and opportunity is offered to prospective settlers of acquiring land and becoming permanent residents. The lands on prairies which cannot be irrigated and which hitherto have been used for cattle grazing are being settled upon, and good crops are raised when scientific dry farming is employed. Large irrigation projects are being constructed by the United States Government, and many private enterprises are being successfully carried out. Under the Federal Reclamation Act an area of more than 656,500 acres is within a Federal irrigation scheme and projects more or less completed are to provide irrigation for 1,394,000 acres in the State.

The chief crop is wheat, amounting in 1911 to 12,299,000 bushels, and worth 9,740,000 dollars, oats, 21,165,000 bushels, value 8,446,000 dollars, barley, 1,070,000 bushels, value 728,000 dollars, flax seed, 3,372,000 bushels, value 5,890,000 dollars; potatoes, 4,050,000 bushels, value 2,997,000 dollars, hay 1,324,000 tons, value 12,240,000 dollars. Fruit is now very widely cultivated in the State, there were 1,500,000 fruit-bearing trees in 1911. The raising of sheep, cattle, &c., is a very important industry. Montana has more sheep and produces more wool than any other State in the Union. On January 1, 1912, there were 5,011,000 sheep, producing 39,830,000 pounds of wool valued at 6,771,100 dollars. In 1911 the number of horses was 347,000, milk cows, 91,000 other cattle, 782,000, swine, 143,000.

The lumber industries of the State are important.

Montana has great mineral resources. In 1911 the production of coal amounted to 2,976,358 short tons, valued at 5,342,168 dollars, of copper 271,814 pounds (33,976,811 dollars), of lead, 2,499 short tons, of gold, 176,564 fine ozs., valued at 8,649,700 dollars, of silver 12,163,900 fine ozs., of the value of 6,568,500 dollars. Other products are iron ore, zinc, tungsten, granitoides, corundum, mineral waters, and sapphires. In 1911, the total value of mineral output was 58,454,928 dollars.

The manufacturing industries of the State are prosperous. In 1909 there were 677 manufacturing establishments. The salaried officials numbered 1,880. Their wage-earners, 11,655. The wages paid amounted to 10,901,000 dollars, the salaries paid, to 2,054,000 dollars, the cost of materials used, to 49,180,000 dollars, the value of output, to 73,272,000 dollars, value added by manufacture, to 24,092,000 dollars. By far the most important of the industries is the smelting and refining of copper but details of copper and some other works are necessarily withheld. Of other industries the more important are —

Industries	Capital	Wage-earners	Material used	Output
	Dollars	Number	Dollars	Dollars
Lumber and timber	2,444,000	3,100	1,805,000	6,834,000
Car making and repairing	2,012,000	1,913	1,088,000	2,811,000
Brewing	3,040,000	240	602,000	2,440,000
Flour and Grst	2,569,000	165	1,695,000	2,175,000

In 1910 there were 4,703 miles of railway in the State, besides 61 miles of electric street or elevated railway. The telegraph lines had a length of 9,556 miles, and the telephone lines 5,334 miles.

NEBRASKA.

Government.—The Legislature consists of a Senate of 33 members and a House of Representatives of 100 members. The Legislators are elected for two years. The franchise extends not only to citizens but also to aliens who, thirty days before the election, have declared their intention of becoming citizens. Voters must have resided in the State for six months, in the county for 40 days, in the precinct for ten days next before the election. This autumn, however, the State will adopt constitutional amendment requiring foreigners to complete citizenship within five years or lose right of franchise.

Nebraska is represented in Congress by two Senators and six Representatives.

Governor—John N. Morehead, 1913-15 (2,500 dollars)

Secretary of State.—A. Wait

There are 92 counties in the State. The State Capital is Lincoln.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area 77,520 square miles, of which 712 square miles is water. The population in decennial census years from 1860 was —

Years	Population	Per sq mile	Years	Population	Per sq mile
1880	452,402	5.9	1900	1,068,800 <sup>1</sup>	13.9
1890	1,058,910	13.8	1910	1,192,214	15.5

In 1900 the population by sex and birth was —

	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male	559,339	3,368	183	1,702	564,592
Female	497,187	2,901	—	1,620	501,708
Total	1,056,526	6,269	183	3,322	1,068,800

In 1910 there were 185,544 males and 180,708 females.

The foreign born population numbered 177,347, of whom 65,506 were German, 24,693 Swedish, 16,138 Bohemian, 12,581 Danish, 11,127 Irish, 9,757 English, 9,049 Canadian and 3,083 Russian. The largest cities in the State are, Omaha with a population of 24,096 in 1910, Lincoln (capital), 43,973, and South Omaha, 26,259.

The most numerous religious bodies in the State are, in order of numbers, Roman Catholic, Methodist, Lutheran, Disciples, Presbyterian, Baptist, and Congregational.

In Nebraska (as in Iowa) in 1900 only 2.3 per cent. of the population over ten years of age were illiterate, the lowest proportion of illiterates in the United States. School attendance is compulsory for children from 7 to 15 years of age for not less than 12 weeks in school term. The use of the Bible is permitted in public schools, but sectarian instruction is prohibited. The elementary public schools, in 1910, had 10,355 teachers, 281,375 enrolled pupils and 11,049 teachers. There were 875 public high schools with 251 teachers and 19,333 pupils. There are 9 State normal schools with 23 teachers and 2,342 students (1909), and 2 private normal schools. Higher instruction is provided in universities and colleges, of which the more important are —

Opened	Institutions	Professors, &c	Students
1890	Univ. of Nebraska, Lincoln (State)	217	2,396
1879	Creighton Univ. Omaha (R.C.)	143	525
1872	Doane Coll., Crete (Cong.)	26	947
1882	Hastings Coll. (Presb.)	16	124
1886	Nebraska Wesleyan Univ. (M.E.)	45	555
1890	York College (U.B.)	17	425
1890	Cotter, Lincoln (Disciples)	23	450

The State has also an agricultural college.

Charity—The State has 2 homes for soldiers and sailors, 3 asylums for the insane and one for the feeble minded, 2 industrial homes for incorrigible boys and girls, and institutions for the deaf, blind, and homeless. There are many other benevolent institutions, comprising hospitals, orphanages and homes provided by private corporations or religious bodies. Justices of the peace in counties without a poor-house are overseers of the poor in their districts and, as such, report to the county commissioners. They may commit (under bond) the care of paupers to discrete householders. Thirty days residence in a county entitles a pauper to relief. A pauper with residence in another county is returned thither. Parents, grandparents, children, grand-children, and brothers and sisters are liable for support of a pauper. For bringing a pauper into a county where he has no legal settlement there is a penalty of 100 dollars. If the county commissioners build and maintain a poor house, the justices of the peace cease to be overseers, and townships cease to be chargeable for support of the poor.

Finance, Defence.—For the year ending Nov. 30, 1912, the receipts and disbursements of the State funds were —

	Dollars
Balance, December 1, 1911	489,550
Receipts 1911-'12	5,807,296
Total	5,796,846
Disbursements, 1911-12	5,223,236
Balance, November 30, 1912	573,611

The State has no debt. In 1907 the assessed valuation of real and personal property amounted to 328,757,579 dollars.

The militia, or National Guard, with its headquarters at Lincoln, consists of cavalry, artillery, and infantry, total strength, 168 officers and 1,299 men. The number (unorganized) liable to military service is 124,000.

Production and Industry—Nebraska is one of the most important agricultural States of the Union. In 1916 it contained 193,575 farms with a total area of 24,822,321 acres, of which 24,822,577 acres was improved land. The Federal Irrigation works, completed in 1913, embraced 116,000 acres in the mid region of Nebraska and Wyoming. The principal crops are cereals, hay, and potatoes. In 1912 the yield of maize was 182,618,000 bushels, wheat, 56,652,000 bushels; oats, 34,510,000 bushels. Beet-sugar is produced. The live-stock industry is pursued on a large scale. In 1910 the State contained 1,045,000 horses, 72,000 mules, 879,000 milk cows, 3,043,000 other cattle, 898,000 sheep, and 4,201,000 swine. From 250,000 sheep in 1911 the wool clip yielded 1,625,000 pounds of wool, valued at 300,325 dollars.

Nebraska has some quarries but no mines. Limestone and sandstone were quarried in 1911 to the value of 263,401 dollars, and the output of bricks and tiles was valued at 795,894 dollars. Total mineral output in 1911, 1,316,168 dollars.

The most important manufacturing industries are associated with the pastoral and agricultural produce of the State. In 1910 there were 2,500 manufacturing establishments in the State, their aggregate capital amounted to 99,901,000 dollars, the persons owning or working them (proprietors, firm members, clerks, &c., and wage-earners) numbered 31,966, the material used cost 151,081,000 dollars, and the output was valued at 199,019,000 dollars. The chief of these industries is slaughtering and meat-packing, which has its centre at South Omaha. Statistics of four industries are given as follows:—

Industries	Capital	Wage-earners	Cost of material	Output
	Dollars	Number	Dollars	Dollars
Slaughtering	10,414,000	6,015	73,564,000	92,804,000
Flour and Milling	9,472,000	889	15,217,000	17,636,000
Butter	2,975,000	833	6,430,000	7,661,000
Foodstuffs	4,808,000	1,028	1,516,000	2,930,000

Other industries are printing and publishing, brewing, soap and candle making, brick and tile work, smelting, sugar manufacture, &c.

In 1910 there were 6,067 miles of railway in the State, besides the 240 miles of electric railway track. The principal railway systems are the Union Pacific; Chicago and North Western, Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, Chicago Rock Island and Pacific, Illinois Central, Chicago and Great Western; Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul. Omaha, standing on the Missouri, has not only a large river traffic, but is a centre whence 14 trunk lines of railway radiate.

There is a British Vice Consul at Omaha.

The most numerous religious body in the State is the Roman Catholic, other denominations being Episcopal, Methodist, Mormon, and Presbyterian.

School attendance is compulsory for children from 8 to 16 years of age. In 1910 the elementary public schools had 500 teachers and 10,500 enrolled pupils. The 23 public high schools had 60 teachers and 750 pupils. The University at Reno was founded in 1886 and has 40 professors and instructors and 325 students.

In Nevada there is a State Orphans' Home. Boards of county commissioners superintend the county poor, and may contract for their support, or appoint agents to provide for them. Six months' residence entitles a pauper to relief, provision is made for relief and removal of non resident paupers. Parents, grandparents, children, grandchildren, brothers and sisters are liable for support of a pauper. Pauper children must be apprenticed to a householder. County commissioners may establish and regulate workhouses. There is a penalty of 100 dollars for bringing a pauper into a county.

Finance, Defence.—The receipts and disbursements in the year 1912 were as follows:—

	Dollars
Balance on hand, Jan. 1, 1912	522,066
Receipts, 1912	1,369,432
Total	1,791,498
Disbursements, 1912	1,312,469
Balance on hand, Dec. 31, 1912	579,029

The outstanding bonds of the State on December 31, 1911, amounted to $14,000 dollars. The assessed value of taxable property in 1910 was: real property, $9,442,320 dollars; personal, $3,875,656 dollars, total, 13,317,976 dollars. To this has to be added the assessed net value of the net proceeds of mines, (1910) 6,632,124 dollars, giving the total assessed value of 80,468,366 dollars

Production and Industry—In 1910 the farm area of the State was 2,714,757 acres of which 752,117 acres was improved land. The Federal irrigation project embraces 160,000 acres within the State of Nevada. The development of agricultural land has been retarded by lack of transport facilities and local markets, but there is considerable activity in the raising of stock. Principal crops in 1912—Corn, 80,000 bushels, wheat, 1,137,000 bushels, barley 492,000 bushels, potatoes, 2,130,000 bushels. In 1910 there were in the State 98,000 horses, 19,000 milk cows, 404,000 other cattle, 1,585,000 sheep, and 15,000 swine. In 1911 the wool clip from 850,000 sheep yielded 5,775,000 pounds of wool, valued at 952,875 dollars. In 1911 the area of national forests in the State was 5,650,847 acres.

The mineral resources of the State are chiefly gold and silver, but copper, lead, zinc, pyrites, iron, quicksilver, tungsten, sulphur, graphite, borax, gypsum, and building stone are also worked. In 1911 the output of gold was 875,438 fine ounces, valued at 18,098,900 dollars, and of silver, 13,185,400 ounces, valued at 7,120,400 dollars. The copper produced in 1911 amounted to 65,561,015 pounds, value 8,195,127 dollars, zinc, 1595 short tons, value 181,830 dollars. Value of total mineral output for 1910, 34,617,127 dollars, for 1911 34,148,101 dollars.

The manufacturing industries of the State are not of great importance, but they have shown a rapid growth since the census of 1900. In 1910 there were 177 manufacturing establishments employing altogether 256 salaried officials and 2,257 wage-earners. Their aggregate capital amounted to 9,807,000 dollars, the raw material used in the year to 8,366,000 dollars, and their output, to 11,887,000 dollars. The more important works were for flour and grain, car making and repairing, butter, brewing and printing.

In 1911 the length of railway in the State is 2,256 miles, besides 11 miles of electric railway.

NEW HAMPSHIRE

Government.—The sense of the people as to the calling of a convention for the revision of the Constitution must be taken every seven years. If a convention is held the amendments to the Constitution which it proposes must be laid before the towns, and approved by two-thirds of the qualified voters present and voting on the subject. The Legislature consists of a Senate and a House of Representatives. The Senate consists of 24 members, elected for two years. The House of Representatives consists of from 300 to 400 members, the number varying slightly with each session, as representation is on the basis of population. Electors are all male citizens 21 years of age, resident one year in the place to be represented, duly registered and not under sentence for crime or paupers.

Governor.—Samuel D. Falker, 1913-15 ($2,900 dollars.)

Secretary of State.—

New Hampshire is represented in the Federal Congress by 2 Senators and 3 Representatives. The State is divided into 10 counties. The State Capital is Concord.

Area, Population, Instruction—Area 8,315 square miles, of which 275 square miles is water. In 1910 the total population was 430,572 (214,290 males and 214,282 females), of whom 564 were coloured. People of English descent are still predominant. The Irish stood second for a long time, but lately have given place to the French Canadian. There are also considerable numbers of Germans, Italians, Scotch, Finns, Greeks, Russian Jews, Swedes, Norwegians, Poles, &c.

The death rate in 1906 was 18.1 per 1,000 of population in cities, and 16.8 per 1,000 in rural districts. Divorce is granted for many causes, including unfaithfulness, cruelty, felony, drunkenness, separation of wife outside the State for 10 years, or absence of husband from the United States for 2 years with the purpose of acquiring citizenship in another country.

The largest city of the State is Manchester, with a population of 70,063 in 1910. Other cities are Nashua, 26,005, Concord (capital), 21,497, Dover, 18,347, Portsmouth, 11,269, Berlin, 11,780, Keene, 10,068, Rochester, 8,868, Laconia, 10,153.

The prevailing form of religion is the Roman Catholic, which has 63 per cent. of the Church membership, other bodies are Congregational, Baptist, Methodist, and Protestant Episcopal. Religious instruction is not given in the public schools. The Roman Catholics maintain parochial schools in all the cities and some of the large towns.

The State law requires that at least 20 weeks of schooling must be provided in every town annually. School attendance is compulsory for children from 8 to 14 years of age during the whole school term, and for children who cannot read and write English the school age extends to 16. In 1910 the public elementary schools of the State had 2,972 teachers, 64,036 enrolled pupils, 59 public high schools had 246 teachers and 5,819 pupils. The normal school had 10 teachers and 179 students in 1910. The principal colleges within the State are Dartmouth College, at Hanover, founded in 1769, and the New Hampshire College of Agriculture and the Mechanic Arts, at Durham, founded in 1887. They are non-sectarian. Dartmouth has 85 instructors and 1,233 students, the State College 32 instructors and 231 students. St. Anselm's College at Manchester (R.C.) had 29 instructors and 141 students in 1909.

Charity—Within the State there are (besides almshouses, &c.) 50 benevolent institutions, comprising 19 hospitals (one public), 15 orphanages and 16 homes chiefly for adults (one public). Overseers of the poor in towns maintain the settled poor and temporarily relieve non-resident poor. Settlement is gained by 7 consecutive years' residence and payment of taxes; or by 4 consecutive years' payment of taxes and property of prescribed amount; but settlement must have been gained within 10 years of the date of application for relief. Parents, grand-parents, children and grand-children are liable for support of a pauper. Quotidian support their poor is prohibited; town overseers may establish town almshouses, blind and deaf persons, and dependent children. Town paupers (not veterans) are kept on county poor farms. To bring a pauper into a town or county is punishable by fine or imprisonment. The State board of charities

Inspects almshouses. On January 1, 1905, the almshouses had 1,816 pauper inmates (18 coloured).

Finance, Defence.—The revenue and expenditure for the year ending August 31, 1911, was:—

	Dollars
Cash balance, Sept. 1, 1911	283,987
Receipts, Sept. 1, 1911, to Aug. 31, 1912	2,797,894

Balance, September 1, 1911	567,827

The net indebtedness on September 1, 1912, amounted to 1,337,038 dollars. The true value of all property in the State in 1904 was estimated at —

	Dollars
Real property	272,609,666
Personal property	244,179,538
Total	516,789,204

The militia of the State, called the New Hampshire National Guard, consists of cavalry, artillery, and infantry, the number of men enrolled in 1909 being 181 officers and 1 545 enlisted men.

There is no federal naval establishment within the State though the navy yard at Kittery, Me., is known as the Portsmouth Navy Yard, because Portsmouth, N. H., is its port of entry.

Production and Industry.—The majority of the population is employed in agriculture, but manufacturing interests are not far behind. The total land area of the State is 5,763,000 acres, of which 1,443,000 acres are cultivated, 720,000 acres uncultivated, and 3,602,000 acres under forest. In 1910 there were 27,053 farms with a total acreage (improved and unimproved) of 3,249,458 acres, or 120 1 acres to each farm, nearly 29 per cent of the farm land being improved. The chief crops are, in order of importance, hay (1912 601 000 acres, producing 620 000 tons, valued at $,590,000 dollars), corn, potatoes (1912 17 000 acres, producing 2,380,000 bushels, valued at 1,452 000 dollars), oats, the chief fruit crop is apples. In 1910 the farm animals in the State were 59,600 horses, 122,000 milk cows, 93,000 other cattle, 74 000 sheep, and 51 000 swine.

Metals are little worked, but granite and mica are quarried, and mineral waters and scythe stones are worked. The value of the granite output in 1911 was 1,017,272 dollars. In 1911 the clay products were valued at 420,748 dollars. Total value of mineral products, 1911, 1,727,645 dollars.

The manufacturing interests, aside from forest products, are largely confined to the Southern part of the State. In 1910 the capital invested in manufactures amounted to 139,690,000 dollars, the wage-earners numbered 78,638; the raw materials used were valued at 98,157,000 dollars, and the output at 194,681,900 dollars. Boots and shoes rank first, followed by cottons and woollen goods. An important occupation in the State is the summer entertainment of guests in the mountains and lake regions.

The imports are by rail grain, flour, beef, &c. The exports are the products of the State, boots and shoes, cottons and woollen goods, granite, lumber and pulp for paper. There is very little shipping. Portsmouth is the only port.

The Boston and Maine Railroad owns or leases all the steam railroad lines within the State except the Grand Trunk in the extreme north. In 1910 the length of steam railway in the State was 1,252 miles, the electric railways had 295 miles of track.

Within the State are 58 National banks, 9 State banks and trust companies, 54 savings banks, and 16 building and loan associations.

NEW JERSEY

Government.—The legislative power is vested in a Senate and a General Assembly, the members of which are chosen by the people, all male citizens (with necessary exceptions) 21 years of age, resident in the State for a year and in the county for 5 months preceding the election, having the right of suffrage. The Senate consists of 21 senators, one for each county, elected by the voters for 3 years, in such manner that the Senate is renewed to the extent of one-third annually. The General Assembly consists of 60 members elected by the voters of the counties in numbers proportioned to the population of the counties as determined by the decennial Federal census.

Governor —

(10,000 dollars)

Secretary of State — D. S. Crater

The State is represented in the Federal Congress by 2 Senators and 19 Representatives. For local administration it is divided into 21 counties, which are subdivided into cities, boroughs, and townships. The State Capital is Trenton.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Land area 7,525 square miles, population (1910) 2,537,167 (1,786,463 males and 1,250,704 females), of whom 2,445,927 were white and 89,760 coloured. The American born numbered 1,632,918, English, 47,404, Irish, 136,061, German, 119,051, Italian, 75,768. In 1910 the death rate in cities was 16.1 per 1,000 of population, and in rural districts 14.4. The population in 1910 was 2,537,167. Population of the larger cities, according to the census of 1910, was as follows —

Cities	Population	Cities	Population	Cities	Population
Newark	247,469	Elizabeth	73,409	East Orange	34,371
Jersey City	287,779	Bayonne	55,545	New Brunswick	23,388
Paterson	125,603	Pasaic	54,773	Bridgetown	14,209

Camden	94,533	Perth Amboy	32,121	Milville	12,451
Hoboken	75,224	Orange	22,620	Union	21,023

The Roman Catholic Church has 51.5 per cent. of the church-going population; other bodies are Methodist, Presbyterian, Baptist, and Protestant Episcopal.

Elementary instruction is free and compulsory for all children from 7 to 15 years of age, the schools are open to all from 5 to 20 years of age. In 1910 the public elementary schools had 12,087 teachers and 429,797 enrolled pupils. 166 public high schools had 840 teachers and 24,733 pupils. In 1910, 6 public normal schools had 147 teachers and 1,485 students.

Higher and non sectarian instruction is provided at Princeton University (founded in 1746), which, in 1908, had 161 professors and 1,314 students, at Rutgers College (1766) at New Brunswick, with 52 professors and 452 students and at Stevens Institute of Technology (1871) at Hoboken, with 34 professors and 890 students.

Charity—For philanthropic and charitable purposes New Jersey has 2 insane hospitals with 3,514 patients, and it maintains in county hospitals 2,751 insane patients, in 2 establishments for the feeble minded it has 540 inmates, in an epileptic village it has 329 patients. In an institution for tuberculous patients it maintains 138 patients, and in 2 soldiers' homes it has 774 inmates. Poor relief is administered by overseers in cities, towns, and corporate townships. Relief is restricted to persons having legal settlement in a city or town, other paupers may be temporarily relieved and then removed to their place of settlement or the place where they last resided for 6 months. Natives of the State gain settlement by living for a year on freehold valued at 130 dollars. Healthy immigrants, by a year's residence. Parents, grand parents, children and grand-children of a pauper are liable for his support. Townships with no provision for county support of paupers may have (singly or in combination) a poorhouse, and certain incorporated towns may provide for their own poor and escape the county poor tax. Pauper children are boarded out. It is illegal to bring alien paupers into the State.

Finance, Defence—The receipts and disbursements of the State Fund for the financial year ending October 31 1910, were as follows —

Balance, October 31, 1910	4,545,188

The true value of all property in the State in 1910 was estimated at —

	Dollars
Real property	1,776,408,029
Personal property	271,941,267
Total	2,048,349,296

The militia, or the National Guard as it is called in the State, consisting of infantry, cavalry, and artillery, had, in 1910, 339 officers and 3,815 enlisted men. There is also a naval reserve of 32 officers and 303 men. There is a State camp ground and rifle range at Sea Girt on the Atlantic Ocean.

Production—Agriculture, market-gardening, fruit-growing, horticulture, and forestry are pursued within the State. In 1912 the chief crop was maize, acreage, 273,000, producing 10,874,000 bushels, of hay there was an acreage of 223,700 acres, producing 223,000 short tons, valued at 10,490,000 dollars. The yield of potatoes was 9,034,000 bushels. The farm animals in 1910 comprised 103,090 horses, 190,000 milk cows, 22,000 other cattle, 24,000 sheep, and 132,000 swine.

New Jersey has valuable fisheries, the lakes and streams being stocked with trout, perch, black bass, &c., while there are shad, menhaden, and sturgeon fisheries on the Delaware River and round the coast. In 1908 425 vessels and 8,843 boats were employed, with 7,281 men, the fishery products were valued at 3,068,590 dollars.

The mineral deposits consist of magnetic iron, zinc, manganese, talc, soapstone, and graphite. Only the iron and zinc are at present worked to any considerable extent. The pig iron output in 1911 was valued at 683,800 dollars, and the refined zinc at 1,724,592 dollars. Granite, trap rock, sandstone, and limestone quarries show an output in 1911 valued at 1,697,410 dollars, the production of Portland cement was valued at 2,259,528 dollars, the clay working industries of the State produced brick, terra-cotta, tiling, and pottery to the value of 18,178,238 dollars. The total mineral output in 1911 was valued at 27,659,346 dollars.

The manufacturing industries within the State are prosperous. In 1910, the manufacturing establishments had a capital of 977,172,000 dollars, they employed 36,838 salaried officials and 326,223 wage earners, the raw material used was valued at 722,653,000 dollars, and the output at 1,145,530,000 dollars. The textile industries (taken collectively) are the most important; in 1910 their joint output was valued at 181,232,625 dollars. This output comprised, among other products, silk manufactures, 58,513 274 dollars, dyeing and finishing silk goods, 9,606 062, worsted and woollen goods, 30,784,104; felt hats, 10,503,020, cotton goods, 21,403 553, hosiery, 5,982,612. Statistics of the chief groups of industries for 1910 are given as follows:—

Industries	Capital	Wage earners		Raw material	Output

In 1908, according to State statistics, there were 41 establishments for canning fruit and vegetables, employing 5 392 persons, who packed 75,171,912 pounds of vegetables, comprising tomatoes, pease, and pears.

In 1910 the length of railroad within the State was 3,354 miles, electric railway track, 1,893 miles; the length of canals was 175 miles.

NEW MEXICO

Constitution and Government.—New Mexico from the time of its discovery by Europeans was politically associated with Mexico. On May 11, 1846, the Mexican war began, when peace was made February 2, 1848, New Mexico was recognized as belonging to the United States. On September 8, 1850, the Organic Act of the Territory was passed by the United States Congress. The boundaries of the Territory had been made to include part of Texas, but Utah was formed into a separate Territory, in 1861 part of New Mexico was transferred to Colorado, and in 1848 Arizona was disjoined, leaving to New Mexico its present area.

In June, 1910, Congress passed an Enabling Act permitting the Territory of New Mexico to frame a State Constitution. This was ratified by Congress and the President, and in November, 1911, New Mexico was admitted to Statehood.

The Constitution provides for the election of a Governor, Lieutenant-Governor, Secretary of State and other State officials, including a corporation commission, consisting of three members. Under the Constitution these officers elected in November, 1911, hold office until 1915, thereafter State and county officers are elected every four years. The State legislature consists of 24 members of the Senate and 47 members of the House of Representatives. Under the reapportionment the State is entitled to one member of Congress, in place of two chosen at the first State legislature.

Governor—William C. McDonald, 1911–15 ($5,000 dollars).

Secretary of State—Antonio A. Lucero

For local government the State is divided into 26 counties. The administrative capital of the State is Santa Fé, population (as shown by the census of 1910), 5,072.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area, 122,634 square miles. Of the population in 1910, 304,602 were whites, 20,573 Indians, 1,628 negro or of African descent, 246 Chinese, and 252 Japanese. In 1910 there were 175,245 males and 152,056 females. In four census years the population was —

Years	Population	Per sq mile	Years	Population	Per sq mile
1880	119,566	1.0	1900	195,310	1.6
1890	153,598	1.3	1910	327,301	2.7

The largest towns are Albuquerque with 11,020 inhabitants, East Las Vegas, 3,755; Las Vegas, 3,179; Roswell, 3,172, and Santa Fé with 5,072. In 1898 it was estimated from the poll books that about 47 per cent. of the population was of Spanish, Mexican, and Indian descent, and 53 per cent. of Anglo-Saxon and other descent. Since then the proportions have changed owing to the settlement of many of Anglo-Saxon origin in the territory; and this change is confirmed by the increasing use of the English language and English newspapers. Indian reservations with an area of 3,635 square miles have a population of 18,130, chiefly Navaho, Apache, and Pueblo (or Arapaho) Indians.

The prevailing form of religion is Roman Catholic, but various Protestant bodies have schools and churches within the State. Religious instruction in public schools is prohibited by law, but boards of directors may open school-houses for the use of religious societies, &c., at times outside the regular school hours.

Elementary education is free, and all children between 7 and 14 years of age are compelled to attend school. The use of the English language is enforced in schools. There are (1912) public elementary schools in the State with 60,000 enrolled pupils, and 1,600 teachers, and 30 public high schools with 75 teachers and 1,600 pupils. Besides, there are 34 Indian schools with 2,500 pupils, and 110 teachers (maintained by the Federal Government). Three public normal schools have 85 teachers and about 800 students. For special and higher instruction there are various institutions, a College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts, with 42 professors and 372 students, a School of Mines, with 8 professors and 34 students, a Military Institute, an Institute for the Deaf and Dumb, an Orphans School, and a Reform School. At Albuquerque is the University of New Mexico, founded in 1859, it has 22 professors and 137 students. The State schools are maintained by funds assigned by the State Government, and by the proceeds of the school tax levied by the commissioners of each county, municipality and district.

Charity—Within the State are public and semi public institutions for charitable purposes, the chief of which are 24 hospitals, an asylum for imbeciles, a sanatorium, an orphanage, an institution for the blind and the deaf and dumb, and a relief society. There is not a poor house in New Mexico.

Finance, Production, &c.—For the year ending May 31, 1912, the revenue and expenditure were as follows —

	Dollars
Balance, June 1, 1911	525,275
Receipts for year	918,458
Total	1,443,733
Disbursements for year	937,479
Balance, June 1, 1912	506,254
Territorial Debt —
June 1, 1910, debt	975,000
Paid during year	27,000
Debt, June 1, 1912	948,000

The assessed value of property subject to Tax for the year 1911 was $4,500,500 dollars. Assessments being on basis of 90% of actual valuation.

The National Guard of the State contains 721 enlisted men and 36 officers; the unorganized militia available is estimated at 55,000. In the State are 8 military reservations with a total area of about 187,400 acres. Battery target range in Capitan mountains 8,687.95 acres.

New Mexico produces cereals, vegetables, fruit, and cotton. Irrigation, which is indispensable over wide tracts of fertile country, is extending. In 1900 the irrigated area covered 648,000 acres, exclusive of lands in Indian reserves. In 1911 the irrigated area had reached 780,000. Proposed irrigation projects will reclaim 4,500,000 acres additional. The area to be reclaimed under the Federal Reclamation Act in New Mexico alone extends to 250,000 acres. The Rio Grande project provides for reservoir construction for the irrigation of 180,000 acres in New Mexico and Texas. Private enterprise also is devoted largely to reservoir and canal construction. The farm animals in 1910 comprised 189,000 horses, 29,000 milk cows, 201,000 other cattle, 4,729,000 sheep, and 82,000 swine. In 1911 the wool clip amounted to 20,250,000 pounds of wool, valued at 8,804,800 dollars. The national forest area covers more than 11,111,800 acres, and there are about 4,000,000 acres of heavily forested country in private ownership. The State has valuable mineral resources. In 1911 the metallic output comprised gold, 86,847 fine ounces (761,700 dollars), silver, 1,341,400 fine ounces (724,800 dollars commercial value), copper, 2,860,400 pounds (357,550 dollars), lead, 1,381 short tons (124,290 dollars), zinc, 8,778 short tons (480,692 dollars). In the same year 3,148,158 short tons of coal were produced, valued at 4,525,925 dollars. The quarries yielded granite, sand stone, limestone, and marble to the value of 406,454 dollars. Turquoise is profitably worked in four localities within the State, the sands contain traces of platinum, gypsum is produced in small quantities, as is also mica. The total mineral output of the State in 1911 was valued at 7,869,918 dollars. The manufactured output of New Mexico in 1910 amounted to the value of 7,978,000 dollars, of which nearly half was for car construction and repair by railway companies. The industries next in importance are lumber and timber work, and flour and grist milling. There are also woollen mills and cement works. The aggregate capital of all industries was 7,743,000 dollars, the number of wage earners was 4,143, earning in a year 2,591,000 dollars, and the cost of materials used was 8,261,000 dollars.

In 1910 there were 2,967 miles of railway and 14 miles of electric railway track within the State.

NEW YORK STATE.

Constitution and Government.—From 1609 to 1664 the region now called New York was under the sway of the Dutch, then it came under the rule of the English, who governed the country till the outbreak of the War of Independence. Between July 8, 1776, and April 20, 1777, a Convention framed a Constitution under which New York was transformed into an independent State, afterwards, in 1788, entering the Union as one of the 13 original States.

The legislative authority is vested in a Senate of 51 members elected every two years, and an Assembly of 150 members elected annually. There are annual sessions.

The right of suffrage resides in every citizen 21 years of age, who has been a citizen for 90 days, and has resided in the State for a year preceding the election. A voter must also have resided four months in the county, and 30 days in the election district. Women Suffrage was passed in January, 1912.

The question whether there shall be a Convention to revise the Constitution has to be submitted to the people every 20 years, beginning with 1814. If a revised Constitution is duly framed, it has to be submitted to the people for ratification not less than six weeks after the adjournment of the Convention.

The State is represented in Congress by two Senators and 37 Representatives.

Governor — William Sulzer, 1912-14 (10,000 dollars).

Secretary of State. — Mitchell May

The Seat of the State executive is at Albany

For local government the State is divided into 61 counties

Cities are in 3 classes, the first class having each over 175,000 inhabitants, and the third under 50,000. Each is incorporated by charter, under special legislation. The government of New York City is vested in a board of Aldermen, elected for 2 years. Its members are the President, elected by the city, the presidents of the 5 city boroughs (Bronx, Manhattan, Brooklyn, Queens, and Richmond), 78 aldermen, one elected in each of the 78 districts. The chief executive officer is the Mayor, elected for 4 years; he appoints all the heads of departments, except the Comptroller, who is elected by the city.

Area, Population, Education.—Area 49,170 square miles (1,550 square miles being water)

In 1909 the death rate in cities was 16.3 per 1,000 of population, in rural districts 15.6, in the whole State, 16.1

The chief churches are Roman Catholic, Methodist Presbyterian, Protestant Episcopal, and Baptist Education is compulsory between the ages of 7 and 16 years. In 1910-11 the children enrolled in the public elementary schools numbered 1,318,899, and the number of teachers was 36,622. There were 709 public high schools with 174,387 pupils, and 6,832 teachers. There were 10 public normal schools with 279 teachers, and 8,965 students, and 6 schools of education connected with higher institutions. There were 86 universities, colleges, and professional schools with 4,663 professors and teachers and 36,215 collegiate and graduate students.

The Education Department is under the legislative direction of the Regents and the executive direction of the Commissioner of Education. This Department is quite similar to the Ministries of Education in Europe. It is charged with the general management and supervision of all public schools and of the educational work of the State including the operations of the University of the State of New York. The University is governed and all its corporate powers are exercised by a Board of Regents, whose members are at all times three more than the existing judicial districts of the State—at present 9 districts and 12 Regents—who exercise legislative functions concerning the educational system of the State and determine its educational policies.

Within the State are many sectarian and non-sectarian colleges. The names, year of foundation, and numbers of instructors and students in all the departments of the chief colleges in 1910-11 were as follows:—

Educational work is maintained chiefly by the proceeds of the Free School Tax levied in counties for common schools, and of the general State Tax from which appropriations are made for education.

Charity—The State Board of Charities, a constitutional body (12 members appointed by the Governor with consent of Senate, term 8 years), has power to inspect all charitable institutions which receive any public funds establish rules for reception of inmates, approve or disapprove the incorporation of charitable and correctional institutions subject to its inspection, license dispensaries, supervise placing out of children, support and remove State, alien and non resident poor, investigate the condition of the poor seeking public aid, advise measures for their relief, and collect statistical information. The State maintains in whole or in part 28 institutions, charitable and reformatory, including those for defectives, total census, October 1, 1911, 10,806, there are 56 county, city, and town institutions, including public hospitals census 17,657, 29 public and 148 private children's homes, census 33,702, and approximately 1,100 other charitable institutions. Superintendents of the poor have charge of the almshouses and poor persons in the 61 counties, and decide disputes concerning settlements of poor persons. Overseers of the poor give temporary relief and commit poor persons to almshouses. Persons of full age gain a settlement in a town by one year's residence. No poor person may be removed to a different town or county without legal authority, nor foreign poor be brought into the State under penalty of 50 dollars. No child from 2 to 16, soldier, sailor, or idiot may be committed to any almshouse. Such poor as have not resided 60 days in a county within the year preceding application for relief are sent to special almshouses as State poor. Insane poor must be removed to one of the 16 State hospitals for the insane, in charge of the Commission in Lunacy.

Finance, Defenses—The sources of public revenue are (1) the general property tax, for county and municipal purposes only (2) an inheritance tax, for State purposes; (3) corporation taxes, business taxes, the secured debt tax, fees and licenses, for State, county, and municipal purposes. The general property tax is levied on real and personal property. Real property comprises (for taxation purposes) "special" franchises (mostly railway telegraph, and other public service rights), and the tangible property connected therewith. In most States debts of taxpayers may be deducted from their credits (debts due to them), but in New York State debts may be deducted from the whole amount of the taxpayer's personal property, and it is to provide against the deduction of the bond issues of the "special" franchise corporations that their franchises and working property are included in rating. Tax assessors and collectors are elected or appointed locally. In New York City there is a board of taxes and assessments, and a receiver of taxes. Individuals are not required to make a statement of their property, but corporations are. Property is assessed at full value. Assessors set locally as board of review. The county board of supervisors and the State board of equalization equalize value of real estate. Assessment of personality is not equalized. Corporation taxes include organization taxes on domestic and license taxes on foreign corporations, annual franchise taxes and various taxes on different classes of corporations.

The State revenue and expenditure for 1911 were respectively as follows —

	Dollars
Balance in hand, Oct 1, 1910	22,411,113
Receipts, Oct. 1, 1910—Sept. 30, 1911	66,937,902

The City of New York in 1909 had total receipts amounting to 402,814,106 dollars expenditure of 412,068,978 dollars and net funded debt of 848 878,999 dollars.

The militia or national guard of New York contains (March 31, 1912) 663 cavalry, 722 field artillery, 2 038 coast artillery, 10 632 infantry engineers, 699, medical and hospital corps, 601, signal corps, 141 general officers and departmental and N C officers 157, total, 15,703.

The naval militia contains 61 commissioned officers and 847 enlisted men, total, 908.

Production, Industry, Commerce — New York has large agricultural interests. In 1910 it contained 215 597 farms of a total area of 22,030 367 acres, of which 14 844,039 acres was improved land. Common agricultural crops are raised, market gardening, fruit growing, sugar beet production, and tobacco culture are pursued. In 1912 the crops comprised maize, 19,743,000 bushels, wheat 5,840,000 bushels, oats, 36,714 000 bushels, besides potatoes, hay, and other products. The area under tobacco was 3,900 acres, the yield, 7,375,000 pounds. Beet sugar is produced. The farm animals in 1910 comprised 717 000 horses, 4,000 mules, 1,771,000 milk cows and 889,000 other cattle, 1,177,000 sheep, and 636,000 swine. The wool clip in 1911 yielded 4,630,000 pounds of wool, valued at 924,885 dollars.

Other productive industries are mining and quarrying. In 1911 the mines within the State yielded 1,057,984 long tons of iron ore (2,939,009 dollars), mostly magnetite. In 1911 the output of talc was 93,090 short tons, valued at $13,388 dollars. The yield of crude petroleum in 1911 was 963,515 barrels, valued at 1,248,950 dollars, the yield of natural gas was of the value of 1,418,767 dollars. Mineral springs yielded 10,345,261 gallons, valued at 939,003 dollars. The output of granite, trap rock, sandstone, marble, and limestone in 1911 was valued at 6,895,463 dollars, of Portland cement, 3,512,440 dollars of mineral waters, 939,003 dollars. The production of bricks, tiles, pottery, &c., was estimated at the value of 10,184,876 dollars. In 1911 the output of gypsum was 472,834 short tons, valued at 1,199,596 dollars. The State also produces infusorial earth, emery, garnet, crystalline quartz, and other minerals. Excluding pig iron, and including iron ore, the value of mineral output in 1911 amounted to 42,392,180 dollars.

Manufacturing Industries.—The statistics of the manufacturing industries of New York State according to the census results of 1900 and 1910 are summarized thus:—

		1900	1910
Establishments	Number	87,194	44,965
Capital	Dollars	2,081,459,515	2,179,497,000

Pre-eminent among the industries of the State is the manufacture of clothing. This factory industry originated in this State about 1835, and by 1880 it was first among the industries of the State. In 1910, New York held the first place among the American States as a producer of clothing.

The combined textile industries in 1905 gave an output valued at 185,780,080 dollars. The following table contains statistics of the spindles, looms, &c., employed in the more important of them —

	Spindles	Looms	Knitting machines	Woolen cards (sets)	Combining machines
Cottons	778,066	14,088	—	—	—
Woolens	154,858	3,085	—	—	80

Total (1905)	1,228,699	23,244	12,666	259	62

The output of the flour and grist mills in 1910 was of the value of 69,822,272 dollars. The material used in the year comprised wheat, 8,671,773 barrels, valued at $5,680,489 dollars, corn 2,090,887 barrels valued at $5,967,948 dollars, rye, 224,992 barrels valued at $70,797 dollars, buckwheat, 66,882,557 pounds valued at 1,724,284 dollars, barley 1,580,856 pounds valued at $5,37 dollars.

In 1910 there were 1,963 newspapers, &c., of which 281 were dailies, 48 Sunday papers, 36 semi-weekly, 875 weekly, 521 monthly, and 54 quarterly. Of the dailies, 84, with an aggregate circulation of 2,168,690 were morning papers. In English, 1,758 were published, and of the foreign languages, 60 were in German, 37 in Italian, 19 in Yiddish, 12 in Polish, 11 in Spanish, 4 in Swedish, 4 each in Bohemian, Croatian, French, Hungarian and Russian, 3 each in Rutenian and Syrian and 2 in Danish. A total of 1,690 publications, with an aggregate circulation of 10,116,760 copies per issue, were devoted to politics and family news. 185 with a circulation of 4,087,904 were religious in character, and 112 with a circulation of 12,664,218 were devoted to general literature.

New York city ranks as the third shipping port of the world, coming after London and Liverpool. The imports during the fiscal year of 1911 amounted to the value of 917,121,800 dollars, and the exports to the value of 807,096,417 dollars. The exports consist largely of grain, flour, cotton, tobacco, apples, and other fruits, preserved provisions, cattle, and frozen meat. Most of the great railway lines which bring merchandise from the west have their terminals on the New Jersey side of the harbour, but there are ample facilities for the transfer of goods to the docks on the eastern side by means of lighters and of barges which carry the loaded cars across. At New York in 1911 the tonnage movement in the foreign trade was: entered, 18,588,296 tons, cleared, 18,518,922 tons.

In New York State there were in 1910 8,429 miles of railway, and 4,720 miles of electric railway track. The canals of the State, used for commercial purposes, have a length of 566 miles, of which the Erie canal has 367 miles.

British Consul-General at New York—O W Bennett, C I E

British Consul—Hon. Reginald Walsh, M. V O

There are three Vice-consuls.

NORTH CAROLINA.

Government.—The General Assembly consists of a Senate of 50 members, and a House of Representatives of 120 members, elected for two years.

All male citizens of the United States, resident in the State two years, and in the county six months next before the election, and registered, have a vote. For registration the requirements are payment of poll-tax and ability to read and write in English (a test not imposed on descendants of voters of 1867).

The State is represented in Congress by two Senators and ten Representatives.

Governor—Locke Craig, 1913-17 ($5,000 dollars)

Secretary of State.—J. Bryan Grimes

North Carolina is divided into 100 counties. The State Capital is Raleigh.

Area, Population, Instruction—Area, 52,250 square miles, of which 3,670 square miles is water

Years	White <sup>1</sup>	Negro	Total	Per sq. mile
1880	419,900	219,629	638,829	18.2
1900	1,269,341	624,469	1,893,810	39.0
1910	1,508,444	697,843	2,206,287	45.3

In 1910 there were 1,098,471 males and 1,107,816 females

In 1900 the population by sex and birth was —

	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male	632,155	303,624	49	2,849	938,677
Female	631,448	320,845	2	2,888	955,183
Total	1,263,603	624,469	51	5,687	1,893,810

Of the total, 4,492 were foreign born, 1,191 being German, and 204 English. Cities (with population in 1910) are: Wilmington, 25,748; Charlotte, 34,014; Asheville, 18,762; Raleigh (capital), 19,218; Greensboro, 15,895; Winston, 17,167; Durham, 18,241.

About half of the church members are Baptist, and three fifths Methodist. The others are mostly Presbyterian, Lutheran, or Protestant Episcopal.

In several counties school attendance is compulsory. Separate schools are provided for white and for coloured children. In 1911 the public elementary schools of the State had 11,451 teachers, and 528,418 enrolled pupils. There were 177 public high schools with 273 teachers and 6,514 pupils. Teachers are trained in 5 public normal schools, with 78 teachers and 1,089 students.

Higher instruction is given in 16 university and college institutions, the more important of which are the University of North Carolina (founded in 1793) in 1910 had 101 professors and 821 students, and the Agricultural and Mechanical College (founded in 1859) had 43 professors and 446 pupils. There are large sectarian colleges, and also schools and colleges for coloured youths.

Charity.—Within the State there are (apart from almshouses and asylums for the insane, &c.) 57 benevolent institutions, six of which are public, the rest having been provided by private associations or religious bodies. They comprise 37 hospitals, one dispensary, 18 orphanages (two public), one day nursery, eight homes mainly for adults (one public), and two schools for the deaf and blind (both public). The board of commissioners for each county has the care of the poor, appoints the overseer and controls the home where indigent and aged poor are sent. Paupers without legal settlement (gained by a year's residence) in a county are supported at the cost of their county of settlement till they can be sent thither. The State board of charities inspects the homes. In all the almshouses in 1911 there were 1,893 pauper inmates (800 coloured).

Finance, Defence.—The State had receipts and disbursements in the year ending November 30, 1912, as follows —

	Dollars
Balance, December 1, 1911	218,221
Receipts, 1911-12	3,413,655
Total	3 631,876
Disbursements, 1911-12	3,841,020
Balance, December 1, 1912	290,856

In 1913 the outstanding debt amounted to 7,832,950 dollars. The State owns stock in railway and turnpike companies. In the year 1909 the assessed value of property was real property, 287,245,762 dollars, personal property, 277,959,461 dollars, total, 565,005,223 dollars. The true value of all property within the State in 1904 was estimated at —

	Dollars.
Real property	399,567,905
Personal property	442,504,313
Total	842,172,218

The militia, or National Guard, consisting of artillery and infantry, had, in 1911, a total strength of 237 officers and 2,277 enlisted men. The naval militia has 40 officers and 824 men.

Production and Industry —The chief occupation of the inhabitants of the State is agriculture. In 1910 the area of the farm land was 22 439,129 acres, of which 8,813,056 acres was improved land. Wheat and maize are grown, the yield of the former in 1912 having been 6,322,000 bushels, and of the latter, 51,106,000 bushels. The chief crop, however, is cotton, of which the area for 1909 was 1,359,000 acres, and the yield 649,886 bales, yield for 1911, 774,752 bales, estimated yield for 1912, 878,000 bales. Another important product is tobacco, grown on 179 000 acres, which yielded in 1912, 110,980,000 pounds, valued at 17 757,000 dollars. Other products are peanuts, potatoes, oats, and rye. The rice crop in 1912 amounted to 10,000 bushels. Stock raising is not important, but there is a growing dairy industry. In 1910 the farm animals were 192,600 horses, 131,000 mules, 297,000 milk cows, 449,000 other cattle, 215,000 sheep, and 1,856,000 swine.

In the eastern portion of the State there are shad and oyster fisheries, both valuable.

Minerals in some variety, but not in large quantities, are found in the State, the chief being corundum, mica (217,309 dollars in 1911), bismuth, talc, and soapstone, barites, graphite, coal, phosphate rock, gold (3,478 fine ozs., value 71,900 dollars in 1911), silver (1,900 oz., 600 dollars in 1911). The quarries, in 1911, yielded granite, limestone, and sandstone to the value of 270,925 dollars. Monasite and selenite, used in the manufacture of translucent light glasses, are also found. The clay products of the State (bricks, pottery, &c.) in 1911 were of the value of 1,286,126 dollars. The total value of the mineral products in 1911 was put at 2,797,156 dollars.

The prosperity of North Carolina is associated chiefly with cotton, tobacco, and lumber, but within the State a variety of other industries are pursued. The value of the output of all manufactures in the State in 1910 was put at 216,654,900 dollars. Statistics of six manufacturing industries are given as follows (census 1910) —

Industries	Capital	Wage-earners	Material used	Output
	Dollars	Number	Dollars	Dollars
Cotton goods	96,993 000	47,231	48,688,000	72,680,000
Tobacco	23,162,000	8 208	13 816 000	35,987,000
Lumber and timber	29,675,000	34,001	12,534,000	83,525 000
Flour and grist	2,643,000	496	7 237,000	8,501,000
Furniture	7,606 000	5,533	4,398,000	7,885,000
Cotton seed oil and cake	4,432,000	1,165	7,090,000	8,604,000

The chief sea-port is Wilmington, the exports from which, in 1911, amounted to the value of 28,705,448 dollars, nearly all for cotton grown in North and South Carolina, Georgia, and Alabama, and shipped mostly to Bremen, Liverpool, and Ghent. Harbour improvements are in progress.

The State has several navigable rivers, in 1911 it contained 4 701 miles of steam railway, and 88 miles of electric railway track. The chief railway lines are the Atlantic coast line, the Seaboard Air line, the Southern railway, and the Norfolk and Southern railway, the latter being formed by the union of about half a dozen independent lines.

There is a British Vice-Consul at Wilmington.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Government.—The Legislative Assembly consists of a Senate of 50 members elected for four years, and a House of Representatives of 112 members elected for two years. Qualified electors are (with necessary exceptions) all male citizens and civilised Indians. Residence required: in the State one year, in the county six months, in the precinct ninety days next before the election. The State is represented in Congress by two Senators and three Representatives.

Governor.—L. E. GILMAN, 1912-15 ($5,000 dollars)

Secretary of State.—Thomas Hall.

The State is divided into 50 signalled counties. The capital is Bismarck (population 4,433 in 1910).

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area, 76,765 square miles (600 square miles being water). In 1910 the population numbered 377,883, (317,554 males and 59,509 females) including 4,484 Indians and 617 negroes. The number of foreign-born was 118,081, of whom 80,206 were Norwegian, 28,186 Canadian, 14,979 Russian, and 11,448 German. In 1880 the population was 84,909, in 1890, 182,719. The State census of 1905 showed a population of 480,082, the population in 1910 was 577,058. The only considerable city in the State is Fargo with 14,331 inhabitants (1910).

Of the aggregate membership of the Churches in the State, 38.5 per cent. is Roman Catholic, 37.7 Lutheran, the remainder being divided among the Methodist, Presbyterian, Congregational, and Baptist denominations.

The elementary common schools in 1911 had 7,387 teachers, and 185,369 enrolled pupils, 108 classified high schools had 398 teachers and 4,262 pupils. There were 2 normal schools with 92 teachers and 954 students in 1911. The State University and School of Mines had, in 1911, 92 teachers and 967 students, Science School had 21 teachers and 189 students; and the State Agricultural College had 79 teachers and 998 students, Ellendale Industrial School has 19 instructors and 272 pupils.

School revenues are derived from the State Fund, district taxes, and various other sources.

Charity.—Within the State are 14 benevolent institutions, most of which have been provided by private associations or religious bodies. They comprise eight hospitals (one public), two orphanages, three homes mainly for adults (one public), and a State school for the deaf and dumb. The county commissioners have the care of the poor and may (after submitting the question to the county votes) establish (singly or with other counties) an asylum and appoint a resident to take charge of it. Each county relieves the poor who have settlement therein (gained by 90 days' residence), others being temporarily relieved and then sent to their county of settlement. Permanent paupers (unless in exceptional circumstances) are kept in the county asylum. To send a pauper into or out of a county is punishable by a fine of 100 dollars.

Finance, Defence.—The revenue laws of the State were revised in 1911. The revenue expenditure for the year ending Sept. 30, 1912, was —

	Dollars
Cash in hand, October 1, 1911	15,262,289
Receipts, 1911-12	144,892,098
Total	162,154,385
Expenditure, 1911-12	14,652,740

Balance in hand, September 30, 1912 15,626,908

Bonded debt October 31, 1906, 692,300 dollars, assessed valuation of real and personal property, 196,462,584 dollars. The true value of all property in the State in 1904 was estimated at —

	Dollars
Real property	271,808,432
Personal property	364,492,477
Total	736,300,909

The militia, called the North Dakota National Guard, with its headquarters at Bismarck, consists of infantry and artillery, total strength 64 officers and 963 men.

Production and Industry.—Agriculture is the chief pursuit of the North Dakota population. In 1910 the farmland had an area of 28,426,650 acres, of which 20,455,092 acres was improved land. The area to be irrigated within the State under the Federal Reclamation Act extends to 40,000 acres, while in Montana and North Dakota 66,000 acres are to be dealt with. The chief products are cereals, potatoes, hay and flax. The wheat crop in 1912 amounted to 143,820,000 bushels, oats, 95,220,000 bushels, barley, 85,162,000 bushels. In the same year the area under flax (grown for the seed) was 1,246,000 acres, and the yield amounted to 12,086,000 bushels of seed, valued at 18,778,000 dollars. The State has also an active live-stock industry, chiefly horse and cattle-raising. In 1910 the farm animals were 712,000 horses, 247,000 milk cows, 616,000 other cattle, 621,000 sheep, and 204,000 swine. The wool clip yielded 1,812,500 pounds of wool, valued at 348,725 dollars in 1911.

The mineral resources of North Dakota are inconsiderable. Cement is made and there are coal mines, the output from which in 1911 amounted to 502,628 short tons, valued at 720,489 dollars. The clay products were valued at 210,616 dollars. Total mineral output in 1911, 957,425 dollars.

In the State in 1910 there were 752 manufacturing establishments with an aggregate capital of 13,196,000 dollars, employing 2,789 wage-earners, using raw material costing 13,674,000 dollars, and giving an output valued at 19,137,000 dollars. The most important of these industries was flour and grist milling, which, with an aggregate capital of 2,388,678 dollars, employed 312 wage-earners, used material worth 5,426,541 dollars, and gave an output worth 6,461,228 dollars (in 1900, 3,849,829 dollars). The dairy output (butter, cheese, and condensed milk) amounted to 562,481 dollars (in 1900, 122,128 dollars).

In 1911 there were 5,336 miles of steam railway in the State, and 18 miles of electric railway. The principal lines are the Great Northern, Northern Pacific, and the St. Paul, Minneapolis and Sault Ste Marie.

OHIO

Government.—The question of a general revision of the Constitution is submitted to the people every 20 years provision being made for the appointment of a Convention to draft alterations.

The Legislature consists of a Senate of 24 members and a House of Representatives of 119 members, both Houses being elected for two years. Qualified as electors are (with certain necessary exceptions) all male citizens 21 years of age who have resided in the State one year, in the county 90 days, and in the township 30 days next before the election.

Ohio is represented in Congress by two Senators and 21 Representatives.

Governor:—James M. Cox, 1912-16 (16,006 dollars).

Secretary of State:—Charles H. Graves

Ohio is divided into 88 counties. The State Capital (since 1816) is Columbus.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area, 41,060 square miles, of which 200 square miles is water. Of the population in 1910, 111,448 were negroes.

The chief religious bodies are Roman Catholic, Methodist, Presbyterian, Lutheran, and Baptist.

School attendance during full term is compulsory on children from 6 to 14 years of age. In Ohio in 1910 the public elementary schools had 32,175 teachers and 979,622 enrolled pupils, 834 public high schools had 27,194 teachers and 69,101 pupils. There are 7 public normal schools with 94 teachers and 1,262 students. For superior instruction the State contains 28 Universities and colleges, of which the following are the more important —

Charity.—State institutions comprises a Penitentiary and a Reformatory, an industrial home for boys and one for girls, 7 hospitals, an institution for deaf mutes, one for the blind, and one for feeble-minded youth, a soldiers' and sailors' home, and a soldiers' and sailors' orphans' home.

Within the State (apart from almshouses and asylums for the insane, &c.) there are 207 benevolent institutions, 62 of which are public (i.e., belong to the Federal or State or municipal authorities) while the rest have been provided by private associations or religious bodies. The institutions comprise 74 hospitals (eight public), seven dispensaries, 105 orphanages (49 public), eight day nurseries, 68 homes (three public) and five institutions for the deaf and blind (two public). The trustees of townships or the proper officials of corporations relieve the poor, but applicants with legal residence elsewhere (acquired by 12 months' continuous residence without poor relief) are to be sent to their county of settlement. Paupers may be required to earn their own support by labour on public property. County infirmaries (almshouses) are under boards of directors who appoint superintendents. Directors and superintendents may not sell or furnish supplies for the poor. Directors report to the State board of charities. Special provision is made respecting pauper children. There is a penalty of 50 dollars for bringing paupers into a county to make them a public charge. On January 1, 1911, the almshouses had 7,949 pauper inmates (236 coloured).

Finance, Defence.—The taxation levies for all purposes, and the expenditure, for the fiscal year ending November 15, 1912, were —

	Dollars
Cash in hand, Nov 15, 1911	8,768,116
Income, 1911 1912	14,086,902
Total	17,855,016
Disbursements, 1911 12	18,122,180
Balance, Nov 15, 1912	4,662,836

In 1911 the newly constituted State Board of Taxation fixed the values of all forms of property and property values at par on the dollar, the aggregate exceeding seven billions.

The sum annually expended out of the tax levy for schools and school purposes is slightly above 2,500,000 dollars.

The levelling up of all forms of property and property values to par has the effect of placing the tax burden on an automatically just basis—on the dollar, not the person.

There is no bonded debt in the State. Certain trust funds which constitute an irreducible debt of the State amount to 4,991,423 dollars, on which interest is paid amounting to 294,158 dollars to various educational funds. The local debt (County, City, Township, &c.) amounts to 140,271,411 dollars.

The National Guard consists of 546 officers and 6,266 enlisted men. The Naval Militia has 18 officers and 247 men.

Production and Industry.—Ohio is extensively devoted to agriculture. In 1911 it contained 259,645 farms of an aggregate area of 25,835,850 acres, of which 19,244,478 acres were improved land. The chief crops are corn, hay, potatoes, fruits and vegetables, besides tobacco. The maize crop in 1912 amounted to 174,910,000 bushels, and the wheat crop to 9,760,000 bushels, oats, 98,300,000 bushels. The area under tobacco (85,200 acres in 1913), yielded 79,304,000 pounds. Beet sugar is produced. Horse-rearing, cattle-breeding, and dairy farming are important. In 1910 the live-stock in the State was estimated at 977,000 horses, 23,000 mules, 947,000 milk cows, and 978,000 other cattle, 3,208,000 sheep, and 2,047,000 swine. The wool clip in 1911 yielded 13,850,000 pounds of wool, valued at 4,429,750 dollars. The farm products and live-stock industries give rise to the manufacture of butter and cheese, and the meat-packing industries.

Ohio has also extensive mineral resources. Its coal fields have an area of about 12,000 square miles, and provide employment for 50,000 miners. In 1911 the output of coal amounted to 80,759,986 short tons, valued at 81,810,123 dollars. The output of iron ore in the State amounted to 16,697 long tons. With coal is associated petroleum, the output of which amounted to 8,817,112 barrels (of 42 gallons), valued at 9,479,543 dollars. At the same time natural gas was produced in the State to the value of 9,867,347 dollars. From quarries sandstone and limestone were produced to the value of 5,798,849 dollars. Portland cement was manufactured to the amount of 1,488,074 barrels, valued at 1,243,109 dollars. Another product of the State is salt, of which, in 1911, 4,302,507 barrels were extracted, valued at 1,100,453 dollars. The output of the clay working industries (bricks, tiles, pottery) amounted to the value of 32,863,895 dollars, the output of lime was valued at 1,607,524 dollars, other mineral products were grindstones, pulpstones, oilstones, and scythestones, besides mineral waters. Value of total mineral output excluding 5,371,373 long tons of pig iron (75,484,592 dollars), in 1911, 97,090,284 dollars.

In 1910 the capital invested in manufacturing industries in the State was 806,898,033 dollars, the amount paid in salaries and wages was 228,984,923 dollars, the raw material used cost 529,893,658 dollars, and the value of the output was 900,709,991 dollars. The value of the corresponding output in 1900 was 748,670,855 dollars. In 1905 the chief manufacturing industries, according to the census results, were as follows:—

Industries	Capital	Wage earners	Cost of Materials	Output
	Dollars	Number	Dollars	Dollars
Iron and steel	180,601,846	38,100	110,696,497	152,850,134

OKLAHOMA (INCLUDING INDIAN TERRITORY)

The State of Oklahoma, comprising the former Territory of Oklahoma and Indian Territory, was constituted on November 16, 1907, by Proclamation made by the United States President under the enabling act of June 16, 1906. The constitution provides for the initiative and the referendum, 8 per cent. of the legal voters having the right to propose any legislative measure and 15 per cent. to propose amendments to the constitution by petition. The referendum may be ordered (except as to laws necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health or safety) either by petition signed by 5 per cent. of the legal voters or by the Legislature. The referendum applies to municipalities as well as to the State. The control of railways and other public service corporations is vested in a commission of 3 members elected for six year periods, from whose decision an appeal lies only to the Supreme Court no other court having power to interfere with its duties.

The Legislature consists of a Senate the members of which are elected for 4 years, and a House of Representatives elected for 2 years. Qualified as electors are (with necessary exceptions) all citizens resident six months in the State, 60 days in the county or town, 30 days in the precinct. Indians, to be qualified as voters, must have severed tribal relations.

Governor—Lee Cruce, 1911-15 (4,500 dollars)

Secretary—B. F. Harrison.

The State is represented in Congress by 2 Senators and 5 members of the House of Representatives. The State capital shall be the city of Guthrie until 1913, after which period a new capital may be selected.

Area and Population.—Area, 70,470 square miles (Oklahoma 39,080, Indian Territory 31,440), of which 600 square miles is water and the population on July 1, 1907, was 1,414,179 (Oklahoma 733,064, Indian Territory 681,115). The population on the present area was, in 1890, 242,016, in 1900, 790,391, in 1906, 1,109,435, in 1910, 1,657,155 (881,578 males and 775,582 females). In 1910 the population included 187,612 negroes, and on Indian reservations there were 74,825 Indians.

[For the history of the relations between the Indians and the Federal Government see STATESMAN'S YEAR BOOK for 1907, p. 593.]

The most important cities are Oklahoma City (population 64,905), Muskogee (25,238), Guthrie (11,654), Shawnee (12,474), Enid (13,799), Ardmore (8,616), McAlester (12,594), Chickasha (10,320), Tulsa (18,182).

Religion, Education, Charity.—The chief religious bodies are Methodist, Baptist, Roman Catholic, Disciples (Christians), and Presbyterians. The State has a school system embracing elementary and high public schools, normal schools, and also colleges for superior instruction. Separate schools have to be provided for whites and negroes, all children not negroes being classed as white. In 1910 there were in the State public elementary schools with 422,399 enrolled pupils and 9,478 teachers; 40 secondary public schools with 4,547 enrolled pupils and 204 teachers. There were in 1910 3 normal schools with 51 teachers and 2,306 students. The University (founded in 1892) had, in 1909, 53 professors and 648 students, the Agricultural and Mechanical College (founded in 1891) had 33 professors and 651 students, while the coloured Agricultural and Normal University, with 13 instructors, has 360 students.

FINANCE, ETC.—PRODUCTION—BOOKS OF REFERENCE 529

Oklahoma has 3 hospitals, 6 orphanages, and 2 homes for adults and children, a school for the deaf and one for the blind.

Finance, Defence.—There is no bonded debt. Income (1910-12), 8,349,064 dollars. Expenditure (1910-12), 7,228,756 dollars.

The militia, called the Oklahoma National Guard, with its headquarters at Guthrie, consists of infantry, cavalry, hospital corps, signal corps, and engineer corps. Total strength 56 officers and 938 enlisted men.

Production.—Oklahoma is mainly agricultural. In 1910 it had 190,192 farms with a total area of 28,859,858 acres, of which 17,551,337 acres were improved land. The yield of maize in 1912 was 101,878,000 bushels, of wheat, 20,096,000 bushels, of oats, 23,494,000 bushels. Other products are potatoes, hay, sorghum, trunks, and cotton. The cotton crop for 1909 on 1,767,000 acres amounted to 573,786 bales, in 1911 it yielded 955,951 bales estimated yield for 1912, 1,039,000 bales. Flax is also widely grown. The western part is devoted to stock raising, in 1910 the stock comprised 355,000 milk cows, and 1,637,000 other cattle, 1,302,000 hogs, 108,000 sheep, 804,000 horses, and 191,000 mules.

The mineral products consist of gypsum, granite, sandstone and limestone, and petroleum. The yield of petroleum in 1911, was 56,069,637 barrels, valued at 26,451,767 dollars. Some natural gas is obtained. Coal was obtained (1911) to the amount of 3,074,242 short tons, value 6,291,494 dollars. Lead and zinc are also worked. The value of the mineral output in 1911 was 42,678,446 dollars.

There are few manufacturing industries, flour and grist-milling, cotton ginning, the manufacture of cotton seed oil and oil cake being the more important. In 1910 the State had a total of 2,310 industrial establishments, employing 13,148 wage-earners, with a total capital of 38,873,000 dollars, the cost of material being 34,153,000 dollars, and the value of the output 53,682,000 dollars. Statistics of leading industries are —

Industries	Capital	Wage-earners	Cost of material	Output
	Dollars	Number	Dollars	Dollars
Flour mills	7,691,000	942	16,493,000	19,144,000
Oil and cotton-seed	5,071,000	581	4,146,000	5,187,000
Lumber and timber	3,603,000	3,175	1,487,000	4,439,000
Printing	3,743,000	1,698	1,004,000	2,999,000

In 1908 Oklahoma had 5,980 miles of railway. The principal lines are the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé, the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific, the Choctaw, Oklahoma and Gulf and the St. Louis and San Francisco, the Missouri, Kansas and Texas, the St. Louis and San Francisco, and the Santa Fé Pacific Railway. It has also 215 miles of electric railway track.

OREGON

Government.—The Legislative Assembly consists of a Senate of 30 members, chosen for four years (half their number retiring every two years), and a House of 80 Representatives, elected for two years.

The Constitution was amended in 1902, under the terms of which amendment the people reserve to themselves the power to propose laws and amendments to the Constitution and to enact or reject the same at the polls independent of the Legislative Assembly, and also reserve the power at their own option to approve or reject at the polls any Act of the Legislative Assembly. This is known as the initiative and referendum. Not more than eight per cent. of the legal voters are required to propose any measure to be voted upon by the people at the next ensuing general election. Measures thus initiated are enacted or rejected at the polls independently of the Legislative Assembly. Under the referendum any Bill passed by the Legislative Assembly, except such as are for the preservation of the public peace, health, and safety, may, by petition signed by five per cent. of the legal voters, be referred to the people to be voted on for approval or rejection at the next ensuing general election.

In all elections every white male citizen of the United States of the age of twenty-one years and upwards, who shall have resided in the State during the six months immediately preceding such election, and every white male of foreign birth of the age of twenty-one years and upwards, who shall have resided in the United States one year, and shall have resided in this State during the six months immediately preceding such election, and shall have declared his intention to become a citizen of the United States one year preceding such election, conformably to the laws of the United States on the subject of naturalization, shall be entitled to vote at all elections authorized by law.

The State is represented in Congress by two Senators and two Representatives (a third representative will be allowed by new apportionment.)

Governor —Oswald West, 1911-1915 ($3,000 dollars.)

Secretary of State —Ben W. Olcott

The State Capital is Salem. There are 34 counties in the State.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area, 96,030 square miles, 1,470 square miles being water.

The population in 1910 was made up of 284,285 males and 288,510 females, and included 7,359 Chinese, 2,418 Japanese, 5,090 Indians, and 1,519 negroes. The foreign born numbered 65,748, of whom 12,322 were German, 2,947 Chinese, 2,024 Canadian, 2,863 English, 4,555 Swedish,

4,210 Irish, 2,389 Norwegian. The Indian reservations in 1906 comprised 1,991 sq. miles with a population of 2,913 Indians.

The largest town is Portland, with a population of 207,214 in 1910, Astoria, 9,599; Salem, 16,694 Eugene, 9,009

The chief religious bodies in the State are (in order of strength) Catholic, Methodist, Baptist, Presbyterian, Disciples of Christ, and Congregational denominations.

School attendance is compulsory for the full school term for children 8 to 14 years of age. In 1910 the public elementary schools had 4,241 teachers and 109,383 enrolled pupils, and 179 public high schools had 493 teachers and 8,339 pupils, and the two public normal schools had in 1910 23 teachers and 416 pupils. The State supports an Agricultural College, which has 89 professors and 1,591 students, and a University, known as the University of Oregon, organized in 1872. In 1910 it had 102 professors and 874 students. There are also Methodist Presbyterian Catholic, Congregational, and Baptist Colleges

Charity—In Oregon (apart from almshouses and asylums for the insane, &c.) there are 22 benevolent institutions, comprising State schools for the deaf, for the blind, and for the feeble minded, also a State Tuberculous Sanatorium, six hospitals, one dispensary and five orphanages. County courts have superintendence of county poor, and may establish a workhouse. Parents, grand parents, children, grand children, brothers and sisters of a pauper are liable for his support. Failing this source of supply, if the applicant has resided in the county during the preceding three months he becomes a public charge. There is a penalty of 100 dollars for bringing paupers into a county where they have no legal settlement

Finance, Defence—The receipts and disbursements of the General Fund of the State, and of all the funds of the State in the biennial period ending September 30, 1912, were —

	Dollars
Balance, Oct 1, 1910	424,918
Receipts, 1910-12	8,307,182
Total	8,732,095
Disbursements, 1910-12	7,738,859
Balance, Sept 30, 1912	993,736

The State has no bonded debt. In 1910 the assessed value of taxable property, as equalized, was $44,887,708 dollars.

The Militia, or National Guard, consists of cavalry, artillery, infantry, with signal, hospital, and engineer corps, total strength (1910), 112 officers and 1,467 men. The headquarters are at Portland

Production and Industry—Oregon is one of the semi-arid States. In the river valley west of the Cascades there is a good rainfall and almost every variety of crop common to the temperate zone is grown. East of the Cascades lack of rainfall has been to some extent compensated for by irrigation by private companies. Work has been begun on Federal irrigation schemes covering 155,000 acres in Oregon alone, to cost altogether nearly 20 million dollars, while projects are under consideration for the irrigation of 172,000 acres more in California and Oregon. Oregon has one-sixth of the standing timber of the United States. In 1910 there were 44,502 farms with an acreage of 11,685,110 of which 4,274,808 acres were improved land. The leading crops are wheat (21,018,000 bushels in 1912) and hay. Oats, barley, and flax seed are grown to some extent. Potatoes, sugar beet, and especially hops are important crops. Fruits are grown, especially plums, apples, pears, strawberries, and cherries, to the value of 8,662,500 dollars in 1910. There is an active live stock industry. Horses on January 1, 1910 numbered 308,000, milk cows, 174,000, other cattle, 698,000, sheep, 2,581,000, swine, 267,000. In 1911 the wool clip yielded 15,800,000 pounds. The salmon, sturgeon, halibut, and oyster fisheries are abundant. The weight of salmon caught in the Columbia River (Oregon side) in 1910 and from coast streams was 35,000,000 pounds. Salmon fry, 41,235,000, were liberated in the Columbia in 1910. The State has various mineral resources. In 1911 the output of gold amounted to 30,879 fine ounces, valued at 634,200 dollars, of silver (1911), 44,800 fine ounces, valued at 24,200 dollars, of copper, 125,943 pounds (15,749 dollars). The output of coal was 46,661 short tons, valued at 108,033 dollars. Granite and other building stones were extracted to the value of 583,398 dollars. Other minerals are quick silver, nickel, cobalt, lead, gypsum, garnet and opals are found. The total mineral output in 1911 was valued at 5,198,796 dollars.

In 1910 the manufacturing industries of Oregon had 2,246 establishments with an aggregate capital of 89,082,000 dollars, they employed 3,473 salaried officials and 28,750 wage-earners, the cost of the raw material used was 50,532,000 dollars, and the value of the output 93,005,000 dollars. These industries are associated with the forest, agricultural, pastoral, and fishery products of the State.

Statistics of the more important industries for 1910 are as follows:—

Industries	Capital	Wage earners	Cost of material	Value of output
	Dollars	Number	Dollars	Dollars
Lumber and timber	35,031,000	15,065	12,413,000	30,500,000
Flour and grain	5,670,000	824	7,897,000	2,891,000
Slaughtering and packing	2,481,000	368	5,618,000	5,890,000
Foundries	3,670,000	1,055	1,472,000	2,150,000
Fish canning, &c.	4,162,000	661	2,187,000	3,207,000
Dairy produce	1,716,000	420	3,967,000	4,920,000

Oregon has good water facilities in the Pacific Ocean, the Columbia river, the Willamette river, and the Snake river. Large ocean-going vessels can navigate the Columbia as far as Portland. Rivers and harbours are constantly dredged and improved. The value of imports at Portland in 1911 was 354,622, and of exports, 2,161,655. In 1910 the State had a total railway mileage of 2,122, besides 281 miles of electric railway track. The principal lines are the Oregon Washington Railroad and Navigation Company and the Union Pacific.

British Consul at Portland.—J. Laidlaw. There are vice-consuls at Portland and Astoria.

PENNSYLVANIA

Government—The General Assembly consists of a Senate and a House of Representatives. Every male citizen 21 years of age, resident in the State for one year, and in the district for two months preceding the election, is entitled to vote, provided that he has paid a State or County tax within two years and at least one month before the election. The Senate consists of 50 members chosen for four years, 25 Senators being elected at each General Assembly election. The House of Representatives consists of 207 members chosen for two years.

The State is represented in Congress by two Senators and 36 Representatives.
Governor—John K. Tener, 1911–1915 (10,000 dollars.)

Secretary of the Commonwealth.—Robert McAfee

For local administration the State is organized in counties, cities, towns or boroughs, and townships. There are 67 counties. Those which have been formed since 1874 contain at least 400 square miles and 20,000 inhabitants. The State Capital is Harrisburg.

Area, Population, Instruction—Area, 45,086 square miles

Years	Population		Years	Population
	Total	Per sq. m.		Total	Per sq. m.
1820	1,049,458	23.3	1900	6,302,115	140.6
1860	2,906,215	64.6	1910	7,665,111	171.0

The population is mainly English but contains elements of various European nationalities. In 1910 the population was made up of 3,942,137 males and 3,722,974 females, and included 193,908 negroes, 1,503 Indians, 1,749 Chinese, and 189 Japanese. In 1900 the foreign born population of the State numbered 985,250 of whom 212,453 were German, 205,909 Irish, 114,831 English, 67,492 Austrian, 66,552 Italian, 50,959 Russian, and 72,648 Polish (from Russia, Austria and Germany). In 1910, 1,438,752 were foreign born.

Population of the larger cities according to 1910 census —

Cities	Population	Cities	Population	Cities	Population
Philadelphia	1,549,008	Lancaster	47,227	Easton	23,023

The birth rate in cities (1906) was 27.2 per 1,000 of population marriages, 54,862, births, 194,623, deaths, 112,948

The chief religious bodies in the State are Roman Catholic, Methodist, Lutheran, Presbyterian, and Reformed bodies.

School attendance is compulsory for children 8 to 16 years of age for the full school term, but the district school board may reduce this to 70 per cent. of the term. In the year 1910 the 34,616 public elementary schools had 35,496 teachers and 1,282,965 enrolled pupils. There were 774 public high schools with 2,775 teachers and 64,967 pupils. In 18 public Normal Schools in 1910 there were 372 teachers with 9,368 pupils. The Pennsylvania State College devotes special attention to modern industrial pursuits. In connection with the college there is an Agricultural Experiment Station which receives from the United States Government an appropriation of 15,000 dollars a year.

The more important universities and colleges (1910) for men (or both sexes) within the State are as follows —

Begin	Institutions.	Professors	Students
1740	Univ. of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia (non-sect.)	464	4,186

Charity—There are two State Penitentiaries, the eastern and smaller located at Philadelphia, containing on August 1, 1911 1,358 prisoners, the Western Penitentiary is at Allegheny. A large tract of land in the centre of the State has been purchased whereon will be erected a penitentiary along the latest and best ideas in penology. The cost will approximate 1,250,000 dollars. The Industrial Reformatory, Huntingdon, on the same date had 991 inmates, exclusive of those on parole and the Reform School, Morganza, had 438 inmates. Within the State there are (exclusive of almshouses, asylums for the insane, &c.) 409 benevolent institutions, 27 of which are public (i. e. belong to Federal or State or municipal authorities), the rest having been provided by private or ecclesiastical charity. They comprise 145 hospitals, 94 orphanages, 129 homes for adults and children, and 8 institutions for the deaf and blind, besides dispensaries and day nurseries. In counties not maintaining an almshouse the care of the poor devolves on elected overseers, who may contract with authorities in an adjoining county having a poorhouse for the support of their poor. County almshouses are under elected directors of the poor, subject to the approval of the county court of quarter sessions. The cost of relieving a pauper is borne by the district where he has a settlement or (if he has none) by the county to which he is relieved. Settlement is gained by payment of rent on real estate to the yearly value of 10 dollars, by owning a freehold and living on it for a year, by holding an elective office for a year, and in other ways. Parents, grandparents, children and grandchildren of a pauper are liable for his support. Almshouses are subject to inspection by the State Board of Charities.

Finance, Defence—For the year ending November 30, 1912, the receipts, payments, and balances were—

	Dollars
Balance, December 1, 1911	12,923,871
Receipts, 1912	32,874,890
Total	45,298,261
Expenditure, 1912	35,516,410
Balance, December, 1, 1912	9,781,851

On September 1, 1911 the outstanding bonds of the State amounted to 666,910 dollars. Sinking fund, 785,421 dollars. The value of real property amounted to 4,172,955,448 dollars, the taxable value of personal and corporate property amounted to 8,511,485,870 dollars. In point of wealth, as in population Pennsylvania stands next to New York.

The militia or National Guard consists of cavalry, artillery, and infantry, and on July 1, 1912, had a total strength of 748 officers and 10,061 men. The naval militia contains 8 officers and 228 men.

Production and Industry—Agriculture, market gardening, fruit growing, horticulture and forestry are pursued within the State. In 1910 the farm area was 18,586,000 acres, of which 12,673,000 acres was improved land. In 1912 the yield of wheat was 23,320,000 bushels, oats, 36,377,000 bushels, tobacco, 84,090,000 pounds, maize, 61,582,000 bushels, rye 4,935,000 bushels, of buckwheat, 7,405,000 bushels, of barley, 192,000 bushels, of potatoes, 28,885,000 bushels, and of hay, 4,537,000 tons. In 1910 the farm animals in the State were 819,000 horses, 43,000 mules, 1,140,000 milk cows, 917,000 other cattle, 1,112,000 sheep, and 931,000 swine. The wool clip amounted in 1911 to 4,225,000 pounds of wool, valued at 1,010,620 dollars.

The State has a Forestry Department which purchases and manages lands suitable for timber culture, and also maintains a school of forestry for forest wardens.

The fishery interests are under the care of the Department of Fisheries.

In the State in 1910, 172,347 workers were employed at the anthracite mines, and 178,606 at the bituminous coal mines, the output of anthracite was 90,484,067 short tons, valued at 175,189,392 dollars, and of bituminous coal 144,754,163 short tons, valued at 146,347,858 dollars. The yield of crude petroleum was 8,248,158 barrels (of 42 gallons), valued at 10,894,074 dollars. The value of natural gas produced in the State was 18,010,798 dollars. The output of iron ore (magnetite and hematite) was 514,929 long tons, and of pig iron 9,581,169 long tons, valued at 136,328,507 dollars. Pennsylvania has important quarries, cement works, and brick and tile works. The output of such undertakings, in 1911, was as follows:—Granite, value 8,147,505 dollars, slate, 2,431,351 dollars, limestone, 2,638,374 dollars; sandstone, 3,625,267 dollars, Portland cement, 27,024,725 barrels (19,306,349 dollars); natural rock cement, 196,331 barrels (56,777 dollars); and sand for moulding, &c., 2,257,021 dollars, bricks, tiles, pottery, &c.

Charity.—State institutions comprise Penitentiary and a Reformatory, an industrial home for boys and one for girls, 7 hospitals, an institution for deaf mutes, one for the blind, and one for feeble-minded youth, a soldiers' and sailors' home, and a soldiers' and sailors' orphans' home.

Within the State (apart from almshouses and asylums for the insane, &c.) there are 367 benevolent institutions, 82 of which are public (i.e., belong to the Federal or State or municipal authorities) while the rest have been provided by private associations or religious bodies. The institutions comprise 7½ hospitals (eight public), seven dispensaries, 166 orphanages (49 public), eight day nurseries, 68 homes (three public) and five institutions for the deaf and blind (two public). The trustees of townships or the proper officials of corporations relieve the poor, but applicants with legal residence elsewhere (acquired by 12 months' continuous residence without poor relief) are to be sent to their county of settlement. Paupers may be required to earn their own support by labour on public property. County infirmaries (almshouses) are under boards of directors who appoint superintendents. Directors and superintendents may not sell or furnish supplies for the poor. Directors report to the State board of charities. Special provision is made respecting pauper children. There is a penalty of 50 dollars for bringing paupers into a county to make them a public charge. On January 1, 1911, the almshouses had 7,949 pauper inmates (296 coloured).

Finance, Defence.—The taxation levies for all purposes, and the expenditure, for the fiscal year ending November 15, 1912, were —

	Dollars
Cash in hand, Nov 15, 1911	3,768,116
Income, 1911-1912	14,036,902
Total	17,806,018
Disbursements, 1911-12	18,123,180
Balance, Nov 15, 1912	4,682,838

In 1911 the newly constituted State Board of Taxation fixed the values of all forms of property and property values at par on the dollar, the aggregate exceeding seven billions.

The sum annually expended out of the tax levy for schools and school purposes is slightly above 2,500,000 dollars.

The levelling up of all forms of property and property values to par has the effect of placing the tax burden on an automatically just basis—on the dollar, not the person.

There is no bonded debt in the State. Certain trust funds which constitute an irreducible debt of the State amount to 4,991,421 dollars, on which interest is paid amounting to 294,153 dollars to various educational funds. The local debt (County, City, Township, &c.) amounts to 146,271,611 dollars.

The National Guard consists of 546 officers and 6,906 enlisted men. The Naval Militia has 19 officers and 247 men.

Production and Industry.—Ohio is extensively devoted to agriculture. In 1911 it contained 239,945 acres of an aggregate area of 25,345,850 acres, of which 19,344,472 acres were improved land. The chief crops are corn, hay, potatoes, fruits and vegetables, besides tobacco. The main crop in 1912 amounted to 174,410,000 bushels, and the wheat crop to 9,760,000 bushels, oats, 93,330,000 bushels. The area under tobacco (86,300 acres in 1912), yielded 79,984,000 pounds. Beet sugar is produced. Horse rearing, cattle-breeding, and dairy farming are important. In 1910 the live-stock in the State was estimated at 877,000 horses, 22,000 mules, 947,000 milk cows, and 978,000 other cattle, 3,208,000 sheep, and 2,647,000 swine. The wool clip in 1911 yielded 18,650,000 pounds of wool, valued at 4,429,760 dollars. The farm products and live-stock industries give rise to the manufacture of butter and cheese, and the meat-packing industries.

Ohio has also extensive mineral resources. Its coal fields have an area of about 12,000 square miles, and provide employment for 50,000 miners. In 1911 the output of coal amounted to 80,759,986 short tons, valued at 81,310,123 dollars. The output of iron ore in the State amounted to 16,897 long tons. With coal is associated petroleum, the output of which amounted to 8,817,112 barrels (of 42 gallons), valued at 9,479,542 dollars. At the same time natural gas was produced in the State to the value of 9,367,347 dollars. From quarries sandstone and limestone were produced to the value of 8,796,829 dollars. Portland cement was manufactured to the amount of 1,488,074 barrels, valued at 1,248,109 dollars. Another product of the State is salt, of which, in 1911, 4,302,507 barrels were extracted, valued at 1,100,458 dollars. The output of the clay working industries (bricks, tiles, pottery) amounted to the value of 32,663,895 dollars, the output of lime was valued at 1,607,524 dollars, other mineral products were grindstones, pulstones, oilstones, and scythestones, besides mineral waters. Value of total mineral output excluding 5,371,378 long tons of pig iron (73,484,592 dollars), in 1911, 97,090,284 dollars.

In 1910 the capital invested in manufacturing industries in the State was 866,898,088 dollars, the amount paid in salaries and wages was 228,884,928 dollars, the raw material used cost 529,893,658 dollars, and the value of the output was 960,799,991 dollars. The value of the corresponding output in 1900 was 748,670,855 dollars. In 1905 the chief manufacturing industries, according to the census results, were as follows:—

Industries	Capital	Wage-earners	Cost of Materials	Output
	Dollars	Number	Dollars	Dollars
Iron and steel	180,601,846	88,180	110,685,497	152,659,134

OKLAHOMA (INCLUDING INDIAN TERRITORY)

The State of Oklahoma, comprising the former Territory of Oklahoma and Indian Territory, was constituted on November 16, 1907, by Proclamation made by the United States President under the enabling act of June 16, 1906. The constitution provides for the initiative and the referendum, 8 per cent. of the legal voters having the right to propose any legislative measure and 15 per cent. to propose amendments to the constitution by petition. The referendum may be ordered (except as to laws necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health or safety) either by petition signed by 5 per cent. of the legal voters or by the Legislature. The referendum applies to municipalities as well as to the State. The control of railways and other public service corporations is vested in a commission of 3 members elected for six year periods, from whose decision an appeal lies only to the Supreme Court, no other court having power to interfere with its duties.

The Legislature consists of a Senate the members of which are elected for 4 years, and a House of Representatives elected for 2 years. Qualified as electors are (with necessary exceptions) all citizens resident six months in the State, 60 days in the county or town, 30 days in the precinct. Indians, to be qualified as voters, must have severed tribal relations.

Governor—Lee Cruce, 1911-15 ($4,500 dollars).

Secretary—B. F. Harrison.

The State is represented in Congress by 2 Senators and 5 members of the House of Representatives. The State capital shall be the city of Guthrie until 1913, after which period a new capital may be selected.

Area and Population.—Area, 70,470 square miles (Oklahoma 39,080, Indian Territory 31,440), of which 600 square miles is water and the population on July 1, 1907, was 1,414,179 (Oklahoma 733,064, Indian Territory 681,115). The population on the present area was, in 1890, 242,016; in 1900, 790,391; in 1906, 1,109,485; in 1910, 1,657,155 (881,578 males and 775,582 females). In 1910 the population included 137,612 negroes, and on Indian reservations there were 74,825 Indians.

[For the history of the relations between the Indians and the Federal Government see STATESMAN'S YEAR BOOK for 1907, p. 593.]

The most important cities are Oklahoma City (population 64,205), Muskogee (25,278), Guthrie (11,654), Shawnee (12,474), Enid (18,799), Ardmore (8,618), McAlester (12,594), Chickasha (10,820), Tulsa (18,182).

Religion, Education, Charity.—The chief religious bodies are Methodist, Baptist, Roman Catholic, Disciples (Christians), and Presbyterians. The State has a school system embracing elementary and high public schools, normal schools, and also colleges for superior instruction. Separate schools have to be provided for whites and negroes, all children not negroes being classed as white. In 1910 there were in the State public elementary schools with 422,899 enrolled pupils and 9,478 teachers 40 secondary public schools with 4,547 enrolled pupils and 204 teachers. There were in 1910 3 normal schools with 51 teachers and 2,208 students. The University (founded in 1892) had in 1908, 53 professors and 646 students, the Agricultural and Mechanical College (founded in 1891) had 88 professors and 651 students, while the coloured Agricultural and Normal University, with 13 instructors, has 360 students.

Oklahoma has 3 hospitals, 6 orphanages, and 2 homes for adults and children, a school for the deaf and one for the blind

Finance, Defence—There is no bonded debt. Income (1910-12), $8,843,064 dollars. Expenditure (1910-12), 7,228,766 dollars.

The militia, called the Oklahoma National Guard, with its headquarters at Guthrie, consists of infantry, cavalry, hospital corps, signal corps, and engineer corps total strength 56 officers and 938 enlisted men

Production—Oklahoma is mainly agricultural. In 1910 it had 190,192 farms with a total area of 28 859,858 acres, of which 17,551,337 acres were improved land. The yield of maize in 1912 was 101,878,000 bushels, of wheat, 20,096,000 bushels of oats, 23 494 000 bushels. Other products are potatoes, hay, sorghum, fruits, and cotton. The cotton crop for 1909 on 1,767,000 acres amounted to 573 786 bales, in 1911 it yielded 955 251 bales estimated yield for 1912, 1,039 000 bales. Flax is also widely grown. The western part is devoted to stock raising, in 1910 the stock comprised 356,000 milk cows, and 1,637,000 other cattle, 1,302,000 hogs, 108 000 sheep, 804,000 horses, and 191,000 mules

The mineral products consist of gypsum, granite, sandstone and limestone, and petroleum. The yield of petroleum in 1911, was 56,089,637 barrels, valued at 26,451,767 dollars. Some natural gas is obtained. Coal was obtained (1911) to the amount of 3,074 242 short tons, value 6,291,494 dollars. Lead and zinc are also worked. The value of the mineral output in 1911 was 42,678,446 dollars.

There are few manufacturing industries, flour and grist milling, cotton ginning, the manufacture of cotton seed oil and oil cake being the more important. In 1910 the State had a total of 2,310 industrial establishments, employing 18 143 wage-earners, with a total capital of 38,873,000 dollars, the cost of material being 84,153,000 dollars, and the value of the output 53,682,000 dollars. Statistics of leading industries are —

Industries	Capital	Wage-earners	Cost of material	Output
	Dollars	Number	Dollars	Dollars
Flour mills	7,661 000	842	16,495 000	19,144 000
Oil and cotton-seed	5,071 000	581	4 245 000	5 187,000
Lumber and timber	3 608 000	2 175	1 487 000	4,489 900
Printing	3,743,000	1,698	1,004 000	3 999,900

In 1908 Oklahoma had 5,950 miles of railway. The principal lines are the Atchafson, Topeka and Santa Fé, the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific, the Choctaw, Oklahoma and Gulf and the St. Louis and San Francisco, the Missouri, Kansas and Texas, the St. Louis and San Francisco, and the Santa Fé Pacific Railways. It has also 215 miles of electric railway track.

OREGON.

Government.—The Legislative Assembly consists of a Senate of 30 members, chosen for four years (half their number retiring every two years), and a House of 60 Representatives, elected for two years.

The Constitution was amended in 1902, under the terms of which amendment the people reserve to themselves the power to propose laws and amendments to the Constitution and to enact or reject the same at the polls independent of the Legislative Assembly, and also reserve the power at their own option to approve or reject at the polls any Act of the Legislative Assembly. This is known as the initiative and referendum. Not more than eight per cent. of the legal voters are required to propose any measure to be voted upon by the people at the next ensuing general election. Measures thus initiated are enacted or rejected at the polls independently of the Legislative Assembly. Under the referendum, any Bill passed by the Legislative Assembly, except such as are for the preservation of the public peace, health, and safety, may, by petition signed by five per cent. of the legal voters, be referred to the people to be voted on for approval or rejection at the next ensuing general election.

In all elections every white male citizen of the United States of the age of twenty-one years and upwards, who shall have resided in the State during the six months immediately preceding such election, and every white male of foreign birth of the age of twenty-one years and upwards, who shall have resided in the United States one year, and shall have resided in this State during the six months immediately preceding such election, and shall have declared his intention to become a citizen of the United States one year preceding such election, conformably to the laws of the United States on the subject of naturalization, shall be entitled to vote at all elections authorized by law.

The State is represented in Congress by two Senators and two Representatives (a third representative will be allowed by new apportionment.)

Governor —Oswald West, 1911-1915. ($5,000 dollars.)

Secretary of State.—Ben. W. Olcott.

The State Capital is Salem. There are 34 counties in the State.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area, 96,380 square miles, 1,470 square miles being water.

Years	Population	Per sq. mile	Years	Population	Per sq. mile
1890	174,768	1.80	1900	412,536	4.40
1899	212,767	2.40	1910	672,675	7.00

The population in 1910 was made up of 384,285 males and 288,510 females, and included 7,350 Chinese, 8,415 Japanese, 5,000 Indians, and 1,512 negroes. The foreign-born numbered 65,748, of whom 12,292 were German, 9,267 Chinese, 8,634 Canadian, 5,265 English, 4,355 Swedish,

4,210 Irish, 2,789 Norwegian. The Indian reservations in 1906 comprised 1,991 sq. miles with a population of 2,918 Indians.

The largest town is Portland, with a population of 207,214 in 1910; Astoria, 2,592; Salem, 14,094 Eugene, 9,009.

The chief religious bodies in the State are (in order of strength) Catholic, Methodist, Baptist, Presbyterian, Disciples of Christ and Congregational denominations.

School attendance is compulsory for the full school term for children 8 to 14 years of age. In 1910 the public elementary schools had 4,241 teachers and 109,889 enrolled pupils, and 179 public high schools had 493 teachers and 8,989 pupils, and the two public normal schools had in 1910 39 teachers and 416 pupils. The State supports an Agricultural College, which has 89 professors and 1,591 students and a University, known as the University of Oregon, organized in 1872. In 1910 it had 103 professors and 874 students. There are also Methodist, Presbyterian, Catholic Congregational, and Baptist Colleges.

Charity—In Oregon (apart from almshouses and asylums for the insane, &c.) there are 22 benevolent institutions, comprising State schools for the deaf, for the blind and for the feeble minded, also a State Tuberculosis Sanatorium, six hospitals, one dispensary and five orphanages. County courts have superintendence of county poor, and may establish a workhouse. Parents, grand parents, children, grand-children, brothers and sisters of a pauper are liable for his support. Failing this source of supply, if the applicant has resided in the county during the preceding three months he becomes a public charge. There is a penalty of 100 dollars for bringing paupers into a county where they have no legal settlement.

Finance, Defence—The receipts and disbursements of the General Fund of the State, and of all the funds of the State in the biennial period ending September 30, 1912, were —

	Dollars
Balance, Oct 1 1910	424,913
Receipts, 1910-12	8,307,182
Total	8,732,095
Disbursements, 1910-12	7,738,359
Balance, Sept 30, 1912	993,736

The State has no bonded debt. In 1910 the assessed value of taxable property, as equalized, was $44,837,708 dollars.

The Militia, or National Guard, consists of cavalry, artillery, infantry, with signal, hospital, and engineer corps, total strength (1910), 112 officers and 1,437 men. The headquarters are at Portland.

Production and Industry—Oregon is one of the semi-arid States. In the river valley west of the Cascades there is a good rainfall and almost every variety of crop common to the temperate zone is grown. East of the Cascades lack of rainfall has been to some extent compensated for by irrigation by private companies. Work has been begun on Federal irrigation schemes covering 155 000 acres in Oregon alone, to cost altogether nearly 20 million dollars while projects are under consideration for the irrigation of 172,000 acres more in California and Oregon. Oregon has one-sixth of the standing timber of the United States. In 1910 there were 45,502 farms with an acreage of 11 685,110 of which 4,274,803 acres were improved land. The leading crops are wheat (21,018,000 bushels in 1912) and hay. Oats, barley, and flax seed are grown to some extent. Potatoes, sugar beet and especially hops are important crops. Fruits are grown especially plums, apples, pears, strawberries, and cherries, to the value of 6,662 500 dollars in 1910. There is an active live stock industry. Horses on January 1, 1910 numbered 308 000, milk cows 174,000, other cattle 698 000, sheep 2 581 000, swine 267 000. In 1911 the wool clip yielded 15 300,000 pounds. The salmon, sturgeon, halibut, and oyster fisheries are abundant. The weight of salmon caught in the Columbia River (Oregon side) in 1910 and from coast streams was 35,000,000 pounds. Salmon for 41 235 000 were liberated in the Columbia in 1910. The State has various mineral resources. In 1911 the output of gold amounted to 30,679 fine ounces valued at 634 200 dollars. Of silver (1911), 44 800 fine ounces valued at 24 200 dollars. Of copper 125 943 pounds (15 743 dollars). The output of coal was 48 661 short tons, valued at 108,033 dollars. Granite and other building stones were extracted to the value of 583 398 dollars. Other minerals are quick silver, nickel, cobalt, lead, gypsum, garnet and opals are found. The total mineral output in 1911 was valued at 1 198 796 dollars.

In 1910 the manufacturing industries of Oregon had 2,246 establishments with an aggregate capital of 39,082 000 dollars. They employed 3,473 salaried officials and 28 750 wage earners, the cost of the raw material used was 50 552,000 dollars and the value of the output 93 005 000 dollars. These industries are associated with the forest, agricultural, pastoral, and fishery products of the State.

Statistics of the more important industries for 1910 are as follows —

Industries	Capital	Wage earners	Cost of material	Value of output
	Dollars	Number	Dollars	Dollars
Lumber and timber	85 031 000	15 066	1 413,000	30 200 000

Dairy produce	1 718 000	420	3 452 000	4 0 0 000

Oregon has good water facilities in the Pacific Ocean, the Columbia river, the Willamette river and the Snake river. Large ocean going vessels can navigate the Columbia as far as Portland. Rivers and harbours are constantly dredged and improved. The value of imports at Portland in 1911 was 554,5224, and of exports 2,161,6557. In 1910 the State had a total railway mileage of 2,122, besides 261 miles of electric railway track. The principal lines are the Oregon Washington Railroad and Navigation Company and the Union Pacific.

British Consul at Portland — J. Laidlaw. There are vice consuls at Portland and Astoria.

Charity — There are two State Penitentiaries, the eastern and smaller located at Philadelphia, containing on August 1, 1911, 1,356 prisoners, the Western Penitentiary is at Allegheny. A large tract of land in the centre of the State has been purchased whereon will be erected a penitentiary along the latest and best ideas in penology. The cost will approximate 1,250,000 dollars. The Industrial Reformatory, Huntingdon, on the same date had 291 inmates, exclusive of those on parole and the Reform School, Morgantown, had 468 inmates. Within the State there are (exclusive of almshouses, asylums for the insane, &c.) 409 benevolent institutions, 27 of which are public (16 belong to Federal or State or municipal authorities) the rest having been provided by private or ecclesiastical charity. They comprise 145 hospitals, 94 orphanages, 129 homes for adults and children, and 8 institutions for the deaf and blind, besides dispensaries and day nurseries. In counties not maintaining an almshouse, the care of the poor devolves on elected overseers, who may contract with authorities in an adjoining county having a poorhouse for the support of their poor. County almshouses are under elected directors of the poor, subject to the approval of the county court of quarter sessions. The cost of relieving a pauper is borne by the district where he has a settlement or (if he has none) by the county in which he is relieved. Settlement is gained by payment

The wool clip amounted in 1911 to 4,225,000 pounds of wool, valued at 1 010,620 dollars.

The State has a Forestry Department which purchases and manages lands suitable for timber culture, and also maintains a school of forestry for forest wardens.

The fishery interests are under the care of the Department of Fisheries.

In the State in 1910, 172,347 workers were employed at the anthracite mines, and 176,606 at the bituminous coal mines, the output of anthracite was 90,464,067 short tons, valued at 175,189,392 dollars, and of bituminous coal 144,754 163 short tons valued at 146 947,856 dollars. The yield of crude petroleum was 8,248,158 barrels (of 42 gallons) valued at 10 894 074 dollars. The value of natural gas produced in the State was 18,010 796 dollars. The output of iron ore (magnetite and hematite) was 614,928 long tons, and of pig iron 9 581,109 long tons, valued at 136,328 507 dollars. Pennsylvania has important quarries, cement works, and brick and tile works. The output of such undertakings, in 1911, was as follows—Granite, value 3,147,505 dollars, slate, 2,481,851 dollars, limestone, 2,688,374 dollars, sandstone, 3,025,287 dollars. Portland cement, 27,024,725 barrels (19,305 849 dollars), natural rock cement, 196,331 barrels (56,777 dollars), and sand for moulding, &c., 2,357,021 dollars, bricks, tiles, pottery, &c.

20,270,083 dollars. The output of coke was 21,923,935 short tons, valued at 43,053,867 dollars. Pittsburg, having abundant supplies of coal, has become the principal iron work centre. The value of the total mineral output of Pennsylvania (excluding pig iron, coke, and other products from coal) in 1911 was estimated at 414 112,378 dollars.

According to the census of manufactures in 1910, there were in Pennsylvania, 27,563 manufacturing establishments with an aggregate capital amounting to 2,749,005,975 dollars, employing 94 885 salaried officials and 877,543 wage earners. The salaries in the year amounted to 110 897,242 dollars and the wages to 455,628 790 dollars. The cost of the raw material used was 1 582,559,988 dollars, and the value of the output was 2,626,742,034 dollars.

The textile manufactures are chiefly worsted goods, woollens, hosiery, carpets, silk goods, and cotton goods.

Pennsylvania, owing to the abundance of tanning substances, is the largest leather producing State in the Union. 60 per cent of the glazed kind of the United States is made in Philadelphia. In 1910 the leather industry employed 16 532 workers earning a total wage of 7,938 107 dollars. In 1910 there were cotton mills employing 16 293 workers earning a total of 7,034,407 dollars.

The total value of goods imported into Philadelphia during the year 1911 was 80,959 935 dollars (16,191,987 of goods exported, 70 527,144 dollars (14,105,428)). Six steamship lines traded with the port. 145 American vessels of 253 432 tons and 531 foreign vessels with 1 890 466 tons entered; while 83 American vessels with 100,420 tons and 780 foreign vessels with 2,021,828 tons cleared. In 1910 the State contained 11,290 miles of railway, besides 4,210 miles of electric railway track.

RHODE ISLAND

Constitution and Government.—The earliest settlers in the region which now forms the State of Rhode Island were colonists from Massachusetts who had been driven forth on account of their non acceptance of the prevailing religious beliefs. The first of the settlements was made in 1636, and their numbers and importance quickly increased, settlers of every creed being welcomed. In 1647 a patent was granted for the government of the settlements, and on July 8, 1663, a charter was executed recognizing the settlers as forming a body corporate and politic by the name of the English colony of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations. On May 29, 1790 the State accepted the Federal Constitution and entered the Union as one of the 13 original States. The General Assembly consists of a Senate and a House of Representatives. The Senate has 38 members, besides the Governor who is ex officio President, and the Lieutenant-Governor who is ex officio a Senator. The House of Representatives consists of 100 members. Every male citizen, 21 years of age, who has resided in the State for 2 years, and is duly registered, is qualified to vote for any State officer.

Governor — Aram J. Pothier 1913-15 ($3,000 dollars)

Secretary of State — J. Fred Parker

The State is represented in the Federal Congress by 2 Senators and 2 Representatives.

The State is divided into 5 counties and 38 cities and towns. The State Capital is Providence.

Area, Population, Education — Area 1,250 square miles, of which nearly 200 square miles is water.

There are also 37 benevolent institutions, hospitals, orphanages, homes, &c. provided by private associations and religious bodies.

Each town must support its own poor and give temporary relief to paupers not legally settled in it but parents, grandparents, children, and grandchildren of a pauper are liable for his support. Settlement is gained by ownership of real estate and payment of taxes on it for 5 consecutive years or by having an estate of the yearly value of 20 dollars and taking its profits for 3 consecutive years. Pauper children may be bound out by the overseers of towns to certain charitable societies. To bring a pauper into a town where he has not a settlement is punishable by fine of 100 dollars. Town almshouses are managed by the town councils. Paupers with no settlement in the State are supported in the State almshouse.

Finance, Defence.—For the year 1912 the receipts and payments were to the following amounts —

	Dollars

	Dollars
Real property	252,766,767
Personal property	333,086,455
Total	585,853,222

The Militia, or Volunteer State Troops, with their headquarters at Columbia, consist of cavalry, artillery and infantry, total strength (1909) 1,751 men and 180 officers. The total available strength (unorganised) is 100,000. The naval militia contains 21 officers and 185 men.

Production and Industry—South Carolina is an agricultural State, containing in 1910 176,434 farms, more than half of which were negro farms. The farm area covered 13,512,028 acres, 6,097,999 acres being improved land. About 68 per cent of the area of the State is woodland. The chief cereal crops are wheat, 727,000 bushels in 1912, maize, 34,273,000 bushels in 1912, oats, and rice, of which 200,000 bushels were produced in 1912. Of greater importance is the cultivation of cotton, under which in 1909 were 2,492,000 acres, yielding 1,164,309 bales of upland cotton, in 1910, the produce was 1,240,340 bales in 1911, 1,648,712 bales, and in 1912, 1,184,000 (estimate). Under tobacco in 1912 were 85 000 acres, yielding 24,500,000 pounds, valued at 2,670,000 dollars. The rearing of live-stock is of no great importance.

The State has active fisheries, mainly oysters, whiting, shad, and sea-bass.

The minerals worked are phosphate rock (169,156 long tons, valued at 673,166 dollars in 1911), granite (336,467 dollars), clay products (669,794 dollars), gold 972 fine ounces (20,100 dollars), silver, manganese, iron ore, lime, and monazite in small quantities. The value of the total mineral output (including coal products, sand &c.) was 1,804 dollars in 1911.

The manufacturing industries of the State in 1910 had a total capital of 178,221 000 dollars, the establishments numbered 1,854, their proprietors and firm members, 1,737, their clerks, &c. 3 267, and wage earners, 73,046. The raw material used was valued at 66 351,000 dollars, and the output at 118,236,000 dollars. Statistics of the chief industries for 1910 are as follows:—

Industries	Capital	Wage-earners	Material used	Output
	Dollars	Number	Dollars	Dollars
Cotton goods	12,549 000	43 454	41,303,080	65 930,000
Lumber and timber products	15,010 000	14 604	3 981,000	18 141 000

There are several smaller colleges. Day (elementary) and Boarding (higher) Indian Schools are maintained by the State, and there are also various denominational schools for the education of Indian children.

Charity—Within the State there are (exclusive of almshouses and establishments for imbeciles, &c.) 13 benevolent institutions, most of which have been provided by private charity or by religious bodies. They comprise eight hospitals, two orphanages, a home for adults, a school for the deaf and another for the blind. County commissioners are overseers of the poor and care for the indigent who have a lawful settlement in their county, gained by 90 days residence. Paupers refused relief have an appeal to the county circuit court judge. There is a penalty for sending paupers out of their county of settlement, and for bringing them into a county where they have no settlement. The county commissioners, authorized by the voters at a special election, may establish an asylum for the poor, or several counties may combine for the purpose. Where no poorhouse exists paupers may be supported by contract for a year. In 1906 228 paupers were wholly and 453 partly maintained by counties at a cost of 73,659 dollars.

Finance, Defence—For the year ended June 30, 1912, the receipts and disbursements were —

	Dollars
Balance on June 30 1911	421,156
Receipts for 1911-12	3,779,652
Total	4,200,808
Disbursements for 1911-12	3,208,519
Balance on June 30 1912	992,289

The assessed value (25 to 33 per cent of actual value) of all property in the State in 1908 was 283,696,288 dollars. In 1911 there was a debt of 379,159 dollars outstanding. The Constitution limits the debt of the State to 100,000 dollars over and above the debt of the Territory of Dakota assumed by the State at its foundation. The true value of all the property within the State in 1904 was estimated by the Federal Census Bureau at —

	Dollars
Real property	381,435,856
Personal property	298,405,088
Total	679,840,944

There is a State militia, consisting, with certain exemptions, of all able bodied male persons residing in the State between the ages of 18 and 45 years. In 1909 there were on the active list 78 officers and 707 men enrolled.

Production and Industry—Of a total land area of 48 184,000 acres, 12,908 977 acres are included in Indian reservations, and in 1911 about 7,000,000 acres remained vacant. With the exception of scattered fringes of timber along the water-courses and the planted groves in the eastern part of the State, the only forest area is in the Black Hills. In 1910 there were 77 644 farms with an acreage of 26 016,892 of which 16 827,208 acres were improved. The yield of wheat in 1912 amounted to 52 185 000 bushels, corn, 76,847,000 bushels, oats, 52 890 000 bushels, barley 23 062,000 bushels. Rye and flax are also grown in considerable quantities, the latter yielding 6 323 000 bushels of seed in 1912. Hay fruit and vegetables (particularly potatoes) dairy and creamery products, eggs and poultry are important. The live stock within the State in 1910 consisted of 656 000 milk cows and 1,341 000 other cattle, 805 000 hogs, 829 000 sheep, 612,000 horses and 10 000 mules. From 650 000 sheep in 1911 the wool clip amounted to 3,543,750 pounds of wool valued at 737 100 dollars.

The mineral products in 1911 were chiefly gold 359,402 fine oz., valued at 7,429 600 dollars, silver 200 300 fine oz., valued at 108,200 dollars, copper, lead, stone of various sorts, and clay products, the total mineral output for 1911 being of the value of 8,037,872 dollars.

The chief manufacturing industries of the State are the making of butter, cheese, and condensed milk and flour and grist milling. In 1910 there were 1 020 industrial establishments, employing 8 602 wage earners and having a capital of 13 018 000 dollars, the cost of materials being 11,476 000 dollars and the value of the output 17,870 000 dollars. The following table gives statistics of the chief groups of industries in 1910 —

Industries	Capital	Wage earners	Material used	Output
	Dollars	Number	Dollars	Dollars
Flour and grist milling	873 000	55	3 316 000	6 208 000
Dairy work	138 000	131	2 308 000	686 000
Lumber and timber	941 000	4 1	94 000	946 000
Printing	211 000	5	466 000	1 376 000

In 1911 there were in the State 3 851 miles of telegraph line and 14,586 miles of telephone line (20 723 miles of wire). In 1911 the steam railways of the State were 4 190 54 miles in length. The chief railways are the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, and Chicago and North Western.

TENNESSEE.

Constitution and Government.—The General Assembly consists of a Senate of 33 members elected for two years, and a House of Representatives of 93 members elected also for two years.

No clergyman of any denomination is eligible to either House. Qualified as electors are (with the usual exceptions) all male citizens who have resided in the State 12 months and in the county six months next before the election and have paid the poll tax.

Tennessee is represented in Congress by two Senators and ten Representatives.

Governor—Ben W. Hooper 1913-15 (7 500 dollars).

Secretary of State—H. W. Goodloe.

The State is divided into 96 counties. The State Capital is Nashville.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area 42,050 square miles (300 square miles water).

Years	Population		Years	Population
	Total	Per sq. mile		Total	Per sq. mile
1860	1,109,801	26.6	1900	2,020,616	48.4
1880	1,542,359	36.9	1910	2,184,789	52.4

In 1910 the population included 1,103,491 males and 1,081,298 females. Of the total, 18,460 were of foreign birth, 473,088 were negroes, 216 Indiana, 43 Chinese and 8 Japanese.

In 1900 the population by sex and race was—

	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Males	782,702	288,388	77	57	1,021,224

The bonded debt (including old bonds untraded) on December 20, 1912, amounted to 15,218,000 dollars. The assessed value of property (1909) was including real and personal property 559,000,000 dollars. The true value of all property within the State in 1904 was estimated at—

	Dollars
Real property	557,504,977
Personal property	546,719,002
Total	1,104,323,979

The militia, called the National Guard of Tennessee, with headquarters at Nashville, consists of cavalry, artillery, and infantry of a total strength of 122 officers and 1,431 men in 1909.

Production and Industry—In 1910 there were 246,012 farms in the State with an acreage of 20,041,857 of which 10,890,484 acres was improved land. The most important crop is maize, amounting in 1912 to 88,298,000 bushels. The wheat yield was 7,077,000 bushels. Oats, hay, potatoes and sweet potatoes, pease, sorghum, and other products are grown, the physical conditions permitting a great diversity of crops. Peanuts are grown in the Tennessee valley. The cotton crop for 1909 covered 735,000 acres, and yielded 253,397 bales, in 1910 the yield was 337,596 bales in 1911, 449,737 bales and the estimated yield for 1912 854,000 bales. The tobacco crop (1912) from 110,000 acres was 72,600 000 pounds, valued at 5,156 000 dollars. Fruit trees and small fruits (notably strawberries) are cultivated. There are important forest products from about 27,300 square miles of woodland. Stock raising in the State is falling off. In 1910 the farm animals consisted of 324 000 horses, 290,000 mules, 321,000 milk cows 565 000 other cattle, 347 000 sheep, and 1,264 000 swine.

The coal fields of Tennessee have an area of about 4 400 square miles. The coal output in 1910 was 6,433 155 short tons, valued at 7,209 784 dollars. Petroleum also is obtained. Pig iron was obtained in 1910 to the amount of 297,594 long tons (value 3,439 644 dollars). Copper was produced to the amount of 18 965,143 pounds valued at 2 370,643 dollars in 1911. The zinc output was 1 000 short tons (114 000 dollars). Other products were gold, 576 fine ounces valued at 11 900 dollars, phosphate rock 431,566 long tons, valued at 1,688,267 dollars. Sandstone, marble, and limestone to the value of 1,498,798 dollars. Clay products amounted to the value of 1 385,100 dollars. Including the value of iron ore and of some products from coal but not pig iron the mineral output of the State amounted to the value of 17,902,451 dollars in 1911.

The manufacturing industries include iron and steel working, but are mainly concerned with agricultural products. Flour milling, lumbering, the manufacture of cotton seed oil and cake, the preparation of leather and of tobacco are progressing. There are also textile manufactures. According to the results of the census of manufactures in 1910 there were in the State 4,609 manufacturing establishments, with a total capital of 167 924 000 dollars, employing 8 417 salaried officials and 73,840 wage-earners. The salaries paid in a year amounted to 9 186,000 dollars, and the wages to 26,252 000 dollars. The cost of materials used amounted to 104 016,000 dollars and the value of the output was estimated at 180,217,000 dollars. The following are the statistics of the more important industries in 1910 —

Industries	Capital	Wage earners	Cost of material	Value of Output
	Dollars	Numbers	Dollars	Dollars
Foundries	9 253 000	4 041	4 560 000	9 190 000

TEXAS

In 1836 Texas declared its independence of Mexico and after maintaining an independent existence, as the Republic of Texas for 10 years, it was in 1845 received as a State into the American Union.

Government—The Legislature consists of a Senate of 31 members elected for four years (half their number retiring every two years), and a House of Representatives of 112 members elected for two years. Qualified electors are all male citizens (and aliens who have declared their intention of becoming citizens) resident in the State one year and in the district or county six months next before the election, but persons subject to the poll tax must have paid their tax prior to February 1 of the year in which they desire to vote.

The State is represented in Congress by two Senators and 18 Representatives.

Governor—O. B. Colquitt, 1913-15 ($4,000 dollars).

Secretary of State—C. C. McNall.

The State is divided into 246 counties. The State Capital is Austin.

Area, Population, Instruction—Area, 265,998 square miles (including 3,498 square miles of water).

Years	Population	Per sq. mile	Years	Population	Per sq. mile
1880	1,591,749	6.1	1900	3,048,710	11.6
1890	2,235,523	8.5	1910	3,986,542	14.8

In 1910 the population included 2,017,612 males, 1,876,930 females, 240,012 foreign born, 690,020 negroes, 702 Indians, 575 Chinese and 341 Japanese.

In 1900 the population by sex and birth was—

	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male	1,267,670	310,135	832	283	1,578,900

Total	2,426,669	620,722	849	470	3,048,710

Of the total number (1900) 179,357 were foreign born, 71,062 being Mexican, 48,295 German, 9,204 Bohemian and 8,213 English. The largest cities of the State with population in 1910 are San Antonio, 96,614; Houston, 78,800; Dallas, 92,164; Galveston, 96,981; Fort Worth, 73,812; Austin, 29,860; El Paso, 39,279; Waco, 26,425; Beaumont, 20,640; Laredo, 14,855; Denison, 13,632; Sherman, 12,412.

The largest religious bodies are the Baptist and Methodist; other important denominations being Catholic, Disciples of Christ, Presbyterian and Episcopalian.

The employment of illiterate children under 14 years of age in factories, &c., is illegal. Separate schools are provided for white and colored children. In 1909-10 the public elementary schools had 20,878 teachers and 821,631 enrolled pupils. 1908, 364 high schools had 1,079 teachers and 24,569 pupils. The State has four public normal schools with, in 1910-11, 85 teachers and 2,510 students. For superior instruction there are numerous institutions.

The Prairie View State College (Normal and Industrial) for coloured youths had 36 professors and 1,112 students in 1910-11

Charity—Apart from almshouses and establishments for the insane there are within the State 76 benevolent institutions, 14 of which are public the rest being provided by private charity and by religious bodies. They comprise 31 hospitals (one federal, six municipal), a dispensary, 17 orphan ages, 24 homes for adults and children, and three State schools for the deaf or blind. The County Commissioners provide for the poor resident in their counties, and have the management of the almshouses.

Finance, Defence.—The receipts and disbursements of the General Fund in the year ending August 31, 1912, were —

	Dollars
Balance Aug 31 1911	413 124
Receipts, 1911-12	9,619 697
Total	10 032,821
Disbursements, 1911-12	9,602,398
Balance Aug 31, 1912	430 433

The bonded debt in 1912 amounted to $977,500 dollars. The bonds are held mostly by State educational and charitable funds. In 1910 the assessed value of taxable property was 2,388,500,124 dollars.

The Organised Militia or Texas National Guard consists of four troops of cavalry, a battery of field artillery, and three regiments of infantry, having a total strength in 1910 of 216 officers and 2,513 enlisted men.

Production and Industry—Texas is one of the most important agricultural States of the Union. In 1910 it had 417,770 farms with an area of 112,435,067 acres of farmland, of which 27,360,686 acres was improved land. In the arid region of Texas and New Mexico an area of 160,000 acres is to be reclaimed under the Federal Reclamation Act. The chief crops in 1912 were (in bushels) maize 153,300,000, wheat 11,025,000, oats, 31,140,000, rice 9,429,000, potatoes, 3,276,000. The yield of cotton in 1910 covered 10,040,000 acres, and yielded 3,072,082 bales. In 1911, the yield was 4,256,427 bales and the estimated yield for 1912, 4,256,000 bales. Other products are tobacco (140,000 pounds in 1912), cane-sugar (10,000 pounds in 1909-10), sorghum, vegetables, and fruits (especially peaches). The State has a very great live-stock industry, in 1910 it contained 1,869,000 horses, 702,000 mules, 1,137,000 milk cows, 7,131,000 other cattle, 1,909,000 sheep, and 8,205,000 swine. The wool clip in 1911 amounted to 2,450,000 pounds of wool, value 1,921,620 dollars.

There are valuable forests in Eastern Texas yielding yellow pine. The State has excellent oyster and other fisheries.

The coal mines of Texas in 1911 yielded an output of 1,974,598 short tons, valued at 3,273,288 dollars. The production of petroleum was 9,526,474 barrels (of 42 gallons) valued at 8,554,552 dollars. Quick silver was produced to the amount of 3,820 flasks of 75 pounds, valued at 154,418 dollars, being 20 per cent of total production of United States during 1910. Other minerals worked were salt (385,200 barrels valued at 279,537 dollars) cement, gypsum, granite, sandstone, lime stone. The clay products (chiefly bricks) amounted to the value of 2,659,919 dollars. The value of the mineral output (including some gold and silver, coal products, cement asphalt, lead, zinc sulphur, and phosphates) amounted in 1911 to 18,817,304 dollars.

In 1910 there were in the State 4,693 manufacturing establishments with an aggregate capital of 216,876,000 dollars, 9,849 salaried officers, and 70,280 wage-earners. The cost of material used in the year was 178,179,000 dollars, and the value of the output was 272,896,000 dollars. Statistics of some industries (1910 census) are —

Industries	Capital	Wage earners	Cost of Material	Value of Output
	Dollars	Number	Dollars	Dollars
Flour and grist	13,219,000	1,916	23,657,000	32,485,000
Cotton-seed oil and cake	21,506,000	3,073	23,429,000	29,916,000
Lumber and timber	46,652,000	23,578	11,004,000	82,301,000
Slaughtering and packing	12,488,000	5,689	87,410,000	43,590,000

Brewing	7,027,000	65	1,695,000	6,464,000

Other important industries are printing, and publishing (aggregate output 11,587,000 dollars in 1910) bakery and confectionery, planing mill work, cotton manufactures, copper work, ice manufacture and lead smelting and refining.

A large trade passes through the port of Galveston where in 1911 the imports from abroad were valued at 773,019/ and the exports to foreign countries at 41,094,407/. The exports comprise cotton, grain, flour, meat products, &c. the produce of many States and Territories. Galveston is by far the most important outlet for the cotton grown in the United States, and as a commercial port it is now second only to New York. The harbour channel is being deepened. Wharves are being extended and piers built providing space for new warehouses. A permanent causeway is being built to connect Galveston with the mainland. The level of the town has been raised so as to protect it from storms. The United States has constructed an immigration station at a cost of 70,000 dollars. The rail ways in the State (June 30, 1910) have a length of 19,819 miles. The principal lines are the Southern Pacific, the Texas Pacific and the Colorado Southern. Railway construction is actively proceeding. There are 550 miles of electric railway track. The long coast line with its good harbours facilitates traffic by sea.

British Consul at Galveston — Alexander Spencer Perceval

There is also a vice consul at Galveston.

UTAH.

Constitution and Government—Utah which had been acquired by the United States during the Mexican war was in 1847 settled by Mormons, and on Sept. 9 1850 organized as a Territory. It was admitted as a State into the Union in 1896.

The Legislature consists of a Senate and a House of Representatives, but the Constitution provides for the initiation of any desired legislation by the legal voters or such number of them as may be determined by law, and such voters may require any law passed by less than a two thirds vote of each House of the Legislature to be submitted to the voters of the State before coming into effect.

The Senate (in part renewed every two years) consists of 18 members elected for four years. The House or Representatives has 46 members elected for two years. Qualified as electors are all citizens male or female, who, not being idiots insane, or criminals have resided one year in the State, four months in the county, and 60 days in the precinct in which the election is held.

VIRGINIA

Constitution and Government—The first English Charter for settlements in America was that granted by James I in 1606 for the planting of colonies in Virginia. On the outbreak of the civil war in 1861, Virginia, after long hesitation, decided to join the seceding States a course objected to by the western portion of the State, which in 1863 was admitted into the Union as West Virginia.

The General Assembly consists of a Senate and a House of Delegates the former containing not more than 40 nor less than 33 members, and the latter not more than 100 nor less than 90. Senators are elected for 4 years. The House of Delegates contains 100 members elected for 2 years. Qualified as electors are (with few exceptions) all male citizens 21 years of age resident in the State for 2 years and in the county city, town, or precinct for which the election is held for 30 days who have paid their State poll taxes and registered.

The State sends to the Federal Congress 2 Senators and 10 Representatives
Governor—William H. Mann Feb. 1910—Feb. 1914 ($5,000 dollars.)

Secretary of Commonwealth—J. O. James

The State College at Pullman for science and agriculture had 71 professors or teachers and 1,045 students. Gonzaga College (R.C.) at Spokane has 31 professors and 548 students, Whitman College (Cong.) at Walla Walla has 34 professors and 473 students.

Charity. In criminal cases there is trial by jury for the 2 years ending September 30, 1910 the average daily population of each of the State charitable, penal, and reformatory institutions was: W. Washington Hospital for the Insane, 1,287, F. Hospital for the Insane, 651, Penitentiary 831, State Training School, 253, Soldiers Home 365, school for deaf and blind, 127, Institution for the Feeble minded 155, State Reformatory, 71, Washington Veterans Home 127. There are also 40 institutions (24 hospitals, 8 orphanages and 8 homes) provided by private charity or by religious bodies. County commissioners have the care of the poor in their counties except in incorporated towns which by their charter have power respecting the poor. They may provide for the poor either by contract or by their own agents. Parents, grand parents, children, grand children, brothers and sisters of a pauper are liable for his support. Six months residence preceding application entitles to county poor relief, but provision is made for aid to non residents. It is a penal offence to bring non resident paupers into a county. County commissioners may establish poor houses.

Finance, Defence.—For the biennial period ending September 30, 1912, the cost of the Government of the State of Washington amounted to 7,521,509 dollars. Of this amount 3,444,415 dollars was provided from the State General Fund and the remainder from funds for special purposes, mostly educational.

The assessed valuation of real and personal property in 1910 amounted to 789,912,997 dollars, of railway roads, 100,157,754 dollars, electric rail ways, 15,878,348 dollars, telegraph, 298,845 dollars, total, 906,247,944 dollars. The outstanding bonded debt was paid off in 1911. The true or actual value of all property within the State in 1910 was —

	Dollars
Real property	2,181,427,337
Personal property	112,097,545
Steam railways	257,405,646
Electric railways	37,656,806
Telegraph lines	767,770
Total	2,589,354,604

The organized militia consists of 100 officers and 1,211 enlisted men, consisting of infantry, cavalry, signal corps, and hospital corps and naval militia. The men enlist for 3 years, taking oath to volunteer immediately on call from the Federal Government.

The Federal Government has a large dry dock and naval depot at Bremerton, on Puget Sound. Garrisons of the regular army are maintained at Spokane, Seattle, Walla Walla, Vancouver, and three coast defense points at the entrance to Puget Sound.

Production and Industry—Agriculture is successfully pursued in the State, not least in the arid region east of the Cascade Mountains, where there are extensive systems of irrigation.

In 1904 the area irrigated was estimated by the irrigation expert of the United States Department of agriculture at 178 000 acres. Under the Federal Reclamation Act, which provides for the irrigation and sale of lands, the proceeds to be continually applied to further irrigation an area of 740 000 acres has been taken in hand. In 1910 there were 56 192 farms with an acreage of 11 712 235 of which 6 373 311 acres was improved land. The wheat yield in 1912 was 53,728 000 bushels, barley, 7,869 000 bushels, oats, 13 638 000 bushels. In Pacific coast region, as well as in the eastern counties, fruit of various sorts is produced in vast quantities. In 1910 the farm animals were 320,000 horses, 5 000 mules, 205 000 milk cows, 358 000 other cattle, 783,000 sheep, 183 000 swine. The wool clip in 1911 amounted to 3,700,000 pounds of wool. The fruit growing area has doubled within the last two years, and fruit canning has become an industry in the State. The value of the 1910 fruit crop was from 10,000,000 to 15,000 000 dollars. The timber wealth of the State is immense, having an area of 34,000 square miles, representing about 890 000,000 board feet. The trees are mostly fir, cedar and spruce, with hard wood trees. The lakes, rivers, and coast waters provide lucrative fisheries. Salmon is abundant, and the waters are stocked from State hatcheries, which supplied about 80,000,000 salmon fry in 1908. Marine fish, halibut, herring, cod and many other species are taken in increasing quantities. Shell fish notably oysters, are improving in quality and quantity. The total value of the fish output for the year 1909 was 13,534 010 dollars.

Coal is mined in large quantities, the output in 1911 having been 3,572,815 tons, valued at 8,174,170 dollars. In the same year there was an output of gold valued at 840 000 dollars, of silver valued at 124 000 dollars, of copper, 195,503 pounds (24,486 dollars). The quarries yielded granite, sandstone, marble, and limestone to the value of 1,679 872 dollars. Clay products in 1910 amounted to the value of 2,840 372 dollars. Iron ore is mined, but not in great quantity. Lead (601 short tons) and zinc are worked, antimony, arsenic, molybdenum, tungsten, and platinum are found. The value of the mineral output in 1910 was 15 858,556 dollars.

In 1910 the manufacturing industries had 3 674 establishments with an aggregate capital of 222,261,000 dollars, they employed 7,734 salaried officials.

and 69,120 wage-earners, they used raw material costing 117,888,000 dollars, and gave an output valued at 220,746,000 dollars. They are connected chiefly with the products of the forests, agriculture, grazing, fisheries, and mining. The 1910 census showed the most important industries to be —

Industries	Capital	Wage earners	Cost of material	Value of Output
	Dollars	Number	Dollars	Dollars
Lumber and timber	67,224,000	48,149	39,579,000	89,105,000

Gas	1,4978,000	40	601,000	1,084,000

At the Puget Sound ports, including Seattle, Tacoma and Port Townsend, in the year 1911, the imports amounted to 7,894,664, and the exports to 10,005,371.

The railways within the State had, in 1910 4,833 miles (main track) besides 900 miles of electric railway. The principal railways operating in the State are the Northern Pacific Company and subsidiary companies, Great Northern Railway Company, Oregon Railway and Navigation Company, the Bellingham Bay and British Columbia Company, the Columbia and Puget Sound Railroad Company, the Tacoma Eastern Railroad Company and the Spokane and British Columbia Railroad Company, the Chicago Milwaukee, and Puget Sound, the Union Pacific and the North Coast. Railways each have a terminus at Seattle.

Steamers ply on the Columbia and other rivers. The Dalles and Celilo canal will open the Columbia and Snake Rivers to river navigation to a length of 570 miles from the ocean. Several lines of steamers sail regularly to ports on the Pacific coast, to Japan and China, the Philippines, and other eastern countries, and to Europe. At the Puget Sound ports the traffic facilities, both railway and shipping are being multiplied.

There are British Vice Consuls at Port Townsend, Seattle and Tacoma.

WEST VIRGINIA

Government.—In 1862 after the State of Virginia, as a whole, had seceded from the Union the electors of the western portion ratified an ordinance providing for the formation of a new State and this new State was admitted into the Union in 1863 under the name of West Virginia.

The Legislature consists of the Senate and the House of Delegates. The right to vote is given to every citizen (with necessary exceptions) 21 years of age and resident in the State one year and in the county sixty days prior to the election. The Senate is composed of 30 members elected for a term of four years in such a manner that half the Senate is renewed biennially. The House of Delegates consists of 86 members elected biennially.

Governor.—Henry D. Hatfield. March 4, 1913—March 4, 1917 ($5,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—Stuart F. Keed.

The State is represented in the Federal Congress by two Senators elected by the Legislature for 6 years and five Representatives chosen for 2 years, for the election of whom the State is divided into five congressional districts.

For local administration the State is divided into 25 counties. The State Capital is Charleston.

Area, Population, Instruction—Area, 24,715 square miles.

Year	Population		Year	Population
	Total	Per sq. mile		Total	Per sq. mile
1880	618,457	25.1	1900	958,800	38.9
1890	672,794	31.0	1910	1,221,119	50.8

In 1910 the population included 644,044 males and 577,075 females. 57,072 were of foreign birth, 64,178 were negroes, 36 Indians, 90 Chinese, and 3 Japanese.

In 1900 the population by sex and race was—

	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male	474,013	25,167	56	6	499,242
Female	441,220	18,532	—	6	459,758
Total	915,233	43,699	56	12	958,800

Of the total, 22,451 were born in foreign countries and of these 6,637 came from Germany, 3,342 from Ireland, 2,921 from Italy and 2,622 from England. In 1910 the population of the principal cities was: Wheeling, 41,441; Parkersburg, 17,842; Charleston, 22,996; Huntington, 31,161.

The most numerous denominations are Methodists, Baptists, Roman Catholics, United Brethren and Presbyterians. Most of the denominations have colleges within the State. Elementary education is free for all from 6 to 21 years of age, and school attendance for 20 weeks annually is compulsory for all children between the ages of 8 and 14 years. The public or free schools are non-sectarian. A rigid code of moral instruction is enforced, but no sectarian teaching is permitted. In 1910 the public elementary schools had 276,468 enrolled pupils and 8,782 teachers, and 61 public high schools had 197 teachers and 3,982 pupils. The 6 public normal schools had 24 teachers and 1,656 students.

The West Virginia University, founded in 1867 at Morgantown, offers higher instruction free to all residents of the State, and at nominal fees to those from other States. In 1910 it had 71 professors and 1,422 students. Bethany College, under the control of the Christian Church, has 19 instructors and 342 students. West Virginia Wesleyan College, a Methodist institution, has 21 instructors and 150 students. There are two other institutions, one at Barboursville, Methodist Episcopal, with 6 teachers and 163 students, the other at Elkins, Presbyterian, with 6 teachers and 40 students.

Charity—The State has a Penitentiary and Reform School for boys, and an Industrial Home for girls. The State Humane Society has authority to take under its care children who are abused or neglected, to find homes for the aged, and protect the lower animals. Other State institutions include Hospitals for the Insane, Asylums, Miners' Hospitals, Schools for the Deaf and Blind, and County Farms (one in each county). These farms provide shelter, food, clothing, and medical attendance for the poor in each county. There are also many institutions (including 15 hospitals) provided by public, private, or ecclesiastical beneficence. Each county court appoints overseers for magisterial districts, and may establish a county infirmary for the poor. Legal settlement is gained by a year's continuous residence. No pauper relief must be given to a pauper without settlement, but he must be removed to the county where he is chargeable. Parents, children, brothers, and sisters of a pauper are liable for his support. To bring an indigent person into the State is a penal offence.

Finance, Defence—The State Fund revenue and expenditure for the year ending September 30, 1912, were as follows:—

	Dollars
Balance, October 1, 1911	1 173,342
Receipts during year	4 625,212
Total	5 798,554
Payments to September 30, 1912	4 665,766
Balance September 30, 1912	1 132,788

The Constitution provides that no debt shall be contracted by the State. The State has, in fact, a large surplus remaining in its Treasury each year. In 1907 the assessed value of real property was 487,110,791 dollars, and of personal property 442,638,425, total assessed value, 929,849,216 dollars.

The militia or National Guard consists of a General Staff, two Regiments of Infantry, and a Medical Department. The total strength in 1909 was 116 officers and 1,194 enlisted men.

Production and Industry—In 1910 the State had 96,635 farms with an area of 10,026,442 acres, of which 5,521,757 acres was improved land. The chief agricultural products in 1912 were wheat, 3,378,000 bushels, Indian corn 24,505,000 bushels, oats 3,108,000 bushels, hay, 1,028,000 bushels, and potatoes, 5,264,000 bushels. The area under tobacco was 15,800 acres, the yield amounted to 12,008,000 pounds, valued at 13,210,000 dollars. Apples, peaches, plums, and grapes are grown. In 1910 the farm animals were 197,000 horses, 12,000 mules, 247,000 milk cows, 511,000 other cattle, 709,000 sheep, and 338,000 swine. In 1911, the wool clip from 600,000 sheep produced 3,450,000 pounds of wool valued at 897,345 dollars.

The wooded area of West Virginia is estimated at 18,400 square miles (11,778,000 acres), or 78 per cent of the area of the State. Most of this area is occupied by timber of merchantable size and quality and the lumber industry is the most important in the State. There are about 10½ million acres of virgin soil not yet brought into cultivation.

West Virginia has extensive mining and quarrying industries, besides great resources in petroleum and natural gas. The coal area extends over 17,280 square miles and about 50,960 men are employed in coal mines. The output of coal in the State in 1911 amounted to 59,831,580 short tons, valued at 53,670,515 dollars. The output of crude petroleum amounted to 9,795,464 barrels (of 42 gallons) valued at 12,767,298 dollars. Of natural gas produced, the value amounted to 28,451,907 dollars. In the State there are iron mines, but their output is not separately distinguished. In 1910 174,661 long tons of pig iron (2,619,915 dollars) were produced from 4 blast furnaces in the State. The quarries yielded sandstone and limestone to the value of 1,106,012 dollars. The output of salt was 183,379 barrels (78,805 dollars). The value of the output of the clay working industries was 4,338,420 dollars. The total mineral produce was valued at 101,948,248 dollars for 1911.

In the State there are important leather industries. According to the census of manufactures of 1910 there were in West Virginia 2,586 manufacturing establishments with an aggregate capital of 150,923,000 dollars employing 4,971 salaried officials and 68,883 wage earners, wages in the year amounted to 33,000,000 dollars. The cost of the raw material used was 92,878,000 dollars, and the value of the output was 161,950,000 dollars. The following are statistics of the more important industries in 1910 —

Industries	Capital	Wage earners	Cost of material	Value of output
	Dollars	Number	Dollars	Dollars
Leather	18,164 000	1 71	10 383 000	12 451 000
Lumber	30 313,000	18 644	8 176,000	24,758 000
Iron and steel	14,376 000	000	14 806 000	24 435 000
Coke	12,821 000	4 476	1 012 000	7 508 000
Railway cars	2 117 000	5 654	3 068,000	6 733 000

In 1910, there were within the State 3,600 miles of railway (main line and branches), besides 350 miles of electric railway track. The more important railway systems are the Pennsylvania, the Baltimore and Ohio, the Chesapeake and Ohio, the Norfolk and Western and the West Virginian Central and Pittsburg. The coal fields in the west are well opened up by the Ohio and its tributaries, which provide some of the cheapest means of coal carriage in the world.

There are within the State 170 State banks having deposits in 1907 amounting to 82,317,945 dollars. There are also 88 National Banks with aggregate capital of 7,648,000 dollars, surplus 3,720,000 dollars, deposits 25,912,449 dollars.

WISCONSIN

Government—The legislative power is vested in a Senate and Assembly. The Senate consists of 33 members elected for a term of four years, only about one half of the members being elected at one time. The Assembly consists of 100 members, elected for a term of two years, all of the members being elected at the same time.

Eligible to the Legislature are all males who are qualified electors in the district to be represented and who have resided one year within the State except members of Congress and office holders under the United States. Wisconsin has universal suffrage for males over 21 years of age. There is no property or educational qualification.

Wisconsin is represented in Congress by 2 Senators and 11 Representatives.

Wisconsin is unique among other States in that it has delegated important legislative power to three Commissions, each of which is composed of three members at 5,000 dollars yearly for each. The Railroad Commission fixes rates of railroads and public utilities; the Tax Commission assesses and collects all taxes, including the new progressive income tax; the Industrial Commission administers all laws relating to factory inspection, women's and child labour, workmen's compensation, truancy, street trades, free employment offices, &c. The latter commission has power to enforce rules of its own making regarding the safeguarding of machinery, sanitation and ventilation.

Governor—F. E. McGovern, 1913-15 (5,000 dollars)

Secretary of State—John S. Donald.

The State Capital is Madison; population 25,531 in 1910.

Area, Population, Education.—Area, 56,040 square miles, of which 54,450 square miles is land. In 1910 the population numbered 2,383,860 (1,208,541 males and 1,125,319 females) of whom 512,669 were of foreign birth, 2,900 were negroes, 10,142 Indians, 224 Chinese and 34 Japanese. The foreign born population in 1900 numbered 515,971; the principal nationalities represented being Canadian, English, German, Irish, Norwegian, Polish, Swedish and Italian. In 1910 the population of the cities was as follows:—

Cities	Pop.	Cities	Pop.	Cities	Pop.
Milwaukee	373,857	Green Bay	25,286	Ashland	11,594
Superior	40,384	Eau Claire	18,310	Janesville	13,894
Racine	98,002	Fond du Lac	18,787	Beloit	15,125
Oshkosh	98,062	Appleton	16,773	Manitowoc	13,027
Lacrosse	30,417	Kenosha	21,371	Merrill	9,639
Madison	25,531	Marinette	14,610	Chippewa Falls	8,898
Sheboygan	26,898	Wausau	16,560	Stevens Point	8,692

The chief religious bodies are Roman Catholic, Lutheran, Methodist, Congregationalist, and Baptist.

School attendance is compulsory for all children between 7 and 14 years of age, in cities for the entire school year, and in towns and villages for 6 months a year. In 1910 the public elementary schools had 14,729 teachers, and 464,811 enrolled pupils, 269 public high schools had 1,394 teachers and 30,370 pupils. The 12 public normal schools had 132 teachers and 2,790 pupils in 1909.

The University of Wisconsin at Madison was begun in 1850. It is governed by a Board of Regents, consisting of one member from each congressional district, and two from the State at large, appointed by the Governor for a term of 3 years. It has 581 professors and instructors and 5,741 students. Instruction by correspondence has been introduced with 5,986 students enrolled in 1911. Other important Colleges in the State are Beloit College, of Beloit, non sectarian, 86 instructors and 465 students, Lawrence University of Appleton, inter denominational with 36 instructors and 499 students, Ripon College, non sectarian with 23 instructors and 230 students, St. John's Military Academy, Delafield Episcopal, 18 professors and instructors and 211 students, Concordia College (Lutheran), Milwaukee, with 7 professors and 203 students and Marquette University Milwaukee, R.C., with 187 instructors and 1,060 students. There are besides several smaller colleges.

Charity—In 1910 the State had ten charitable and penal institutions and the number of their inmates were: State prison, 709, reformatory, 240, industrial school for boys, 380, public school for dependent children, 180, school for the deaf, 194, school for the blind, 77, home for the feeble minded, 917, two hospitals for the insane, 1,288. The administration of these institutions is subject to a State Board of Control. In 1910 the cost of their maintenance was 971,596 dollars. The State expenditure in maintaining the chronic insane in county asylums was in 1910 461,622 dollars.

The supervisors of each town have care of the poor who have a settlement (gained by a year's residence) in the town. The county board has charge of the poor who have no settlement in town, city or village and may establish a poorhouse, but the distinction between town and county poor may be abolished by vote of the town supervisors, and the county be made responsible for the support of all such poor. The county judge may commit a pauper to the poorhouse for 60 days or indefinitely. To bring a pauper into a town where he has no settlement is punishable by fine. Parents and children are liable for each other's support.

Finance, Defence—For the 2 years ended June 30, 1910, the receipts and disbursements (all funds) of the State Government were to the following amounts—

	Dollars.
Balance June 30 1908	1,723,047
Receipts for 2 years	23,507,463
Total	25,235,510
Disbursements for 2 years	23,675,529
Balance June 30 1910	1,559,987

The State has no bonded debt but in 1908, 2,251,000 dollars was due to State trust funds on certificates of indebtedness arising out of former bonded debt. The assessed valuation in 1909 was 2,478,561,786 dollars.

The true value of all the property within the State in 1904 was estimated by the Federal Census Bureau at —

	Dollars
Real property	1,687,088,672
Personal property	1,156,809,567
Total	2,838,878,239

The militia of the State consists of three regiments, a separate battalion of infantry a troop of cavalry one battery of light artillery one battery of naval militia, and hospital corps aggregating 217 commissioned officers and 2,999 enlisted men. The State naval militia contained 10 officers and 122 enlisted men.

Production, Industry, Communications — Wisconsin is very largely an agricultural State. In 1910 the farms numbered 177,127 with a total area of 21,060,066 acres of which 11,407,606 acres were improved land. The chief crops are wheat, maize and other cereals, potatoes, sugar beet, grasses, fruit and tobacco. The yield of maize in 1912 was 68,262,000 bushels, of wheat, 3,564,000 bushels, of oats, 84,746,000 bushels; of barley 24,843,000 bushels, rye and buckwheat being also grown. The yield of potatoes was 34,920,000 bushels, of hay 3,600,000 tons. The area under tobacco (1912) was 42,200 acres, the yield was 54,438,000 pounds. The best sugar output in 1908-09 was 16,964 tons. Fruits (large and small) are extensively cultivated. In 1910 the live stock consisted of 669,000 horses, 5,000 mules, 1,500,000 milk cows, 1,081,000 other cattle, 1,034,000 sheep, and 1,651,000 swine. The wool clip in 1911 amounted to 4,387,500 pounds of wool, valued at $9,150,000.

The mineral resources of the State are considerable. In 1911 the output comprised zinc 31,809 short tons ($3,626,226 dollars), lead, 3,967 short tons ($37,030 dollars), granite, limestone and sandstone to the value of 2,375,102 dollars, natural rock cement, graphite, petroleum, mineral waters were also produced, the value of the output in 1911 (including not ores, but metal products) being 12,451,438 dollars.

In 1910 there were 9,722 manufacturing establishments in the State with a total capital of 805,657,000 dollars. The number of wage earners was 182,583 receiving 93,905,000 dollars in wages. The value of the products was 590,306,000 dollars. As compared with 1904 the number of establishments increased 14 per cent, capital increased 47 per cent, wage earners, 21 per cent, wages paid 38 per cent., and value of products 44 per cent.

The following table shows the statistics of the leading industries of the State during 1910 —

	Establishments	Capital	Wage earners	Wages	Value of products
	Number	Dollars	Number	Dollars	Dollars
Cheese butter and condensed milk	2,630	9,760,000	2,563	48,000,000	2,543,000
Flour and grist mill products	523	10,608,000	1,154	21,058,000	81,607,000
Foundry and machine shop products	444	80,804,000	21,019	92,594,000	54,124,000
Leather tanned curried and finished	52	42,412,000	7,451	34,829,000	44,663,000
Liquors malt	186	99,639,000	1,011	7,808,000	82,126,000
Lumber	1,020	68,800,000	34,013	20,687,000	67,966,000

At the lake ports the shipments consist of grain and flour, coal, lumber, ore and (at Milwaukee and Racine) manufactured articles. There is, besides, at Milwaukee a heavy passenger traffic.

In 1910 there were 7 475 miles of railroads operated in the State besides 790 miles of electric railway track. The leading railway lines are the Chicago and Northern Western, the Chicago Milwaukee and St. Paul, the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha and Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie.

WYOMING

Government — The Legislature consists of a Senate of 27 members, elected for four years (about one-half retiring every two years) and a House of Representatives of 56 members elected for two years.

The suffrage extends to all citizens, male and female, who can read and who are registered as voters and have resided in the State one year and in the county 60 days next preceding the election.

Governor — J. M. Carey, 1911-1915 (4,000 dollars)

Secretary of State — Frank L. Hour

Area, Population, Instruction — Area 97 890 square miles, of which 315 square miles is water. Of the total about 3 300 square miles are comprised within the Yellowstone National Park which since 1872 has been reserved for public use. An Indian Reservation within the State has an area of 2,742 square miles. The Federal census results since 1870 show the population to have been as follows —

Years	Population	Per sq mile	Years	Population	Per sq mile
1880	20,789	0.2	1900	92,531	0.9
1890	60,705	0.6	1910	152,056	1.5

In 1910 the population included 91 866 males and 54,290 females. 27,166 were of foreign birth, 2,235 were negroes, 1,486 Indians, 244 Chinese and 1,571 Japanese. In 1905 the Indians on the Reservation numbered 1 694. The classification of the population by occupations was Professional 1,087, ranchmen 2,498, miners 6,823, merchants 939, others in business 5,761, labourers 18 069, total workers, 41,178.

The largest towns are Cheyenne (capital) with 11 320 inhabitants, Laramie with 8,237, and Sheridan with 8,408.

The religious bodies with the most numerous membership are the Roman Catholic, Mormon, Protestant Episcopal, Methodists and Presbyterians.

In 1910 the public schools had 1 109 teachers and 24,584 enrolled pupils, of which the public high schools had 54 teachers and 867 pupils. Teachers are trained in the normal school which is carried on in connection with the University of Wyoming, at Laramie. This University was founded in 1887 and in 1910 had 37 professors and instructors and 255 students. Besides the normal school it comprehends an Agricultural College, a school of mines, a college of mechanical engineering, a school of commerce, a school of music, and a preparatory department.

Charity — The State has a Penitentiary and other penal or reform institutions. Its charitable institutions are numerous, comprising county poor asylums, poor farms, a soldiers' and sailors' home, three hospitals, besides one for the insane, an asylum for the deaf, dumb and blind, and a hospital for the feeble minded and epileptic. Boards of county commissioners have supervision of the poor and may either contract for their support or appoint agents to provide for them. Ninety days residence immediately before application entitles to county support. It is a misdemeanor to bring into a county a pauper who has a residence elsewhere. The county commissioners may provide a workhouse.

Finance, Defence.—The cash receipts and disbursements of the State (exclusive of trust funds) for the period October 1, 1910 to September 30, 1912 are given as follows —

	Dollars
Balance, October 1 1910	827,228
Receipts for two years	2 247,971
Total	2,575 199
Disbursements for two years	1,863,316
Balance Sept 30, 1912	711 883

In 1910 the bonded debt amounted to 180,000 dollars and the assessed value of real and personal property in the State in 1910 to 188,560,916 dollars (actual value).

The militia or National Guard, consisting of Cavalry, Artillery, and Infantry, had a strength of 598 enlisted men and 52 officers in 1910.

Production and Industry.—Wyoming is semi arid and agriculture is carried on by irrigation and by 'dry farming'. Under Federal Act of June 17 1902 extensive irrigation works are being undertaken on the Shoshone and the North Platte rivers. 3 828 000 dollars having been expended (January 1 1911) on the former project alone. Many private irrigation and development companies are also at work. In 1910 there were 10 987 farms with an area of 8 543 010 acres, of which 1 256 160 acres was improved land. Such crops as are grown consist of vegetables, cereals and fruits. About one half the State is well fitted for grazing and for sheep runs. The woolclip (1911) yielded 34 000 000 pounds of wool valued at 5 304 000 dollars, a value exceeded only by that of the wool production of Montana. Other farm animals (1910) were 148 000 horses, 27,000 milk cows and 959,060 other cattle, and 21,000 swine.

About 10 000,000 acres in the State are covered with timber. The State has numerous fish hatcheries which stock the streams with trout.

The prosperity of Wyoming is largely dependent on its mineral resources. The output of coal in 1911 amounted to 6 744,864 short tons, valued at about 10 508,863 dollars. In 1911 the production of copper was 130,499 pounds (18 912 dollars). Gold was produced in 1911 to the amount of 1,030 fine ounces (21,800 dollars), and silver to the amount of 700 fine ounces (400 dollars). The quarries yield limestone and sandstone besides phosphate rock and gypsum, from which plaster of Paris and other plasters are made. There has been great development during 1912-1913 in the oil industry, many new oil fields are being opened. The total mineral output in 1911 was valued at 11,486,992 dollars.

Manufactures are mostly confined to production for local consumption. In 1910 (according to Federal census results), the State had 288 industrial establishments, the capital invested in manufacturing industries was 6,195,109 dollars, the wage earners numbered 2 867, the materials used cost 2,608 189 dollars, and the output amounted to 8 249,078 dollars. The chief manufactured products were cars made or repaired 2 336,678 dollars lumber and timber products 751 249 dollars flour and grain, 746,299 dollars, butter 268,882 dollars

Wyoming has no navigable rivers In 1910, the railways in the State had a length of 1 644 miles, the Union Pacific, the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, and the Chicago and North Western railways being the principal lines

The system of stage route transportation is still common

In December, 1911, there were in the State 30 National 55 State, and 3 private banks

OUTLYING TERRITORIES

ALASKA TERRITORY

Government.—Alaska was purchased by the United States from Russia under the treaty of March 30 1867 the purchase price having been 7,200 000 dollars. The country is not in the political sense a Territory but only a District with no representative assembly nor any constitution. It is governed directly by Congress at Washington, and locally administered by a Governor appointed by the President of the United States for 4 years and assisted by a Secretary a Surveyor General and other officials

Governor.—Walter E. Clark 1909 13 (7,000 dollars)

The area of the territory is about 590 800 square miles and the census population of 1900 was returned at 63 592, of whom 30 507 (27 307 male) were white, 29,538 natives (Indians, Eskimo Aleuts &c) 3,116 Chinese 265
Japanese, 158 Negroes. In 1910 the population was 64,336, of whom 36 347 were whites, and the others Indian or other coloured. About 7,000 people, employed in mines canneries and railway construction, spend a few months a year in Alaska, but these are not included in the enumeration. The largest town is Fairbanks which in 1910, had 3 500 inhabitants the second largest is Nome with 2 500 other towns are Skagway (1 500) Juneau (1 300) now the seat of Government, Sitka (120 whites, 900 natives) Valdez (1,100), Ketchikan (1 000), Cordova (800) There are altogether 11 incorporated towns.

Instruction, Justice.—In Alaska many religious missions are at work, representing very diverse denominations Russian Orthodox Roman Catholic, Episcopalian, Presbyterian, Methodist Baptist, Congregational and others.

The district is well supplied with schools about 250 000 dollars being annually appropriated to this service by the United States Government.
There are in the schools for natives altogether (1912) about 81 schools 102 teachers, and 1,639 pupils in average attendance, with a total enrolment of 3,841 At the United States Indian Training School at Carlisle, Pa., there are about 80 Alaskan children (Indian, Eskimo, Thlinget and Aleut).
Many schools for white children are maintained, both within and outside of the incorporated towns.

For the administration of justice the territory is constituted as a judicial district with 4 subdivisions and 4 courts.

Finance.—In the district of Alaska there is no provision for taxation of real or personal property, except in municipalities where real estate and personal property may be taxed 2 per cent. for municipal purposes only. The revenues are derived from licenses to conduct businesses, a long list of which, with the cost of the respective licenses, is prescribed by law.

The following is a statement of revenues from Alaska under specified heads from 1869 to 1911 and for the last three years:—

Years	Internal Revenue <sup>1</sup>	Customs	Public lands	Tax on seal-fishing	Alaska funds and agricultural experiment station	Miscellaneous	Total
	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars
Total 1869 to 1911	206,247	1,081,430	40,672	9,450.00	1,113,010	1,019,067	14,792,465
1899	18,214	61,026	40,116	103,970	100,400	107,188	581,880
1910	20,339	549	137,204	19,870	109,007	114,582	724,001
1911	20,031	45,012	130,609	403,147	178,027	114,582	901,105

<sup>1</sup> The territory of Alaska was attached to the District of Oregon December 2, 1867, and on September 1, 1868, Washington and Oregon were consolidated again on September 1, 1902, Washington and Alaska were detached from the District of Oregon and made a separate district.

Alaska has produced from 1867 until 1911 206,310,384 dollars in minerals and in sea and fur products the sum of 222,710,036 dollars, and has paid into the Treasury of the United States from customs internal revenue and license taxes and other cash items 17,117,350 dollars making a total production and export from Alaska to the United States of 428,040,935 dollars.

On the other side of that balance sheet is the 7,200,000 dollars which the Government of the United States paid to Russia for Alaska, then the Treasury statements for the payments made from 1867 to 1911, inclusive, and the expenses of the post office. The total moneys expended by the Government of the United States in Alaska from 1867 to 1911 in maintaining the National Government there collecting customs and the revenues, maintaining the courts, the fur seal fisheries, boundary commissions, and generally all items of governmental expense, have amounted only to 35,816,674 dollars. That leaves a difference between the productions of Alaska and the amount the Government of the United States has expended thereon of 410,823,311 dollars.

Production, Communications.—In some parts of the territory the climate during the brief summer is not unsuitable for agricultural operations. There are agricultural experimental stations which are giving valuable demonstrations. Reindeer have been introduced from Siberia, and now 33,629 are employed by the missionaries, by the Eskimo and by Government officials.

There are considerable timber resources, mostly of the spruce hemlock and red and yellow cedar sort. The National forests in Alaska have an area of 26,761,626 acres. In 1910 there were 152 industrial establishments, employing a total of 73,479 persons (8,699 wage earners) having a capital of 13,080,116 dollars.

The chief industries are seal and salmon fisheries, and mining. The seal fisheries of the Pribilof Islands are under the charge of the Federal Department of Commerce and Labour.

The salmon fisheries are very valuable, and Government has provided for their preservation by securing legislative enactments for the construction and maintenance of hatcheries. The annual catch of salmon is valued at over 14,000,000 dollars. Halibut, cod, herring, and whales are also caught, the herring and whales for the manufacture of oil and manure.

Gold is worked in South East Alaska, where a low grade ore is found in the interior on the Yukon river, and at Nome and other places on the west coast. The output of gold in 1911 was estimated at 806,179 fine ounces of the value of 16,665,200 dollars, and of silver at 468,300 fine ounces of the value of 252,900 dollars. Copper in 1911 was extracted to the amount of 22,314,889 pounds, valued at 2,782,861 dollars. There has recently been an increase in the production of this metal. Tin ore deposits near Cape Prince of Wales are of a high grade, two companies work them, but climatic conditions are unfavourable. Lead is produced, coal is worked, petroleum, gypsum, and marble are found. The total mineral output in 1911 was valued at 20,072,420 dollars (including some lead, but no tin, though a quantity of tin ore was shipped to Germany).

The value of the domestic merchandise shipped from the United States to Alaska in the year 1912 amounted to 18,608,270 dollars from Alaska to the United States 31,597,712 dollars, besides gold ore and bullion. In the year 1912 487 vessels of 510,509 tons cleared from the United States for Alaska, and 594 of 505,412 from Alaska for the United States. The chief ports of shipment of the United States to Alaska are on Puget Sound.

There is a railway of 112 miles from Skagway to the White Horse Rapids (in the Canadian Yukon region), thence transport is by coach or, in summer, by steamer. The Tanana Mines Railway has 50 miles of line open, connecting Chena, Fairbanks, and Vault Creek. The Solomon River Railway has 60 miles of line open north from Dickson on Seward Peninsula. The Copper River and North Western Railway completed its line (standard gauge) from Cordova to Kennecott, a distance of 197 miles, in 1911. The Alaskan towns are connected with the United States and with Canada by telegraph. There are about 140 post offices and good mail services in the territory.

HAWAII.

Government.—The Hawaiian or Sandwich Islands formed during the greater part of the nineteenth century an independent kingdom, but in 1893 the reigning Queen, Liliuokalani, was deposed and a provisional government formed; in 1894 a Republic was proclaimed, and in accordance with a resolution of Congress of July 7, 1898, the Islands were on August 12, 1898, formally annexed to the United States. On June 14, 1900, they were constituted as the Territory of Hawaii. The Organic Act has since been amended several times. There is a Legislature of two Houses, a Senate of 15 members elected for four years, and a House of Representatives of 30 members elected for two years. Sessions, limited to 60 days, are held biennially. The Governor and Secretary are appointed for four years by the President of the United States.

Governor—W F Frear, 1911-15 (7,000 dollars)

Secretary—E A Mott-Smith

The Territory is represented in Congress by a delegate elected biennially.

In 1906 the Territory was divided into 5 counties within which the local authorities had restricted powers. Under subsequent statutes one county, of small area and population, has been deprived for the most part of the few powers it had originally, while the other four counties, of considerable size and population, have been given much larger powers. These four counties now collect a portion of their revenues and determine in part the rates of others, which are collected by the Territory. On January 1, 1909, the county of Oahu was converted into the city and county of Honolulu with enlarged powers.

Area and Population—The total area of the islands is 6,449 square miles. The principal islands of the group are Hawaii, 4,015, Maui, 728, Oahu, 598, Kanae, 547, Molokai, 261, Lanai, 139, Niihau, 97, Ka-hoolawe, 69. According to the census taken on April 15, 1910, the total population of the islands numbered 191,909, an increase of 37,908, or 24.61 per cent since 1900. The average number of persons to the square mile in 1910 was 29.75. The Capital, Honolulu, in the Island of Oahu, has 52,185 inhabitants.

The number of Hawaiians in the islands in 1910 was 26,041, the part Hawaiians 12,606. The decrease in the number of Hawaiians in the ten years 1900-1910 was 4,746, and increase in part Hawaiians 4,668. Of the part-Hawaiians, 8,772 are Caucasian Hawaiian and 3,734 Asiatic Hawaiian. There are 21,674 Chinese and 79,674 Japanese. The Portuguese number 22,808, the Spanish 1,990, other Caucasians, chiefly Americans, British and Germans, 14,867 and Porto Ricans, 4,890. Chinese, Japanese, and Korean immigration is prohibited. In the fiscal year ending June 30, 1912, 266 Russian, 3,247 Spanish and Portuguese, and 3,045 Filipino immigrants were introduced.

Religion and Instruction—Nearly all the natives are Christians. There is an Anglican bishop at Honolulu, also a Roman Catholic bishop, and ministers of various denominations. Schools are established all over the islands, the sum expended for public instruction for the year ending June 30, 1912, was 723,912 dollars, of which 92,677 dollars was for new buildings. Elementary education has always been free. The language in general use in schools is English. In 1912, there were 166 public schools with 591 teachers and 23,752 enrolled pupils, also 51 private schools with 300 teachers and 6,157 enrolled pupils. Of the pupils in public and private schools in 1912, 8,328 were Hawaiian or part Hawaiian, 8,331 Portuguese, 12,963 Asiatics, 1,169 American, 187 British, and 306 German. In Hawaii there are, besides, a normal and training school, a reformatory industrial school for boys and one for girls; also a College of Agriculture and the Mechanic Arts.

Justice—Hawaii has a supreme court, circuit courts, district courts and a land registration court. The circuit judges sit also as juvenile courts. The judges of the supreme and circuit courts are appointed by the United States

President, the district magistrate by the chief justice of the supreme court. There is also a United States District Court, the judges of which are appointed by the President.

In 1912 there were 9,032 convictions, nearly all the offences being of a trivial nature.

Finance. Defence.—Revenue is derived mainly from taxation of real and personal property income and inheritance taxes, licences, land sales and leases, waterworks and road, school and poll taxes. For the year ending June 30, 1912, the revenue amounted to $315,972 76 dollars of which 2,560,505 88 dollars went to the Territory and 1,755,468 88 dollars to the counties. The Territory expended 2 327,770 17 dollars. On July 1, 1912, the bonded debt amounted to $454,000 dollars. In 1912 the assessed value of property was real, 90,889 057 dollars, personal 85,945 744 dollars, total, 176,834 801 dollars.

In June 1912 the Hawaiian National Guard contained 562 men. The Federal Government, with a view to the protection of the Pacific Coast and the control of the Panama Canal, has voted money for the construction of extensive military works at Pearl Harbour, about 7 miles from Honolulu, and at Honolulu and other places on the island of Oahu. The dredging of Pearl Harbour channel was completed during the year ending June 30 1912, and the construction of the dry dock naval station, and fortifications is well in hand.

Production and Commerce.—The islands are to a great extent mountainous and volcanic, but the soil is highly fertile and productive. In 1910 there were 4,320 farms with an acreage of 2,590,600 of which 305,053 acres were improved land. Sugar and rice are the staple industries, while coffee, honey, hides, sisal, bananas, pine apples, wool, tobacco, cotton, and rubber are also exported. In 1911 the sugar crop amounted to over 566,821 tons. The sugar plantations are extensively supplied with irrigation canals, and this system is coming into general use. In 1912 there were forest reserves aggregating 683,101 acres, and other reserves are contemplated. In 1910 the Territory had 500 industrial establishments, employing a total of 7,572 persons (5,904 being wage earners) having a capital of 23,875,000 dollars, the cost of material being 25,629 000 dollars and the value of the output 47,404,000 dollars.

For the year ended June 30, 1912, the imports from foreign countries amounted to 5,598,444 dollars, and the exports to foreign countries to 373,273 dollars. The shipments of merchandise from the United States to Hawaii amounted to 23,095,878 dollars, and those from Hawaii to the United States to 85 076,163 dollars, of which 48,143,530 dollars was for raw sugar, 1 817,979 dollars for refined sugar, 2,744,042 dollars for fruits, 335,641 dollars for coffee, and 212,148 dollars for rice. The imports from the United Kingdom in 1911 totalled 148,183 and the exports to the United Kingdom 4,823.

Shipping and Communications.—A considerable addition to the wharfrage accommodation of the port of Honolulu has now been made, and the harbour has been enlarged and dredged to a depth that will admit the largest steamers afloat. At Hilo Bay on the east side of Hawaii Island, the construction of a breakwater has begun, Hilo being an important place for the shipment of sugar. At Kahului, the principal port on the Island of Maui, the construction of a breakwater has been completed and dredging of the harbour has begun. Many lighthouses have been constructed in recent years.

Ten lines of steamers connect the islands with the United States,

Canada, Australia, the Philippines, China, and Japan. In the year 1912, 431 vessels of 1,370,315 tons entered, and 429 of 1,359,109 tons cleared at the ports of the islands. An inter island steam navigation company with 17 small steamers provides communication between the different islands. There are about 265 miles of railway in the islands, and new lines are projected. There are telephones on the islands of Oahu, Maui, Hawaii, Kauai, and Molokai, total length 600 miles, nearly every family in Honolulu has its telephone. Honolulu is lighted by electricity and has lines of electric tramways. The Marconi system of wireless telegraphy is in operation between the islands for commercial purposes and for communication with vessels at sea and with the Pacific coast.

PORTO RICO

Government.—Porto Rico, by the treaty of December 11, 1898, was ceded by Spain to the United States. Its constitution was determined by Act of Congress of April 12, 1900 (known as the "Organic Act") slightly amended on May 1, 1900, and March 2, 1901. It has representative government, the franchise being restricted only as to age (21 years), residence (one year) and citizenship (either Porto Rican or American). The Governor and the Executive Council, consisting of 6 heads of departments and 5 natives, are appointed for 4 years by the President of the United States, while the House of Delegates consisting of 35 members (5 from each of the 7 electoral districts), and a Resident Commissioner to the United States, having a seat in Congress in Washington, are elected by the people for 2 years. The Council and the House of Delegates constitute the Legislative Assembly, with the veto power vested in the Governor. In each of the 71 municipalities epitalties of the island the mayor, city council, and other chief officials are elected by the people and they, in turn, appoint their subordinates. The essential features of the United States civil service have been incorporated into a local law by the Legislative Assembly. The judiciary comprises an Attorney General and staff and a United States court appointed by the President, a Supreme Court of 5 members also appointed by the President, 7 District Courts whose judges are appointed by the Governor, and 34 municipal courts and 61 justices of the peace elected by the people.

A revised 'Organic Act,' known as the Olmstead Bill, designed to replace the Act of April 12, 1900, is before the Congress of the United States. In December, 1910, it passed the lower house and now awaits the action of the Senate. The new act, in its projected form, grants collective American citizenship to the people of Porto Rico and a partially but progressively elective senate, extends the appointive judiciary system, establishes a co-ordinate and cohesive form of insular government, in which the legislative and executive functions are to be separated and provides an effective health service throughout the island.

Governor —George R. Colton

Secretary —M. Drew Carrel

Area, Population and Instruction.—The island has an area of 3 606 square miles. The population in 1910 was 1 118 012 or 318 per sq mile. The negroes in 1899 numbered 59,390 and mulattoes 304,352. There were 589 428 whites and 75 Chinese. The coloured population was 38.2 per cent. of the whole. Chief towns, San Juan 48 716 inhabitants (1910) Ponce 63,444, Mayaguez, 42,429. Of the working population, 63 per cent. are engaged in agriculture, fisheries, and mining, 21 per cent. in domestic and personal service, 8 per cent. in manufacturing industries, 8 per cent. in trade and transportation. In 1899 over 83 per cent. of the population could neither read nor write. In 1899 the school system was reorganised and education was made compulsory. In 1912 there were 1 168 common schools with 160,657 pupils enrolled, 18 high schools, and a well distributed system of night schools and kindergartens. There are also a number of private schools. The University of Porto Rico, established in Rio Piedras, 12 kilometres (about 7 miles) from San Juan, and open to both men and women, consists of a normal department, a college of liberal arts, a college of agriculture, with provision for departments of natural science and engineering, architecture, law, medicine, pharmacy, and for a university hospital. It maintains a farm and a dairy equipped with modern machinery and utensils and selected stock, and with the co operation of the United States Agricultural Experiment Station at Mayaguez, is offering a thorough course in theoretical and practical husbandry.

Finance.—Revenues are derived from customs and excise, from the general property tax, a collateral inheritance tax, taxes on insurance companies and from various licences and fees. Receipts and disbursements for the year ending June 30 1912 —

	Dollars.
Balance, July 1, 1911	4,015 444
Receipts, 1911-12	7,816,161

Balance, July 1, 1912	8,123,382

The assessed value of property in 1911 was 178,275,000 dollars. The net public debt is 4,139,760 dollars.

The police force consists of about 700 men, and the military force of about 590.

Production, Industry and Commerce —The cultivated land in 1910 was divided into 58 371 holdings, having a total area of 2,085 162 acres, of which 1 570,804 acres was improved land. The chief products of the island are sugar, tobacco, coffee, pine-apples, grape fruit, oranges, and other tropical fruits, sea island cotton, textile fibres, bat guano, phosphate, and vegetables, and the principal industries are manufactures of hats, embroidery, drawn work, rum, &c. Sugar exported in 1912 amounted to 367 000 tons valued at 31 544 063 dollars, being 63 per cent of all products exported. In 1912 111 682 615 cigars were consumed and 189 765,656 were exported, or a total output of 281,448 271, while 532,431,000 cigarettes were consumed and 11 293,350 were exported, or a total of 543,724,350. Over 5,000 000 pounds of leaf and scrap tobacco valued at 2 320,130 dollars were exported in 1912. Coffee increased from 33 937 021 pounds valued at 4 992,779 in 1911 to 40 146,365 pounds, valued at 6 754 913 dollars in 1912. Orange exports amounted to 584 414 dollars, fresh pineapples to 684 774 dollars, canned pineapples to 258 671 dollars, grapefruit, a comparatively new product (7 588 dollars in 1907) amounted to 525,043 dollars, while coconuts amounted to 308,883 dollars. With the completion of the system of irrigation now being constructed on the southern coast by the Government, at a cost of 3,000 000 dollars, the output of the island will be enormously increased. In 1910 there were 939 industrial establishments in Porto Rico employing 15 122 persons (15 582 wage earners), having a total capital of 25,544 385 dollars, with an output valued at 36 749 742 dollars. There is no established mining enterprise, but gold, silver, iron, copper, bismuth, tin, mercury, platinum and nickel are found in the island. There are very productive salt works. In 1912 the imports into Porto Rico amounted to 42 928,473 dollars, the domestic exports to foreign countries amounted to 49,703,413 dollars. Shipments of United States merchandise to Porto Rico, 37 424 545 dollars of foreign merchandise from United States, 1 046 418 dollars. Shipments from Porto Rico to United States, value 42,873,401 dollars.

Shipping and Communications —In 1911-12, 468 American and foreign vessels of 685,198 tons cleared from Porto Rico to the United States. The vessels of 13 steamship lines (3 Spanish, the others being French, German, American, Cuban and British) visit the island. The harbour of San Juan, the chief port, and naval station proper, is being improved to have an entrance 600 yards wide and 80 feet deep.

There are over 1,000 miles of road in the island, and 220 miles of railway. The railway system connects towns on the west coast and now almost encircles the island and penetrates the interior. A new line is open from Rio Piedras to Aguas Inland. Extensions of existing lines are being undertaken, and a new line across the island with many branches, is projected. There are 590 miles of postal (government), telegraph wire. The telephone (private) is in use and is being widely extended. There are 80 post offices, and 40 telegraph stations.

The Porto Rican island of Vieques, 13 miles to the east, is about 21 miles long and 6 miles broad and has about 10,000 inhabitants, who grow sugar and rear cattle. Like Porto Rico the island of Vieques is fertile and healthy.

The island of Culebra, between Porto Rico and St. Thomas, has a good harbour and has been transformed into a naval base. It is the rendezvous of the U S Atlantic and Caribbean squadrons.

PHILIPPINE ISLANDS

These islands, ceded by Spain to the United States by the treaty signed by the Peace Commissioners December 10, 1898 extend almost due north and south from Formosa to Borneo and the Moluccas, embracing an extent of 16° of latitude and 8° of longitude.

Governor General.—W. Cameron Forbes appointed November 11, 1900.

Vice Governor.—Newton W. Gilbert appointed February 10, 1910.

Area and Population.—The islands and islets are about 3,141 in number, the two largest are Luzon (40,969 square miles) and Mindanao (36,292 square miles) and the total area, including the Sulu Islands, is estimated at 127,853 square miles. An estimate of the population made by the United States Bureau of Statistics in 1911 and based on the census of 1903, put the total at 8,368,427. Owing to the fact that the census in question greatly underestimated the numbers of certain uncivilised tribes, then little known the present correct figure is probably near 8,600,000, giving a density of population of 67 per square mile. Approximately 1,000,000 of the population are non Christians and more primitive than the Christianised peoples.

The capital of the Archipelago is Manila, constituted as a province, with (1910) 234,409 inhabitants. Other towns with their estimated present population are Iloilo on Panay, 60,000 (including suburbs), Cebu on Cebu, 60,000 (including suburbs), Laoag, 43,000. Albay (including Legaspi), 40,000, Nueva (Acree), 40,000, Vigan 33,000 (all on Luzon), Zamboanga on Mindanao, 24,000. Baguio in the Mountain Province, Luzon, is the summer capital, corresponding to Simla in India.

Movement of Population.—Vital statistics are as yet restricted to Manila, which, with a population (1910) of 234,409 had in the year ending June 30, 1912, 8,688 deaths (or 36.82 per 1,000) and 9,840 births (or 39.84 per 1,000). Among the American residents, however the death rate is only 10 to 15 per 1,000.

About 40 per cent. of the recorded deaths are those of infants under one year old, and the number of infants' deaths, one year or less, equals about 40 percent of births. This high infant death rate is set off by a high birth rate. Sanitary supervision in the Archipelago is entrusted to a Bureau of Health, which has district health officers in the several provinces.

In the fiscal year ending June 30 1912, there were 15 068 passengers arriving at the Philippine Islands. Of these, 4,317 were Americans, 1,194 citizens of the Philippines, 6 589 Chinese (5,596 having been in the islands before), 813 Japanese, and 2 205 of other nationalities. Under the Chinese exclusion Act (applied to the Philippines in 1902) Chinese immigration is prohibited. Under the Act Chinese labourers must be registered.

There are about 25 000 Americans and Europeans in the islands and about 40,000 Chinese. The native inhabitants are mostly of the Malayan race but there are some tribes of Negritos.

Government.—The whole of the Archipelago is now under civil government, but in the Moro Province comprising parts of Mindanao and the Sulu Islands, most of the civil offices, including that of governor, are filled by military officers. The central government is composed of the Governor General, who is the chief executive and President of the Philippine Commission and eight Commissioners (four Americans and four Filipinos).

The Philippine Commission constitutes the upper house, and the elective Philippine Assembly, which was first opened on October 16, 1907, the lower house, of the legislative body. The members of the Assembly hold office for four years, and the Legislature elects two Resident Commissioners to the United States, who hold office for the same term.

There are four executive departments: Interior, Finance and Justice, Commerce and Police, and Public Instruction, of which three American and one Filipino Commissioners are secretaries. A fifth department has been authorised by Congress but has not as yet been created by the President. The islands are subdivided into 38 provinces each with a governor, secretary, treasurer, and prosecuting attorney. The provincial governor is elected by popular vote, except in the 6 provinces inhabited largely by Non-Christian tribes and the Province of Batanes, in which the governor is appointed by the Governor General of the islands, with the advice and consent of the Philippine Commission. The government of the towns is practically autonomous, the officials being elected by the qualified voters of the municipality and serving for four years. The officials consist of a president, vice president and councillors, the latter varying in number according to population. Local municipal government has been instituted in about 730 towns.

Justice and Defence.—For the administration of justice there are a supreme court with 7 judges, 17 judicial districts each with a court of first instance, and 8 additional judges of the court of first instance of Manila and 4 additional judges of first instance, who replace absent judges or others disqualified for any reason in particular cases, also a court of land registration, with 5 judges. Public order is maintained through the municipal police and the Philippine Constabulary. The strength of the Constabulary at the close of the fiscal year, 1912, was 323 officers and 4,157 enlisted men distributed throughout the Archipelago in 123 stations. The director, four of the assistant directors and two inspectors are detailed from the United States Army.

Religion.—The dominant religion of the islands is the Roman Catholic, there being in addition to an American archbishop, 5 American, 1 Italian, and 2 Filipino bishops, and 1 Spanish Apostolic Prefect. In Luzon an In dependent Filipino Church has come into existence. The Moros are Mohammedans, and there are pagan tribes in some of the more remote regions.

Education.—Education is under the direction of the Secretary of Public Instruction. The Archipelago is divided into 36 educational divisions. The teaching staff comprises 664 American teachers for all grades, and 1,066 Filipino teachers on Insular pay and 6,488 Filipino teachers paid by the municipalities. English is taught in all the public schools of the islands to the number of over 4,000. In 1911-12, there was an average daily attendance of 329,073 pupils in the public schools. The annual cost of teachers, &c. is about 3,450,000 dollars. A school for training teachers has been at work for some years, and industrial and trade schools have been established and great stress is laid on industrial work. For higher education there is the free State supported University of the Philippines, with colleges of Liberal Arts, Medicine and Surgery, Engineering, Veterinary Medicine, Agriculture and the Fine Arts. An ecclesiastical institution, the University of Santo Tomas (founded 1611) at Manila has several faculties including one of Medicine.

Finance.—The revenues and expenditures for four fiscal years, ending June 30, were —

	1904	1905	1906	1909	1910	1911
	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars
Revenues	15,664,870	17,204,886	17,403,500	19,234,753	21,048,008	21,004,575
Expenditures	1,084,577	14,612,574	17,735,061	10,087,18	21,965,522	23,008,621

The net revenues and expenditures under classified headings excluding operations from all other funds or sources are stated as follows for 1912 —

Revenue	Dollars	Expenditure	Dollars
Taxation	20,142,764	Current	15,685,849
Various	8,127,001	Capital	4,807,794
		Various	3,424,008
Total Revenue	28,269,765
Other receipts	1,292,227
Total	4,061,902	Total	23,916,151

On August 1, 1904, a new internal revenue system came into force. With a number of exceptions taxes are now levied on banking, insurance, commerce, industries, licences being required especially for the production and sale of ale, spirits, tobacco &c. and matches. There is also a poll tax (the cedula) on males between 18 and 60. Of the proceeds of the internal revenue 70 per cent. goes to the insular government, 10 per cent. to the provincial, and 20 per cent. to the municipal governments. The municipalities are required to devote one half of their share to public schools. There is a tax on real estate fixed at  $1\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. of the assessed value in Manila and at varying rates with a maximum of  $\frac{1}{2}$  of one per cent. in the other civilized provinces. This is not a government land rent, such as exists in India.

Production and Industry—The chief products are rice, copra, abaca (Manila hemp) sugar, corn (maize), and tobacco. Agriculture however, is still in a primitive condition, implements and methods being antiquated, farm animals scarce, labour and means of transport insufficient, and capital wanting for the proper development of the soil.

The total area cultivated (1912) was 5,370 522 acres the largest crop being that of rice (2 609 392 acres). The total value of crops was (1912) 79,880,028 dollars (rice 32,995 971 dollars).

The Islands possess wide forests of valuable timber, gum, and dye woods, and are under the supervision of the Forestry Bureau, which frames plans and rules for their protection and working. They are divided into 9 forest districts each containing a number of forest stations in charge of foresters, rangers or inspectors. Each forest contains native trees of many species.

In the Philippine Islands little has, as yet, been done towards the development of the mineral resources but prospecting is now proceeding vigorously. Lignite is found in many of the islands. Iron (magnetite and hematite) is found in several provinces. Gold is found in almost all the important islands, and in some of them has been long worked by natives, it is at present the most important of the mineral products. Silver has been found only in argentiferous galena or alloyed with gold. Platinum has been detected in small quantity in the gold gravel deposits of Rizal (Luzon). Copper is reported from several regions, and important deposits, long worked by natives, occur in Mancayan (in the mountains of Northern Luzon). Lead and manganese have been discovered, and sulphur, petroleum, rock salt, kaolin and gypsum are also found in the Archipelago. The total value of the mineral products during the calendar year 1911 amounted to 1 881 402 dollars.

Commerce—The values of imports and exports for fiscal years ending June 30, are stated as follows in U S dollars —

Imports	20 918 357	27 792,891	37 067 680	49 838 122	54 542 990
Exports	32 810 567	80,993 563	59 664 169	89 778 029	50 819,886

<sup>1</sup> Non-dutiable merchandise from the United States imported by supply officers of the army navy and insular government and railway free entries, are included in the figures for 1911 and 1912, but are excluded in figures for years prior thereto. Imports of gold and silver coin are excluded from the figures for the years prior to 1910.

Import duties 1912, 7,502 961 dollars. Export duties, 1912, 1,058,902 dollars.

The chief imports and exports in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1912 were —

Imports (1912)	Dollars	Exports (1912)	Dollars
Rice	10 509 249	Hemp	18,288 510
Cotton and manufactures	9 240,595	Copra	16 514,749
Iron and steel and manuf.	6 031 008	Sugar	10 400 875
Meat and dairy products	3 641 274	Cigars	2,660 091
Wheat flour	1 761 298	Tobacco leaf	1 902 644
Mineral oils	1,907,180

SAMOAN ISLANDS

(AMERICAN SAMOA)

The Island of Tutuila and all other islands of the Samoan group east of longitude 171 degrees west came into the possession of the United States in February, 1900. For many years American influence had been strong in Samoa. In 1872 the harbour of Pago Pago, in Tutuila, had been ceded to the United States for a naval and coaling station. In 1878 this cession was confirmed, and rights of freedom of trade and extra territorial jurisdiction in Samoa were granted. In 1889 was held at Berlin the conference between the representatives of the United States, Germany, and Great Britain, resulting in the treaty recognising the Samoan Islands as neutral territory with an independent government, the natives being allowed to follow their own laws and customs, while for civil and criminal causes in which foreigners were concerned there was established a Supreme Court of Justice, in which an American citizen was the presiding judge. This arrangement continued till 1898 when disturbances regarding the right of succession to the office of king arose. In 1899 the kingship was abolished, and by the Tripartite Treaty of November 14 of that year accepted in February, 1900 by the United States, Great Britain and Germany renounced in favour of the United States all rights over the island of Tutuila and the other islands of the Samoan group east of 171 degrees longitude west of Greenwich, the islands to the west of that meridian being assigned to Germany. The harbour of Pago Pago had, in fact, been occupied by the United States, under already existing treaty rights, in 1898.

The Island of Tutuila, 70 miles from Apia, has an area of about 54 square miles, with a population of 5,452. Manua and the other islets (Ofu and Olosega), have a united area of about 25 square miles, with about 1,797 inhabitants. Tutuila is mountainous, luxuriantly wooded and fertile. It is described as the most pleasing of the Samoan islands. The harbour at Pago Pago which penetrates the south coast like a herd is the only good harbour in Samoa. It is a United States naval station under a Commandant, the Government having acquired there a land area of about 40 acres.

The Commandant is also the Governor of Tutuila by commission from the President. He appoints officers and frames laws or ordinances, but native customs (not inconsistent with United States laws) are not changed without the consent of the people.

The islands are organised in 3 political divisions —1, the Eastern District of Tutuila with the islet of Anuu, 2, the Western district of Tutuila, and 3, the District of Manua and the neighbouring isles. In each District there is a native governor under whom are native high chiefs in the 'counties,' these having the control of village chiefs. Judicial power is vested in village courts, in 5 judicial district courts, and in a high court.

Ordinances have been made for the regulation of police, the importation of spirits, assessment of taxes, possession of arms, and other matters. The sale of native lands to whites is prohibited. Especial attention is given to the general health of the natives. Systematic efforts to eradicate the hookworm disease by sanitary education and treatment have met with a large measure of success.

There are 4 religious missions at work. The London Missionary Society, the Roman Catholic (French) mission, the Mormon mission and the Wesleyan mission. Besides the sectarian schools there are 3 non sectarian schools. 1 maintained by the Island Government, and 2 mainly supported by natives. All the non sectarian schools are supplied with text books, stationery, &c. by the Island Government. There are 81 schools in the islands attended by 1 099 boys and 837 girls.

The natives usually pay their taxes in copra, the quantity of copra annually assessed for this purpose is 1 1/2 from 500,000 to 550,000 lbs. The annual output of copra is 1 500 tons. At Fagatogo the natives are allowed to pay their taxes in cash. There is a native guard (Fitaftas) of about 75, including the 14 members of the native band, trained by a drill sergeant and a bandmaster of the U.S. navy. The chief island products, besides copra, are taro breadfruit, yams coconuts and bananas. In 1911 the imports at Pago-pago amounted to 94 190 dollars and the exports to 142 740 dollars. Vessels with an aggregate tonnage of 48,861 tons entered and of 48 811 tons cleared.

The American flag has been hoisted on many small Pacific Islands, some of them uninhabited rocks.

ABYSSINIA.

(ETHIOPIA)

Government

THE ancient Empire of Abyssinia, or 'Ethiopia', includes the kingdoms of Tigre, with Lasta, in the north east, Amhara, with Gojam, in the west and centre, Shoa in the south, besides territories and dependencies as far as haifa in the south and Harar in the south east, with considerable portions of the Galla and Somali Lands. The whole area is 432,432 sq miles, with an estimated population of 8 millions. For treaties relating to the boundaries of Abyssinia see Statesman's Year Book for 1907, p 667. An agreement was reached in December, 1907, for the delimitation of the frontier towards British East Africa. The frontier follows the Dawa up to Ursull, whence it runs mainly westwards passing the south end of Lake Stephanie and after crossing the north eastern branch of Lake Rudolf runs mainly northwards and terminates at 0° N 35° E. This frontier however is not yet finally delimited and accepted by the Abyssinians.

Under an Agreement signed December 13, 1906, on behalf of Great Britain, France and Italy, the three Powers undertake to respect and endeavour to preserve the integrity of Abyssinia, to act so that industrial concessions granted in the interest of one of them may not injure the others, to abstain from intervention in Abyssinian internal affairs, to concert together for the safeguarding of their respective interests in territories bordering on Abyssinia, and they make agreements concerning railway construction in Abyssinia and equal treatment in trade and transit for their nationals. Another convention of the same date provides for the prohibition or regulation of the importation of arms and ammunition into Abyssinia.

After the overthrow of Theodore king of Amhara, by the British in 1868, the suzerain power passed to Prince Kassai of Tigre who assumed the old title of Negus Negus (king of kings), and was crowned in 1872 as Johannes II, Emperor of Ethiopia. After the death of this potentate in 1889, Menelik II, king of Shoa (born 1842) (C.B., G.C.M.G.), became the supreme ruler of Abyssinia. Menelik has no direct heir, but he has proclaimed as his successor Lij Yasu (or Lidj Eyassu) G.C.M.G. son of Menelik's daughter Walzato Shoa Rogga and Ras Mikael now (1913) about 16 years old. Lij Yasu owing to the illness of the Emperor Menelik (since 1909) fulfils the functions generally performed by his grandfather. The political institutions are essentially of a feudal character analogous to those of mediæval Europe. There is a vague State Council consisting of the most important rases, under whom, for administrative purposes, are governors of districts and provinces and chiefs of villages. A Council of Ministers has been constituted by the Emperor, Ministers being appointed for Justice, Finance, Commerce, War, Foreign Affairs, Posts and Telegraphs, Interior, and a sort of Lord Privy Seal. The most important Minister is the Minister of War. The Council met for the first time in July, 1903, and was employed chiefly in defining the duties and powers of the various departments. The legal system is said to be based on the Justinian Code. The regular army, consisting of contingents from the various provinces, numbers about 150,000 men, and is supplemented by irregulars and a territorial army. Theoretically, but not in fact, every man in the regular army is mounted. The forces are stationed in garrisons over the country. At Addis Ababa are 7 batteries of artillery and mitrailleuses taken at the battle of Adua.

Besides the chiefs and their retainers summoned in time of war, the King maintains a permanent army of voddader or mercenaries, all of whom are now armed with rifles instead of the national weapons, shield and lance

Population.

The population consists of Semitic Abyssinians, Gallas and Somalis, Negroes (in the South West), and Falashas (of Jewish religion), with a considerable number of non natives (Indians, Arabs, Greeks, Armenians, and a few Europeans) Except Harrar, and perhaps in the north, there are no towns in Abyssinia in our sense of the word—not even Adis Ababa, which consists of villages and suburbs scattered round the Palace. It would be about three miles in diameter. The most important towns, politically and commercially, are Gondar capital of Amhara, 3,000. Adua, capital of Tigré, 3 000, Aksum, ancient capital of Ethiopia, and still the seat of an Abuna, 5,000, Antalo, former capital of Tigré, 1,000. Ankober, former capital of Shoa, 2,000, Adis Ababa, present capital of Abyssinia and Shoa, 40,000-50 000. Debra Labor (Mount Tabor) Magdala, and Makallé, Gore, Saryu, Nekemti, Sameié, 3 000-4 000, and Sokoto, 1 500 important trading centres, Mahdera Mariam (Mary's Rest) 4,000. The population of Harrar is estimated at 50,000 at Deri Dawa there are a considerable number of Europeans. Gambela in Western Abyssinia is a trading station leased to the Sudan Government. It is an important outlet for the trade in the West. A service of steamers are maintained from June to November with Khartoum.

Religion and Instruction

Since the conversion of the Abyssinians to Christianity in the fourth century they have remained members of the Alexandrian Church. The Abuna, or head bishop is always a Copt, appointed and consecrated by the Coptic Patriarch of Alexandria, but his influence is controlled by the Etcheghel, a native ecclesiastical dignitary, who presides over the spirituality, numbering about 100 000 ecclesiastics. Both Copts and Abyssinians are monophysite, rejecting the decrees of the Council of Chalcedon (A.D. 451).

Education has hitherto been restricted to the teaching of the secular and regular clergy, but in October 1907, the Emperor issued an edict enjoining compulsory education on all male children over the age of 12. This is, however, a dead letter. There is one school in Adis Ababa, directed by a few Coptic teachers, introduced by the Abuna—this is the only Abyssinian school in the country. It has over 100 pupils, but the attendances are most irregular and the institution unpopular as yet with the ignorant people. Justice is administered by the provincial governors, and shums, or petty chiefs with the right of appeal to the Emperor.

Agriculture

The chief industries are pastoral and agricultural. Cattle, sheep, and goats are numerous. The cattle are fine, but there is much loss from cattle plague. The horses of the country are small but hardy. Mules are bred everywhere, being used as pack animals. Donkeys are also small and serve for baggage animals. The soil belongs theoretically to the Negus, the idea of landed property scarcely exists among the populace, and agriculture is therefore backward. Cotton, the sugar cane, date-palm, coffee, and vines might thrive well in many districts, but are nowhere extensively cultivated. The production of Harari coffee (long berry Mocha) is on the increase. Besides this, which is cultivated, there grows more especially in southern and western Abyssinia a wild coffee plant, yielding a berry known as Abyssinian coffee which may have commercial possibilities in the future. At present, owing principally to indifferent presentation it does not command a good price, except in Khartoum, where it is preferred to Brazilian coffee. Besides hides and skins the native produce includes barley, millet (dhumra), wheat, gesho (which serves as a substitute for hops), and tobacco, but not in sufficient quantities for export. Manufacturing industries are in a similar state. The forests abound in valuable trees and rubber. Iron is abundant in some districts and is manufactured into spears, knives, hatchets, &c. Placer gold mining and washing are carried on in many districts, coal is known to exist in the country, silver, copper, and sulphur have been found.

Commerce

The value of exports and imports through Jibuti in 1910 was about 950,147l, and in 1911 813,030l and through Gambela and Western Abyssinia to the Sudan in 1911, 116 482l, besides British East Africa, Zeila, and the Italian Colonies trade. The exports by Jibuti were estimated at about 469 484l, and through Gambela and Western Abyssinia, 75,509l. The exports consisted mainly of hides and skins, coffee wax, ivory, civet and native butter. The imports comprised grey shirting (abujedid), cotton goods, arms and ammunition provisions, liquors, railway material and petroleum. The imports are chiefly from England, France, India, Italy and the United States. The direct imports from Abyssinia into Great Britain in 1911 amounted to the value of 8 173l the domestic exports from Great Britain to Abyssinia amounted in 1911 to 2,441l.

Abyssinia has commercial treaties with Great Britain (1897) for most favoured nation treatment with Italy (1897) terminable on six months notice, with the United States (1908) for 10 years, then subject to one year's notice with Germany and Austria-Hungary (1905) for 10 years, then subject to one year's notice with France (1906) for 10 years, and then subject to a year's notice.

Communications.

Roads in Abyssinia are mere tracks, and transport is effected by means of mules, pack horses, donkeys, and, in some places, camels. In the capital and its vicinity a few miles of metalled road have been constructed. There is a railway of a metre gauge from the port of Jibuti in French Somaliland to Deré Dawa (about 25 miles from Harrar) in the south east of Abyssinia, 187 miles. In January, 1909, a new company was formed to complete the line to Adis Ababa, taking over the portion completed on French territory. The survey for the new line has been made and the section to the Hawash River, 150 miles from Deré Dawa, and the same distance from Adis Ababa, is expected to be finished by the autumn of 1913. There are telegraph lines (1,056 miles) connecting Adis Ababa with Harrar, with Sidamo, with Jibuti in French Somaliland and with Massawa in Eritrea. Telephone lines connect Adis Ababa with Harrar also with Gore and Gambela (in the west) Jimma and Sharada (south west) Dessie (north) and Debra Tabor and Gojam, and with Ankober, and Aemara with Adna and Bartomeida.

Money and Credit.

The Bank of Abyssinia, with authorised capital of 500,000l and paid up capital of 125 000l, has its head office at Adis Ababa and agencies at Harrar, Deré Dawa, Gore Saiyn, Gambela and Dessie. By its constitution the Governor of the National Bank of Egypt is its President, and its governing body sits at Cairo. The current coin of Abyssinia is the Maria Theresa dollar, but a new coinage (coined at Paris) has been put in circulation, with the Menelik dollar for the standard coin. This new coin, the kalori, or dollar, worth about 2s, weighs 28.075 grammes, 835 fine. It has nominally the same value as the Maria Theresa dollar, but in the capital is disliked, and in some places is not taken at all. The Bank of Abyssinia has introduced a large stock of Menelik piastres (16 to the dollar). Other silver coins are the half, quarter, and sixteenth (guerche or piastre) of a talar. Copper coins are the beaa (= one hundredth of a dollar) and the half and quarter guerche found only at Harrar. Various articles, however, are used as medium of exchange, bars of salt are regularly accepted as money all over the country in two sizes, and at a fluctuating rate according to supply and cost of transport. Cartridges are also currency, although there is a dead letter edict against them, and in most places barter prevails.

The Abyssinian ounce weighs about 480 grains (the weight of the Maria Theresa dollar), a pound of ivory contains 12 ounces of coffee, 18 ounces the Abyssinian ferasla contains 37½ lbs. av., or 50 lbs. Abyssinian (ivory). Grain measures are the kunna, ½ bushel, and the dawla, 2½ bushels. The metre is largely used at Harrar, native measures are the stazer, 9 inches, and the kend (cubit) 20 inches. A kala contains in some places 60 acres in others 96.

AFGHANISTAN

AFGHANISTAN is a country of Asia lying between parallels 29 and 38 20 of north latitude and 61 and 72 of east longitude, with a long narrow strip extending to 75 east longitude (Wakhan). On the north east, the boundary follows a line running generally westward from a fixed point near one of the peaks of the Sarikol Range to Lake Victoria, thence along the line of that branch of the Oxus which issues from the lake, and so, following the course of the Oxus, to Khamiab. From Khamiab, the line runs in a south westerly direction to Zulfiqar, on the river Hari Rud, and thence by Kal-i-Kalla to Hashrudan. Between Hashrudan and Siah Koh, north of Bandan the boundary is undivided. The Helmund river forms the boundary between Siah Koh and Band-i-Seistan and thence the boundary runs in a straight line to Koh-i-Malik Siah where the frontiers of Persia, Afghanistan and Baluchistan meet. Here the boundary turns round and runs generally eastwardly to the Khwaja Amran range. The eastern and southern boundaries of Afghanistan long remained uncertain but the basis of a delimitation was settled in 1893 at a conference between the late Amir Abdur Rahman, and Sir Mortimer Durand and the boundary agreed upon with the exception of the Kharhar Asmar section, has since been demarcated. The Amir agreed that Chitral, Bajaur and Swat should be included within the British sphere of political influence while he himself was to retain Asmar and the Kunar valley above it, as far as Anawai and the tract of Birmal west of Waziristan. In the subsequent demarcation, Khoristan was included within the countries under Afghan control, and has since been partially garrisoned by the Amir's troops. The Amir has withdrawn his pretensions over Waziristan. Between March 1903 and May 1905 the boundary to wards Persia was demarcated from Koh-i-Malik Siah to the Helmund and thence to Siah Koh. In July, 1905, Sir Henry McMahon announced his award concerning disputed water rights over the Helmund river, but the award has not yet been ratified by the Persian Government.

Habibullah Khan the reigning Amir, son of Abdur Rahman Khan grandson of Afzul Khan and great grandson of Dost Muhammad Khan, was born on July 3, 1872 and succeeded on the death of his father, October 3, 1901. The Amir has five sons — Inayatulla Khan (born Oct 20, 1888), Hayatulla Khan (born Dec 29, 1888), Amanulla Khan (born June 1, 1892), Kahirulla Khan (born Oct 4 1890) and Asadulla Jan (born May 23, 1910). Brothers of the Amir are — Nasirulla Khan (born April 7, 1875), Aminulla Khan (born Oct 12, 1885), Muhammad Umar Khan (born Sept 16, 1889) Ghulam Ali Khan (born Sept 3 1890).

In 1896 the Amir Abdur Rahman formally assumed the title of Zia ul Mil at waddin 'Light of the Nation and Religion'. The present ruler has formally adopted the title of Saja ul Mil at waddin, Lamp of the Nation and Religion.

The origin of the Afghans is involved in obscurity. The Pathan dynasties of Delhi form part of Indian history. The whole of Afghanistan was conquered by Timur Kabul remaining in the hands of his descendants, and Kandahar being added to it by Sultan Babar in 1522. For the next two centuries Kabul was held by the Mughal Emperors of Delhi, and Herat by Persia, while Kandahar repeatedly changed hands between the two. Nadir Shah, the Persian, held the Afghan provinces till his assassination in 1747, after which the different provinces were formed into a single empire under Ahmad Shah, Durrani, including the Punjab and Kashmir on the east, and extending to the Oxus on the north. After various insurrections and interferences by Great Britain, in the summer of 1880 when Kabul and Kandahar were held by British troops the British Government offered the Amurship of Kabul to Abdur Rahman, who accepted it and the British force withdrew. Abdur Rahman agreed to leave the control of his foreign relations to the British Government, who, on their part, undertook not to interfere in the internal government of Afghanistan, and, in case of unprovoked foreign aggression on Afghan dominions, to aid the Amir in such manner as to them might seem necessary provided he unreservedly followed their advice in regard to his external relations. In 1893 this position was confirmed, and in a formal treaty signed at Kabul dated March 21, 1905, Amir Habibulla Khan accepted unreservedly the engagements which his father had entered into with the British Government. In the Anglo-Russian agreement of August 31, 1907, Great Britain undertakes neither to annex nor occupy any portion of Afghanistan nor to interfere in the internal administration of the country, provided the Amir fulfils his engagements towards the British Government. The Russian Government declares that Afghanistan is outside the sphere of Russian influence, and engage that their political relations with Afghanistan shall be conducted through the British Government. The principle of equality of commercial opportunity will be observed.

The government of Afghanistan is monarchical under one hereditary prince whose power varies with his own character and fortune. The dominions are politically divided into the four provinces of Kabul, Turkistan, Herat, and Kandahar, Badakhshan being now under Turkistan. Each province is under a Adim or governor (called Naib-ul Hukuma), under whom nobles dispense justice after a feudal fashion. Spoilation, exaction and embezzlement are almost universal.

Area, Population, Defence

The extreme breadth of Afghanistan from north to south is about 500 miles, its length from the Herat frontier to the Khair Pass, about 600 miles the area is about 250,000 square miles. The surrounding countries are, on the north, the Central Asian States under the influence of Russia, on the west, Persia on the south the British Political Agency of Baluchistan and the North West Frontier Province and on the east, the mountain tribes scattered along the north western frontier of India, and included within the sphere of British influence.

Population about 5 000 000, the dominant race being the Durranis, and the most numerous the Ghilzais, who amount to about 1,625,000 souls, then follow the Tajiks, Hazaras and Aimaks. Uzbaks.

Justice in ordinary cases is supposed to be administered by a Kadi, or chief magistrate, assisted by myfts, or mukhtasibs (the latter a species of detective officers) and regulated by laws which if rightly acted on, would be tolerably equitable.

The revenue of Afghanistan is subject to considerable fluctuations. The Government share of the produce recoverable is said to vary from one-third to one-tenth, according to the advantages of irrigation. The Amir receives a subsidy from the Indian Government, of Rs 1,850 000 a year. His total revenue is estimated at between 12 and 13 million rupees, but this estimate is probably too low.

In addition to his regular army the Amir's military forces are largely supplemented by local levies of horse and foot. The mounted levies are simply the retainers of great chiefs, or of the latter's wealthier vassals. The foot levies are now permanently embodied, and as irregulars form a valuable auxiliary to the regular infantry. The mountain batteries are believed to be serviceable. As engineers, the Hazara 'sappers,' who are regularly enrolled, are excellent workmen. The Afghan army is said to number between 50,000 and 60,000 men, including 16,000 cavalry and 450 guns. In 1896, the Amir ordered a conscription of one man in every seven, the conscription is carried out in a characteristically loose fashion, and there are many districts where it has been impossible to enforce it. Cannon, rifles, and ammunition are manufactured at the Kábul arsenal, and there are 30 mountain guns and Howitzers from Essen. Apart from large numbers of weapons of precision smuggled through Persia the State possesses probably enough breech loading rifles to equip 100 000 infantry but it is uncertain how many of these weapons have been issued or to what extent the troops are trained in their use. Few, if any, of the regimental officers can be considered competent either to instruct or lead the troops. In recent years the Amir has entertained several Turkish officers for the training of his army, and considerable improvement has resulted.

Production

There are five classes of cultivators—1st, proprietors who cultivate their own land, 2nd, tenants who hire it for a rent in money or for a fixed proportion of the produce, 3rd, bagars, who are the same as the mitayers in France, 4th, hired labourers, and, 5th, villeins, who cultivate their lord's land without wages—i.e. slaves. There are two harvests in the year in most parts of Afghanistan. One of these is sown in the end of autumn and reaped in summer and consists of wheat, barley, Erum Lens, and Cicer arctium, with some peas and beans. The other harvest is sown in the end of spring and reaped in autumn. It consists of rice, millet, arza (Panicum italicum), Indian corn, &c. The castor oil plant, madder, and the asafoetida plant abound. The fruits, viz the apple, pear, almond, peach, quince, apricot, plum, cherry, pomegranate, grape, fig, mulberry, are produced in profuse abundance. They form the principal food of a large class of the people throughout the year, both in the fresh and preserved state and in the latter condition are exported in great quantities.

Northern Afghanistan is reputed to be tolerably rich in copper and lead is found in many parts. Iron of excellent quality comes from Bajaur (outside Afghanistan), and the Farmuli district (or Birmal), and a gold mine is being successfully worked under the supervision of a British mining expert at Kandahár, and is expected to yield a good profit, gold in small quantities is also brought from the Laghman Hills, and Kunar. Badakshan was famous for its precious stones, especially lapis lazuli. The Amir has frequently engaged European geologists and mining experts to search for coal, but hitherto with little success.

Silks, felts, carpets, articles from camels' and goats' hair, and rosaries are some of the principal industries. At Kabul, soap, cloth, and some other articles are manufactured for local consumption. The sheepskin poshta manufacture is one of the most important industries.

Trade

No accurate registration of the trade of Afghanistan has yet been obtained. The trans frontier trade between India and Afghanistan (according to Indian statistics) was as follows in four years ending March 31 —

	1909	1910	1911	1912
	£	£	£	£
Imports into India	570 459	690 088	610 102	623,965
Exports into Afghanistan	764 274	845 465	974 386	877 096

Of the exports from India to Afghanistan the chief items are cotton goods, indigo and other dyeing materials, sugar and tea, mostly the China leaf. The imports into India include horses, fruits and vegetables, grain and pulse, ghi and other provisions, assafoetida and other drugs, spices, wool, silk, cattle, hides, tobacco. The through transit duties levied by the Amir have been reduced, but the rates on imports into Afghanistan remain very high.

The imports from Bokhara are stated to amount to nearly 4,000,000 roubles and the exports to Bokhara to as much.

The rupee appears to be the usual currency, though Government demands are often paid in kind.

The Amir's mint at Kabul was for some years under the supervision of a European. The current coins in Kabul are Dinar, Paisa, Shahi, Sannar or Misqali, Abbasi, Qaran, Rupee and Tuman. Dinar and Tuman are imaginary coins intended for purposes of calculation only. Paisa and Shahi are copper coins, and Misqali, Abbasi, Qaran and Rupee are silver coins.

10 Dinar = 1 Paisa or Taka.

5 Paisa = 1 Shahi.

2 Shahi = 1 Sannar Sadinar or Misqali.

2 Sannar = 1 Abbasi.

1' Abbasi = 1 Qaran.

2 Qaran = 1 Rupee.

20 Rupees = 1 Tuman.

One Afghan Rupee is equal to about eight pence.

The trade routes of Afghanistan are as follows:—From Persia by Mashad to Herat, from Bokhara by Merv to Herat, from Bokhara by Samarkand, Balkh and Khulm to Kabul, from East Turkistan by Chitral to Jalalabad, but chiefly over the Khawak, from India by the Khaibar and Abkhana roads to Kabul, from India by the Gomal Pass to Ghazni, from Chaman the terminus of the North Western Railway, to Kandahar and thence to Kabul or Herat.

The Khaibar and Bolan roads are fit for light wheeled traffic as far as Kabul and Kandahar respectively. During the last two or three years the Amir has paid great attention to the improvement of the roads throughout the country. His Majesty is introducing a small motor car service to run between Kabul and Peshawar, and it will carry the Afghan post and possibly passengers. A motor car recently performed the journey between Kabul and Peshawar in the course of a day. There is, however, no wheeled carriage, except artillery, proper to the country, and merchandise is still transported on camel or pony back. There are practically no navigable rivers in Afghanistan, and timber is the only article of commerce conveyed by water, floated down stream in rafts. Telephonic communication exists between Jalalabad and Kabul, and is being extended to Kandahar.

ARGENTINE REPUBLIC

(REPÚBLICA ARGENTINA.)

Constitution and Government.

THE Constitution of the Argentine Republic bears date May 15, 1853, with modifications in 1866 and 1898. The executive power is left to a President elected for six years by electors appointed by the fourteen provinces, equal to double the number of senators and deputies combined, while the legislative authority is vested in a National Congress, consisting of a Senate and a House of Deputies, the former numbering 30, two from the capital and from each province, elected by a special body of electors in the capital and by the legislatures in the provinces and the latter 120 members elected by the people. By the Constitution there should be one deputy for every 33,000 inhabitants. A deputy must be 25 years of age, and have been a citizen for four years. The deputies are elected for four years but one half of the House must retire every two years. Senators must be 30 years of age, have been citizens for six years. One third of the Senate is renewed every three years. The two chambers meet annually from May 1 to September 30. The members of both the Senate and the House of Deputies each receive 18,000 pesos per annum. A Vice President, elected in the same manner and at the same time as the President, fills the office of Chairman of the Senate but has otherwise no political power. The President is commander in chief of the troops, and appoints to all civil, military, and judicial offices, and has the right of presentation to bishoprics; he is responsible with the Ministry for the acts of the executive, both President and Vice President must be Roman Catholics, Argentine by birth, and cannot be re-elected.

President of the Republic—Dr. Roque Sáenz Peña, elected March, 1910, assumed office, October 12th, 1910.

Vice President—Dr. Victorino de la Plaza.

The Ministry, appointed by and acting under the orders of the President, consists of eight Secretaries of State—namely, of the Interior, Foreign Affairs, Finance, War, Justice and Public Instruction, Agriculture, Marine, and Public Works.

The President has a salary of 96,000 dollars paper, and 28,800 dollars paper for official expenses, the Vice President 36,000 dollars paper as his salary and 24,000 dollars for official expenses, and each of the eight ministers 40,800 dollars per annum.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT

The Constitution, with certain small exceptions, is identical with that of the United States. Such matters as affect the Republic as a whole are under the superintendence of the Central Government. The Republic is divided into 14 provinces, 10 territories and 1 federal district (Buenos Aires). The governors of the various provinces are invested with very extensive powers, and in their constitutional functions are independent of the central executive. They are elected by the people of each province for a term of three years and four years. The provinces elect their own legislatures, and have complete control over their own affairs. The territories are under the supervision of governors appointed by the President. In Buenos Aires municipal government is exercised by a Mayor appointed by the National Government with the approval of the Senate. He is assisted by a deliberative council elected by tax-paying inhabitants of the various city parishes. This body votes on measures relating to city finance, works, and general administration, and its decisions are carried out by the executive. Other municipalities have constitutions of a similar nature.

1910	—	—	—	239,640	97,854
1911	—	—	—	225,772	107,632

In the years 1857-1911 the number of immigrants by sea was 3,924,952, comprising 2,052,925 Italians, 1,132,460 Spaniards, 201,732 French, 115,827 Russians, 74,191 Austrians, 89,442 Syrians, 48,526 Britons, 50,731 Germans, 30,619 Swiss, 16,419 Portuguese, 5,010 North Americans.

The emigrants in the years 1857-1911 numbered 1,156,871, leaving a balance in favour of the former of 2,768,081.

In 1911 the number of immigrants to the Republic included 58,185

Italians, 118,723 Spaniards, 4,916 French, 1,730 English, 16,694 Swiss, 23,450 Germans, 24,785 Austrians, and 280,916 of various nationalities. In 1912 there were 323,408 immigrants, including 165,662 Spaniards, 80,583 Italians, 20,332 Russians, 19,792 Turks, 1,816 English, 858 Asiatics, and 499 Americans. By the Constitution of the Republic, all children of foreigners born in the country are Argentine.

Population of the capital Buenos Aires, in 1912, estimated at 1,383,663, Córdoba, 100,000, Rosario 180,000, Tucuman, 78,695, Mendoza, 60,000, Bahía Blanca, 72,706, Paraná, 36,857, Salta, 40,000, Corrientes, 30,000, La Plata 99,786, Santa Fé 48,600, San Luis 13,994, San Juan, 15,262.

Religion and Instruction

The Roman Catholic religion is that of the State, but all other creeds are tolerated. There are 1 archbishop (Buenos Aires) and 8 suffragan bishops. For the clergy there are 5 seminaries. In 1884 civil marriage was established in the Republic.

Primary education is free (subsidized by the General and Provincial Governments), secular and compulsory for children from 6 to 14 years of age. In the capital and the territories it is under the charge of a national council of education assisted by local school councils, and in the 14 provinces under their respective governments. Population of school age (1911), 1,025,570, of whom 45 per cent. attended school, of the latter only 13 per cent. could read and write. Of the total population over 6 years of age, 50.6 per cent. were illiterate. There were (1911) 7,183 primary schools, public and private, with 746,725 pupils and 22,456 teachers. The secondary or preparatory education is controlled by the general Government, which maintains 27 national colleges with 10,227 pupils and 1,533 teachers. There are also 62 normal schools with 5,954 pupils and 1,858 teachers. Twenty schools for special instruction (commercial, industrial, artistic, also for the blind, &c.) with 6,848 pupils. There are national universities at Córdoba, Buenos Aires, and La Plata, provincial universities at Santa Fé, and Paraná, comprising faculties of law, medicine, agriculture and engineering, with 438 professors and a total of 7,317 students. The university of Buenos Aires in 1909 had 4,864 students, a school of mines (39 students), a college of agriculture, a naval and a military school. There is a well-equipped national observatory at Córdoba, and another at La Plata, museums at Buenos Aires and La Plata, and a national meteorological bureau at Córdoba.

In 1911 the Government spent 19,241,252 dollars on education.

In Argentina there are 794 newspapers published, 722 in Spanish, 16 in Italian, 6 in German, 10 in English, and others in Scandinavian, French, Basque, Russian.

Justice

Justice is administered by Federal and by Provincial Courts. The former deal only with cases of a national character, or in which different provinces or inhabitants of different provinces are parties. The Federal Courts are the Supreme Courts with 5 judges at Buenos Aires, 4 Appeal Courts, each with 3 judges, at Buenos Aires, La Plata, Paraná, and Córdoba, and courts of first instance in each of the provinces and territories. Each province has its own judicial system, with a Supreme Court (generally so-called) and several minor courts. Trial by jury is established by the Constitution for criminal cases, but never practised.

Defense.

ARMY

The army of the Argentine Republic is a National Militia, service in which is now compulsory for all citizens from their 20th to their 45th year. For the first 10 years the men belong to the 'active army, or first line. After completing 10 years in the first line, the men pass to the National Guard and serve in it for another 10 years, finishing their service with 5 years in the Territorial Guard. The period of continuous service, or training in the ranks, is for the greater proportion of the annual contingent only 8 months, the remainder serve for 1 year. The reservists can be called out for training periodically.

The territory of the Republic is divided into 5 military districts, each of which provides on mobilisation a complete division of the first line, and also a reserve division, irrespective of the National Guard and Territorial troops. The strength of the 'active divisions will be about 12,000 men each. The 'active army comprises 9 regiments of cavalry, 5 regiments of field artillery of 4 batteries each, 2 batteries of field howitzers and 6 mountain batteries, 5 battalions of engineers and a railway battalion, 10 regiments of infantry of 2 battalions each and 10 separate battalions. Batteries have 6 guns.

The total peace strength of the army is about 215,000 officers and men. There is a reserve numbering 150,000.

The weapon of the Argentine infantry is at present the Mauser magazine rifle. The cavalry have a carbane of the same system. The artillery are armed with a Krupp 7.5 cm. gun.

Military expenditure is somewhat less than 2,000,000 per annum.

to serve two years. There is a corps of coast artillery of 450 men a naval school, a school of mechanics, a school for artillery, and a school for torpedo practice.

Production and Industry

Argentina has an area of about 728,830,000 acres, of which about 253 195,000 acres may be used for agricultural or cattle industries the remainder being mountain, lake, river, or arid regions. Of the cultivable portion about 10 000 000 acres require irrigation. In the territories the Federal Government has wide tracts of land amounting to 237,768,000 acres suitable in general for pastoral colonisation, and these lands are conditionally offered free, or for sale or on lease.

The total area under cultivation in 1912 was 54 709 222 acres, of which 14 684,782 were under wheat, 3,169,595 under flax, and 1,659,495 under oats. The estimates for 1912-18 are as follows: wheat, 16,976,000 acres, oats, 2 941,000 acres, and flax, 4 812,000 acres. In 1911 8,974,520 metric tons of wheat were produced, and 2,255,951 tons exported, 595 252 tons of flax produced, and 416,800 tons exported and 485,542 tons of oats produced, and 611 389 tons exported. Cotton, sugar, wine and tobacco are grown.

In 1911 the number of animals within the Republic was estimated at cattle, 29,116,625 horses, 7,531,376 mules 465,037, asses, 285,088 sheep 67,211,754, goats 8,945,754 pigs, 1,408 691. Of the cattle about four fifths are in five central and riverine provinces. Buenos Aires contains over 70 per cent of the sheep within the Republic. Many pedigree cattle and sheep have been imported. In 1910 there were eight freezing establishments 545 creameries 18 butter factories, 111 cheese making establishments, and 37 mixed factories. In 1910 there were 330 flour mills at work their output amounting to 684,672 tons of flour. There are two cotton spinning mills and 62 weaving establishments. In the provinces of Buenos Aires, Santa Fé, and Entre Ríos, agricultural lands to the extent of 463,000 acres have been acquired by the Jewish Colonisation Association. Of this land 158,000 acres are under cultivation.

In 1910 there were 31,988 factories in Argentina, employing a total of 329 490 persons. The total capital was 727,591,185 dollars, and the output 1,227,549,196 dollars.

According to official statistics, there were 887 strikes in Argentina from January 1, 1907, to December 31, 1911. The total strikers numbered 232,138, with an average of 248 workmen to each strike. During 1911 there were 102 strikes, 7 (6.9 per cent) resulting favorably to strikers, 3 (2.9 per cent) partly favorable, and 89 strikes (87.2 per cent) negatively.

Gold, silver, and copper are worked in Catamarca, and gold and copper in San Juan and Rioja. Other minerals found are galena, argentiferous lead, iron, blamuth, borate of lime, salt. Coal and petroleum are found in Mendoza, Jujay, and Comodoro Rivadavia, and the former is now being worked. There are no Government statistics as to mineral output. In 1910, 296 tons of bar copper and 2,116 tons of copper ore, and 795 tons of wolfram ore were exported.

The number of foreign steamships entered and cleared at the port of Buenos Aires in 1911 was 4,238, with a tonnage of 11,192 241. The vessels engaged in the coasting trade numbered 31,447, with a tonnage of 6 941,802.

Internal Communications

Railways open, 1912 19,684 miles 803 miles under construction. Of the total 3 388 miles belong to the State. The capital in January, 1913 was approximately 293,272,020 pesos receipts in 1912, 24 133 119 pesos, 14,974 888 pesos, passengers, 67,455 964. In 1911 there were 428 miles of tramways in Buenos Aires, mainly electric.

National telegraph lines, 15,878 miles 1910 provincial railway and private lines, bringing the total up to 37,779 miles with 96 076 miles of wire. Number of telegrams despatched (1911-12) 13,529 258. The Post Office (1911-12) dealt with 331 895,940 internal postal pieces and 68,258 365 international there were 2,027 post offices in 1911-12. The revenue of the Post and Telegraph Department was 14,480,869 dollars for 1911-12 expenditure, 11 866 740 dollars.

There are 12 stations for wireless telegraphy. There is a bill before the Senate compelling all ships with a crew of over 50 and touching at Argentine ports to be equipped with wireless telegraph.

Money and Credit

The 'Banco de la Nacion Argentina, on October 31, 1912, had capital equal to 120,990,950 pesos. The bank has a limited authority to lend money to the National Government the loans to which must not exceed 6,000,000 dollars. There are many commercial and agricultural banks within the Republic, the more important being the London and River Plate Bank with a paid up capital of 1,800,000 and reserve fund of 1 000,000, the London and Brazilian Bank, capital 750,000, reserve fund 2,000 000, the Banco Español del Rio de la Plata, with a paid up capital of 7,816,751 and reserve fund (June, 1912) of 3,388,942, and new reserve fund (part premium on new shares), 547,958, the British Bank of South America, capital paid up, 1,000,000, reserve fund 1,100,000, the Bank of Tarapaca and Argentina, capital paid up, 1 250,000L, reserve fund 850,000L, the Aleman Trans Atlantico (Deutsch Ueberseeische Bank), capital 840,000L, reserve fund 84,000L, the Banco del Comercio, capital 5,000,000 dollars, reserve fund 365,987 dollars. A new bank, Banco Franco e Italiano was established in 1912. The aggregate amount of gold held by the national bank (December 31st, 1912) was 34 012,850 gold dollars and 99,866,257 paper dollars.

In 1899 a conversion law was approved by Congress fixing the value of the paper dollar at 44 cents gold. On December 31, 1912, the gold held by the Bank of the Argentine nation and the Conversion Office amounted to 239,259,062 dollars. In December, 1912, the total circulation in currency, nickel and copper, was equivalent to 13 671,947L dollars. On December 31, 1912, there was paper money in circulation to the value of 722,924,213 dollars.

Money, Weights, and Measures

The silver Peso nacional or dollar of 100 centavos is of the value of 4s at par. The 5 dollar gold piece weighs 8 0645 grammes 900 fine, and therefore contains 7 25805 grammes of fine gold. One pound sterling = 5 04 gold dollars.

The silver dollar (like the French 5 franc piece) weighs 25 grammes 900 fine and thus contains 22 5 grammes of fine silver. There are 50 20, and 10-centavo silver coins, and both nickel and copper fractional money.

Professedly the standard of value is gold. The money in circulation is chiefly paper. The paper dollar, being convertible at 44 gold dollar, is worth 1s 8½d. (11 45 to the £).

Since January 1, 1887 the use of the French metric system is compulsory.

Nephews of the Emperor are the two sons of the late Archduke Otto (d. Nov 1, 1906) and Princess Maria Josepha of Saxony, Karl Franz Josef, born Aug 17, 1887, married October 21, 1911, to Princess Zita of Parma, and Maximilian, born April 18, 1895.

The imperial and royal family descends from Rudolf of Habsburg a German Count born 1218, who was elected King of the Romans in 1273. In 1282 he bestowed the Duchy of Austria upon his son Albrecht after wards Roman Emperor. The male line died out in 1740 with Emperor Karl VI. (III in Hungary), whose only daughter, Maria Theresa, gave her hand (1736) to Duke Franz of Lorraine and Tuscany afterwards Kaiser Franz I of the House of Lorraine, who thereby became the founder of the new line of Habsburg Lorraine. Maria Theresa was succeeded, in 1780, by her son Joseph II, who, dying in 1790 was succeeded by his brother Leopold II, at whose death, in 1792 his son Franz II (I in Hungary) ascended the Imperial throne. He reigned till 1835, and, having been married four times, left a large family, whose descendants form the present Imperial House. Franz was the first sovereign who assumed the title of Emperor, or 'Kaiser', of Austria, on being compelled by Napoleon, in 1806, to renounce the imperial crown of Rome, for more than three centuries practically in the Habsburg family. For about two years, however, he had already coupled with his title of Emperor of the Romans that of Hereditary Emperor of Austria. Franz I, as he now called himself, was succeeded by his son, Emperor Ferdinand I (V as King of Hungary), on whose abdication, Dec 2 1848, the crown fell to his nephew, the present Emperor King Franz Josef I.

The present Emperor King has a civil list of 22,600,000 crowns, one moiety of this sum, 11,300,000 crowns, is paid to him as Emperor of Austria, out of the revenues of Austria, and the other moiety as King of Hungary, out of the revenues of Hungary.

The following is a list of the Habsburg rulers of Austria (Dukes and from 1458 Archdukes of Austria, from 1526 also kings of Hungary and Bohemia, from 1804 Emperors of Austria)

House of Habsburg
Albrecht I.	1282	Maximilian II.	1564

All except those marked with an asterisk likewise held the throne of the Holy Roman Empire.

Political Relations between Austria and Hungary

Austria and Hungary or, as in international relations they are officially called, the Austro-Hungarian monarchy, consists of two States, the Austrian Empire and the Hungarian Kingdom. The relation between the two States in its present form was fully regulated by the so-called Compromise (Ausgleich, Kiegyezés) of 1867. According to this agreement the two States are perfectly independent of each other, possessing each its own constitution, its legislative power and its executive departments for most branches of State affairs. There is, however, a close political connection between them through the identity of the Sovereign and the community of certain departments of State affairs.

The common head of the monarchy is the Emperor (Kaiser) of Austria and Apostolic King (Apostoli Király) of Hungary. The crown is hereditary in the Habsburg Lorraine dynasty, passing by right of primogeniture and lineal succession to males and (on failure of males) to females (the so called "successio mixta"); The monarch must be a member of the Roman Catholic Church. He is styled 'His Imperial and Apostolic Royal Majesty, being Emperor of Austria, King of Bohemia, &c., and Apostolic King of Hungary'.

Affairs common to the two States are — (1) Foreign affairs (2) military and naval affairs, and (3) finance relating to common affairs. The two States administer these matters by common institutions and common ministries. The conduct of all diplomatic affairs and the diplomatic representation of the two States abroad are common to both. The greater part of the armed force and the entire navy are common, but the Austrian Landwehr and Austrian Levy in mass and the Hungarian Honvédek and the Hungarian Levy in mass, although standing in organic connection with the common army are special institutions administered by a particular ministry of each State. The financial business is in so far common, as the costs and expenses are common, which are applied for the common institutions and their conduct, but each State provides separately for the assessment collection, and transmission of its contribution.

Legislative power relating to common affairs (including the voting of money for common purposes) is exercised by the Parliaments of both States, but the duty of examining the requirements of the common services and advising what amount of money should be voted for each belongs to the so called Delegations. Of these there are two each consisting of 60 members, of whom 20 are chosen from each of the Upper Houses (the Austrian Herrenhaus and the Hungarian Fejrendiház) and 40 from each of the Lower Houses (the Austrian Abgeordnetenhaus and the Hungarian Képviselőház). The members are appointed for one year. The Delegations are summoned annually by the Emperor and King, alternately at Vienna and Budapest. They deliberate independently of each other, their decisions being communicated reciprocally in writing, and if, after three such interchanges, they do not agree, then all the delegates (or an equal number of members from each Delegation) meet together, and, without discussion settle the matter by vote.

Besides the political connection between Austria and Hungary, which is of a permanent character, there is a commercial union which is not permanent, but renewable at intervals of ten years. Under this arrangement the two States form practically one customs and commercial territory with the same coinage, weights and measures, a joint bank of issue and the same commercial (consular) representation abroad, while the monopolies and taxes connected with industrial production (salt, tobacco, spirits, beer, sugar and mineral oil) are administered on identical principles in both countries. This customs and commercial union, begun in 1867, was renewed in 1878, 1887, and 1907. In 1897 no agreement was attained, in fact, however, the commercial union was kept in vigour.

(maintained also legally by Hungary, by Law XXX, 1899) on the condition of reciprocity

The three ministries or executive departments for common affairs are —

1 The Common Ministry of Foreign Affairs and of the Imperial and Royal House — Count Leopold Berchtold, Privy Councillor Appointed February 19 1912

2. The Common Ministry of War — General Krobatkin Appointed December 10 1912

3 The Common Ministry of Finance — Dr de Biliaski, Privy Councillor, born January 16, 1851, formerly Imperial Finance Minister Appointed Minister of Finance for the whole Monarchy, February 20, 1912.

To these departments must be added —

The Common Court of Public Accounts. — Dr Ernst Baron Plener, Privy Councillor, born October 18, 1841 Appointed July 10 1895

The Ministers are responsible for the discharge of their official functions to the Delegations

Common Finance

The cost of the administration of common affairs is borne by both States in a proportion agreed on by the Reichsrath and Parliament (Országgyűlés), and sanctioned by the Emperor and King. The agreement, which expired in 1897, was renewed for ten years in 1907. According to this agreement the net proceeds of the common customs shall be applied to the common expenditure, and for the remainder Hungary shall pay as its quota 86.4 per cent and Austria 68.6 per cent.

II ARMY

The peculiar Constitution of the Dual Monarchy is reflected in the organization of its military forces. The first line of the Austro-Hungarian army is under the common government, and is known as the 'Common' Army which includes the troops raised in the newly annexed Provinces of Bosnia and Herzegovina The Austrian Landwehr and Landsturm are, however, entirely separate from the Hungarian Landwehr (Honvéd) and the Hungarian Landsturm (Népfőlkelés) The two latter form the Hungarian national army

Military service is compulsory and universal throughout the Empire, extending to all races, including the Mahomedans of Bosnia and Herzegovina. Liability extends from the 19th year to end of the 42nd year Actual service usually commences in the 21st year In the Common Army, continuous service is, according to the law XXX of 1912, for 2 years (8 years for cavalry and horse artillery), followed by 10 years in the reserve (3 years with colours and 7 in reserve for cavalry and horse artillery), and then 2 years in the reserve of the Landwehr; 12 years altogether

There is no Landwehr in Bosnia and Herzegovina, but the men remain 10 years in the reserve. Reservists must undergo three trainings in their reserve service, no one period to exceed 4 weeks. In practice the training periods are much less. After completion of his 12th year of service the soldier passes to the Landsturm in which he remains till he has reached his 42nd birthday. The annual contingent of recruits for the Common Army is fixed at 150,500, but of these 4,000 at present go to the Navy.

The Landwehr forces are not formed, except to a small extent of men who have passed through the first line. Both Austrian Landwehr and Hungarian Honvédség are permanently embodied and train their own recruits, though the peace establishments of units are lower than in the Common Army. When the young man of proper age presents himself for enrolment, those who draw the lowest numbers are allotted to the Common Army until the required contingent is obtained. The next lowest go to the Landwehr, and the remainder of those who are physically fit are passed with very few exceptions to the Ersatz or supplementary reserve. Landwehr service is 2 years with the colours and 10 in the reserve. The reservists of the Austrian Landwehr are liable to be called out for training for a total of 20 weeks and those of the Honvéd for a total of 25 weeks, in their entire reserve service, no one period to exceed 4 weeks. Men who have passed through the first line can be called out once in their 7 years. The contingent of recruits for the Austrian Landwehr is 12,500, that for the Honvéd is 25,000.

The Ersatz reserve is primarily intended to maintain the strength of units on field service. There are separate Ersatz reserves for the Common Army, and for each of the Landwehr forces. All undergo 8 weeks training in their first year and are afterwards liable to be called out for the same periods as the other reservists of the force to which they belong.

One year volunteers are admitted to the army, and many of them become reserve officers.

The Empire is divided into 16 army corps districts. Each army corps district is supposed to furnish a complete army corps of 2 divisions of the Common Army, but one district has 3 divisions. Each of these divisions consists of 2 brigades (each of 8 battalions), 1 artillery brigade (16 batteries of 6 guns each), a regiment of cavalry, a jäger (rifle) battalion, &c. Each Army Corps district, except those including Bosnia and Herzegovina, has also 1 Landwehr or Honvéd division, but one district has 2 Honvéd divisions. The Austrian Landwehr has artillery; the Honvéd at present consists only of infantry and cavalry, but artillery is now to be organised. Bosnia and Herzegovina are almost entirely garrisoned by battalions detached from line regiments, while the 4 B. H. regiments are brigaded with Austrian regiments at Vienna and elsewhere, so that the higher organisation is somewhat complicated and the brigades are generally short of a battalion or two.

There are 6 permanent cavalry divisions (3 of these on the Russian frontier), but 8 could be mobilised in event of war. Each army corps would have about 34,000 combatants, and each cavalry division about 4,000 combatants. The total strength of regulars in the field army may therefore be taken at 590,000 combatants. To these must be added the 8 Austrian Landwehr and 7 Honvéd divisions, about 230,000. Grand total about 820,000 combatants.

The War Minister (always a general officer of high rank) is the head of the Imperial War office, which administers the Common Army. The Austrian Defence Minister is in charge of the Austrian Landwehr and Landsturm, and the Hungarian Defence Minister (Honvéd Minister) of the corresponding Hungarian forces; they are severally responsible to the Emperor King for efficiency, and to their respective Parliaments for administration and finance.
